Marmora — Mrs. John O'Brien was notified on Monday that her son, Private Johnnie Norman O'Brien of the 48th Highlanders had been officially reported died of wounds on 23rd of September. This was the second telegram for the mother to receive within a week from the Director of Records the former message being to the effect that he was reported wounded in action. The deceased soldier who was 23 years of age on March 1st, attended Marmora Public School and was well liked by his schoolmates and later by his workmates. He enlisted about 18 months ago in the Engineers at Kingston and proceeded to England in December, 1943, having his Christmas dinner on the way over. He later transferred to the 48th Highlanders and went to Italy where he was at the time of becoming a casualty. News of his death has been received with deep regret. Before enlistment he worked at Deloro for the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited. He was unmarried.

MASS

Whitehead said fires and smoke could be seen boiling up from the bombardment, but he added that Aachen, battered and beaten though it was, still was not destroyed.

Medium bombers swept in late yesterday and for five hours rained explosives upon the wreckage already piled up. A bright sun shone over the scene today.

Move of Folly.

In a move of utter folly late yesterday, the Germans brought their columns from the east toward Aachen in broad daylight, to attack the Americans' virtual ring of steel about the city. The two-pronged assault force, estimated at division strength moved into the open under direct observation.

More than 100 big guns, including 240-mm. rifles, turned on these columns, which moved into action at about dusk. A battle raged for two hours. Then the shattered enemy columns fell back. They had failed either to relieve or reinforce Aachen's defences.

At 8 a.m. today the American infantry began its move, driving toward the factoy district on the northeast side, known as Schlachof, and toward Observatory Hill, which looks down on Aachen from the northern edge of the city.

Nazis Hide in Sewers, Basements.

"The enemy is hidden in ancient caves, sewers and basements which are almost impregnable to air and artillery attack—but we'll take it," a high-ranking officer said.

Despite the fires and smoke, in the clear sunlight of noontime I could see the tall, blackened shire of the cathedral in which Charlemagne was buried.

Five thousand rounds of shells were poured into the city yesterday along with more than 100 tons of bombs. Principal targets were Lousberg an Observatory Hill north of Aachen, the Quelenhof hotel area and the factory area on the northeast side of the city which the enemy has been using as a command post and supply area.

During the day one patrol entered the city.

It is believed now there are five enemy battalions in Aachen and that from 5,000 to 25,000 civilians remained in their homes.

Improve Positions.

Meanwhile Allied troops improved their positions both north and south of the Aachen breach in the Siegfried line.

The supreme command said that west of Arnhem in Holland the Germans had withdrawn from one area on the south bank of the Neder Rhine, where the British 2nd army is fighting. Fighters and fighter-bombers shot up and bombed enemy strongpoints and troops in that area.

Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans in the Haaren area north of Aachen as counter-attacks were beaten off. Enemy infantry and tanks were engaged in Bardenberg on that sector.

Southeast of besieged Aachen American troops cut through strong resistance and thrust across the Monschau-Duren road, a mile from Hurten.

Youthful 'Bluenose' Enjoys First Trip to Ontario on Handsome Yacht

She is a rakish forty-five footer and her trim lines as she lay moored at the Government Dock today bespoke not only a nautical grace but a footing speed that stood her well on her periodical trips to the Grand Banks.

She is the "Streamline," a handsome schooner yacht, owned by Mr. Walter E. Telford, of Toronto. For the past few years she has made her home among the "down-easters," chasing the elusive swordfish in his haunts off the Nova Scotian coast.

With a crew of three, the "Streamline" paused here today en route to Toronto where she will be refitted during the coming winter.

White-hulled to the waterline, the trim schooner made a pretty picture against the green of the Bay of Quinte water. She is outfitted with auxiliary motors, but flashing white sails are her principal method of propulsion.

In the comfortable cabin, taking his ease, lay fourteen-year-old Emmanual Gallant, of Summerside, Prince Edward Island. The "Skipper" and the third member of the crew, a former Merchant Mariner, Ken McGuigan, were up town.

Tanned a golden brown by Atlantic wind and sun, his clear blue eyes sparkling with enjoyment, the young "Bluenose" was enjoying his first visit to "Upper Canada." He thinks he will remain in Toronto.

"We all take turns at being cook, and we're all alive so I guess we can't be so bad," he smiled. Asked for measurements of the yacht, he quickly produced a well-worn log and rapidly skimming through its pages he gave the required measurements.

"She's registered at Lunenburg," he offered.

"Think she can beat the 'Bluenose' in a race?" he was asked.

"Huh," he said. "Why the Streamline couldn't touch her in a beat to wind'ard, or on a straight tack either." The youngster knows his sailing.

"See any submarines on your trip from Halifax here?"

Blue eyes flashed. "Naw, but we're ready for 'em—but," he added quickly, "that's a military secret."

The white schooner sailed from the Maritime port a few days ago, and is expected to leave this port some time today.

Hart of Point Anne and Hayden Of Toronto Flying Comrades Through Three Years of War

With the R.C.A.F. in Italy — Alphabetically speaking "Hart" comes before "Hayden", and by that narrow margin WO. J. P. "Jack" Hart of Point Anne, Ontario, claims seniority over his fellow Spitfire pilot WO. Basil Hayden of (140 Hepburn St., Toronto).

The two veteran Desert Air Force pilots, now in Italy with the crack R.C.A.F. City of Windsor squadron, first met at Belleville Initial Training School as student pilots in June, 1941. They continued together through E.F.T.S. and graduated simultaneously from Service Flying Training School, with Hart getting his wings five minutes before Hayden. Since then they have been separated only one day throughout their service careers, and their log books show only 50 minutes' flying time difference in their total air hours.

They fly together, take leave together, and they even 'prang' together. When Hayden had his first crash landing not so long ago, after 450 hours in the air, no one was surprised to hear that Jack followed suit the next day. During their time with Canada's crack Desert Air Force unit they have flown in combat over the Anzio beachhead, and taken part in many sorties, strafing and dive-bombing enemy ground forces in close support of the Eighth Army as they cracked the Gothic Line. Now they are looking forward to completing their operational tours on the same day.

"It's taken a bit of wangling," they'll admit when asked how they've managed to keep together through more than three years of active service. If wangling will work it, it's a safe bet that when the final "D"-Day comes, Hart and Hayden will toss their blues into the same kit-bag and step back into civvie street together.

Council Wants Hanging Of Four Men Elsewhere

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—The Fort Frances town council decided last night that there are no facilities available here for the scheduled hanging of four men convicted in the hot-stove torture death of Mrs. Viola Jamieson, 40, of Flanders, Ont., last summer.

The men—William Schmidt, Anthony and George Skrypnyk and Eino Tillonen—were sentenced to hang Dec. 6 at conclusion of their Ontario Supreme court trial Sept. 3. The men now are lodged in the Kenora Provincial jail.

The council's resolution, which will be forwarded to the Ontario Attorney - General's department, suggests the gallows be erected elsewhere.

The War Today—

Signs Increase Remaining Strength Of Huns Soon Put to Supreme Test

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The imminent climax of the battle for ancient Aachen, which the Germans made a key position in their Siegfried Line, is likely to make it easier for us to estimate prospects of achieving a quick knock-out of Germany.

There's not the slightest cause for anxiety over the progress of the Allied offensive, though we may be entitled to grouse a bit over the unfriendly weather.

There are increasing signs that Hitler's remaining strength may shortly be put to the supreme test of concerted all-out offensives in both eastern and western Europe. The defence upon which the Fuehrer is depending heavily is to impede Allied preparations until the bad weather comes to his rescue.

Hitler Invites Destruction

The battle of Aachen gives us useful guidance on several important questions. For one thing it emphasizes that Hitler intends to fight to a bloody finish, ruthlessly sacrificing not only military but civilian lives, and inviting the destruction of proud cities like this one-time centre of culture for Western Europe.

Again it is demonstrated that Hitler has fanatical commanding officers who are ready to do his will. The German command in Aachen did their best—or one might better say their most cruel worst—to prevent the surrender not only of their soldiers but of civilians before the American ultimatum expired.

However, we also learn that not all German soldiers or citizens by any means are prepared to die for th dictator. Many of the Aachen citizens who hadn't been evacuated flew white flags from their houses in an effort to surrender. A lot of German sodiers also wanted to give themselves up, and a considerable number did, but others were prevented from surrendering by their officers.

RUSSIANS

The Germans, however, admitted their Tisza river line had been shattered and said that "heavy fighting is raging west of the river."

Hungary appeared on the verge of a military knockout today as the Russians overran Magyar defences on a 120-mile front guarding Budapest.

The developing debacle, with apparent imminent collapse of Hungarian resistance, emphasized final disintegration of Hitler's Balkan defences, and indicated an early assault by the Red army upon Austria.

Nearing Budapest.

The army newspaper Red Star said Soviet tropps already were more than halfway from the Hungarian-Romanian border to Budapest, which would place them less than 60 miles from the capital.

The Hungarian army was reported in the utmost state of confusion, with its elite divisions trapped in northern Transylvania or scattered among the Carpathian passes of Ruthenia. Neither the army nor the people appeared willing to fight an hour longer on the side of Germany, Red Star said.

Moscow military sources expressed belief the German High Command already is reckoning on Hungary's complete elimination from the war.

Russian and Romanian forces yesterday captured Szeged, second largest city in Hungary, and Cluj, capital of Transylvania, with general advances elsewhere on the Balkan front.

(Marshal Tito announced that Russian and Yugoslav partisan forces had surrounded Belgrade.)

Thrown Back From Defences.

Meanwhile, to the north, the battle for East Prussia seemed under way, with the Germans being thrown back from their border defences 15 miles northeast of the fortress city of Tilsit.

A Soviet column, following the Tilsit-Siauliai highway and railroad, pressed back German infantry while low-flying Red air force Stormoviks slashed at the Nazi ground forces and turned green-camouflaged tanks and self-propelled guns into blazing wrecks.

A second column pushed forward along both the north and south banks of the Niemen river, and at the closest point was less than 30 miles east of the city's fortifications.

Still a third sweep on the German bastion came southward from besieged Memel, almost reaching the Baltic coastal highway which now has been severed along a wide stretch north of Memel.

Germans Fight Fiercely.

The Germans fought furiously at all three major Baltic ports—Memel, Leipaja and Riga—which are under heavy Soviet attack.

The East Prussian frontier was reached when the Russians seized the town of Panowi. There was savage fighting southeast of Memel as the Germans threw in four divisions of reinforcements with 30 counter-attacks. Russian reports said more than 3,000 of the enemy were slain.

The advance on Leipaja steadily contracted the Latvian pocket in which from 100,000 to 150,000 German troops are trapped.

There was no Soviet confirmation of Berlin radio reports the Red army had opened a fresh offensive in Poland, in the area of Rozan.

Send Waste Paper to War

A used paper shortage of many thousands of tons is threatened in Canada and the United States for the last months of this year. Such a shortage would if it developed lead to privations and adversely affect the war effort for waste paper is our No. 1 war material shortage.

Stowed away in cellars, attics, garages and other places of storage is a vast quantity of outmoded papers, magazines, periodicals and other paper products. Within easy reach there is the paper needed to offset to a great extent the threatened shortage.

That piece of paper tossed carelessly aside can play a vital part for victory. It is as necessary to the war effort as the pilot, the tankman, the infantryman or the sailor.

On the transports that carry the war supplies to the battle front you will find Private Paper doing his duty day and night. In containers he carries the vital blood plasma for the wounded; he folds himself about medical supplies, repair parts; and he flutters to earth in paper parachutes that carry supplies to the fighting forces. He hurtles himself through space as part of a shell casing, and is a vital ingredient in the manufacture of various kinds of other ammunition.

Paper will do its part in this war—but it must be brought in. It cannot come of itself from attic, cellar and garage and proudly report for duty. It must be placed on collection "parade." And this is where Mr. and Mrs. Private Citizen can help.

On Monday, October 6th., the Emergency Waste Paper Drive will start. Collectors will call at 7 o'clock p.m. to collect the parcels that will mean so much in that last drive for victory.

A few minutes of household organization should do the trick. Rally the family and start a paper collection offensive. Convert these "P.O.W.'s" (packets of waste) into parcels of war. Place them outside the door on Monday evening and the collectors will do the rest.

On the many battlefronts, the United Nations are poising themselves for the knockout blow. They will need every ounce of reserve strength if they are to deliver it effectively. Paper carries a part of that strength, but it will be useless if not included in the Allied "swing" that will put to an end forever the tyrannical aspirations of the bullies of the World.

In Moscow

In Moscow there are in progress discussions of the mightiest import to the world, Marshal Joseph Stalin of Russia and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain being there in conference. Recently at the Quebec Conference close it was indicated that there was the need of a meeting of the Western leaders with Marshal Stalin. The present meeting in the Kremlin is the result of this need. The United Nations place every hope and confidence in the decisions which will be made by the representatives of the two powers, Britain and Russia, both great empires and representing large numbers of races as well as the other nations of the Allied cause.

Many conferences have been held throughout the war years by the Allied leaders and out of every conference has stemmed a series of events, victories, which will ultimately and at no distant date, it is confidently held, bring the war with Germany to an end in victory and also bring to a successful Allied triumph the war against the Nipponese warlords and their forces.

Great decisions will flow from this meeting of two of the greatest men of any age for Mr. Stalin and Mr. Churchill are sure of a place in the world's hall of fame along with President Roosevelt and other Allied leaders in the centuries to come. Mr. Roosevelt is kept at home through the pressure of office and the approach of the presidential elections in the United States. The Kremlin meetings are the precursor of the final great events, the continued, relentless progress through Germany on the way to Berlin and the planned program of after-war. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin have the highest regard for the services which the country of the other has rendered humanity in smiting the Hun. They are mapping the victory that will become security as the reward of the sacrifices which the Allied Nations have made.

The United Nation's world knows that in Moscow the Allied leaders will reach decisions of towering importance. Both these men and their countries are so earnestly working for victory and security on behalf of the multitudes of people whom they represent.

Remarks of the two great leaders at the state luncheon show how deeply rooted into the Allied cause is the harmony of the Allied Powers. Mr. Stalin emphasized the need of post-war co-operation for international peace and spoke of the ties that bind the Russian nation and the other Allies together as well as praising the help the Allies had given the Russian people in the struggle. The Russian marshal and premier extolled the help of Britain's and the United States' military might and of Canada's aid, while Mr. Churchill praised the magnanimity and generosity of the Russian leader and nation which he said were the sign and badge of a great nation and a great man. Then added Mr. Churchill in language which for graphic power could not fail to impress upon Marshal Stalin and all the guests, how deeply Britain and the Allies feel the magnificence of Russian war effort. "I have always thought and I think now, that it was the Red Army which clawed the guts out of the filthy Nazis." These leaders and nations understand one another.

Soldiers and Clocks

Australia's Department of Supply and Shipping has allotted a special quota of alarm clocks to soldiers attached to the Sydney headquarters. The purpose was to make sure the soldiers allowed to live at their homes could get to their duties on time. The action raised comment in Sydney because of the difficulties munitions workers had getting alarm clocks. Instances were dug up, telling of dealers denying they had any alarm clocks for sale to civilians presenting credentials as workers in essential war industries. The day after the Supply Department released a fresh allotment to retailers, one customer with credentials made the rounds of six stores in a vain attempt to get an alarm clock.

Worms Get Speedup

Silkworm handlers in Rio de Janeiro have found out how to put the speedup measure on silkworms doing their bit in producing war-vital material. They cool off the worms in refrigerators, making the Brazilian climate over into something more like what the worms from the temperate zone are accustomed to. Operators have found out how to get 10 crops of cocoons a year with aircooling methods, speeding the life cycle and getting bigger production of eggs and young worms. Another phase of the experimentation designed to supply more silk for powder bags and parachutes in testing various strains of mulberry trees to determine which produces the best food for worms. Experimenters are working with growers of some 300,000 trees.

Growing Season

The period between wheat seeding and cutting in Western Canada has been referred to occasionally as "the 100 days." But on the average it is 112 days in this province, according to Alberta Pool's publication, The Budget' which furnishes much accurate information regarding our agricultural conditions, The Edmonton Journal comments. It puts the 1944 period at 121 days and states, with the exception of 1942 when it was 135, this was the longest in the past eleven years. The shortest was ninety-five in 1936.

In a vain man, the smallest spark may kindle into the greatest flame, because the materials are always prepared for it.—Hume.

MAN

God gave men time to think, and left them free
To fancy, fashion, wonder and improve.
All creatures else he prisoned in a groove,
Never to question what His plan could be;
Never beyond the den or swamp to see
Some upland richer and attempt to move;
Forever doomed to fang and claw and hoove,
Feathered and furred, complete in infancy.

But in His own good image God made man;
Filled him with hopes and dreams and memories long
And gave him wisdom, mirth and prose and song,
And sent him here with: Do the best you can!
Know joy and sorrow, triumph, failure, fear,
And with them shape a soul and a career.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

"Fan," in the sense of an enthusiast over baseball, football, radio or any other sport, amusement, entertainment or avocation, is modern and is believed to be a contraction of "fanatic."

The theory, often advanced by popular writers, that "fan" in this sense is derived from the verb "to fan," signifying to blow upon, to stimulate action or to excite to activity, is not generally accepted by philologists.

This word apparently came into general use sometime between 1880 and 1900. It is supposed, with some reason, that it originated as follows: Chris Van der Ahe, owner of the St. Louis Browns, during the latter part of the '80's stated that Charles Haas was the greatest baseball fanatic he had ever seen. Newspaper editors and sport writers took up the word and began to call baseball enthusiasts "fanatics," which was later shortened to "fan" by the headline writers.

It is an interesting fact that centuries ago "fan" was frequently used as a contraction of "fanatic" in the literal sense of that word. There is probably no relation between "fan" as applied to enthusiasts over the game and the verb "fan" as applied to striking out while batting.

How do bees hum? Bees make the characteristic monotonous noise known as humming as well as the louder buzzing sound entirely by vibrating their wings rapidly. They do not produce any sound with their mouths, as often supposed.

The shrillness of the sound increases with the number of vibrations of the wings. The slow flapping of a butterfly, for instance, produces no sound, but the rapid vibration of the wings of a bee produces a very distinctive one.

Scientists say an ordinary honeybee may vibrate its wings at the rate of 440 times a second or 26,400 times a minute. Honeybees were among the original air-conditioners. Certain workers, known as "fanner bees," perform the function of ventilating the hive by crawling about beating their wings at the rate of 11,400 strokes a minute.

Can monkeys swim? One often hears it said that men and monkeys are the only members of the animal kingdom unable to swim without being taught. Although most monkeys and apes shun water, there are some species that are known to swim and even to dive in their wild state. Monkeys do not differ much from many other animals in this respect.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Hydro Policy

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I was greatly pleased to see in the issue of October 6th a statement from Dr. T. H. Hogg, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission. I see that Dr. Hogg brought before the public a statement that they have readjusted the rates through the rural districts and that they have cancelled the service charge of the rural districts. That the three Southern Ontario power districts are united into one system saving cost there. Also the amalgamation into one district of 120 rural districts, again saving cost.

Encouraging the development in the rural districts so that the rural districts will be able to buy equipment that they will require and this equipment to be made in the cities, keeping men and women busy, keeping factories going which were formerly working on war work. This Mr. Editor is the same policy I have advocated for the past ten years. I am writing this letter to you for two reasons, one to let the people who supported me so loyally know that their confidence in me was not misplaced and that the things I stated were for their benefit and secondly to let those who were misinformed by false prophets, look into the situation. Again I say I have been fighting for the policy for a number of years but have never had full support from the Belleville Hydro Commission and especially from the Manager who was always against it.

This policy of the Ontario Commission is not only going to help the homes in the rural districts but it will also give employment to thousands of men and women in the factories, building the equipment the homes in the rural districts will require, such as refrigerators, quick freezing equipment, milking machines, washing machines and many other electrical appliances.

This is a Provincial wide policy and in force. There hasn't been nor will there be any raise in rates in the towns or cities.

I hope Mr. Editor, you will give space for this letter

Geo. Reid,
Ex-Commissioner.

Brazilian Forces Drive for Naval Base of La Spezia

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(AP War Correspondent)

Rome, Oct. 12 — (AP)—Brazilian Expeditionary Forces today pushed to the vicinity of Gallicano, 29 miles inland from the big Italian west coast naval base of La Spezia.

Another column, advancing up the opposite side of the Serchio river valley, reached Barga, four miles east of Gallicano. The apparent objective was to outflank La Spezia itself.

In central Italy, British and American forces of the Allied 5th Army met increasing enemy resistance in their attempt to break through the last of the Apennine hills into the Po Valley, Allied headquarters announced.

The only other significant gains in yesterday's fighting came on the British 8th Army front where British troops captured Longiano, 12 miles west of Rimini, and the neighboring village of Lacrocetta. The 8th Army also pushed additional forces across the Fiumcino river and occupied the towns of Gatteo and San Giovanni.

Headquarters said the 8th Army gains in the foothills west of Rimini in recent days had outflanked German positions behind the Fiumcino river sufficiently to compel the enemy to withdraw the Adriatic sector of the line to positions running northeast and southwest through Bambettola.

Bombers of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force, throwing 1,700 sorties into the air yesterday, hampered industrial targets in the Vienna area, airfields in Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, and supported ground operations in Italy.

PAYING BY TELEPHONE

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 11 — (AP) — "How much will that cost?" asked the man who called the Tulsa tribune to place a classified ad. "Exactly 60 cents," said the ad-taker. There was a moment of silence, then from the other end came a series of tinkling sounds. "What are you doing?" asked the ad-taker. "Why, I'm paying for the ad, of course," said the caller. "I'm putting 60 cents worth of nickels right here in the telephone."

A NIP FOR GRAM AND GRAMP

From time to time I have directed to parents, teachers, spiritual advisers, doctors, uncles, aunts, big brothers and sisters a plea in behalf of growing boys and girls — namely, the ceremony of pledging them against using alcohol or tobacco, and the annual renewal of the pledge, say on the child's birthday, up to the time when the child becomes independent and self-supporting. I thank my lucky stars that my mother, a member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union (I wish they'd drop the Christian part of that name and make it just Women's Temperance Union—for I know some of the finest mothers who are not Christians) pledged her children in this way. We were ordinary children and we had as lief beaten mother up with a baseball bat as break that pledge.

Members and officers of the W. C. T. U. have now and again expressed approval of my attitude. Spiritual advisers rarely. Parents once or twice. Doctors never.

Now if I had my way every blankety-blanked cocktail joint in the country would be closed, not only on V-day and for a day or two thereafter, but forever. And every alleged eating place where liquor is available would pay such a stiff tax on liquor sales that there would be no profit in that end of the business.

Now don't assume I'm just a crank. I am speaking as a health expert.

In his famous "Practice of Medicine" textbook Dr. Osler, speaking of the treatment of pneumonia, said:

"Alcohol does not seem to raise the blood pressure in fever, and the studies of Briggs and Cook in my wards would indicate that it is not of much value in progressive vasomotor collapse. This does not mean, however, that it may not have a value in the fever, and I should be sorry to give up its use in the severer forms of enteric"—(typhoid fever)—"and of pneumonia."

In the same edition (sixth, '06) Osler said in the chapter on treatment of typhoid or enteric fever:

"Alcohol is unnecessary in a great majority of the cases. Of late years I have used it much less freely; but when the heart is feeble and the toxic symptoms are severe, eight to twelve ounces of whiskey may be given in the twenty-four hours."

Before we put Osler back on the shelf—after, all, he is not an authority today — it seems pertinent to recall that when he visited his elderly mother and found her rather peakish he advised her to have some wine every day. But mother shook her head. "No, no, Willie," she said, "I'm afraid I might get the habit."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Not So Fast

I have lost 7 pounds in 1½ weeks since I started the regimen you give in your pamphlet. I am happy and proud of it, as I am only 5 ft. 3 inches tall and weighed 193 pounds. I feel so much better already, and do hope I can keep on losing flesh and gaining vitality. Please send me your pamphlet for falling hair and for graying hair. (Mrs. P. L.)

Answer—That is too fast. Two or three pounds a week is as much as any one should lose on a safe, healthful reduction. Try to regulate your diet and activity to keep the loss of weight around 2 pounds a week. Pamphlet "How to Lose Weight" mailed on request (no clipping) if you provide stamped self addressed envelope. Pamphlet on "Care of the Hair and Control of Dandruff" ditto. Pamphlet on "The Anti-Gray Hair Vitamins" ditto. If you ask for more than one pamphlet inclose ten cents for each additional one you want.

Balmy Indoor Climate

I have a clipping or part of one in which you told about maintaining proper indoor humidity in the winter, time, with water reservoirs and wicks. (E. H.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on "Air Conditioning".

Three officers, nine men and a considerable quantity of tactical, radio, scientific and ordnance equipment were seized.

It could not be stated where in Greenland the station was operating or why the War Department believed it to be the last German weather outpost. Several similar installations had been captured previously.

Thanksgiving Services Held at St. Peter's

Madoc —(Special)— The Sunday before the Canadian Thanksgiving Day was appropriately observed with two services of Thanksgiving in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church. At the evening service, the minister, Rev. Eric Larsen, delivered a special message on the theme, "Sowing and Reaping." "For what a man soweth that shall he also reap." This, Mr. Larsen brought out, applies equally in the natural, moral and spiritual realm.

The topic for the morning service was, "God in the History of a Nation." This was the first in a course of Old Testament sermons from the book of Exodus. Other sermons to follow will deal with modern problems in the light of God's dealing with His people.

A special effort had been made by the choir and young people to decorate the church with the gay autumn colors of field and forest. For the evening service the setting was further enhanced by the use of candles and special lighting. This beautiful and artistic decoration made the newly-decorated church very attractive for this occasion. Both services were very well attended.

The full choir was in attendance both morning and evening, and Mr. Douglas Blue sang a solo.

Announcement also was made of the 70th anniversary of the building of St. Peter's, which will be observed on November 5th with the Rev. J. Forbes Wedderburn of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kingston, as guest preacher.

St. Peter's Y. W. Club.

St. Peter's Y. W. Club held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Nicol. After the devotional period the Bible lesson, Luke 17:11-18, was read followed with prayer by Miss L. Connor. Thirteen members answered the roll call. Attractive articles for the bazaar were brought in and displayed. The president, Mrs. M. Clark, was in charge of the program. A very interesting account of the Scottish missionary, Mary Slessor, was read followed by an equally interesting paper consisting of missionary observations of soldiers in the South Pacific. Prayer by Mrs. E. Larsen brought the meeting to a close. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. Hill, served tea and a social half hour was enjoyed.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

A lunch served by the Grace Church ladies to over one hundred ladies brought to a close a very enjoyable and sociable afternoon.

Anniversary services were held at White's Church on Sunday. The church was decorated for this occasion with potted plants, cut flowers, sumac boughs and pumpkin.

The morning service was conducted by the pastor the Rev. Mr McCallum who gave his congregation many thoughts to carry away. The choir assisted, by rendering two anthems.

Inspiring Services Held at Empey Hill United Church

Empey Hill — One of the most successful and largely attended anniversaries in the history of Empey Hill United Church, was held on Sunday, Oct. 8th. The morning service was attended by an unusually large congregation, among whom were many former residents of the Empey Hill community, who still treasure the memories of their associations with Empey Hill church.

The Rev. W. R. Merrick conducted the services, with the Rev. H. A. Kent M.A., D.D., of Kingston, as the special preacher for the day. His morning theme emphasized the truth that only in God can man find the satisfaction and safety for his moral and spiritual life.

The evening service was also largely attended by a worshipful congregation, who joined fervently in the act of thanksgiving to God for His unfailing mercies. Dr. Kent's evening message was taken from II Timothy fourth chapter, and seventh verse, and he explained the true nature of the Christian Faith, as St Paul believed and experienced it to be, and that the value of this faith was so great to Paul, and despite all the suffering he endured, nothing could cause him to relinquish his hold upon the precious faith of Christ as Lord and Saviour. "I have kept the Faith," was Paul's great achievement, so by the grace of God we may do the same.

Special Music Featured.

Another inspiring feature of the morning and evening services was the special music and singing by the choir, also the special numbers rendered by Mrs. Hugh Ramsay of Newburgh, and Mr. Garnet Brooks. Miss Margery Price presided at the piano, and each number was very appropriate and enjoyed.

For the services the altar was adorned with a beautiful variety of flowers, set in a backgroud of colorful foliages.

Before closing the evening service, the pastor expressed hearty thanks and appreciation to Dr. Kent for his inspiring messages. Also to the choir and guest singers for their uplifting contribution of song, and to the congregation, for their outstanding generosity and co-operation, in making the anniversary occasion one of the best in the history of Empey Hill church.

For several weeks previous to the anniversary, the work of painting the Sunday school rooms and auditorium of the church, also the installing of a new furnace was proceded with and completed in time for the occasion, and now, the Sunday School room presents a very pleasing appearance, and the auditorium with its transformed interior presents an aspect of quiet dignity, and structural beauty conducive to the spirit of worship.

Variety Program on Monday

On Monday evening the anniversary occasion was continued by the local talent of Empey Hill when three groups of talented individuals presented three one act plays, namely "That's What They All Say," "Polishing Henry," "Straw in Her Hair". Musical numbers were also given by H. Kimmerly, Jack Stafford, accompanied by Miss Shirley Stafford at the piano.

All these numbers provided an evening's first class entertainment for the impersonations were excellent and full of fun by representing many humorous and delicate experiences in the ordinary ways of life. The proceeds of the entertainment were very gratifying amounting to over $56.

Three Mothers And Children Reach New Homes

Trenton — (Special) — The Red Cross special train which carried 300 brides and 200 children across Canada to their new homes on Monday afternoon brought three mothers and four children to Trenton and district. Met at the station by local Red Cross officials they were cared for and transported to their respective homes.

Mrs. Margaret Coughlan with two-and-half-year-old Frances and 9-months-old Cyril were en route to Prince's Lake, 15 miles north of Maynooth. Her late husband was taken prisoner in Italy and later killed as he was attempting to escape, she said. Before leaving England he had expressed the wish that should he not return she should bring her children to Canada to make their home.

Her youngest child was born five months after her husband had left for Italy and very shortly afterward the home in which they resided was struck by a robot bomb and when the debris was cleared away her small daughter was found clinging to the rafters.

The nurse and doctor in charge of the special train bringing Mrs. Coughlan and her children to Trenton informed local Red Cross officials that the nine-months-old boy had been ill during the latter part of the journey. The mother and children were taken to the Gilbert House in Trenton and a local doctor and V.O.N. nurse called and the baby was later removed to Belleville Hospital where he is said to be suffering a mild case of pneumonia. Meantime the mother and small daughter have gone to stay with relatives at Batawa.

Others to arrive on the same train were Mrs. Gordon Way and small daughter who proceeded to the home of her husband at Wooler, Mrs. H. Hyatt and small son and Mrs. C. Cook and small daughter. All three families were met by the husbands and fathers who had arrived in Canada some weeks ago.

CAUCUS ENLARGED

Toronto, Oct. 12—(CP)—A two-day progressive conservative government caucus which was enlarged on the second day to include all defeated party candidates in the last Ontario election closed yesterday with reports of complete satisfaction with the performance of the administration of Premier George Drew so far and with its future policies. The Premier said he had no statement to make except that the meetings had been "highly successful."

Apple Recipes To Tempt Modern Adams From Dominion Experimental Kitchen

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section,
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

As the instrument of temptation, as inspiration and bringer of comfort; as a panacea for many ills and prize of the gods, the apple has featured in history and legend for thousands of years.

There's still a subtle temptation about the apple; enclosed in a flaky crust there are few who can resist its lure. But while one might conceivably tire of a daily diet of apple pie, apples themselves can appear daily at meals through the next few months without bringing any feeling of monotony in their wake. At any meal and with almost any course apples are welcome — and a good collection of apple recipes should form part of the kitchen lore of every Canadian woman. The Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture offers 'collector's pieces'.

For a winter salad they suggest cold baked apples stuffed with finely diced celery or shredded, crisp raw vegetables and served with dressing. Diced raw apple with skins left on are good with almost any combination of vegetables; particularly good with shredded cabbage, celery and diced cooked or pickled beets.

Apple and Squash Casserole

2½ cups diced, cooked squash
2½ cups sliced sour apples
1-3 cup brown sugar
2 strips side bacon, diced
½ teaspoon salt

Arrange half the squash in greased casserole. Cover with half the apples. Sprinkle with half the sugar and salt and add half the bacon. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Cover and bake in modmoderately slow oven, 325°F, for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake until apples are soft and top is browned, about 15 minutes longer. If the mixture appears dry, due to lack of juice in the apples, add ½ tablespoon water. Six servings.

Apple Charlotte

¼ inch slices of bread (about 9)
6 small apples
¼ cup sugar

Line greased muffin tins with the bread, placing a circle of bread at the bottom. Wash and core apples. Place in the bread lined tins. Sprinkle with sugar (cinnamon or nutmeg may be mixed with the sugar if desired). Bake in a moderate oven, 350°F, until apples are tender, about 20 minutes. To serve, invert on plates and serve hot with vanilla sauce or top milk. Six servings.

Apple Bread

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1-3 cup mild-flavoured fat
½ cup sugar
1 cup ground or finely grated unpeeled raw apple
½ cup wheat germ
¼ cup sour milk

Sift flour, salt, baking soda and baking powder. Cream fat, add sugar and cream well together. Add apple and wheat germ. Add dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Baked in a greased loaf pan, 4½" x 10", in a moderate oven, 350°F, for about 45 minutes.

Peppermint Apples
(Baked apples with a new twist)

6 medium-sized apples
6 tablespoons grated cheese
¼ cup sugar
Peppermint flavouring
½ cup water

Wash and core apples. Place in baking dish. Mix cheese and sugar and add 3 or 4 drops of peppermint flavouring. Fill centres of apples with this mixture. Pour water into pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350°F, until apples are tender, about 20 minutes. Serve hot. Six servings.

American Forces Control 11 Islands In Southern Palaus

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 12 —(AP)— American forces controlled 11 islands in the southern Palaus today, after the second new landing in three days, as Tokyo reported continuing aerial blows against the key petroleum centre of Borneo.

Infantrymen landed unopposed Tuesday on Bairakaseru Islet, 9½ miles northwest of Peleliu, Admiral Nimitz announced in a communique last night. Other infantrymen Sunday invaded Garakayo, 2½ miles north of Peleliu, and secured control within 24 hours.

Tokyo radio, heard last night by Federal Communications Commission monitors, reported nearly 100 Liberators and 30 escorting fighters had smashed the important Borneo oil refinery at Balikpapan Tuesday.

The enemy radio added today that approximately 1,000 Allied planes attacked Japanese-occupied Formosa off the East China coast today.

There was no confirmation of either broadcast.

Formosa presumably is the base from which Japanese forces are operating in their campaign against the Chinese in the Foochow area, directly opposite on the China coast.

A Southwest Pacific communique today reported a four-hour attack on Balikpapan Sunday by night patrol bombers, the fifth attack in recent weeks against this oil centre which produces 15 per cent of Japan's aviation gasoline.

Concentrated Raid Near Bologna

Rome, Oct. 12 — (AP) — A great force of American heavy bombers delivered one of the most concentrated attacks of the war today on German barracks, bivouacs, stores and dumps in a rough circle around besieged Bologna while Allied ground forces deployed 10 miles from the city.

The force of bombers was larger than that which left Cassino south of Rome in ruins last spring and was the largest the U.S. 15th Air Force ever dispatched over a single target.

DIED FROM GAS FUMES

Kingston, Oct. 12 — (CP)—Body of Fred Johnston, 45, of Kingston, was found on the meter room floor at the Public Utility Commission's plant yesterday, and Coroner C. W. Bennett said he died from gas fumes.

Nazis Reported Building Defences In Narvik Area

Montreal, Oct. 12 — (CP)—Nazis are feverishly building extensive defence works along the Swedish border in the Narvik area and one-third of the houses at Narvik have been vacated to accommodate retreating German troops from Finland, a Norwegian press attache release said here today, quoting reports from the Swedish border town of Kiruna.

Apparently fearing an Allied attack in the area, which witnessed the furious battles of 1940, Germans have dug trenches, fortified positions for miles south of Narvik to the sea northwest of Bjoernefjell. Mine-belts have been laid in all surrounding waters.

About 10,000 Nazi troops retreating from Finland were expected soon at Narvik where small trenches and fox holes were blasted out of the street or built.

PLANS FOR EXPANSION

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said last night that plans of steel companies here and at Hamilton, Ont., for expansion were an indication of continued Canadian industrial activity after the war.

The Minister spoke at a public meeting after George E. Nixon, the sitting member, was nominated at an afternoon convention as Liberal candidate in Algoma west in the next Federal election.

German Cities To Suffer Same Fate as Aachen

Washington, Oct. 12 —(AP)— Other German cities may expect to suffer the fate now being dealt out to explosive-blasted Aachen if the Nazi High Command incorporates them into the battle line, War Secretary Stimson said today.

Discussing for a news conference the ultimatum which was ignored by the Aachen garrison, Mr. Stimson said:

"No German cities may expect to have immunity from destruction so long as they are maintained as a part of the enemy's battle line. As General Hodges of the American 1st Army has stated, there is no middle course. Either surrender or destruction must be chosen by the Nazis. German civilians will necessarily have to bear the burden of any decision imposed upon them by their military leaders which makes their city a part of the defence line."

Mr. Stimson described the offensive in the Aachen sector as designed "to give us elbow room within the Siegfried Line after testing and overcoming some of its most formidable obstacles."

Enemy artillery fire has been strong and enemy troops willing to fight desperately, he said, adding: "Again I should point out that the German line is cohesive and the discipline of the German troops good. The mobilization effort of the Nazis reaching into every last source of German manpower is producing recruits, even if their training and quality are not all the German commanders would desire."

Referring to the stepped-up air offensive within recent days, the Secretary said "Allied air power has given to enemy industry a taste of what is to come on a larger scale, now that the Germans are driven back to their own frontier and the German air force is losing the advantage of coastal bases and warning systems."

Studies Ways to Close Doors to War Criminals

Stockholm, Oct. 12 — (AP) — A commission is studying ways to put teeth into the government's recently-declared policy of closing Sweden's doors to war criminals.

The Swedes are fully aware of attempts by Nazis and Quislings to seek haven here despite notice that they are unwelcome, and they are planning measures to meet the problem and return such individuals to justice. Preliminary moves are being made although the Allies have not yet announced a list of war criminals.

B.C.I. 'Red Shirts' Open Grid Season With Win Over Picton

Roll Up 26-0 Score Due to Superior Weight and Experience

STRACHAN STARS

Carrying too much weight and experience Coach "Red" Townsend's Belleville Collegiate "Red Shirts" pried off the Bay of Quinte junior six-man Interscholastic football lid with a 26 to 0 whitewashing of their lighter Picton Collegiate grid opponents at the local collegiate campus yesterday afternoon. The period scores were 10-0, 15-0 and finally 26-0 as the Belleville "Red Shirts" rolled roughshod over their smaller Prince Edward County opponents.

Only once did the Picton kids threaten to score and then with MacDonald practically in the clear for a touchdown his path was blocked by over-anxious spectators, who crowded the field and doubtless thwarted a Picton score to keep them off the score sheet in the dying moments of the game. Townsend's "Collegians" used the advantage of their excess weight to good advantage, but there was little reason for occasional "piling on," that finally saw fistic outbreaks and Carefoot, of the Belleville C.I. squad, banished to the sidelines with a five-minute penalty for roughing.

First-Year Player Shines.

Bob Strahan, a first year player with the B.C.I. "Collegians" stood out as the principal groundgainer and pigskin lugger for the winners, as this freshman gathered in three long forward passes to romp home for a trio of touchdowns and also set up a fourth after racing 25 yards to the shadow of Picton's goal posts, where McCarthy plunged over. Denton counted the other try for Townsend's "Red Shirts."

B.C.I. kicked off and on the return punt Strahan ran the pigskin to Picton's 22 yard line where on a second play Locke pitched to Strahan and Bob gathered it in on the gallop to score the first touchdown of the 1944 Bay of Quinte Junior Interscholastic rugby football season. The convert was incomplete. As a matter of fact the winners successfully converted but one of their five major scores. On a lateral McCarthy raced to Picton's 19 and again Locke successfully hurled to the fleet-footed Strahan, who went over standing up. The quarter ended at 10-0 for B.C.I.

Forced to Kick.

To open the second quarter Hepburn pitched to Rutter for a Picton gain, but B.C.I. held forcing the visitors to kick. After an exchange Neil and Carefoot combined for yards, but Wright leaped high to intercept an attempted B.C.I. forward. Going to the air proved unsuccessful for Picton as Strahan duplicated Wright's feat running the ball to Picton's six, where McCarthy crashed over as the half ended 15-0.

The homesters introduced a unique feature when Co-Ed Joan Lashbrook was introduced as the team water-girl and not only was she natty appearing, but right pert on the job, was "Water Girl Joan." There was no score in the third quarter although Carefoot carried far into Picton territory and later became involved in fisticuffs, that netted him a five-minute penalty on the sidelines. Hepburn was punting better for Picton in this quarter, while Scott and Foster made some substantial gains, but the heavier B.C.I. sextette held, when danger threatened in the home zone. On the second play in the last stanza Locke pitched to Strahan and bringing the count to 20 before Johnnie Rollins hugged the pigskin up and over the Picton line to put it down on the 14, where Denton cracked over and Carefoot converted at the final bell.

This afternoon St. Michael's Academy and Albert College seniors open their section of the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. conference at Albert.

The lineups:

Belleville Collegiate: Centre, Carefoot; ends, Rollins and McCarthy; quarter, Strahan; halves, Diamond and Locke; subs, Campbell, Marcus, Neil and Denton.

Picton Collegiate: Centre, McLean; ends, Wright and MacDonald; quarter, Hepburn; halves, Rutter and Foster; subs, Kleinstuber, Scott, Hogle and F. Scott.

Referee: Eddie Schreider. Umpire, Dick Fitzpatrick.

Ted Stephens, who has won his last four boxing bouts in Eastern Ontario in a most convincing manner, headlines the second Reliance Boxing Club show at the Hume Arena Friday night when he boxes "Jibber" Ellis, a hard-punching, two-fisted welterweight boxer from Trenton. Actually Promoters Crawford and Fisher have lined up nine sterling bouts for their second show here with mittsters of prominence included on the card from Trenton, Oshawa and Belleville. Another enticing bout to the fans sees "Dynamite" Wheeler, of Oshawa, meet the popular "Jumping Jerry" Downes of the home club. Downes looked good against Toronto's colored star, Lil' Arthur King in Oshawa. Other named Motor City boxers are on the inter-city card here.

What's Doing in Sport

By the Canadian Press

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League arrived in Winnipeg yesterday for pre-season training. They will open their season against Toronto Oct. 28 at Maple Leaf Gardens.

St. Louis Flyers, their ranks thinned daily by players returning home to obtain clearance papers for crossing into the United States, will break training camp Sunday, Coach Hap Emms said at Port Arthur yesterday. The squad will reconvene at Windsor, prior to opening its American Hockey League schedule.

Coach Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers foresees a brand new setup for professional hockey in the near future, parallel to that of pro baseball. He suggested in an interview at Winnipeg yesterday that the N. H. L. might be divided into two groups with a man heading each, under the governorship of a top man with powers approximating those of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis in baseball. Boucher also thinks air travel will be a feature of post-war hockey, with all N. H. L. clubs owning their own planes.

Lieut. Gordon J. Christie, 26, former star all-round athlete and prefect of St. Andrew's College at Toronto, was killed in the 1st Canadian Army's drive on the French port of Calais.

Aspirants for the 1944-45 Maple Leafs National Hockey League squad put in a hard day's work in the community Y. M. C. A. gymnasium at Owen Sound yesterday, and two sessions on the ice later in the day, both strenuous and spirited.

Coach Happy Day is asking the boys to give their best and each of the 40 players is working at top speed. Goaltenders Frank McCool of Calgary and Pat Boshmer of Kitchener were in the nets for the practice, while defenceman Bob Gray of Winnipeg, Dean McBride of St. Catharines, Pete Backor of Fort William, Frank Bennett of Toronto and Phil Samis of Edmonton were out doing blue line duties.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Trying to bring home to his audience the evils of drink, the speaker was telling them how his own life had been influenced by total abstinence.

"Three years ago," he said proudly, "there were two men in my office holding positions superior to mine. One was dismissed for drunkenness; the other was led into crime, and is now serving a term in prison, all through strong drink. So I am now head of my department. I ask you," he wound up, "what has raised me to my present position?"

"Drink!" came the unexpected reply from the back of the hall.

North Is Coming

According to the constitution of the O.A.S.A. the zone holder of the Intermediate "A" championship of the province must defend the Intermediate O.A.S.A. championship in the event the other zone challenges. Sault Ste. Marie, winners of the Northern O.A.S.A., has challenged for the All-Ontario softball title and therefore if the winner of today's Fort Erie - Belleville "Marines" Southern Ontario final at Toronto wish to retain the Intermediate "A" trophy such a winner today has to defend it on their home diamond.

Two years ago the Oshawa "Colts" journeyed to Sudbury where they lifted the mug from the Northern winners. Last year the North, as challengers, declined to come south so the Colts retained the cup as repeat winners of the Southern area. As the situation now stands in the event the Belleville Marines win today the All-Ontario series will open at the Fair Grounds here on Friday afternoon with the second game to be played here on Saturday afternoon to be followed by a possible third and final match if the series goes three games. If Fort Erie wins today the series will be played in the border town on Saturday and Sunday, according to Vice President Harry Rollins. Previously both Fort Erie and the Marines had expressed themselves as not being interested in a North-South series, but when it was explained they must defend the Intermediate trophy, brought south by Oshawa, they would have to entertain Sault Ste. Marie or else default the mug to the Northern Ontario winners.

"We'd like to have that trophy displayed right here in Belleville, but if we win today it will be tough on Jim Hunter who will have to pitch four games in three days in the event the Soo series goes the limit," stated Manager Max Peoples just before the Marines left for Toronto this morning.

Windsor Situation

Although there is little likelihood that anything will come of it and the Windsor Mic-Macs will remain Junior champions of the O.A.S.A., Vice President Harry Hollins has a letter in the mail to President Geo. Spooner, of the O.A.S.A. desiring to know why the third game of the Windsor-Belleville series was started so late. All championship games are supposed to start at least two hours before sundown, but according to the local Columbian Squires the third and deciding game in Windsor didn't start until about 85 minutes prior to sundown. However, when the Squires did finally agree to play at the late hour they placed themselves open to subsequent decisions, which ultimately resulted in the Windsor umpires calling the game in the fourth inning and awarding the match and championship to the Mic-Macs after Belleville had been guilty of stalling. However, it is quite a task to ask one pitcher to hurl three games in two days, especially in the opponents' backyard, as Don Boyle knows today. Regardless, the Squires did remarkably well for a first-year club.

Remember when

Ted Phelps of England won the world's professional sculling championship from Bert Parry over the Thames River course 14 years ago today. Phelps was tops until he met Bobby Pearce at Toronto in 1938 when the Australian had everything his own way, winning the three-mile race by 220 yards. Pearce is still unbeaten when it comes to sculling.

Slugging Match

When the Reliance boxing promoters signed "Jibber" Ellis, the Trenton two-fisted scrapper, to meet Ted Stephens, the pride of the home stable, in the main bout of Friday night's all-star boxing show at the Hume Arena, Bill Crawford and company made sure the fight fans would see a hard-hitting main bout. Stephens has won his last 3 matches for Reliance, his last win over Frankie Bullard of Toronto at Oshawa being outstanding. Incidentally Ellis is in the armed services in Toronto at present and in great shape for the bout. Local fans will remember Dave Thompson's win over Crabby Crandall here in the initial Reliance show. Well, Thompson has been drawn against Doug Day, who beat Kennie Cowle of Oshawa and here is another stellar bout. All-in-all there are nine bouts on tomorrow night's card for another natural.

Around the Town

Coach Townsend's B.C.I. junior Interscholastic gridders pried off the 1944 COSSA grid lid with an impressive 26-0 win over the Picton C.I. kids . . . However, the homesters outweighed the Prince Edward County kids all along the line and when the locals weren't pushing their opponents around, Bob Strachan was running wild . . . Strachan stood out as the principal ball-carrier tossed into the fray by Coach Townsend, as he lugged the oval over for three majors and set up a fourth . . . The B.C.I. front line held well, particularly Rollins, McCarthy and Marcus . . . but after all the locals out-weighed the Picton kids by easily 12 pounds along the line and credit must be given the courageous Prince Edward County kids, who didn't back down an inch . . . As a matter of fact when fisticuffs broke out once, the Picton kids got in punch for punch and were still swinging from the heels when the officials broke it up . . . It would be a splendid idea if some arrangements could be made to keep the over-zealous spectators off the playing field at the Collegiate campus . . . Spectators cost Picton a probable touchdown yesterday . . . Maybe the odd ten-yard penalty would prove a persuader . . .

Ivan Rasputin, that bearder Russian exponent of the bear-hug, even caught such notables as Referee Ernie Powers and Bob Wagner in that old chestnut—"tacks, there's tacks in that thar canvas!" . . . However, for good unadulterated fun the preliminaries made last night's main bout look like an amateur show . . . Maybe Skipper Tunney should centre all his shows on prelims . . . Well, at least it's an idea.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 12 —(AP)— Another war casualty seems to be amateur boxing . . . Nat (Ring Magazine) Fleischer, who keeps tabs on such things, reports that since D-day, more than 1,000 youngsters from the amateur mitt-swinging ranks—mostly 18 year olds—have been inducted into the services . . . As a result about 80 per cent of the A. A. U. talent in the midwest and far western strongholds of amateur boxing is missing and the clubs that used to stage regular shows have been closed for the summer and likely won't reopen.

Just T's-ing Again

Before last week's Penn State-Navy football game, a bunch of the boys were sitting around the Navy boathouse and, naturally, talking about the "T" formation . . . One visiting fireman from Clark Shaughnessy's current address had all the anwers and when one quiet little guy questioned some statements, he remarked. "Listen, I've been living with and writing about the "T" formation for the last two years." . . . When the party broke up, the visitor casually asked the identity of his neighbor . . . It was only Keith Molesworth, Navy backfield coach and for seven years a star of the T-powered Chicago Bears.

Sergeant Joe Louis says the most embarrassing moment he experienced in his boxing tour of the war zones was the day he got off the boat in England . . . A little guy who said he was former champion of South Wales rushed up, shook Joe's hand seven times and kissed him on both cheeks . . . Unlike the time Arturo Godoy kissed the champ after staying with him 15 rounds, Joe hadn't been handing out any smacks with his gloves.

BALTIMORE WINS LITTLE WORLD SERIES EASILY

First Pennant for Orioles Since 1925, Louisville Being the Victims

CAME UP HARD WAY

Baltimore, Oct. 12—(AP)—Baltimore's International League Orioles, Frank Merriwell finish specialists, were back in minor league championship ranks today for the first time since 1925 to end one of the most successful seasons in junior baseball history.

The Birds clinched the title last night with a 5-3 defeat of Louisville of the American Association.

This season saw all attendance records for minor games shattered with the junior series drawing greater crowds than the main show in St. Louis. Paid attendance at Monday night's game here was 52,833, approximately 17,000 more than the top crowd at the world series.

The Orioles already have sold 3 players — left-fielder Stan Benjamin; second-baseman Blas Monaco and centre-fielder Felix Mackiewicz —to Cleveland Indians. Other major league scouts have been eagle-eyeing such Orioles as Kenny Braun, kid shortstop, and Howie Moss, right-fielder, voted the most valuable player in the International League.

The Birds were one of the few teams in the last decade to win their league pennant, semi-final and final playoffs, and little world series — and they did it the hard way.

They entered the final five games of the regular season just a fraction of a percentage point ahead and squeaked through to pennant victory. Both play-off series, against Buffalo and Newark, respectively, went the route with Baltimore winning four of seven. They won four of six games in the junior world series.

Last night's climax, before 23,536 paying customers, was true to form. Louisville scored two runs in the 3rd inning, holding a 3-2 lead until the seventh. Then Bob Latshaw singled, went to second when Moss drew a walk, and scored when Louisville's Nick Polly missed Mackiewicz's grounder.

Moss scored from third on catcher Fred Walter's wild throw and Mackiewicz came home on Frankie Skaff's single.

Each team used three pitchers, Ambrose (Bobo) Palica being credited with the victory, Mel Deutsch with the loss.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 383

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge players who talk a good game do not necessarily play a good game. And many who play the cards well do not necessarily bid them well.

However, many who think they play the cards well fall down on some of the unusual plays. They seem to have trouble recognizing the presence of odd plays until it is too late.

The best way to learn an unusual play is to first see how it ends. In that way, you realise what you are preparing to do. And so it helps you understand why you take the steps leading to it.

For that reason I am showing you these cards:

NORTH
♠ 8 6
♥ None
♦ None
♣ 8 5 4 2

WEST
♠ None
♥ Q
♦ 9 8
♣ K J 3

EAST
♠ None
♥ 10 9 8 6
♦ None
♣ 10 9

SOUTH
♠ Q J 4 3
♥ None
♦ None
♣ A Q

These are the six remaining cards in each hand of a deal when spades are trumps. South is declarer and has taken the first six tricks, losing the seventh trick to west.

While doing so, declarer stripped opponents of trumps and also stripped his own two hands of the red cards. This prepared the stage for a strip-and-end play at the time west was thrown in for a lead.

No matter what west now leads, declarer can take the rest of the tricks. Lay out these cards on a table and see how it works out.

If west leads a heart, dummy will trump and south will sluff the club queen. If west leads a diamond, the same acts by dummy and south will be performed.

Of course, west may refuse to lead a red card. In that case, he must lead a club. But a club lead from west will be right into the arms of the south A Q.

In that case, no matter which opponent has the king, there will be no club losers for declarer. Because with west in the lead, the south hand plays last.

That makes it safe for slamocracy.

CROWD IN UPROAR

(By G. H. C.)

They searched it here—they searched it there,
They combed the mat most everywhere,
'Twas there last week in the same old spot.
They searched in vain — and found it not,
Watson and Wagner went home a-hootin',
"Suckers both" laughed the Bear, Rasputin.

Ken. J. Colling, fellow slave in this mart of nightly newspaper frolics, in his story last week of the Watson-Rasputin love match at the Hume Arena Hippodrome, echoed the sentiments of one Barnum, who once remarked when speaking of that genus homo, the "sucker". "There's one born every minute". The sports ed, of course, was referring to the wrestling fraternity.

Kenneth, me lad, you made one slight mistake. In the Palace of the Pachyderms hereabouts, as proved last night, they come in twin lots.

Delilah worked the ruse on Samson. Cleopatra got the nod over Mark Antony with the same trick. Rasputin, the fur-covered Rusky, the man, who wrestles like a Bear, pulled it last week with "Whipper" Watson in the "biting" role, while thousands howled. And the same thousands stared wide-eyed, unbelieving, last night, as the wily matman from Moscow with the fur-bearing hide, actually uncorked the same trick with Referee Ernie Power, Hamilton, Ont., (imported for the purpose), and Strangler Bob Wagner, swallowing the bait hook, line and sinker, and the Arena thrown in had it been attached.

A Simple Trick

It's the trick of the Little Tack that isn't there.

It's simple. Try it in the parlor some time. Here's how it is done. You get thrown about a bit in a wrestling bout. Then you screw your face into a grimace, that would frighten "The Lodger", and place your hand on your hip (optional) as if it hurt. Now, roll on all fours and start feeling over the surface of the floor as if searching for something.

Your opponent, and if you happen to have Referee Ernie Power in the house, he too, will start to feel sorry for you. Soon all three of you get down and feel for the little tack that isn't there. Watching your opportunity, you jump to your feet, administer the coup de grace to your opponent, while he is in a supplicating position and there you are.

What Actually Happened

That is actually what happened last night while the faithful howled, cajoled, pleaded and threatened. Rasputin, laughing so hard down his throat, that he gave himself a permanent wave on his abdominal undergrowth, suddenly went down on all fours, like his national emblem Old Bruin, and started the search. Wagner, who had lost the first fall, by virtue of the ardent love-making of the Son of the Steppes, looked pleadingly at Referee Power. That worthy, apparently thinking Wagner has suffered a softness of the cardiac region, joined Rasputin on the mat. Wagner was cautious at first, then nibbled at the bait and finally swallowed it. There they were lined up like tanks on parade. Then it happened. Rasputin reared on his hind legs; dropped his blockbuster torso on Wagner and pinned him.

Some one yelled "Boo" at Power and he remembered he was a referee. But the damage was done. The cunning Russky had Wagner flatter than a reporter on Monday morning—and it was all over.

Plenty of Excitement

There was plenty of excitement, too in the preceding bout. Pierre DeGlane, the gesticulating Frenchman, and Carl Davis got peeved at each other and battled to a draw in a prelim, that included towel lassoing and a gay nineties sparring match. The lads slugged at each other with rare abandon until and after the gong ended the festivities.

Irish Jack Kennedy danced a few national jigs on the tonsils of "Fingers" John Katan, and that gentle little flower of the garden of wrestledom, remonstrated with all the sweetness and delicacy of a cornered wild-cat. The "Fingers" who probed incessantly for the Irish appendix, while its owner was resting on his back, was finally chucked out of the ring, by the Shamrock. The Irisher followed, and there ensued a jolly joust of fisticuffs in the sand, with Referee Cliff Fox getting an aerial view from the ring. Mr. Fox, who by the way did a fine job of arbitting last night, likes his wrestling close at hand and disqualified both, for playing hide-and-seek with him.

LOCATION FOR FOURTH GAME NOT DECIDED

St. Catharines Refuses to Play at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday

WANT HOME GAME

By ERIC SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Where is the fourth game of the best-of-five series between New Westminster Salmonbellies and St. Catharines Athletics to be played?

That is the question facing Canadian Lacrosse Association officials today.

Yesterday the C.L.A. decided at a meeting here that it would be played Saturday in this city's Maple Leaf Gardens, but last night the St. Catharines Lacrosse Association executive, in a wire to C.L.A. president E. E. Barnes of Vancouver now in Toronto, "insisted" that the 4th contest be played tonight at St. Catharines.

G. H. Lancaster, chairman of St. Catharines Parks Commission, told The Canadian Press in a telephone conversation last night that he had made plans in mid-September with Gene Dopp, immediate past-president of the C.L.A. for the staging of the fourth game of the Mann Cup series there and said that "We have completed arrangements for the game tomorrow (Thursday) night."

Objected to Dirt Floor

Originally it had been planned to play the first three games in Toronto and if a fourth game was necessary to stage it at St. Catharines, but the New Westminster team objected to playing there because lacrosse in that city is played in the open air and the C.L.A. constitution provides that Mann Cup games must be played in an enclosed rink.

The St. Catharines Association did not say what action they planned if the fourth game is not played there tonight, but Mr. Lancaster said more than 60 per cent of the 4,000 tickets for the game there already had been sold. The Athletics lead the series 2-1.

Further complications entered the scene today when it was learned that Saturday night is the only available date at Maple Leaf Gardens for a week and if a fifth game is necessary it will have to be played in some other city. Montreal has been mentioned previously as a likely spot for the contest.

However, Mr. Lancaster said "We feel we should be given some consideration as Ontario Lacrosse Association champions," and the telegram, signed by W. J. Taylor, president of the St. Catharines Association, said "We demand to know officially the ruling of the C.L.A. executive and reason for same."

Hollywood Park And Santa Anita Tracks To Open

Los Angeles, Occt. 12 (AP)—After three years idleness, Southern California gold mines disguised as race tracks, are reopening soon.

Hollywood Park and Santa Anita, the state's two multi-million-dollar ventures in racing, will resume business in that order, the former starting Nov. 1 and ending Dec. 16 in a 34-day meeting and Santa Anita ringing in Dec. 30 for a 55-day canter.

That the meetings will be tremendously successful is a foregone conclusion. The two tracks operated last in 1941 and war conditions closed them until now. The tracks are a hotbed of racing—money, sports-minded population and climate forming a combination that never misses.

For the 34-day Hollywood Park meeting, the club will pay out $230,000 in purses, compared with a maximum of $235,000 for a 55-day meet during pre-war times. Track officials hope to raise more than $1,000,000 for charity.

10,000 MEN REQUIRED

Toronto, Oct. 12 — (CP) — J. W. Temple, Toronto manager for National Selective Service, said yesterday that nearly 10,000 men were required for industry in this area, and that 7,800 women were needed for essential industries.

POLITICAL TRUCE

Against Own Members.

Premier Drew had announced in the Aug. 9 speech that his government would oppose the Family Allowances Act because it was a "bribe," because it was unconstitutional, because he was not consulted and because Quebec would benefit at Ontario's expense.

Mr. Nixon said the "unworthy charge of bribery" cast a reflection on the Progressive Conservative members of the House of Commons who voted for the measure. If the Premier was "worried about the constitutional side, he need not have made a radio speech at all.

"All he needed to do was to take the same action so often taken before—a reference to the Privy Council."

'Utter Nonsense' Claim.

The Premier's objection to the act because he wasn't consulted was "utter nonsense."

"If that theory held water, each province would have to be consulted about any and every Federal expenditure. What then would be the use of a House of Commons? Doesn't Col. Drew think the 82 members of parliament elected by Ontario constituencies represent this province? Or maybe he would rearrange the Dominion and make the Canadian government merely a co-ordinating committee of a federation of provinces. If he wants to make that an issue sometime, well and good, but just now we are operating this nation on the basis determined at Confederation."

Condemns Attack in Quebec

Mr. Nixon said that in his nearly 25 years as member of the legislature for Brant riding and before that time "and up to recent weeks" the policies of Ontario governments had been to be good neighbors with the other provinces and to take a full part in the development of the Dominion.

For that reason "I deplore and strongly condemn the unprovoked attack made recently by the premier of Ontario on our sister province of Quebec."

"...I know he is wrong in attempting to arouse racial hatred against the sister province and I feel sure he is wrong in thinking there is any large section of this province who can be successfully appealed to be such a policy of disunity."

Mr. Nixon spoke of the return to Liberal ranks of Mitchell Hepburn, member for Elgin and former Liberal premier.

"You can accept my assurance that his outstanding abilities will be directed to the advancement of sound Liberal policies and the defeat of reactionary Toryism in this province and the Dominion."

Fails to Implement Pledge

The Brant member also criticised the Provincial Government for failing to implement its pledge to remove half the burden of school taxes from real estate and suggested to Premier Drew, who returned recently from a trip overseas, that he "stay at home for a while" and "leave the directing of the war to the proper authorities."

He said Premier Drew had been quoted Sept. 30 as saying that "former power agreements between the Liberal administrations in Ontario and Quebec had been cancelled" and "if Col. Drew's government has cancelled these agreements without knowing for certain that he can replace them with a better arrangement, he has done a grave disservice to Ontario..."

(Premier Drew, commenting on the speech, said the Ottawa River Power agreement has not been cancelled and no announcement to that affect had been made by him. He said it would require a decision of the legislature to cancel the agreement and added "What I did say in a recent address at Ottawa is that I had no reason to doubt that a friendly agreement could be reached with Quebec for the development of Ottawa river power.")

CHAPTER 19

"Thank heavens," Carol confided to Ann, "he's so engrossed in Rowdy that I can get away with murder and he doesn't notice."

Carol's "murder" consisted of long hours in a steamer chair in the sun, and bed at eight o'clock each night. "You look better," Ann approved.

"Yah," old Mrs. Freund agreed, "she looks better."

Paul said, "When our ship comes in, I'm going to send you off to Atlantic City, young lady, to rid you of that cold."

It was astonishing, too, how one could tune in to another kind of [illegible] first Ann had thought, I can't live without a telephone. Christopher had grumbled, too. "What the blazes kind of an idea is this anyway?" he telegraphed furiously the first evening. Ann had giggled; this was adding injury to insult. And then, the next morning, there'd been another wire, "Flying unexpectedly to the Coast."

For an instant, the bottom had seemed to drop out of everything. All the lights in the world went dark. I'm head over heels, Ann thought, feeling sick about it.

A few days later, there was another wire from Los Angeles, and a few days after that, one from San Francisco.

"I wonder what's happened to Wain," Paul said on an average of twice a day. "Looks like he's sore at us."

"Mr. Wain has a great many faults," said Ann. "But he's not the sort that goes in for being sore. Besides," she flared, "what's he got to be sore about?"

"Plenty." Paul answered with satisfaction. It was one of the days when Rowdy was eating like a horse, and looking like a million dollars.

With the approach of summer, tourists began to straggle in and, every once in a while, Ann woke to the clattter of dishes, or the sudden sound of a child's shrill voice, or the backfire of a car hastening onwards.

One night—it was after eleven—Rowdy barked long and loud as a car drove up the road between the cottages and stopped at the cabin next to Ann's.

"Why do you have to set yourself as night watchman for the whole countryside?" she grumbled, as Rowdy's unsolicited contribution set a dozen dogs in the kennels to talking things over. Then came Paul's sharp whistle through the clear air, followed by obedient silence from the Dane contingent.

Ann listened. Now what had Santa Claus brought her? A family with a caravan of pots and pans? A baby who would caterwaul intermittent complaints to the heavens? Oh, dear, she thought this is worse than waiting for the other shoe to fall.

After a space, she could hear stealthy sounds of someone walking about, sounds that threatened to drive Rowdy out of her curious wits. A light flickered; a door closed; and there rose in the night the low formless whistle that a man makes when he thinks he's musical. It was a medley of a couple of tunes, the dominant of which seemed to be something about a man in the umbrella business. Unfortunately, the whistler couldn't get over the last hurdle of the refrain: he would advance to a point, break, and begin all over again. Finally in desperation, Ann went to work on it. She discarded the indiscriminate medley, and kept to the umbrella end of it, managing it very adequately. The whistler paused as she offered the correction. Silence.

Then he began again finishing up in a burst of triumph. "Just as if he thought it out all by himself." Ann muttered furiously, struggling against the insanity of going on and on with the thing. Sleep was driven from her completely. She found herself humming the tune, breathing it, keeping the time to it with her toes tapping against the covers.

About three A. M., Rowdy scratched herself with a great thumping of tail and paw. Ann sat up with a start. It began all over again. To her obsessed ears, Rowdy's thumping turned into a drum accompaniment of the tantalizing refrain. It was dawn when she decided that sleep and she were definitely not on speaking terms. True, it was an hour before her regular morning walk with Rowdy, but an extra mile or so would do them both good.

Rowdy agreed at once that it was a good idea, and stretched out with anticipation as Ann put the coffee pot on the electric plate. This was Mrs. Freund's only concession to Ann's request that she at least be allowed to make her own breakfast.

"And what will you eat? Coffee and toast? It is nonsense. Such eating, it makes your front cave in to your back. It doesn't look nice. No. A man doesn't like beanstalks."

When the coffee started to percolate, Rowdy gave a sharp bark. She was facinated by the mysteries of percolation.

"Be quiet," Ann warned. "You'll wake up the song-bird next door."

But the song-bird was already awake. Steps sounded on the porch, and Rowdy rushed to the threshold, sniffling. Ann waited for her to bark, but she only wagged her tail. "Oh!" Ann breathed, and suddenly all the lights in the universe blazed up in a galaxy of glory.

"Pleese, lady," his voice wheedled from the other side of the door. "I smella da coffee, you give me a cup of coffee I feex umbrella."

"Go away!" Ann called back, with her heart pounding likee mad. "I'm not dressed yet."

"What's this?" he disapproved. "You're not dressed yet, and it's five o'clock? Anyway I don't like woman who plaster their faces up with powder and lipstick. And besides my coffee's getting cold. Gangway, I'm coming in!"

"Well, it's you! Where did you come from, of all people!" she cried, with a fine pretense of astonishment.

"Flew in from the Coast last night."

"Then you work occasionally."

"When it doesn't interfere too much with pleasure. Oh, and say, I want to thank you for supplying that tune last night. It enabled me to toddle right off to the soundest sleep I've had in days."

"That's just ducky," Ann acknowledged dryly. "Now if you'll excuse me, I'll go for my walk."

"I wouldn't dream of letting you go alone."

"I was afraid of that."

"Well, tell me what's been happening?" he invited, as they hit the woods' road that led back over the hill from Fruends'.

"Not very much."

"Oh, come now. It's been ten days since I last saw you. What about Helen?"

"I haven't seen her. Having no telephone's been a blessing in disguise."

Christopher grunted. "What! Am I to understand Helen's washed her hands of you?"

"Completely."

"Lord be praised! And Mr. Barton?"

"He's down in Kentucky."

They walked along in silence for many moments. Then he asked, "Do you take a long hike like this every day?"

"Five miles."

"It's done wonders for you. You look marvelous."

"I'm not doing it for me. Any benefit I may have received is just so much by-product."

"You mean you're doing it for Rowdy?" He smiled tolerantly, "What is it, a new wrinkle for canine beauty, early morning workouts?"

"Stick around, Mr. Wain. Paul and I will show you some real tricks in the dog business."

His face grew grave. "Ann, you're not doing this seriously? You're not really going to show Rowdy in the Morris and Essex? I thought you were just trying to get a rise out of me that day in Broadfields."

She flung out her hands a little desperately. "Oh, you don't understand. It isn't just for me or Rowdy—or you, for that matter. It's Paul, he needs a win. Wolfgang isn't even earning his keep. Paul's broke, and he can't afford to go broke."

"But if Rowdy loses, will that help him out of a hole"

"Rowdy can't lose, I tell you. She mustn't."

"Ann," Christopher's tone had turned to pleading. "In the dog business you seldon win when you have to. That's when the breaks go against you. It very often takes all the joy out of a win when you know that you've licked somebody who had counted on it to help him make a living, to buy food with. I've seen them come to the shows with not enough gas to get home—hoping, believing, that the few dollars prize money would see them through. It'll be a bit of a boost to Paul if Gretel takes her class. But it'll be a black eye if Rowdy falls down— And don't tell me she won at the Sweepstakes!" he ended in a roar. "If you do, I'll wring your neck!"

"Oh, I'm a better sport than that," Ann's smile was both innocent and pleasant.

They walked on in silence. "I've got to get back to town," Christopher said, as they came to the cabins. "Think Paul would let me stake him to a phone? No. On second thought, I won't. Tom Barton'll only be hanging on the other end of it."

TORONTO STOCK MARKET

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)—estern oils tightened for an index gain .15 in the early Toronto session today while both mining groups and the industrials took small losses. Turnover was small at 197,000 shares for the first three hours.

The steel, utility and liquor issues weakened moderately and the foods were generally firm Brazilian, selling ex-dividend $1, was down 1-2 to 21, Hiram Walker dropped 1-2 and Abitibi Pfd the same fraction.

In the gold list the weak spots included Kerr-Addison, West Malartic, Cochenour Willans, Pickle Crow, O'Brien and Lake Dufault. Smelters, Nickel and Labrador were softer base metal issues.

The pick-up in the price tone of the western oils affected Home, Calgary-Edmonton, East Crest, British-Dominion and Mid-Continent.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 12 —(CP)—Cattle trade was very dull on the livestock market here up to mid-session today with sales of killers too few to establish prices. Stockers moved slowly at $5.50-9.

Lambs were 25 cents cwt. higher at $12.75 for good ewes and wethers delivered by rail, $$1.75 for bucks with bulls at $7-$8.

There were no sheep sales.

Hogs were steady at $17.85 Grade A, dressed, with sows $13 dressed.

Spar Recommended For Bravery in Storm

Galt, Oct. 12—(CP)—Irene Ayriss of Galt, a United States spar attached to the U. S. Coast Guard at Cape May, N. J., has won commendation for bravery and devotion to duty during the Hurricane which struck the east coast of the continent last month.

Letters of commendation said that Miss Ayriss, a radio-man third class, remained at her beach transmission installation until all transmitters were put out of commission even after heavy seas had torn part of the building away.

Born in Detroit, she is the daughter of Mrs. Mabel Ayriss of Galt. She enlisted in the Coast Guard in 1943.

REGISTRAR OF DEEDS FOR ELGIN DIES

ENEMY TRAWLER BLOWN UP ANOTHER IS DAMAGED

London, Oct. 12 (CP)—Light coastal forces of the Royal Navy attacked four heavily armed trawlers off the hook of Holland yesterday, blowing up one trawler with torpedoes and hitting another with gunfire, the Admiralty said today.

All the British ships returned safely, having suffered no casualties.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting Flares On Arakan Front

Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 11 —(CP)— West African units, fighting in the southeastern corner of India near the Burmese border, have captured the village of Mowdolk, the Allied command disclosed today, dislodging Japanese defenders, who had held the area throughout the Monsoon season.

Continuing contact with the enemy was reported, indicating a steady push into the frontier hills.

Hand-to-hand fighting flared elsewhere on the Arakan front, with an attack by 80 Japanese being broken by bayonets of the Royal Garhwal rifles. Southeast of Maungdaw, Japanese artillery shelled Allied positions in the Mayu hills.

Enemy forces are fighting to hold the approaches to Akyab, about 55 air miles down the coast.

Lt.-Gen. W. J. Slim declared his British 14th Army had "inflicted on the Japanese the greatest defeat" their army had yet suffered.

In an order of the day the army commander said:

"We have paid him (the enemy) something of what we owe. There still remains the interest. He will get it."

BUTTER PICTURE DARKENS MORE SAYS STATEMENT

Tendency to Reduce Cow Holdings in Evidence for Some Time

TO CANCEL COUPONS

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 12 — (CP) — The butter supply picture darkened a little more today following a Dominion Bureau of Statistics statement that a tendency to reduce cow holdings has been in evidence during the last few months, with a decline of five per cent in total numbers shown in August compared with the same month last year.

After successive years of difficulty with the winter butter supply, authorities said the 1944 situation was no better than in 1943. The butter ration of eight ounces a person a week already has been temporarily reduced three times this year by the cancellation of butter ration coupons. An additional temporary reduction will be made shortly by the cancellation of two more coupons for an estimated saving of 5,000,000 pounds of butter.

The statement that numbers of dairy cows were on the decline, based on reports from Dominion Bureau of Statistics dairy correspondents, counterbalanced a more cheerful report on the condition of pastures.

Associated with the report of a reduction in the number of cows was a drop in the percentage of cows actually milked as compared with 1943.

"A bright spot in the situation was the increase recorded in the numbers of cows bred for dairying purposes, so that while immediate freshenings are considerably reduced, it is possible that greater numbers may be coming into lactation during the winter or early spring," said the Bureau.

At the root of most dairy supply problems has been the vastly-increased consumption of fluid milk.

In August, milk production was down 2.4 per cent from that of the same month in 1943, while sales increased 2.8 per cent. Fluid sales absorbed 17 per cent of the total milk output in comparison with 16 per cent in July.

Three Villages Wiped Out By Canadian Fliers

London, Oct. 12 (CP Cable) — Three villages were practically obliterated when German forces delaying the Canadian advance into the enemy pocket south of the Schelde Estuary were blasted all day yesterday by rocket-firing Typhoons and bomb-carrying Spitfires.

The villages containing the Germans were Oostburg, Schondijk and Sluis. Oostburg (pop. 1,000) commands three important roads south of the Schelde.

The sustained aerial attack began after Canadian soldiers signalled the enemy was well dug in throughout Oostburg. Halfway through the onslaught the Canadian army reported gunfire from Oostburg becoming weaker and said the Canadians had resumed their advance.

Just before dusk pilots reported roads blocked and village buildings reduced to a state where defence was virtually impossible and evacuation difficult.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

(By The Canadian Press)

With the R.C.A.F. in Italy, Oct. 13—(CP)—When Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, A.O.C. in Chief of the R.C.A.F. Overseas, paid a surprise visit to the Canadian City of Windsor squadron which has made a name for itself as one of the crack fighter units of the Desert Air Force, he timed his arrival perfectly. The mess was having pheasant for lunch.

Thirteen plump beauties had been brought down the day before with the squadron skeet shooting gun by Capt. O. W. Crummey of the Canadian Dental Corps, from Stellarton, N.S. The A.O.C. in C. stayed for tea, and made an informal round of the whole squadron.

WO. Louis Potvin of Ottawa went on a week's leave somewhere in Italy and was unaware that he had two confirmed ME-109's to his credit from a five-minute air battle off the Yugoslav coast.

Not having actually seen them crash, Potvin merely claimed two damaged when he returned from the encounter. They were confirmed as destroyed by subsequent reconnaissance by Yugoslav partisans.

WO. Jack Marsh, (732 First Ave., West) Calgary, who transferred from the army because he wanted to be a pilot, has just finished a tour of operations as a bomb aimer with an R.A.F. Wellington squadron. He still wants to become a pilot.

"I got one of the quickest transfers on record," Marsh recalls. "I went A.W.L. to take my air force medical, and the army said if I was that anxious they were glad to speed me on my way."

He has done 36 operations from Italy against targets in the Balkans, Austria, Germany and Northern Italy.

Hit by anti-aircraft fire as they crossed the Danube, a Canadian pilot and his wounded Canadian bomb-aimer flew their shattered bomber back to base with the nose completely shot away. The rest of the crew bailed out, mistaking the skipper's orders after the intercommunication system was knocked out.

The aircraft was so badly damaged that it was written off and a complete loss after being brought home by FO. Bruce Prang of Kitchener, Ont. "It was a miraculous piece of flying," said the bomb-aimer, Warrant Officer Allen Fox of Cupar, Sas.

Venereal Disease Rate Reduced Drastically in Armed Forces

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 11 —(CP)— Venereal disease rates among the armed service personnel in Canada have been drastically reduced since 1940 and 1941, but there is to be no let up in the fight against the diseases, medical authorities for the three services disclosed today.

The authorities, campaigning to wipe out the disease among service personnel, said the incidence of syphilis and gonorrhoea in the army has been reduced from 62 per 1,000 in 1940 to about 25 per 1,000 in the first six months of this year. The incidence rate among navy personnel, at an all time high of 69.5 in 1941, has been cut to 27.5 per 1,000. The R.C.A.F. has dropped from 25.99 in 1941 to 17.88, and the reduction in some commands has ranged between 30 and 62 per cent.

The rate in No. 1 Command of the R.C.A.F. based at Toronto shows a reduction from 18.66 per 1,000 in 1941 to 16.66 in April-July, 1944.

Lt.-Col. D. H. Williams of Vancouver, in charge of venereal disease control for the three services, told The Canadian Press that the rate reductions were brought about by educational campaigns, by seeking out and treating the sources of infection, by providing recreation for the troops and by cleaning up community conditions. The use of these and other methods will be increased.

A chart produced by Col. Williams showed the venereal rates per 1,000 by military districts for 1940, 1941, 1942, and 1943, and for the first two quarters of this year. The chart shows,

HAS GOOD REASON TO RECOMMEND SYNTONA

Had Suffered 3 Years With Indigestion, Gas, Acidity, Backache and Rheumatic Pain, Says the Herbal Compound Helped Him From the Very First Bottle.

MR. WILLIAM JARVIS.

"After the way I suffered with my stomach in the past three years, it is certainly great to find a medicine that helps me," said Mr. William Jarvis, Freeman, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I used to have indigestion, sour acid risings and heartburn after every meal. I would have awful gas and a feeling like there was a lump in my throat, which nothing would take away. This gave me a smothering sensation and shortness of breath. My back was aching all the time and rheumatic pains set in my joints. Just before I started taking Syntona my hand was so sore I couldn't use it at all.

"I took everything I heard of and got no relief. Finally I was persuaded to try Syntona, and right away — from the very first bottle—my stomach felt better. As I continued taking it I found I could enjoy my meals again without having all that gas, sour acidity and heartburn. My appetite picked up and my sleep became more sound and restful. Now, after several weeks, the backache is not troubling me and I can use my hand again. The soreness is gone. Also I feel a lot better in every way and I am certainly thankful for having found a medicine like Syntona.

Syntona is made from the pure herbal extracts of 12 of Nature's Finest Medicinal Plants. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

RUSSIANS STORM JUNKERS LANDS OF E. PRUSSIA
GERMANS MOVE TANKS TO AACHEN DEFENCE

Barely Nine Miles From Important City of Tilsit

In Hungary Reds Race For Austrian Frontier

By DANIEL DeLUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Oct. 13 — (AP)—Russian tanks and infantry stormed the centuries-old Junkers lands of East Prussia, barely nine miles northeast of the important city of Tilsit today, while in doomed Hungary the victorious Red Army raced for the 160-mile-distant Austrian frontier.

Great offensives against the northern and southern extremity of Germany rolled back maimed German divisions like driftwood in a flood.

Hungary's admission of defeat was expected hourly as Russian columns were converging on Budapest along the main rail lines, approximately 60 miles east of the capital and reported nearer than that on the south. All major communications between Hungary and Serbia were reported in Russian hands.

Russian forces were less than 15 miles from the only Hungarian rail lines connecting Budapest with Magyar troops at the Carpathian passes in Ruthenia. The routed German-Hungarian forces in northern Transylvania were virtually cut off.

Race Track for Armor

Southern Hungary was a race track for Russian armor. The Hungarians were reported resigned to the immediate loss of Kecskemet, rich provincial city 49 miles southeast of Budapest.

Wilting Hungarian resistance all along the invasion front seemed to substantiate diplomatic hints that the exhausted satellite nation was about to quit. The mop-up of Hungary was counted on to prepare the springboard for the invasion of Austria as well as to assure the early liberation of the Croatian and Slovenian areas of Yugoslavia, and to pinch off the Germans in Slovakia.

(Meanwhile, Turkish sources said Berlin had urged Austrians to dig for their lives in a frenzy of frontier spadework near Vienna. The broadcast proclamations appealed to the populations to follow the example of "the East Prussians and Rhinelanders," and said that all able-bodied men and women in the Vienna region were at or on their way to the diggings after a mass call-up of age groups between 16 and 65.)

Heavy Slugging Match

While the campaign in Hungary took on the appearance of a foregone conclusion, East Prussia and the remainder of the German front on the Baltic coast was a heavy slugging match all the way. Raging assaults carried the Russians within five miles of the eastern limits of Riga and slashed into the siege defences of the port of Memel.

The East Prussian line cracked beyond the frontier town of Sartininkai, 13 miles northeast of Tilsit.

Attacks toward Tilsit brought the Russians within 42 miles of Insterburg and 65 miles of Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

Paris radio said: "The Russians are reported to have crossed the East Prussian border at three different points."

Advance in Finland

London, Oct. 13 — (CP) — Soviet troops have occupied the port of Liinahamari, in the Petsamo area of northern Finland, a Berlin broadcast said today.

The Petsamo area was turned over to Russia under terms of Finland's armistice with the Soviet Union and Britain.

Petsamo itself still is in German hands, the Transocean agency reported later.

Liinahamari is the northern terminus of the Arctic highway, at the northern end of the Bothnian Gulf and the landing puts the Russians only 12 air miles from Norway.

Light German naval forces and Russian speedboats were reported to have clashed off Petsamo, which has been attacked constantly by the Russians from the air during the last few days.

Mastery of the air would menace the escape route of German armies trying to retreat to Norway.

Believed Polish Govts. May Reach A Compromise

Moscow, Oct. 13 — (AP) — Belief prevailed in Moscow today that the rival Polish governments may reach a compromise agreement before conclusion of Prime Minister Churchill's current talks with Marshal Stalin but responsible diplomatic sources did not minimize the difficulties to be surmounted.

Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who flew here from London yesterday by invitation, conferred upon arrival with Foreign Secretary Eden. He was to talk with other high leaders of Great Britain and Russia before meeting the chief members of the Russian-sponsored Lublin Committee of Liberation with which he failed to reach agreement 2 months ago.

Mikolajczyk was granted no "blank cheque" by his London government. Even in event of a provisional agreement he would have to return to London and submit it for approval.

His government is willing to discuss the border question with the Soviet Union, but has not offered to renounce the 1934 constitution which it claims as sole legal authority. Mikolajczyk suggested to the Lublin Committee in August the reorganization of his government on the basis of five major political parties, including the Polish workers, or Communist Party. To this he received no reply.

The Lublin group wants the Polish president shorn of his powers, the 1935 constitution abandoned, and appointment of the Lublin Commander-in-Chief, Col. - Gen. Rola Zymierski, as head of Polish armed forces.

Indications that Moscow has not warmed toward the Polish government in London developed today when the Moscow radio broadcast fresh denunciation of the exiled group.

Radio Silence Broken After U.S. Carrier Forces Bomb Island Of Formosa

RAID ON WEDNESDAY

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (AP)—United States carrier forces which bombed Formosa Wednesday destroyed 221 Japanese aircraft, sank 16 ships and damaged 19, it was announced today.

Admiral Nimitz released his communique shortly after the carrier force was able to break radio silence.

It was the first official information available since radio Tokyo 24 hours earlier announced the blow 575 miles south of Japan.

The communique did not identify the harbors in which the U.S. 3rd fleet carried out the operation but said no Japanese warships were encountered.

Of the Japanese airplanes destroyed, 124 were shot out of the air and 97 finished off on the ground.

American losses were 22 airplanes and "there was no damage to our surface ships," Nimitz said.

Formosa is one of the largest islands in the Pacific, 249 miles from north to south and ranging to 93 miles wide.

Expanding this offensive picture, a bomber armada completely knocked out plants supplying the enemy war machine with aviation gasoline and oil at Balikpapan on Borneo and American invaders of the Palaus swept on to their 12th island in the south end of these stepping stones to the Philippines.

The four-day naval offensive read like this:

Oct. 8—Marcus Island, 1,135 miles southeast of Tokyo, shelled by warships.

Oct. 9—The Ryukyus, 200 miles south of Japan, attacked by hundreds of carrier-based planes in an assault during which 58 enemy surface craft were sunk or damaged and 89 planes destroyed.

Oct. 10—Luzon attacked. Last night's communique said "detailed reports of the damage inflicted are not yet available."

Oct. 11—Heavily-fortified Formosa 100 miles from the China coast, raided by planes which ripped its railway network and ports. Japan did all the early talking about his blow, saying 1,000 planes made it.

Japanese Reduce Strip of Free China

Chungking, Oct. 13 (AP) — Pincer-like Japanese columns, advancing on Kweilin from the north and on Liuchow from the east, have reduced the strip of Free China between Hong Kong and Manchuria to an area 60 miles wide, Maj.-Gen. Chang Tung Chuen, Chinese military spokesman, acknowledged today.

The high command reported Japanese forces had broken into the communications centre of Kweiping, 70 miles south-southeast of Liuchow, and street fighting was in progress. Another column was reported driving upon Pingham, 80 miles southeast of Liuchow, engaging Chinese defenders 72 miles from the town.

Rabbit's Foot, Horseshoes in Evidence This Being Friday the Thirteenth

(By The Canadian Press)

Friday the 13th — day of double trouble for the superstitious — is back after an absence of 14 months. That's today in case you hadn't noticed and whether or not you hold any brief for its superstitions there will be many people inclined to stay in bed or who'll hesitate about starting a new job or a journey.

There is no historical or statistical evidence to show Friday the 13th is more unlucky than any other day on the calendar. Psychologists point out however that although many persons with scientific habits of thought may scoff at the implications of the day, they are not always immune to impulses of fear and despair, inherited from more superstitious ancestors.

So you may see an abundance of rabbit's foots, horseshoes and other gadgets in evidence today.

Psychologists say too, that although science takes no stock in any of these superstitions, if a person is extremely superstitious about Friday the 13th, something could perhaps more easily happen to him. He may become so upset fearing a certain thing may happen as to dull his alertness to other dangers.

Probably the most accepted version of the origin of Friday the 13th goes back to Biblical times. There were 13 at the Last Supper, including Judas Iscariot, who next day, traditionally a Friday, betrayed Jesus Christ for crucifixion.

Allied Force To Land in Greece, Liberation Is at Hand—Wilson

Rome, Oct. 13 (AP)—Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean, said i na broadcast tonight that "a force under my command is about to land in Greece" and that the Kingdom's liberation was at hand.

Unofficial reports said that the Greek flag was flying over the Acropolis in Athens and that the Athens raido was in Allied hands.

Allied proclamations were broadcast promising immediate aid to the Greeks.

Gen. Wilson told the Greeks: "Your day of liberation is at hand. For the second time in this war, a force under my command is about to land in Greece but I am thankful to say, under very different conditions."

The Allied commander declared: "We come now to sweep away all traces of the invader and, by use of your ports and airfields, to harass his retreat." He said the Allies were also returning to restore Greece's administrative services.

London, Oct. 13 (CP)—The Germans have quit Athens and declared it an open city, a Reuter News Agency dispatch from Cairo said today.

HEAVY FIGHTING FOLLOWS MASSIVE AIR ASSAULT

Allied Units Open New Offensive Along the Florence-Bologna Road

WARMER WEATHER

Rome, Oct. 13 —(CP)— An advance by Eastern Ontario infantry to within four miles of Cesana, junction town on the main Bologna-Rimini highway, was reported in a front dispatch today while in the hills along the Florence-Bologna road heavy fighting flared after yesterday's massive air assault on German installations and positions south of Bologna.

In this central sector, where Allied forces are driving on Bologna, key communications centre of the Po valley, 5th Army troops took more than 300 prisoners, headquarters said.

In the Adriatic sector, meanwhile, the Canadians thrust up the Bologna-Rimini road, 18 miles northwest of Rimini, yesterday in continuation of the drive which earlier carried them from the Fiumicino river barrier to the Rigossa river, Bill Boss, Canadian Press war correspondent reported.

Aided by warm weather American forces pushed ahead in the wake of yesterday's tremendous aerial attacks and partly flanked the town of Livergnano, 10 miles south of Bologna on Highway 65, today's Allied communique said.

To the east, British 8th Army forces fought their way forward in the foothills south of the Bologna-Rimini road and occupied the village of Montiano.

They approached the Monte Dell'erta. Farther west they occupied Monta di Rullato.

The 8th Army found itself on firmer ground and appeared to be moving steadily forward everywhere except in the immediate Adriatic coastal sector where a succession of streams at short intervals gave the Germans a wide choice of defensive positions.

CANUCKS LAUNCH FRESH ATTACKS ALONG SCHELDE R.

Germans Hurl All of Remaining Force to Face New Threat

HUN VEHICLES HIT

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st anadian Army, Holland, Oct. 13 — (CP Cable)—Canadian forces launched new attacks in the Schelde beachhead and the sector north of Antwerp today in the face of heavy German opposition.

In the beachhead the Germans hurled the entire remaining force of the crack 64th Division to meet the new threat and a terrific slugging battle was raging this morning.

Canadians also took the offensive on the Leopold bridgehead sector, capturing the hamlet of Biezen, about 1,000 yards from the canal near the road leading to Aardenburg. These forces now are threatening the strongly-held town of Eade.

New reports of enemy troop movements westward along the Canadian Army's eastern flank stretching beyond Hertogenbosch indicate the Germans may assault in force against the Canadians' blockade of the Dutch islands at the houth of the Schelde.

Heavy Enemy Traffic Attacked

R.A.F. planes spotted heavy traffic on roads going west from Tilburg through Breda and promptly attacked, claiming the destruction of 31 Nazi vehicles.

An alternative move the Germans may be making is the further strengthening of the strongpoints of Tilburg and Breda themselves where for more than a week the Nazis have been building up resources.

On the western flank meanwhile there is also considerable movement on the waterways fanning out from the mouths of the Meuse and Rhine. Fighter-bombers damaged 50-odd barges as part of a record day of 784 sorties and also discovered trains and barges in tow marked with red crosses heading for Walcheren. It is believed they were being brought south for evacuating casualties sustained in the fighting against our beachhead forces and along the Leopold Canal.

ITALIAN PEOPLE 'WILL BE FREE TO WORKOUTDESTINY'

President Roosevelt Stresses Measures to Prevent Another War

ALLIED OBECTIVE

Washington, Oct. 13 — (AP) — President Roosevelt, saying the Allies entered Italy "not as conquerors but as liberators," has promised the Italian people they "will be free to work out their own destiny, under a government of their own choosing" when the United Nations defeat Germany.

"The United Nations are determined that every possible measure be taken to aid the Italian people directly and to give them an opportunity to help themselves," the President said last night in a radio address from the White House.

It was directed to the meeting of the Italian-American Labor Council in New York in acceptance of the council's four freedoms award.

Earlier, Mr. Roosevelt addressed chiefs of diplomatic mission ffom the other American Republics on the occasion of Columbus Day. Recalling the millions of Italians who have followed Columbus to the Western Hemisphere, he said:

"This is one of the many reasons why the forces of liberation have been welcomed so cordially by the Italian people after 22 years of Fascism."

Saying aviation has brought the old and the new worlds closer, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that "if we do not now take effective measures to prevent another world war and if there were to be a third world war, the lands of the Western Hemisphere would be as vulnerable to attack from Europe and Asia as were the island of Crete and the Philippine islands five years ago."

"Our objective," he said, "is to establish the solid foundations of the peace organization without further delay, and without waiting for the end of hostilities."

Fighting Street By Street Rages In Factory Area

Canadians Launch New Attacks in Schelde Sector

London, Oct. 13 — (CP)—American infantry fought street by street today into the northeastern factory district of bombed and burned Aachen while the Germans rolled up a heavy force of armor in an effort to relieve the city which was Charlemagne's capital.

The appearance of a fresh German armored division, shifted from the Arnhem sector in Holland, stirred expectation that a major tank battle would soon be joined.

Canadian forces in the low Countries, meanwhile, launched new attacks in their strengthened Scheldé beachhead and in the sector north of Antwerp against heavy German opposition, front dispatches said. Other units of the 1st Canadian Army gained new ground beyond their Leopold Canal bridgehead.

Stiff Defence Indicated

Signs appeared that Field Marshall Gen. Von Rundstedt was preparing a stiff defence in southwestern Holland, despite reports of the destruction of the Rotterdam docks. Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, said the Germans were strengthening their forces near the Schelde Estuary, possibly for a major attack against the 1st Canadian Army to retain approaches to the Belgian port of Antwerp. R.A.F. planes spotted heavy German traffic moving west from Tilburg toward Breda and destroyed 31 vehicles.

Aachen, a city of 165,000 and the largest German town yet invested, was dissolving under the weight of American shells and bombs, but there was no sign of a break in the 1,500 to 2,000 Nazi S.S. troops who fought from the rubble and the sewers.

The end for Aachen seemed inevitable — but there was no telling how long the battle would last.

New battles intensified in Holland, north and west of the beleaguered German city.

2nd Army Gains Mile.

British 2nd Army forces suddenly launched out on the right flank of their corridor into Holland, gaining more than a mile in a drive south of newly-captured Overloon, less than 10 miles from the German border.

A British staff officer said the Germans had shifted one tank division south from the Arnhem sector to Aachen and that there were signs of more Germans being moved from the Dutch salient into the Aachen battle zone.

North of the fortress city of Metz, the U. S. 3rd Army was fighting hand-to-hand in the streets of Meizieres Les Metz. The remainder of the 3rd army front including the strange, underground battle for Fort Driant, was unchanged, a field dispatch said.

Air Superiority.

The overwhelming Allied air superiority was used in the heightening battles of the north. The Allied communique said:

"Aachen was dive-bombed and strafed yesterday by hundreds of fighter-bombers."

Earlier German counter-thrusts from the east in the vicinity of Verlautenheide and Haaren were repulsed by American artillery. Bitter fighting continued, however, both at Haaren and Wurselen.

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
(AP War Correspondent)

Aachen, Germany, Oct. 13 — (3:15 p.m.)—(AP)— United States infantrymen are digging and shooting dirty and bearded soldiers today out of Aachen, street by street, house by house, and block by block.

Ahead of us, American dive bombers still are screaming down against the Germans holed up and in some cases trying to manoeuver in the narrow and debris-filled streets.

This outfit entered the city of Aachen proper at 9:30 a.m., our artillery and mortars having cut out a lane ahead of us.

The Americans had to cross 16 rows of railroad tracks to reach the main part of the town.

We are encountering no artillery fire as yet, but a few German machine-gun and rifle nests are holding out bitterly.

We are in the eastern section of the city and just now are working our way in. Buildings are aflame ahead of us and to our right and left, and the sharp crackle of machine-gun and rifle fire resounds in these desolate streets.

This outfit was the first actually to enter Aachen proper, although troops have been in the suburbs for days. What we found here is not really a city at all any more, but only a dirty derelict of what had once been a city. Ruins are everywhere. Many of them go back to past months of heavy bombing. Even the trees are stripped. Pools of water stand in the streets. There is the smell of ashes, old and new. Occasionally we stumble across German dead.

Aside from two little groups of evacuees moved through our lines a while ago, I have not seen a single GeGrman civilian. Every ostensible civilian man from 15 to 60 is being carefully guarded, for the Americans do not know yet how many of these "civilians" may have been wearing Jerry uniforms earlier.

When it is all over it will be surprising if it is found as many as 10,000 of Aachen's normal population of 165,000 remained behind.

Canadian Hens' Extra Large Eggs Prove Headache to Shippers

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 13 — (CP) — The Canadian hen that cackles pridefully when she lays an oversize egg has her head in the clouds for a moment but may find it on the chopping block soon afterwards.

Agriculture Department officials said today — in an age where the bigger and better usually is sought —that the problem of the oversize egg is becoming acute.

Oversize eggs are too large for standard trays and fillers and are lost through breakage. No market, export or domestic, has yet paid a premium for oversize eggs commensurate with their weight.

Some have suggested that eggs should be sold by weight rather than by number, but officials say this would lead to even greater complications by increasing the demand for larger eggs with the almost certain result that mortality among laying flocks would be increased. Eggs of unusual size often affect the health of the laying hen.

Strict grading standards are enforced in Canada and in this system the oversize egg has no place. And yet the tendency towards producing oversize eggs is increasing, say official reports.

"The two-ounce is the most economical to produce," the Agriculture Department said.

"The bigger the egg, the less the production. In supplying an export market, a large volume of a product of uniform size is more important than a similar volume in many sizes...

"Costs of handling are increased by having too many sizes of packages. In large manufacturing concerns, the standardization of packages has become an accepted method of reducing costs."

Commanding Officer of the 'Belleville' Well Experienced in Sea Duty

Lieutenant Jack S. Korning, Royal Canadian Naval Reserve, newly-appointed commanding officer of the corvette H.M.C.S. "Belleville" has a fine nautical background.

The tall young, he is only 26, fair-haired naval officer, was in the city Thursday, conferring with members of the Belleville Corvette Committee on matters pertaining to the trim new warship that proudly bears the name of this city. With him was the executive officer of the ship, Lieutenant Anthony Ayre, of Newfoundland.

Scion of a Viking family, Lieutenant Korning was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, and came to Canada when he was five years of age.

Started Work at 15

Inheriting the nautical tendencies of forebears who went "down to the sea in ships," the salt tang of the ocean became strong in his nostrils, and at an early age he turned to the sea. Eleven of his twenty-six years have been spent "on the rolling main" At fifteen he first felt the surge of a rolling deck beneath his feet, and a short time later he became a midshipman in the British Mercantile Marine.

Ambition and initiative took him into the mysteries of navigation and other nautical theory Graduating from naval schools he was appointed second officer and later first officer.

At the outbreak of war he transferred to the Imperial Oil Shipping Company and was given the post of first officer aboard an oil tanker. His ship was one of many engaged in the hazardous job of transporting oil from South America to France.

Joined Navy in 1940

In 1940 he joined the navy as a sub-lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve. Since then he has served on corvettes and destroyers He trod the decks of these swift "hornets" of the navy for three years on Atlantic convoy duty, interspersing this job with tours of duty in United Kingdom waters. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1941.

He was educated in St. Lambert, Quebec, and gives his home as Montreal and Halifax.

Other members of the "Belleville's" officer personnel include beside Lieutenant Ayre, Navigating Officer Lieut J. L. Barrett-Leonard, British Columbia; Gunnery Officer Lieut S. J. D. Hanrahan, Quebec City; Signals Officer, Lieut. J. H. C. Wilson, Winnipeg; Anti-Submarine Officer, Sub Lieut. G. Garner, Hull, Que., and Engineer Officer WO(E) Alex Brodie.

Adoption Ceremonies of Corvette 'Belleville' To Take Place in Kingston

Official adoption by the city of its trim new warship protege, the corvette "H.M.C.S. Belleville," will take place at the Canada Steamship Lines dock at Kingston on Sunday, October 22nd, Corvette Committee officials announced today.

Despite repeated efforts on the part of the committee to have the corvette brought here for public inspection, naval authorities at Ottawa deemed it impossible due to navigation difficulties likely to be encountered along waterways between this city and Kingston.

With this decision before them, the committee immediately went into action to make arrangements for the "next best" plans so that residents of this city would get an opportunity to get a first-hand view of the trim little ship.

These plans have now been completed.

Officers and ratings of the ship will hold "open house" on Sunday starting at ten o'clock in the morning and lasting through till three o'clock in the afternoon.

Colorful ceremonies have been arranged for the official adoption. At three p.m. when all visitors must leave the craft, a remote control broadcast over CKWS will carry the ceremonies over the air. The broadcast will be heard plainly on the dock where ample space has been provided for visitors from this city.

Mayor Harry Rollins will formally act as "godfather" and with him will be Committee Chairman J. B. Boyce, Secretary Treasurer Harold Bateman, Jack McVeigh and a large number of civic, municipal and political figures.

It is expected that a large number of city and district residents will go to Kingston to inspect the "Belleville" and view the adoption ceremonies.

Three Sisters Hurt In Truck-Car Crash

Three young sisters sustained minor injuries when the automobile in which they were riding turned over into the ditch, after being struck by a creamery truck on the 6th Concession of Tyendinaga township yesterday. The girls were Mary, Katherine and Margaret Corrigan, who were riding home from school in an automobile driven by their father, Michael Corrigan of Read.

Provincial Constable E. J. Soubliere investigated and was informed that a truck driven by Graydon McRoberts, Belleville, was proceeding westerly along the 6th Concession of Tyendinaga about three miles east of Read and upon approaching a township intersection was in collision with Mr. Corrigan's motor car when he failed to see the lighter vehicle. The force of the impact resulted in the motor car turning over at which time broken glass cut a deep gash in Katherine Corrigan's forearm. The other two girls sustained minor injuries and all were attended by Dr. Boyce of Deseronto. The Corrigan car was badly wrecked as the result of the crash. Today Provincial Police officials announced charges would be preferred against McRoberts.

Cream Truck And Car Crash Head-on; Marmora Man Hurt

Who ever said . . . "there is no use crying over spilled milk?"

There was a lot of grief over the spilling of 30 cans of cream along Highway No. 14 near Bonarlaw yesterday when the Stirling Creamery truck, driven by Perry Bronson of Stirling, was in head-on collision with an automobile driven by Earl McGregor, of Marmora. Several occupants in the McGregor car sustained lacerations from flying glass, while Otis Fluke, a passenger from Marmora, was removed to the Belleville General Hospital in a semi-conscious condition and suffering from a deep laceration over the right eye and shock. He was attended by Dr. E. A. Carleton of Stirling at the scene.

Traffic Officer Chas. Siple investigated and was informed the truck was in collision with the motor car on a slight grade. As the result of the impact some 30 cans of cream were strewn along the highway with the highway shoulders taking on a creamy complexion.

Other passengers in the car sustaining minor injuries and bruises were James and Jack Fluke and Everett Tandy, all of whom had hand lacerations from flying glass. The fronts of both vehicles were badly damaged. Bronson also was badly shaken up. Charges are pending, police added today.

Jas. H. Lazenby Heads A. & N. Vets For Next Year

James H. Lazenby, secretary of the association for the past eight years and second vice president of the Dominion Command, was elected president of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201 at the annual meeting held in the Front Street club rooms Thursday night. President Lazenby succeeds Past President Thomas York who had held the office for the past two years.

Other officers elected were, 1st Vice President, Robert Browning; 2nd Vice President, George Carver; Secretary, William J. Ford, 1st Vice President, Provincial Command; Treasurer, W. Holland; Sergeant-at-Arms, George Hammett; Sergeant-Major Jack Laney; House Master, William Lindsay; Executive members, Percy Ford, Thomas Horton, Jack Clarke, Archie Jordan, and C. Brookes.

Mayor Harry Rollins, a special guest, acted as chairman of a board of four scrutineers for the election of officers. Past president William J. Ford, acted as chairman and later presided over the installation of the new slate of officers.

Gladstone Bag Presented.

A highlight of the annual affair was the presentation to retiring President Thomas York of a handsome gladstone bag in appreciation of faithful and efficient services rendered as head of the association for the past two years. Chairman Ford made the presentation.

Past President York, expressed his appreciation of the gift and urged the support of his fellow ex-service men for his successor. "I have had my up and downs and my arguments, but I have given you my best." He received a splendid ovation from the members present.

During the business session which preceded the election of officers, a notice of motion filed a month previous recommending that the 1944 slate of officers continue in office until December and that a fiscal year from Jan. 1st to December be substituted for the one in vogue at present, was ruled out of order by the general body.

Heated discussion preceded the motion. It was pointed out that under the branch constitution, it was necessary to rescind a by-law covering the point involved. This was not included in the notice of motion, supporters of the move to quash it, declared.

Will Enforce Regulations.

Following the installation of the new officers, President Lazenby briefly addressed the club, pointing out that branch regulations as laid down in the ritual will be rigidly enforced.

Election of officers for the various posts were closely contested. In three instances there were "tie" after the ballots were counted, and on two occasions the holder of office was decided by the flip of a coin.

Following the meeting refreshents of cheese and crackers were served.

Says Penicillin To Have Big Part In Curing V. D.

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Oct. 13 (CP)—Penicillin, the wonder drug with a thousand or more uses, will play a large part in curing venereal disease in Canada after the war, Sqdn. Ldr. R. M. Anderson, venereal disease control officer for the R.C.A.F. said in an interview.

Sqdn. Ldr. Anderson, who directs the fight against gonorrhoea and syphilis among members of the R.C.A.F., said that when stocks of penicillin become plentiful it likely will be possible to clear up a case of venereal disease in a matter of hours or days instead of weeks.

Limited Supplies.

Because only limited supplies of the drug now are available in Canada, the Canadian armed forces have used it only in venereal disease cases which failed to respond to sulpha drugs.

However, widespread use has been made of penicillin in the United States and health authorities there have passed on the result of experiments to Canadian authorities, said Sqdn. Ldr. Anderson.

Some United States medical authorities believe that 1,200,000 units of penicillin interjected into a patient over a period of eight days will cure a case of syphilis. In the Canadian armed forces at present, sulphonamides are used to clear up syphilis and two treatments a week are given over a period of 26 weeks. Penicillin also has been found to make a syphilectic patient non-infectious in a matter of hours.

American experiments also showed that 95 percent of acute gonorrhoea cases were cured within the first 15 hours of a treatment of 100,000 units of penicillin. Most of the remaining five per cent of the cases were cured with a second treatment of 100,000 units. A few required a third treatment.

Standard Treatment.

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Penicillin has been adopted by the United States navy's bureau of medicine and surgery as the standard treatment for syphilis.

In instructions to all naval stations the bureau said:

"Sufficient information has been accumulated to warrant recommendation that penicillin therapy of early and latent syphilis may now be adopted as a routine procedure."

L. B. Mayer Leads In Pay Cheques In Moviedom

Washington, Oct. 13 —(AP—The pay cheque of L. B. Mayer, the movie magnate, still is tops.

Mr. Mayer, who received his early education in Saint John, N. B., moved back into his customary first-place position Thursday as the United States Treasury released a supplementary list of 140 persons who received from corporations compensation in excess of $75,000 for personal services in the calendar year 1942 or fiscal year ending in 1943.

Loew's Incorporated paid Mr. Mayer $1,138,992.47. Of this $104,500 was for salary, the remaining $1,-34,492.47 as commission.

The original list released in July, placed Sidney R. Fleisher, New York attorney, in first place, much to his surprise and apparent chagrin.

Says Others Benefited

Mr. Fleisher was listed as receiving $645,000 from Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation. He acknowledged he received that amount, but said all but $15,000 went to playwrights and producers he represented in the sale of picture rights on Broadway plays.

Second place in the list went to Producer Walter F. Wagner, who receives $701372.03 from Universal Pictures Company, Inc. Nicholas M. Schenck received $512,291.33 from Loew's Incorporated to rank third.

The movie industry figured largely in the supplementary list.

Columbia Pictures listed, among others, the following: Brian Aherne, $144,958; Fred Astaire, $75,635; Joel McCrea, $144,458; Edward G. Robinson, $129,166; Loretta Young, $85,-000.

Big Loew's Cheques

Among those receiving big pay cheques from Loew's were: Edward Arnold, $99,583; Wallace Beery, $150,000; Joan Crawford, $194615; Brian Donlevy, $141,250; Tommy Dorsey, $165,817; Irene Dunne, $200,000; Greer Garson $159,083; Katherine Hepburn, $110,333; Harry James, $128,569; William Powell, $251,250; Robert Taylor, $176,983; Spencer Tracy, $219,871; Robert Young $108,500.

Budd Abbott and Lou Costello jointly received $789,628 from Universal Pictures. Other compensation reported by that company included:

Charles Boyer, $80,000; Edna Mae (Deanne) Durbin, $282,250; Ole Oleson and Chic Johnson, $151,-795; Randolph Scott, $132,187; Franchot Tone, $101,372.

The list shows the amount paid to officers and employees by reporting corporations in the form of salary, bonus, commission, or other compensation for personal services, but not income from investments, such as bonds or stock. The amounts reported are before payment of taxes.

Dr. T. Farncombe Honored By Medical Assoc.

Trenton, Special—Dr. T. S. Farncombe of Trenton was guest of honor at a banquet in the nurses' dining room of the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday evening when he was presented with a gold-headed cane, marking his completion of more than fifty years of medical service in this community. Dr. Farncombe graduated 53 years ago at the age of 21 from the Trinity Medical School in Toronto and shortly afterward set up practice in Trenton.

Dr. Arthur Locke of Belleville, President of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Medical Association, presided at the banquet and made the presentation to the guest. Dr. Farncombe responded and thanked the members for their thoughtfulness in remembering him on this occasion.

Dr. Farncombe has always been keenly interested in the welfare of his community, extremely active still after many years of service in the practice of medicine. He is a life member of the Ontario Medical Association as well as an honorary member of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Medical Society, and a non-resident member of the Academy of Medicine, Toronto.

Guest speaker of the evening was Dr. F. Etherington, Dean of Medical Faculty, Queen's University, Kingston. Other speakers included Rev. Dr. Myers of Belleville, Dr. E. A. McQuade of Trenton, who spoke on behalf of Dr. Farncombe's local associates, Col. F. L. Reid of Kingston, who prior to the war was a practitioner at Trenton, and Dr. J. F. Farley.

Wives of the doctors on hand at the banquet were also present to assist in honoring the esteemed guest.

Montreal, Oct. 13—(CP)—Thirty-six complaints have been laid against nine Montreal firms requiring sugar in the manufacture of their products, following investigation of what Prices Board officials qualified yesterday as "the biggest sugar black market yet uncovered," allegedy involving 1,000,-000 pounds of illegally obtained sugar.

Prices Board officials did not give out the names of the firms against whom complaints have been signed with corresponding summonses being made returnable Oct. 20, as it was understood that similar charges will be laid against other companies.

The complaints yesterday were said to have been issued against a feed and grain merchant, local bakeries, soft drink manufacturers and a straw company.

The charges were said to be for illegal possession of sugar ration coupons, selling sugar to quota or industrial users without obtaining surrender of ration checks or purchase documents covering the quantities sold, selling sugar above ceiling prices.

'Hasty Pees' Share in Rolling Hun Front Back 3 Miles on Adriatic

By DOUG HOW
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians on the Adriatic front, Oct. 13 —(Cable)—Canadian forces on the Adriatic front have made a surprise advance of over three miles across the muddy Lombardy tableland against no German resistance whatever as the Germans were believed to be pulling back to new defence positions.

This advance and other Adriatic moves yesterday liberated 11 small communities, most of them little more than place-names.

An Ontario Highland regiment of Maj.-Gen. Vokes' division first patrolled and then established favorable positions around the Fiumicino river Tuesday night, and throughout yesterday an Eastern Ontario regiment exploited the new gains to a great depth.

(The Ontario Highland regiment probably is the 48th Highlanders of Canada (Toronto), and the Eastern Ontario unit the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Picton.)

Enemy resistance to the drive was negligible though late last night the Eastern Ontario regiment reported contact with the enemy and brisk fighting. Only 20 prisoners were taken in the whole forward surge.

The belief that the Germans were retiring behind new defence lines emphasized the report 10 days ago that they were digging along the Pisciatello river, which flows across the plains from a point 2½ miles south of Cesenatico, on the coast 13 miles north of Rimini, inland to Cesena.

Allied Harmony

There have been meetings in Moscow of tremendous importance, deliberations of two of the great Allied leaders, on the future course of the war, discussions over matters of interest to the entire world, and assuring peace with victory and with security. There have been two great dinners, one the state dinner of the Premier of Russia to the British leader and the visiting staffs and the other Mr. Churchill's dinner at the British Embassy in tribute to the Russian Premier.

Reports given out concerning the dinner given by Mr. Churchill are graphic in their picture of the harmony that is at work in the Allied ranks. Mr. Stalin broke a precedent, by going to the British Embassy. Then too the dinner was interrupted by the sound of the guns of the capital in salute to a new victory of Russian arms in Transylvania whose capital had fallen. One report told of Mr. Churchill leading a group of guests to the windows of the dining room to watch the celebration of fireworks and rockets.

Here Mr .Stalin bore magnificent tribute to the power of the United States in industry which had contributed so greatly to the success of Allid arms.

This was another of those great gatherings where history is being made which will affect the course of events for years and generations, it is confidently held.

Another Nazi Defence Gone

A super explosive "RDX" is undoing the material work of Hitler's henchmen on the Siegfried Line, smashing the "dragons' teeth" with which the enemy sowed the approaches to Aachen. So goes another of the inner defences of Hitler's citadel. First there was his initial great might, with his highly mechanized land forces making a blitzkrieg or lightning war a feature of the early offensives. But the blitz was knocked out of the German blitzkrieg by the R.A.F., the R.C.A.F. and the American air forces. Hitler hurled inventions against the Allies but the magnetic bomb was early answered. Now the robot bombs have lost their platforms and can only ride on the back of an odd plane until discharged on their way. The sting of the robot was soon taken away. Allied detectors have been invented which have played havoc with the enemy planes and submarines. All along the line the enemy has been outsmarted, especially in strategy. Colossal errors have been made by the Germans and Hitler himself in his war against Russia which has proven so mighty an antagonist against Hun aggression.

Ounce of Prevention

Nine ways in which to prevent fires in dwellings are worth noting:

Check from cellar to attic, inside and outside buildings for rubbish and remove it.

Keep oily rags, waxing cloths and brushes, paints, in metal container with a lid or keep them outside.

Do not keep gasoline, benzine or wood alcohol in the house. Do not use them inside a room without seeing that all lights, stoves, gas jets are turned off and dead and windows and doors open. Remember gasoline used for cleaning is heavier than air and flows down into basements, furnace rooms. Don't use coal oil for starting fires.

Overhaul furnaces, stoves, pipes, for cracks or defects. Keep them clean. Protect with sheet metal or asbestos board all wood surfaces nearby, joists and beams overhead. Place hot clinkers, ashes, in metal containers, never in wooden boxes.

Go over electric light fittings. Have replaced or repaired switches, plugs. Use toasters, irons, only on metal covered table or sheet of asbestos or large tile. Do not put hot irons in cupboard.

Protect open fireplaces with screen of close mesh.

Don't let children play with matches. Keep matches in metal boxes. Use flashlight, not matches, in going into closets.

Don't attempt to put out grease fires in stoves or pans with water. If oven takes fire shut off gas and close door of oven. Fire will go out for want of air. In case of fire call fire brigade immediately as you may not be able to handle it.

If smoking is habitual in home, see there are metal ash trays provided. Discourage practice of laying cigarettes down on edges of furnitpre.

Aix-la-Chapelle or Aachen

Aix-la-Chapelle or Aachen (in German) one of the most famous cities of Western Europe has been much in the news and is today under terrific bombardment by Allied guns. It is one of the oldest cities in Europe and came out of the mist of early days of the past. It was known as a community in the days of the Romans but it came into prominence in the days of Pepin. Charles the Great or Charlemagne made its name take on great prominence when he selected it as his chief place of residence. Here many of the emperors of the Holy Roman Empire were crowned and lived from the time of Louis the Pious to that of Ferdinand I in 1531. Seventeen imperial diets and eleven provincial councils were held within its walls. In the Middle Ages this free city numbered more than 100,000 inhabitants. As far back as the days of Charlemagne its baths were known and have been used since the twelfth century, six of its mineral springs being hot and two cold. In this city the body of the Emperor Charlemagne was buried. Before its town house stands a bronze statue of the emperor.

The old city had been greatly developed and it numbered about one hundred and sixty-five thousand in population, While a city with historic interest, it has become a busy centre of manufacturing. The present cathedral in its early parts dates from the chapel of Charlemagne's palace.

Its name is associated with many international events, treaties of peace having been signed here and bearing the name of Aix-la-Chapelle. The first peace of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1668 ended the war carried on by France and Spain for the possession of the Netherlands. The second peace of Aix-la-Chapelle was signed in 1748 and concluded the war over the succession of Maria Theresa to the Empire. A congress which also goes by the French name of the city was held in 1818 for regulation of the affairs of Europe after the Napoleonic Wars. Its principal object was the withdrawal of the army of occupation, 150,000 strong, from France as well as the reception of France into the alliance of the great powers. The emperors of Russia and Austria and the King of Prussia were there in person. The five great powers signed a protocol announcing a policy known as that of the "Holy Alliance."

The city stands at the gateway into Germany. There the might of Allied power is now determinedly smashing at the Hun defences.

Though today it is known as Aachen since it has been part of Germany for more than a century, the days ahead promise that this city which has been on the border through centuries of the two races, French and German, likely will resume its French name and become a part of France. Since it has been in German hands it has been the gateway of German aggression against the west, twice in the past thirty years.

Fish Roe Saves Sight

Herring roe as a three-meal daily diet today is credited with saving the sight of a badly-burned flight sergeant of the Royal Air Force. The roe was provided by the Ministry of Food after a four-day search of London shops. After a week of continuous meals on herring roe, the burned eyes improved but the airman lost all desire for that seafood. A specialist who prescribed the diet said he remembered a London hospital experiment on rats which proved herring roe has a special factor enabling the body to use its vitamin A.

Man's unhappiness comes of his greatness; it is because there is an infinite in him, which, with all his cunning, he cannot quite bury under the finite.—Carlyle.

JUST FOLKS

AUTUMN GARDEN

And now the garden starts to fade,
Old age is drawing on.
The charms of youth it once disiplayed,
Just like our own, have gone.
At evening now the zinnias look
Like old men with the Holy Book,
And the pale phloxes nod once more
Like women chatting 'round the door.

As men whose hair has turned to snow,
The dahlias doze and dream.
How brave they were a month ago!
How tired today they seem!
Now much as people worn with years
The blue delphinium appears,
And every yellow marigold
Shows all the signs of growing old.

The garden mourns its lovely lost,
The first of all to die.
Poor, fragile victims of the frost
As it came swooping by!
But soon or late this common doom
Must come to leaf and bud and bloom,
When dead will seem each living thing,
'Till all are wakened by the spring.

Ships Damaged During Invasion Will Sail Again

(By A. J. McWhinnie, Naval Correspondent of the Daily Herald, London, England.)

Ships that were damaged and stranded after being hit in the invasion of Europe have not been written off automatically as total losses. Admiralty salvage experts are playing a big part in the liberation of Hitler's Europe.

In visualizing the Western Front operation, a man in the street rarely remembers the important work of those who have been specially trained to move sunken ships from vital channels, and to raise, tow and bring home for repair ships which will fight another day. The salvage experts, because so much of their work is undertaken in secret, are little publicized.

In her sincere desire for peace, Britain had in the prewar years neglected not only the fighting services but ancillary services. Thus, while the strength of the Navy had dropped to danger point, the Naval salvage service was almost non-existent. In the early stages of the war, scores of torpedoed, mined and bombed ships became total losses for want of immediate assistance. In those months certain waters, particularly in the North Sea and the English Channel, became the graveyard for ships, for which there was little salvage aid available.

But that lack was soon being corrected and successful salvage work on wartime freighters and cargoes of a total value of £70,000,000 had been carried out by last Winter. In the same period—four years—rescue tugs operating under the Admiralty had given towage assistance to other freighters valued at nearly £25,000,000.

Today, a vast salvage organization—second to none in the world—works under the direction of the Admiralty. When this organization was formed experts were recalled to Britain from as far afield as Bombay and the Yangtse River. That organization is still expanding.

I have seen torpedoed ships, one or more holds filled with water, rescued and brought back safely to port from hundreds of miles away. I have been on board warships which have steamed round and round a torpedoed freighter in mid-Atlantic for three days and nights, screening her from further attack while waiting for rescue tugs to arrive on the scene from distant ports.

And in a few months those ships have been repaired and put to sea again.

Ships have been raised, towed in and repaired in the Mediterranean from Alexandria to Gibraltar. Ships sunk in those waters during the North African campaign are still being tackled by the salvage experts.

One of the greatest ship-raising programs of the war has been undertaken in Southern Italy's battered harbors under the direction of the Allied Control Commission. Almost every usable harbor in liberated Italy was long ago made navigable by Army and Navy engineers. But there are still ships to be raised and towed away.

One port in Southern Italy still contains 39 ships sunk during the heavy invasion bombardment. In Sardinia four ships have so far been raised successfully. There are another 15 still under water.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Disapproves Action

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,

In the report of the session of our City Council in the paragraph "Only Mayor to attend" I find that Alderman Woodley moved an amendment that because Alderman Hyde has been consistently against this spending of money for sending delegates his name should be struck off the recommendation.

Ald. Follwell was also surprised that Ald. Hyde accepted the offer to go and would support the amendment.

In other words because Ald. Hyde expressed a certain opinion he was penalized by these members and enough more to carry the amendment.

During the last five years hundreds of our young men have been sacrificing their lives that we might have freedom of speech and yet the majority of our council by their votes have stated they do not believe in it.

And these are the people who are asking the citizens to give them a two year term!

A British Subject.

HEAVY FIGHTING

Eighth army troops rolled the Germans off another segment of the Bologna-Rimini road, penetrating to a point three miles beyond Savignano and capturing the villages of Balginano, Massa and Badia, as well as Montiano, south of the road. The troops which took Montiano were only 4 1-2 miles southeast of Cesena, another junction point of Highway 9.

In the hills south of the highway the Germans were putting in reinforcements and heavy fighting was in progress for the dominating peaks. Italian patriots in the mountains were continuing to harass the enemy.

The 5th Army again encountered stiff enemy resistance. In describing the heavy fighting astride Highway 65 the communique said "no material advances have been made."

Reach Summit of Hill.

Troops reached the summit of one hill only nine miles southwest of Castel San Pietro on the Bologna-Rimini road, while other forces captured Mount Delle Formiche, 2 1-2 miles east of Livergnano where the fiercest fighting seems to have centred.

Yesterday's pulverizing raids by Allied planes in their greatest blow yet in the North Italian campaign were made in an attempt to blast a pathway into the Po valley for 5th Army forces which have been virtually stalled south of Bologna for two days by a Nazi deathstand.

West of Highway 65 5th Army units pushed a mile beyond Monteramici, a village in the hills overlooking a subsidiary road to Bologna. On the west coast, American forces clung to Mount Canala, about four miles southeast of Mass, western terminus of the Gothic Line.

Headquarters disclosed that three heavy bombers and 17 other planes were missng from yesterday's aerial operation in the Mediterranean sector, which included strafing of airfields and other targets in Austria and Hungary.

TO REMOVE SECURITY POLICE

Vancouver, Oct. 13 — (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials said yesterday that Civil Security Police who have been guarding vital bridges throughout British Columbia since the outbreak of war will be removed by Oct. 14, because of a general "cut-down" ordered in the strength of the force.

MENTAL DERANGEMENT

Whether the soldiers who develop one or another form of mental derangement while in training or in service are simply the defectives who would have done so had they never been inducted at all, is a matter of opinion. How you would take it I don't know, but I suspect I'd develop a bad case of the jitters from the din of battle alone, to say nothing of the extreme imminence of danger. Fear is the principal cause of shock.

In World War, Part I, "shell shock" was the favorite term for it. In World War, Part II, that name has gone out of fashion and various other names have been introduced, I don't know just why. By whatever name they call it, the breakdown would have happened sooner or later, war or no war. Had there been no war the breakdown would have been ascribed to "overwork," worry, business cares, financial responsibilities and the stress and strain of modern life, whatever that may mean. Anything but the sins of the victim or the sins of his parents.

Here is my suggestion to the individual who believes his trouble is nervous exhaustion, brain fag, nervous fatigue, neurasthenia, nervous breakdown or weak nerves. You may need a complete rest but for goodness sake don't try to get it by sitting around or by lying around. The rest you need is change — change of task, change of occupation, change of routine living habit, change of scene, but particularly change of living habit — if you are now living by your wits, or as a parasite upon or by the bounty of friend or relative, snap out of it, get yourself a job of honest work, work you do with your muscles — that's the rest you need.

And here is a suggestion to the individual who is in training for a neurotic career. If you are a soft white collar worker, a professional person, a business man or woman, a housekeeper who doesn't keep house but hires it kept for her, a student or an artist it is not healthful recreation for you to attend the ball-game, the theatre or the football game as a spectator, not even if you get excited and scream at umpire or players or other hysterical spectators like yourself. But it is fine recreation for you to spend your afternoon off playing a little game of ball in sandlot or pasture or hiking to the next village or doing something with your hands, any kind of work that requires use of your muscles. Work, play, hobby, pastime, recreation, diversion, game, sport, whatever you choose for recreation, if yours is a sedentary occupation, let it be something you do yourself, preferably something you can do as well or perhaps better than your companions, opponents or competitors. If you will make a brief survey of all the "nervous" folk you know, or those who purport to have "nervous fatigue," "nervous exhaustion" or "nervous breakdown" you will find that they are almost always people who had nothing to do by way of avocation, people with one-track minds, people with little interest, knowledge, ability, skill or enthusiasm for anything outside of their fixed means of livelihood.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Time to Duck the Cri

The melancholy days are come and we hope you will give us another educational course on the Common Respiratory Infections course on the Common Respiratory Infections and how to avoid them. At our house we attribute the extraordinary freedom from such illness we have enjoyed for several seasons now to the teachings of our good friend, "Ol' Doc Brady."

(M.R.M.)

Answer—Thank you. I'll try to get in an occasional talk on that subject—but whenever I refer to prevention of the Cri (common respiratory infections)—, a lot of important people get pretty sore because I ridicule such harmless incidents as drafts, wet feet, insufficient clothing, chilling, change of weather.

Rules Prove Insomnia A Habit

(By Thurlow Caines, Condensed from the Boston Post)

Many a woman wishes she could lay her head on the pillow at night and go to sleep immediately.

She can—whether she believes it or not—if she follows these ten simple rules:

First: Don't fuss if you can't go to sleep. Irritation and self-pity are only fuel for the fire of insomnia.

Second: Sleep is an individual matter. Start experimenting with yourself to find a better way to get to sleep.

Third: The pillow may be Enemy No. 1. Must you fight it every night? Do you double it up, shove it around, punch it into different shapes? Instead of that, try experimenting with different types. Perhaps you need a softer one, or a plumper one. Perhaps you'll sleep better with none.

Fourth: I bought the best mattress I could find. Many people spend money on all kinds of luxuries, but sleep on sagging, lumpy mattresses that should have been thrown out years ago.

Fifth: Eating a big dinner was the thing that kept me awake nights. Like millions, I had been eating a light breakfast and light lunch. At the dinner table, I went to town. I was sleepy after it, until nine or ten, when I felt rested and refreshed. I went to bed at eleven or twelve, feeling fine. But I couldn't go to sleep.

I tried a new regime, with the doctor's blessing—a hearty breakfast, a substantial lunch, and a light dinner. At eleven o'clock, I'm pleasantly weary and relaxed. I'm asleep ten minutes after getting into bed.

Sixth: Try a warm bath before going to bed. Or a slightly chilly one. Experiment with the amount of covering. Perhaps you have one blanket too many—or one too few. Try breathing very deeply for a few minutes after getting into bed. Try reading. Try a warm drink. Try anything! It costs nothing to experiment.

Seventh: There's been a lot of poppycock written about bedroom temperatures. Fresh air is good, but be comfortable. Cold air may cause sleeplessness.

Eight: If you listen to the war news just before going to bed, it may stir you up so you don't fall asleep easily. You'll be helping your country more if you wait until morning for the news.

Ninth: Learn to relax as soon as you get into bed. Let legs, arms and shoulders slump. Let the facial muscles go. Spread the fingers and let the wrists sink onto the mattress.

Tenth: Face the psychological fact. If your nervous system is keyed to insomnia, make up your mind right now to change the habit. It can be done.

SHOWING WHITE FEATHER

Some time ago it was reported that a certain prominent person eligible to military service was receiving white feathers through the mail because of his failure to join the armed forces.

White feathers and cowardice have been associated for generations.

To show the white feather means to prove cowardly, retreat or back down.

It is believed to be a product of the cockpit. Apparently it was suggested by the old belief that white feathers in the tail of a gamecock were a sign that the fowl was cross-bred and a mongrel.

The idea was that a mongrel lacks courage, pluck and fighting qualities.

We have a similar idea in "cur," which is applied to a mongrel dog. A mongrel dog is supposed to be inferior because of cross-breeding.

It is said by old cockfighters that when a pure-bred bird is pitted in the arena against a mongrel bird the mongrel cannot "stand the gaff" and soon shows the white feather; that is, reveals its inferior blood by not being "game."

A gaff is a metal spur attached to the leg of a gamecock.

A few years ago the U. S. Department of Agriculture commented on this old belief as follows:

"While it seems logical that selective breeding for courage and fighting qualities should result in the production of individual birds or strains best suited to the purpose, it is rather difficult to understand why the phrase to show the white feather refers to birds of mongrel breeding. In the old English game-birds, color and markings were not of great importance, but a hard plumage was desired."

Nevertheless it has always been believed that white feathers in a game-bird are a sign of inferior breeding and the phrase undoubtedly was suggested by the belief.

EMPEY HILL

Thanksgiving And Anniversary Services Are Held

Empey Hill — Large congregations marked the annual Thanksgiving and Anniversary Services held in the United Church on Sunday. Dr. H. A. Kent, B.A., D.D., of Queen's Theological College, at Kingston, was the guest preacher and he was assisted by Rev. W. R. Merrick, minister of the church. Beautiful bouquets of cut flowers and potted plants filled the altar of the newly decorated church. This work was done under the direction of Mr. Fred Russell, Napanee, and the church has been redecorated both inside and out. They were assisted by Mr. Grant Brooks and Mrs. Hugh Ramsay, of Newburgh, who sang duets both morning and evening. These services will be long remembered for their inspiration. 'Where Did You Come From, Baby Dear? Daddy Posted'

London, Eng., Oct. 13 — Britain's compassionate leave issue, which involves the "posting" of married, but childless, servicemen so that they may return home to start a family, was the subject of the following satire appearing in the current "New Statesman and Nation:"

Where did you come from baby dear?
Out of the Middle East, into here.
How did you fly through the Pearly Gate?
My mum had a doctor's certificate.
Why did you not come here before sweet tot?
I don't quite know, but I guess a lot.
Where did you get those wondering eyes?
My dad's return was a great surprise.
And where'd you get that expression naive?
It's something to do with compassionate leave.
Whence comes, baby darling, that smile of bliss?
The colonel blew me a birthday kiss.
And why did they want you, pretty pet?
The war office hasn't informed me yet.
And how did you get here, little lad?
The army said it was up to dad.
Whence came dimpled fingers, toes, sweetheart?
The army said dad must make a start.
What makes you so rosy, feet and head?
That's what the King's regulations said.
How did all this come to be you, sweet lamb?
My daddy was posted, and here I am.

Ferns, gladioli, asters and dahlias were used in decoration of the church, making a colorful setting.

The bride chose a dress of rose crepe, made princess style, with black sequin motifs, small black hat with veil. She carried a handkerchief, which her mother had carried at her wedding, and wore an heirloom necklace and brooch of yellow gold set with pearls. Her corsage was of roses and fern.

Miss Merle Wood, as bridesmaid, was in soft green crepe and small black hat with veil, and a corsage of roses and fern. Mr. Leonard Thomas of Queen's University was best man.

The wedding music was played by the bride's mother. During the signing of the register, the bride's brother, Joan McCaw, sang. Immediately following the marriage vows the congregation sang as a prayer, "O Perfect Love."

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where a color scheme of pink and white was carried out in floral and table decorations.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a bracelet; to the best man, a leather bill-fold; to the organist, a Royal Albert cup and saucer.

For travelling, the bride donned a gold crepe frock, green tweed coat and black accessories. They left on a motor trip around Lake Ontario, with short visits in Rochester and Toronto. They will reside on the groom's farm near Woodrous.

Out-of-door guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Simmons, Napanee, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie Simmons and Miss Dorothy Simmons, Trenton.

W.M.S. Holds Sectional Rally At Foxboro

By FLORENCE MacMULLEN

The Nineteenth Annual Meeting of Belleville Section of the Woman's Missionary Society of Belleville Presbyterial convened in Foxboro United Church on Wednesday, October 11th., with a good representation.

The morning worship was in charge of Mount Pleasant Rawdon W.M.S. and was based on "Prayer." Mrs. John Holmes presided with Mrs. Roy Thrasher giving the devotional paper. Mrs. T. F. Townsend sang "The Trysting Place of Prayer" with Mrs. Ross Hoard as accompanist.

The sectional vice-president, Mrs. Cecil Macklin, Stirling, took the chair and the committees appointed were:

Nominating — Mesdames Westover, Moorman and Ketcheson.

Courtesy — Mesdames MacMullen and Badgley.

The church was very beautiful with potted plants and autumn blooms and made an attractive setting for the service. Mrs. Wm. Hodgins graciously welcomed the guests on behalf of Foxboro Auxiliary.

Mrs. A. McCreary spoke briefly on "new literature" and books available. She also told of plans for the Library Fund.

The morning offering was dedicated by Mrs. H. H. Hillis. Mrs. S. W. Spafford introduced Mrs. James Laughland of Dominion Board and Mrs. Harry Harrison Mission Board Secretary of the Presbyterial and these ladies conducted group discussions based on the new Study Book "West of the Date Line" and the work of the younger groups. Mrs. Laughland urged the delegates to spend time in preparation of the Study Book.

Mrs. J. A. Dilts, Belleville, Holloway, took charge of the quiet half hour, with Miss Lazelle Brown as accompanist. She based her remarks on the verse "Be still and know that I am God" for "In quietness and confidence shall be your strength." She said today's modern pace is losing our souls and "The Morning Watch" is most important because God does work in silence. Her message challenged all to have a greater zeal for His service.

Afternoon Session

The ladies of Foxboro W. M. S. served a very appetizing dinner in the church basement and the tables were decorated artistically.

Mrs. H. W. Proats and Mrs. Hogle of Tabernacle were in charge of the afternoon devotional. Portions of the old and new Testament were read based on the theme "advance" and she said in order to have a cultivated yield in the church, "we must keep our hand on the plow and steadily move forward."

Mrs. Ralph Sills called the roll with 173 ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Sills gave a splendid presentation of the year's work and said it was with deep gratitude that we were able to report an increase of 56 members and $494.56 increase in givings over the previous year.

Scotts report all women members 2 life and 13 annual. According to the Blue Book Mount Pleasant Rawdon were highest in givings with an average of $9.66 per member.

19 mission bands have 465 membership 320 world friends and 291 dollars in givings. 8 bands received awards and Mount Pleasant Rawdon received the Presbyterial sixth award and were tendered congratulations.

She closed with a seaman's version of the 23rd Psalm.

Mrs. E. Denyes presented the temperance project in the absence of Mrs. Farnsworth urging each W. M. S. member to enroll for Christian abstinence in regard to alcoholic beverages.

Mrs. Ernest Tummon sang "Heartaches", and Mrs. S. Homan dedicated the offering.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. James Loughland, a member of the Dominion Board without portfolio and chairman of the Home Organization Committee, was the guest speaker and chose as her theme, "Going Forward Together". The first loyalty of the W. M. S. is to the church—a member must be informed, active, pray, give and remain steadfast. She would read the study book, book shelf, and missionary monthly. Several interesting posters depicted, "the church woman as a citizen," "the church in my community" and "our missionary staff". Yesterday there were 363 workers today in the midst of war there are 293 workers and in the coming 4 years 50 young people are needed for service. A living religion costs us something and proportionate giving is best.

She closed with the thought "Let us go forward together, always with our hand in the hand of God ever ready to serve where needed most.

The delegation were asked to keep the date November 14th to hear Dr. John R. Mott.

A trio from Foxboro Mission Band was well received.

Invited to Plainfield

Plainfield invited the 1945 Rally.

The nominating committee brought in two names for sectional vice president Mrs. Ralph Sills and Mrs. Percy MacMullen. This office will be filled at the Spring Presbyterial.

Mrs. Harry Harrison paid tribute to Mrs. Macklin's efficient leadership for the past five years and she was applauded for her years of service.

Mrs. MacMullen presented the courtesy report thanking those who had made the convention a success.

Mrs. Macklin was nominated as literature secretary of the section to work in conjunction with Presbyterial literature secretary.

The Rally closed with the National Anthem and Mrs. Spafford offered prayer.

We cannot hear the roar of Canadian guns—we cannot smell the acrid fumes—we cannot feel the earth shake beneath our feet.

But our guns and our gunners are over there—every day and every night blasting the path to Berlin.

We at home cannot fire the guns—but we can feed them—we must feed them. Not with hundreds—or with thousands—but with millions of shells.

Our duty at home is two-fold—to make more shells—to loan more money to pay for them.

For urgent war needs, our country must borrow from its citizens a greater total than last year. Our duty is clear. No matter how many bonds we bought in the Sixth Loan, we must buy at least one more than before when the call comes again.

Fort Erie Wins Int. O.A.S.A. Title Defeating Sacos 8 to 0 In Sudden Death Game at Toronto

"Heeb" Lake Scatters Four Hits and Fans Nine of the Marines

WARDAUGH STARS

(By E. H. P.)

Well, it's all over! Fort Erie is in, and the local SACO "Marines" are out of the Intermediate O. A. S. A. playdowns.

Scattering four hits over the nine inning route, "Heeb" Lake, tall right hander from the "border town", who was bested by Jim Hunter here in Belleville on Monday, proved himself too much for the locals in their third and deciding game played Thursday at Kew Beach in Toronto and shutting the Marines out saw his teammates pound out a decisive 8-0 victory over Belleville.

Displaying an offensive power, which caught the locals off guard and which definitely had not been shown in their two previous games, the Fort Erie nine early went to work on Hunter's offerings in Toronto and before the dust had settled in the fourth inning had chalked up a three-run lead. Five safeties, including two homers, added 4 more in the sixth and then it was all over but the shouting.

Hunter tried hard but the 'Forts' had their bats timed perfectly to slash safeties through the local infield and over the heads of the outfielders to count an even dozen hits, while the best the locals could do off the offerings of Lake was four bingles, none of them coming in the same inning. Impressive in the pinches, Lake fanned nine, while he walked three. Hunter walked but 1, but failed to get a single Forter on strikes.

Belleville Won Toss

The locals started off rather suspiciously and after winning the toss for choice of innings got men on base in all first three innings. They almost scored in the second as Loft walked and was sacrificed to second by Whitehead. Wardhaugh then stepped to the plate and slashed a single over the first sacker's head but Loft was nailed at the plate as he tried for home. That was the only real chance the Marines had of avoiding a shutout, Murney Green's single in the seventh and a walk to Barriage in the sixth being the only other occasions the locals got runners aboard.

Errors helped to mount the score against the Marines with Phil Loft missing two rather easy outs in centre field. It was definitely not Phil's day as in the fourth he hit into a double play and after his second miscue came in the sixth asked to be replaced. Wood then went to centre.

Winners in Front in Third

The "Forters" went in front in the third as Morris was safe on Loft's error and went to third before the ball was returned. Lake promptly drove him home with a single, but after N. Sills fouled out, Barnhart hit into a fast double play to end the inning.

They got two more in the fourth as Tartaglia and J. Sills hit in succession, both later scoring on infield outs as following batters hit high bounding balls to the infield. The real damage was done in the sixth, however, as J. Sills was safe on an error only to be driven home by Reid's homer. Valvo doubled and Morris conked another round tripper. The last run of the game came in the seventh as Tartaglia and Sills hit in succession with the former scoring after a fly to right.

On the day's play the Fort Erie nine plainly deserved their win. They fielded faultlessly and were strong on the offensive. Star of the game from defensive point of view, however, was the playing of Wardhaugh at third for the Marines. Jack scooped up everything in sight for a total of thirteen chances without a single slip, winning the plaudits from a fair crowd of unbiased spectators.

Judge G. E. DeRoche, former judge for Hastings County, but now [illegible] in Toronto, was a spectator at the game, offering moral support for the Marines.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Dave Castilloux, king of Canadian lightweights and welterweights, will get a chance to even the score against Mexico's Joey Peralta in a bout at Montreal Oct 19, it was announced there yesterday. It will be a 12-round affair, with the weight set at 136 pounds . Last Friday Castilloux lost a disputed 10-round decision to Peralta at Toronto.

The annual meeting of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada will be held in Montreal Nov. 18, it was announced yesterday. The Canadian roller, figure and dance championships will be decided at the convention.

Fort Erie will meet Sault Ste. Marie, northern Ontario Intermediate "A" softball champions, in the Provincial finals after eliminating Belleville 8-0 at Toronto yesterday in the rubber game of a best-of-three semi-final.

One of the foremost athletes developed at Brantford, Flt. Sgt. Kennety (Ebby) Edmison of the R.C.A.F. has been reported missing. He played hockey, softball and baseball, winning the Intercounty Baseball Association batting average trophy, the Holle cup, at one time. He also played one season in Oshawa in hockey and baseball.

Officials of the St. Catharines Athletics lacrosse club said last night a meeting will be held tonight to discuss the playing of the fourth game of the best-of-five series for the Canadian lacrosse championship with New Westminster Salmonbellies. The game has been scheduled to be played at Maple Leaf Gardens here Saturday night. St. Catharines at present lead two games to one in the series. Meanwhile, E. E. Barnes, President of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, now in Toronto said a meeting of C.L.A. executives will be held here this morning to "iron out" differences in connection with the series.

Pete Leswick, speedy rightwinger of the Seattle Ironmen of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, has signed a contract with Boston Bruins of the N.H.L. and is en route east to join the club, the Ironmen management announced last night. Leswick broke into pro hockey with the Seattle team of the old northwest hockey league several years ago.

Mickey Ion, former National Hockey League referee, has arrived in Brantford from Seattle, Wash., to visit his 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Bridget Ion, who is ailing in health. Ion is employed in a Seattle war plant.

FRANKIE STUKUS PLAYING GREAT BALL FOR BEACHES

May Become the Most Famous of Three Who Played Rugby

WEEKEND SCHEDULE

(By The Canadian Press.)

For the last 10 years the name Stukus has been almost synonymous with football in eastern Canada. First of the three brothers to attain gridiron fame was Annis who entered senior ranks with Toronto Argonauts in 1935. Brother Bill followed him in 1936 and then in 1938 chunky brother Frank took a whirl at the game.

But through the years it was Annis and Bill who held the spotlight. Until the 1940 season they shared the quarterbacking duties with Argos. Annis won fame as one of the leading scorers in the Interprovincial Football Union. Bill was an ace forward-passer. Frank, a sturdy and hard-hitting halfback, was overshadowed by his illustrious brothers.

This year looked as if it might be the one for the 26-year-old Frank to finally come to the fore. Bill, now 28, was a flying officer overseas with the R.C.A.F. The 30-year-old Annis was a leading seaman in the Royal Canadian Navy and is playing football with the navy entry in the Ontario armed services league. Frank remained with Balmy Beach, taking over the quarterback job vacated by Annis.

But Annis continues to get the press notices and the headlines for the family. Last Saturday Annis threw two touchdow passes to lead Navy to a win over St. Thomas R.C.A.F. and there was no lack of public acclaim. Frank did the same for Balmy Beach against Indians and no one paid any attention.

In Action Saturday.

The brothers go into action tomorrow on widely-separated fronts. Annis will be calling plays and pitching passes against the Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers at Hamilton and Frank will be doing likewise for the Beaches at Ottawa.

The Navy faces a tough assignment in Hamilton. The Sailors squeezed out a 12-10 victory only in the dying minutes of their first meeting and the Bombers since have acquired the services of FO. Art Stollery, a slick forward-passing quarterback.

A win for Navy would give them a stranglehold on first place in the services league standing with four wins and no losses. But a win for Bombers would put the two teams in a tie for first place.

Beaches have won both their starts in the Ontario Rugby Football Union this season but on both occasions their opponents were the weak Toronto Indians.

Hamilton Wildcats are expected to stretch their string of victories to four straight in their meeting with the Indians in Toronto in the other O.R.F.U. tussle. Joe Krol and his mates simply pack too much power for the plucky Toronto team which has suffered four straight defeats.

The Air Force field at Camp Borden will be the scene of the fourth game in tomorrow's football program with Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes who defeated St. Thomas 33-0 in their first meeting, are heavy favorites.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Oct. 13 — (AP)—Three games of the Little World Series at Baltimore drew 96,832 cash customers—52,833 Monday night ... This probably explains why Baltimore figures so importantly in post-war sports plans.. . . three or four rival groups want to put pro football teams into the Maryland city. There's talk of rebuilding the burned Orioles' ball park on a major league scale and latest indications are that Baltimore's hockey promoters have big league ideas.

Backing Eddie Shore and the Jacobs Brothers in the new amateur ice club are James J. Lacy, who also is interested in one of the football leagues; Jake Slagle, the old Princeton footballer; and some of the baseball Orioles' officials . . . Their idea apparently is to have things ready when a new indoor arena is built after the war . . . It should be quite a town if the customers remain there.

Sportspourri:

Juan Amador, 80-year-old reporter from Panama who covered his 12th world series this year, spent his spare time trying to convince major leaguers that some club should train in Panama after the war . . . Amador reported it isn't unusual for Panamanian fans to watch a ball game in one league during the morning, see a doubleheader in another in the afternoon and attend a boxing match at night. The ones who skip the doubleheader usually visit the race tracks.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach Hap Day has a house full of talent at the Maple Leaf training camp in Owen Sound, Ont., but he's faced with the same problem that greeted him at the start of last season—the goalie situation. So far Leo Sargent of St. Catharines, Ont., Frank McCool of Calgary and Pat Boehmer of Kitchener, Ont., have been working in relays between the posts.

Walter (Babe) Pratt, first Hart trophy winner in the history of the Leafs, noticed the Chin brothers, Chinese boys from Lucknow, Ont., whiz down the ice: Quoth he: "They look like Chu, Chin and Chow" Bill Chin is 17, Albert, 16, and George, 15.

Benny Grant, gasoline salesman at Owen Cound, who took a turn in the Toronto nets last season, visited this year's Leaf camp. Reason he didn't make good, he said, was because "I worked so hard in training at St Catharines I was all worn out by the time the season opened."

Lester Patrick once again has his New York Rangers whirling around the Osborne Street ring in Winnipeg The Silver Fox, whose charges last season ended in the cellar, let it be known he's banking heavily on six stylists from the American League to place Rangers in the Stanley Cup play-offs The six are: Fred Thurier, Fred Hunt and Walter Atanas, all from the champion Buffalo Bisons; Harold Cooper, Providence; Gaston Gauthier, Hershey, and Alex Riston from Indianapolis.

Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins didn't take any chances on Friday the 13th spoiling their start. Les Canadiens opened camp at Montreal on the 12th. Art Ross starts his workouts in Quebec on the 14th.

TWO-FISTED BOXER

When Promoter Bill Crawford signed Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, the pride of Oshawa's mitt-swinging contingent, to invade the Hume Arena tonight, no mistakes were made as to the drawing powers. However, the two-fisted Wheeler may find more trouble than he bargained for when he climbs between the hemp to meet "Jumping Jerry" Downes, Belleville's strongest featherweight scrapper tonight. Nine bouts are listed on this popular boxing card program with the main bout bringing together "Jibber" Ellis of Toronto and Belleville's own Ted Stephens.

(Definitions)

Mason-Dixion Line: The division between "you-all" and youse guys."

Hick Town: One from which Mrs. Roosevelt's column hasn't been date lined.

Reformer: A character who uses your money to put over his ideas.

Platitude: Any statement that seems like a brilliant thought when spoken by a man with a mandate over the radio.

Normalcy: A period of time when the housewife packs only one lunch box and then crawls back in bed for a second snooze.

Faith: A matter of believing what we hope is true.

Curtains.

It was too much "Heeb" Lake for Max Peoples' SACO "Marines" at Kew Gardens in Toronto yesterday. The Fort Erie fire-ball hurler not only had the local "mushballers" handcuffed at the plate, but let the "Marines" down with four scattered hits, not one of which so much as came near the resemblance of the extra base nature. Lake was in top form, he didn't even allow more than one hit in any one frame, and you just can't score runs unless hits come in bunches, like grapes for instance. While "Heeb" was tying up the Marines, the Fort Erie nine conked out an even dozen hits from the deliveries of Jim Hunter, two of which were of the circuit blow variety. Now it's Fort Erie and Saulte St. Marie for the Intermediate O. A. S. A. championship, that could well have been played in Belleville had the Marines played heads-up ball in the initial game in Fort Erie. However, that's softball and at least Belleville was knocking at the door for two provincial championships in 1944.

Irish Win Again.

Last season Coach Jack Doran's St. Mikes "Irish" won both the Junior and Senior COSSA. Interscholastic football crowns. Yesterday Skipper Doran's senior St. Mikes sextette started off on the right foot to at least give them a head start towards a 1944 senior title when they beat Albert College 28-22 in the season's opener. However, the Irish found much stiffer opposition in Coach Pepper's Alberts of 1944, who in Kennie Lindsay, Harry Boyd and McCullough have a trio of pig skin carriers that will be dangerous before the season's curtain is rung down. Bob Wilson returned to the St. Mikes line-up, after a year of retirement, and still is as fleet-footed as of yore. Skipper Doran has a seasoned backfield in Wilson, Moher and Fitzpatrick, but yesterday the Irish power was on the ground and with the front line holding in the clutches. However, there's more to be said about the return to conventional Interscholastic football that is on the upbeat.

Several Named.

In the recent sports pool, conducted locally to select a representative to the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club banquet, A. R. "Toots" Holway finally made the trip and met some of his old N. H. L. cronies. Others to receive more than one vote from local sport lovers were Rance Bush and Murney Green. (The latter must have a lot of sport admirers outside of Point Anne.) Too late for the poll came an air mail letter from S/Sergt. Norman Shaddock, who is stationed with the 13th detachment, C. M. S. C., C. A. at Calgary. Norm is an old Belleville boy, who has been absent from our city for five years. He hastened his selection eastward by air mail and nominated W. J. "Peeny" Mills. No doubt Norm recalls the old days of the C. O. B. L. when baseball and Peeny Mills were synonymous in this area.

Remember When.

Harry Wills, who was never able to get champion Jack Dempsey in the same ring with him, took a terrific beating from Jack Sharkey before losing on a foul in the 13th round. The fight was staged at New York 18 years ago tonight and the negro was disquaified for the use of the backhand blow.

More Boxing.

Leather-pushers from various parts of Eastern Ontario are slated to entertain the fight fans at the Hume Arena tonight. If the show is even nearly as good as the initial Reliance boxing program the fans will be well rewarded for their attendance. The feature go sees "Jibber" Ellis, now of Toronto, meeting Belleville's Ted Stephens in the feature role. Doug Day, a local mitt-slinger, bit off a tough chunk in Davey Thompson of Peterboro' as did Jerry Downes when he agreed to fight Howard "Little Dempsey" Wheeler. All-in-all there are nine bouts on the card to make a good evening of boxing.

Cards Moving Up.

Winning their eighth championship, the St. Louis Cardinals now are only one behind the Chicago Cubs, who rank second in grabbing National League pennants since 1901. The Giants have won the title 13 times, while Pittsburgh annexed the crown six times, Cincinnati and Brooklyn three each, and Boston and Philadelphia once each. The league's pennant standings follow:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
New York	13	31	.283
Chicago	9	35	.205
St. Louis	8	36	.182
Pittsburgh	6	38	.136

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 594

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Most bridge experts go through an age of chiselry. Success gives them a false sense of their own cleverness. So they go through an era of pulling fast ones on opponents and partners.

For instance, there was the opening of one no trump with a long minor suit. The idea was to end at three no trump. Then if you get a lucky lead, you may take enough tricks in your minor for a no trump game.

Also there was and still is the interference three bid. That is where you start with an opening of three in a suit with a bust hand. All you have is a suit with six or more worthless cards in it.

The idea was to start the bidding so high, opponents get no chance to exchange information easily. Or if opponents double, you hope the loss will not be more than they could have made at their bids.

If you are defeated, you call it a justifiable sacrifice. If you scare the opponents out of getting together, you call it a heroic effort. If you fool your partner, you call him anything.

Bids like that are swell fun. They sometimes work to your gain. But it is not good bridge as a diet. It certainly is not winning bridge. In the long run, it loses more than it gains against good competition.

So, if horsing around with your bids is your idea of bridge fun, go to it. We all do more or less of it. But a bid is the proper part of any system only if its advantages offset its disadvantages.

You are the dealer with this hand:

♠6 2
♥Q J 9 8 6 4 2
♣9 5

You have not enough for a one opening. Nor have you enough for an opening of three hearts. It is a pass. To start an opening of three hearts with that hand is folly.

Use bids for constructive, not destructive purposes.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 12—(CP)—It's always nice to dream, but it would be something if the war brings a return to the old days when the Punkin centre team was made up of Punkin centre players. That is, it woud be nice for local pride, but the fans wouldn't like it so well because the brand of sport wouldn't be as good.

Hope that the old amateur intermediate teams would reappear when things got straightened around after the war was expressed by Maj. Harry Beaumont, sports officer of the Canadian Army. With Senior sport kayoed by the war in many centres, the Major thinks people will appreciate what it means to "localize" sports and give the young players a chance.

He has something there, but it all comes down to the fine point of human nature. Most people, after being exposed to top-notch sport as provided by the lush, expensive teams of imports, simply refuse to support any hometown team of hometown boys who have plenty of spirit but just lack the glamor.

It's always nice to dream, anyway.

He Gets Around:

R. C. M. P. Constable Reg Brooker, who did considerable umping for the Ontario Baseball Association this summer, thinks somebody must have relented and decided to love an umpire. When collecting his fees the other day he discovered three cheques were awaiting him, in the aliases of Burner and Barker as well as his legitimate handle.

Miscellany:

It was a successful year for racing in Quebec too—very successful. The Ottawa Journal reports that the bettors slipped more than $2,000,000 into the parimutuels on Quebec Racing Association tracks this season—the best is years. Connaught Park, Ottawa, led the parade with $576,000 . . . In an effort to rejuvenate lacrosse and get up interest, officials of the Canadian Lacrosse Association plan to put on a drive in the Maritimes. The game has never caught on down there, and in fact it's probable only one person in 10 has even seen a contest . . . The new sports officer for Military District No. 1, with headquarters in London, Ont., is none other than Bert Steel, former sport columnist with the Galt Reporter . . .

Incidentally:

The Canadian Lacrosse Associaion is reported to have earned $4,-00 in the first three games of the ann Cup finals at Maple Leaf ardens. However, it cost $6,000 to ut on the show, so the profits have ot showed up yet . . . Harry (Calry Albertan) Scott is unkind ough to intimate the reason the roposed fight between Johnny reco and Dave Castilloux was called off wasn't because Greco is too eavy, as the Montreal Boxing and Vrestling Commission said. Harry ays Castilloux might beat Greco nd spoil the latter's proposed gravy ide on the New York greenback pecial . . . Ducks Unlimited plans o spend more than $2,000,000 in Western Canada during the next 10 ears to improve duck breeding rojects. St. Mikes Open Season With Win Over Albert College Difference Being Yards Gained on Ground

SCORE IS 28-22

Starting off exactly where they terminated the 1943 season as champions, Coach Jack Doran's St. Michael's Interscholastic gridders drove through on the ground for a 28 to 22 win over Albert College in the opening game of the senior Bay of Quinte six-man football series. The score by periods stood at 5 to 10, 16 to 10, 22 to 16 and finally wound up at 28-22 for the Irish.

Coach Pepper's Albert College sextette held the "Irish" in their proverbial tracks as the game opened following which Kennie Lindsay booted over St. Mikes' goal line for what might have been a single point but no yards were given and on a return play Lindsay pitched far to McCullough, who raced free and easy over for a 23 yard touchdown putting Albert up 5 to 0 as the convert counted for nil. Moving on the ground Bob and George Wilson combined for a substantial gain of ground for St. Mikes to place the pigskin in position for Dick Fitzpatrick to pitch a perfect pass into the waiting arms of Jerry Moher, who gathered in the oval and romped home to tie the score, no conversion.

Again Lindsay's good boot moved Albert into a scoring position as he punted over the Irish line with Wilson returning out to his own 11, from where Harry Boyd crashed over on a second play to put Albert ahead 10 to 5 at the end of the initial frame.

Start Ground Offensive

Early in the second quarter the Irish started a ground offensive that netted them substantial yards as Bob Wilson and Jerry Moher moved the yard sticks to Albert's 18 from where Fitzpatrick pitched to Whalen, who was downed on Albert's 4. Moher then cracked the centre of the line for a touchdown that was converted and the Irish moved to the front, from where they were never headed. Before the mid-time gong Whalen intercepted an Albert forward pass and ran it back 16 yards where Bob Wilson raced around left end for a 21-yard touchdown as the half ended 16 to 10 for St. Mikes.

Early in the second half Kennie Lindsay fired a long and perfect pass into the out-stretched hands of Harry Boyd who romped home and as Albert converted and the score became all even once again. Driving on the ground again the Irish marched through to a scoring position and Gord Donovan lugged the oval across for a major score that Fitzpatrick converted and the Irish moved up 22-16 just before the 3-quarter whistle.

Albert Rallies

Doug Green, the Wilson boys and Donovan combined to give Coach Doran's Irish their fifth touchdown, that Moher and Fitzpatrick converted and now the Irish led 28-16. Rallying strongly in the final minutes of play Coach Pepper's Albert College kids raced and ran over the Irish before Kennie Lindsay again pitched, but perfect, into the waiting arms of Harry Boyd, who lugged the oval over the Irish line for a major score bringing the count to 28-21. In desperation and with moments left to play Albert again worked the ball into St. Mikes' territory, but the Irish held strongly, forcing Lindsay to punt for a single point as the game ended 28 to 21 for St. Mikes.

Harry Boyd, with three touchdowns, pitched by Kennie Lindsay, lead the scorers of the game, with Jerry Moher gathering in ten points to pace the 1943 champions on offensive. The punting duel between Fitzpatrick and Lindsay saw the latter gain yardage, but the Irish power on the ground took its toll and gained the victory.

The line-ups—Albert College — centre, Christie; ends, McCullough and MacDonald; quarter, Lindsay; halves, Avdichuck and Boyd; subs, Hayman, McIntosh, Shields and Healy. St. Michael's Academy — centre, Whalen; ends, Green and G. Wilson; quarter, Fitzpatrick; halves Bob Wilson and Moher; subs, McAuley, Duffy, Lucy and Donovan.

Referee: "Red" Townsend.

LONDON MAJORS EVEN THE SERIES

London, Ont., Oct. 13 —(CP)— Falling on Bill Buntrock's slants for a total of 10 hits, seven of them in the first two innings, London Majors evened their best-in-five Senior "A" series with Welland Atlas Steels here last night by outscoring the visitors 4-1. The series for the "real championship" of Ontario, now stands at two games each and the fifth and deciding engagement is scheduled to take place here Saturday night.

About 1,500 braved the chilly weather to witness the game.

The Majors—unlimbering their heavy artillery for the first time in the series—hammered Buntrock hard in the first two frames. But from the third stanza on, the Welland right hander had things pretty well under control. The Majors were completey handcuffed in the third, fourth and fifth heats, but added a hit in the sixth and a pair in the eighth. However, they were kept off the score sheet after the first two innings.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper the telephone rang, being Mrs. Hews to ask ma if the Gils could meet at our house instead of her house tomorrow afternoon on account of some reason.

The Gils standing for Give Lifts to Servicemen and being ma and 5 other ladies with private uniforms, and ma said yes certainly and started to keep on doing the bridge problem, and I said, Aw G, ma, heck, good night, tomorrow afternoon it's my turn to have a private meeting of the Yops.

The Yops meaning The Young Patriots and being me and Puds Simkins and Lucky Leroy Shooster, and ma said, When you speak of a meeting do you mean a peaceful gathering or an excuse to tear the house down?

Sure, ma, I mean no mam, I mean the chief reason for the meeting, and we're not even suppose to say it out loud, we're just suppose to write it down on account of walls having ears, I said, and ma said, Is that all that's going to transpire at the meeting?

Well, we're going to practice a few joo jitsoo holds, but we're not going to actually throw each other down, we're just going to let each other down easy, I said. If you think that sounds like too much noise we can practice on my bed, I said, and ma said, That would be just lovely for the bed for land sakes.

Well then how about if we take the mattress off the bed and put it on the floor and just practice on the mattress? I said, and ma said, That would be just lovely for the mattress, and pop said, My my, the prospect for a lasting world peace doesn't seem very bright if 2 small patriotic organizations cant meet successfully in the same house.

Now William, it's one thing for you to sit there with your fine abstract filosophy, but if you were ever home trying to commune with your thoughts or your book while those boys were holding one of their so-called private meetings, you'd soon see the other side of the picture, ma said.

The result being the Yops are going to meet in the empty lot.

CHAPTER 19

Ann was about to reassure him, when she changed her mind. "Why should I?" she asked herself.

Paul drew up before the toll box at the Holland Tunnel. A lengthy examination of his pockets revealed the sum total of thirty-five cents. "That new tire at White Plains just about cleaned me out of cash," he discovered unhappily. "I need fifteen cents more."

Ann rummaged in her handbag. "I've got change." The coins eluded her. "Eureka!" She fished forth two dimes. The attendant held out five cents in return. Rowdy reached her head toward his outstretched hand. The man in blue said something about muzzles, and compromised by tossing the nickel into Ann's lap.

There was a blurring rush of white tiled tunnel. Horns tooted behind them.

"What's their hurry?" Paul exploded righteously. "We're not allowed to go more than thirty-five in the tunnel."

"We're only going thirty," Ann remarked.

"That's all the old bus will make. There's something wrong with it."

Once out of the tunnel, a procession of angry drivers ostentiously passed them, their lips moving in silent denunciation of people who slowed down modern progress with out-of-date jallopies.

A glorified wagon with white-walled tires and a cargo of poodles passed them.

"There goes the Best in Show," Pau announced. "The black one. That's Rumplestiltskin. He went best in the garden."

Rumplestiltskin traveled in a special compartment by himself, and gazed, remote and aloof, at the passing world. Ann glanced down at Rowdy who was playing a game with a fly that had nestled on her nose. She'd peer with eager cross-eyed intent at the intruder, and then twitch her nostrils. Up would go the fly, only to buzz about and light once more on Rowdy's nse.

Several cars later, something in sixteen cylinders and grated sides drew up beside them.

"That's the Greylong outfit. That's a real set-up. Running water and a complete veterinarian room. The dog with the white star on her face," Paul pointed, "is Greylong's Astra of Heathcote. She'll go best in her group."

"What's the idea of a show anyway, Paul," Ann demanded, "when everybody knows all the winners in advance? Or is it just a social function?"

"Oh, there's always a chance of a better dog coming along, or an accident," Paul tossed off, with a casual clearing of his throat.

"And we're going along hoping for a first-rate catastrophe," Ann commented bitterly. "Paul, I'm getting cold feet. And so are you. You look green."

"Well, we are sort of on the spot," Paul confessed. "But we've got a good dog, and I've been in a spot before."

The good dog was busy at the moment scratching her ear and looking about as graceful as a camel coming to earth. Ann winced "Paul tell me the truth, has any dog ever been entered with a claim price as high as five thousand dollars?"

"No, but there's no reason why one shouldn't be." Paul's defiance was pathetically transparent. "There always has to be a first time," he rationalized, "and when you can't afford to take an advertisement you have to get publicity somehow."

"I know," Ann broke in. "We went all over that."

"You'll see. It'll work. We'll get some attention, anyway."

"Oh, definitely. If you were to announce that you were going to jump out of an airplane with a paper parasol in plac of a parachute several thousand people would be at hand—to see you break your neck," she finished ironically.

"That's the rough idea. Only in this case, see, Rowdy has a chance, a hundred to one chance."

Ann gave a sick smile. "I see. Personally, though, I'd prefer the jump from the plane, then I wouldn't hear them laughing afterwards.

"There's worse odds than a hundred to one. Where's your gambling instinct?"

"It looks like a thousand to one," Ann gasped as they drove into the expansive grounds of the Morris and Essex show. "Let's get into some out-of-the-way place where I can go to pieces in private."

"We go with the best of them," Paul insisted, and trailed the two hundred inch wheelbase of the Greylong kennel caravan into a line and parked brazenly beside it.

The Greylong chauffeur gave them a disdainful look, the kind of look that can brush dust off a sleeve. But Ann didn't notice. Her attention was on Rowdy, who, with all the excitement that surrounded her, had begun to look a little like a Great Dane.

Paul eyed her speculatively. "Some of them come alive at shows, some of them go dead," he remarked. "Mom says she probably wasn't right at the Sweepstakes because you weren't with her Well we'll see." He began to gather together bags and water-pails and a bundle of paraphernalia. "I'll go ahead. You give her a five minutes' walk and then come into the bench."

Ann followed him with her eyes. To her, Rowdy's defeat would mean nothing more than a personal chagrin, having to take an I-told-you-so from Christopher Wain. But to Paul—It was lucky that he didn't know what defeat would really mean to him: a Carol who might not be able to have her full chance in meeting life and love and happiness. It'll be kind of death for him, Ann thought.

She opened the car door, and Rowdy stepped to the ground. All of the graceless puppy mannerisms seemed to fall from her. She moved with a quality of calculated motion, as a bronze statue might move if it were suddenly to be endowed with life. A woman passing with a Scottie gave a screech, and yanked her dog up in her arms by the leash. "They should segregate the big breeds," she said with a scathing directness. But Rowdy merely gave a contemptuous glance at the wiggling Highland package, the disdain of a monarch for a lesser being.

A funny little fat man with his collar loosened under his tie, and a rumpled looking hat pushed back on his head, eyed Rowdy, and then accosted Ann.

"Are you Miss Rivers by any chance?" he asked.

"Yes," said Ann. "Why?"

"And this is the dog?"

"That's my dog. Why?"

The man was obviously not an answerer of questions. He turned and yelled, "Hey, Charlie! I've found her!"

Charlie was a diminutive gentleman laboring under a mountain of photographic equipment, and decorated like a christmas tree with plate holders and flash bulbs sticking out of pockets and hanging on straps. But Charlie was only the vanguard. There flocked in his trail four or five more perspiring photographers.

"Stand over here, please, Miss Rivers."

Over here had as its background Paul Freund's car. He guided her, willy-nilly, alongside the Greylong kennel equipage and then sidled her to a point where the lettering would be out of the picture.

"So this is the five thousand dollar pooch?" the little fat man asked conversationally as the camera gang told him roughly to get out of the picture.

Then one of the photographers barked the inevitable, "Cross your knees, lady it makes a better picture!"

"I'm not a contortionist," Ann flared. "And please—focus on the dog."

The little fat man grinned. "Sure they're interested in the dog. But—"

"I prefer not to be taken—" Ann began heatedly.

Ann looked up to see Christopher bearing down on her. He took her arm, and immediately there was another series of flashes from the cameras. His grip seemed to lift her along. As they rounded the end of the Greylong van she heard the fat man say to the photographers, "That's the shot! I know a story when I stumble over one! Be sure and get some pictures of the Brenda Wain dame. She's here today!"

If the words reached Christopher's ears, he was already too angry to take notice of them. "My stars, are you and Paul crazy?" he burst out when he had pulled her to a comparatively quiet corner. "I only just found out about it. Did you want to make prize jackasses out of yourselves, putting a five thousand dollar claim price on a dog like Rowdy?"

"Don't get so excited; Rowdy's not for sale," Ann explained. "But iff she were, I'd pay five thousand dollars for her—if I had the five thousand dollars. Anyway, it's the price that Paul and I agreed on."

Christopher's voicce was tearing its hair out. "Listen," he implored her hoarsely. "Get this through your head. A thing is worth what its worth, and what people will pay for it. No American bred Dane was ever worth five thousand! It's the tops for the Seiger winners, Helga von Hohnloch, the last German import, is here today, and she only cost eighteen hundred, and there isn't a better Dane in the world."

"I resent that," Ann said coldly. "You say a thing is worth what it's worth. All right, so I say to you—Rowdy is worth five thousand dollars to me, and that makes her worth five thousand dollars."

"You've already made yourself the laughing stock of the show and what's more, Paul has about laughed himself out of the dog business," Christopher exploded.

"Stop shouting, please," Ann demurred. "Can't you see you're making a spectacle of yourself?"

"I'm making a spectacle of myself!" Christopher's voice cracked with exasperation. He looked up to see a group of people who had gathered.

"That's the dog. That's the one, there's the five thousand dollar dog!"

"Come on—" he said. They started to run the gauntlet to the benches. But they ran without any co-operation from Rowdy, who walked with the slow dignity of a princess of the blood.

If she were the laughing stock of the show, no one had told her so. As they entered, a benched file of Dobermanns lashed themselves into spasms of barking, straining and clawing to the end of their tie chains. Rowdy slowed her progress, walking on high arched paws. A low rumble of disapproval at the rabble's outcry ruffled through her jowls. The Dobermanns fell quiet.

Ann thrilled with pride. This was a Rowdy armed with some inner sense of function and perfection. Ann was the last person to suffer the sentimental extravagance of reading human emotion and consciousness into an animal—indeed she had been faintly nauseated by a recent book written from a dog's point of view, verging perilously close to whimsy. But Rowdy was different.

She even knew what it was all about when she approached her own bench. She mounted to it with complete unconcern. It was an unconcern, however which Ann and Christopher could not share. Ann caught hold of Christopher's arm for support, both moral and physical. This was something of a shock. Each bench that they passed had been, to a greater or lesser extent, personalized by the individual dog's kennel signs; others, skirting the kennel club's rules against overt advertising, suggested that they had puppies for sale; and still others, according to the owner's purse and fancy, sported dog mattresses, army blankets or auto robes for their canine majesties to rest upon between trips to the judging rings. But Paul had outdone them all. Rowdy's bench was lined in purple silk, and purple silk covered her mattress. There was a buffet brass drinking bowl and above all this splendor, hung a wooden sign in gilt and black: Tru-Frend's Rowena of Broadfields.

"Quite a surprise, eh?" Paul came up to them with a self-conscious grin.

"Aren't we overdoing it a little?" Ann ventured unsteadily.

"Can't overdo it. We got to live up to the five thousand. And we're doing it. Pipe the procession."

It was true. The Dane exhibitors pretended that business called them to one end of the alley or the other, so that they might pass and gape.

"You ought to have your tail kicked," Christopher growled. I can forgive Ann, but you ought to have had more sense than to rig the dog out like this."

Paul bridled. "More sense, eh? Well, if anyone should drive up and ask you, this is the set-up my dad always used when he showed Rosalinda at the Garden. He always said, 'When you get a fine jewel you put it in a beautiful setting.' Well Rowdy's our jewel today."

"Swell," said Christopher tersely. "The only rub is, if you'll forgive the pun, that the jewel goes into the ring without the setting."

"Rowdy won't need any setting," Paul boasted. "She won't need any purple silk to take in with her; the judge will be hanging the purple winner's ribbons on her while the rest of the monkey meat stands around and just watches." He gestured about him to suggest that ninety-some of the best Danes of two continents were just so much "monkey meat."

Christopher stared at him. "Good grief!" he exclaimed. "I swear I think you're beginning to believe it. . . ."

"Are you, Paul?" Ann asked tremulously, when Christopher had left them for a moment to speak to Hans. "Beginning to believe all this about winning, I mean?"

The cocksure smile faded from Paul's face. "It's an act, sister, it's an act. We've stuck our necks out good and proper this time. I been looking through the catalogue while I was waiting for you. We've got competition that's brutal, I'm telling you! And there's something else I haven't told you yet. I guess Wain don't know it either; I just found it out, myself." He whipped out the book and ruffled through the pages, and pointed to an entry under SPECIALS.

"See that name," he demanded.

"Yes, I see it. Champion Konstantine von Urbach. Is that the one?"

"That's the one."

"Well, what about it? Is he so good?"

"Is he so good? He's tops, now that the Baron's dead. He's gone forty times Best of Breed, and he's a natural for today."

Ann shrugged. "Rowdy won't be meeting him, what's the difference? She'll not even win her class."

"That's not the point. You know who owns that dog?"

"It said who owns it in the catalogue. A Mr. Rentschler or something like that."

"Sure. Mr. Rentschler owned it up to three days ago. But the handler just told me Brenda Wain bought it for twenty-eight hundred dollars. The transfer hasn't gone through and that's why it isn't in her name."

"Oh," said Ann.

"This is no dog show," Paul averred disgustedly, "it's turned into a tea party for three."

"Tea party for five," Ann amended. "And," she murmured "don't let it be a funeral. . . ."

Christopher Wain stormed toward the far end of the Dane benches. His curt nod to fellow exhibitors cut short all casual civilities. Only Otto Pfeiffer, who had once worked for him but who now free-lanced as buying agent for imported stock, stepped forward and put his hand on Christopher's arm.

"Ach, Mr. Wain, this is the first time I saw you since the Baron djed! A great loss—" The old man's voice choked up with emotion. "I groomed him for his first show in this country, you remember?"

"I remember," Christopher responded.

"And now with the Baron gone, you turn dog business upside down, yah?"

Christopher halted. What was the fellow talking about? He had turned nothing upside down. It was those young idiots, Paul and Ann, who had been turning things upside down.

"Sure all of us had the wins pretty well figured," Otto pursued "We conceded you the open class, and we conceded you the Harlequins, and you have some real puppies up your sleeve, too. And then what do you do?"

"Well, what do I do?" Christopher demanded.

"You bring only one dog." Otto smiled and wagged his finger. "If I didn't know you was smart I would think you was dumb. Because what is she? Your last import? One of your own strain? No. It is Freund's breeding."

"Well, Gretel's a swell dog," Christopher asserted warmly.

"Yah! Yah! But is she that good?" Otto persisted.

"They don't come any better than Freund is breeding right now," Christopher told him. "And he needs a hand; he needs the rest of us to give him some support."

A light came over Otto's face. "By golly, you're the sportsman!"

"That's not it!' Christopher denied furiously. "I tell you I believe in the Rheingold bloodline." He managed to shake off the garrulous Otto, and hurried on to Hans, who was waiting for him at Gretel's bench.

"We havent so much time to get her in shape," Hans greeted him nervously, looking at his watch. "Say, Mr. Wain, look down at that end bench on the other side.."

Christopher glanced toward the bench at the far corner "Konstantine. Good dog," he acknowledged.

"Good dog, sure." Hans echoed Christopher's words but embellished them with, "The king is dead. The Baron is gone, und now the little fellows can come out from hiding."

"Well, why not? The place belongs to him: he's been forty times Best of Breed."

"Certainly, certainly," Hans agreed, with heavy irony. "Konstantine never beat the Baron, did he? They never showed him with the Baron after the first three times, did they? Und the puppies he gets? Ach! They have to tell you they're Great Danes!"

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 13 — (CP) — Industries were up moderately this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Other groups were lower. Turnover totalled 209,000 shares.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 13—(AP)—Stock market speculations continued to attract speculative and investment demand today although recent leaders had to struggle to maintain their balance.

Dealings, fairly active before mid-day, dwindled later and assorted early gainers backed down near the fourth hour.

Among favorites recording tops for 1944 were American Locomotive common and preferred, Lima Locomotive, Pressed Steel Car, Electric & Musical Industries, Telautograph and Douglas Aircraft. Ahead at intervals were U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Macy, Boeing and International Nickel. Canadian issues were generally strong. McIntyre gained ¾, Dome and Lake Shore ¼ and C.P.R. ⅛. Walkers lost ½.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Grade A, dressed, delivered, Hamilton and London $17.50; Hull $17.60; Stratford, to truckers $17.55-$17.65, no quotations to Farmers.

A former army camp at "St. Hyacinthe," Quebec, has been transformed by the Royal Canadian Navy into one of the largest naval signal schools in existence. Here ratings, Wrens and officers are thoroughly trained in the latest technique and procedure of visual signals, radio, telephony, wireless telegraphy, radar, direction, finding, coding and decoding messages, teletype operating and a variety of related subjects. From the few dozen ratings that received their training in signals in cramped quarters on the second floor of a dockyard building at Halifax, the signal school, now commissioned as "H.M.C.S. St. Hyacinthe" has grown to an establishment accommodating 3,200 officers, instructors and students.

The order to fall in for division has been given and the troops pour onto the parade ground with a spectacular rush.

RUSSIANS CLAMP IRON RING AROUND BELGRADE
GERMAN PRESSURE ON CANADIANS INCREASES

Riga, Last City Held By Nazis in Baltic Republics, Taken Powerful Armies Released For Thrust Against Prussia

London, Oct. 14 — (CP) — Soviet troops have advanced south and west of Subotica and are clamping an iron ring around Belgrade, to the southeast, a Yugoslav communique said today.

Marshal Tito's Partisans are advancing on Skoplje, a rail centre in the south, the communique said.

The Peoples Liberation Army captured Kacanik, 20 miles northwest of Skoplje and pushed on, with the Germans moving northeastward toward Kumanova. Meantime, other Tito troops took Vranje, 44 miles northeast of Skoplje, driving the Germans toward Bujanovac, 21 miles north of Kumanova.

The capture of Smederevo, 25 miles southeast of Belgrade by Russian troops, and several other towns in the area was announced.

By EDDY GILMORE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Oct. 14 —(AP)— Two powerful Red armies were released today for a thrust southward against East Prussia by fall of Riga, Latvian capital and last city held by the Germans in the Baltic Republics.

Capture of the Baltic port was announced last night by Marshal Stalin. A city of 385,000, it fell to the troops of Gen. Andrei Yerenenko's 2nd Baltic Army and those of Gen. Ivan Caslennikov's 3rd Baltic Army.

Several distinguished visitors to Moscow heard the victory salute of 24 salvoes from 324 of the capital's guns—Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain; Field Marshal Sir Alan Francis Brooks, Chief of the British Imperial Staff, and Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in London.

Massed Tank Assaults.

(Although the Russian communique said nothing of a direct attack on German soil in East Prussia, Berlin reported massed Soviet tank assaults on the East Prussian garrison at the port of Memel and a large-scale Red army attack across the Narew river in northern Poland on the lower side of East Prussia.)

While the Riga battle was in progress, the Germans attempted an amphibious blow at Palanga, on the Baltic coast in western Lithuania 14 miles north of Memel, but the Russian communique said Red army planes and artillerymen sank four of 24 barges in which the enemy approached. The communique said hundreds of Germans were killed or drowned.

This appeared to be a German attempt to relieve between 10 and 15 Nazi division cut off in Western Latvia last Tuesday when the Russians drove a wedge to the sea just north o. Memel.

Third Way Across.

Meanwhile in Yugoslavia Marshal Rodion Y. Malnovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army was almost a third of the way across that country in a drive south of Belgrade toward the Adriatic. Meduluxje, 28 miles south of Belgrade, was captured.

(A communique from Marshal Tito said his partisan forces, now linked with the Russians, had "penetrated to the walls" of Belgrade).

Fifty localities were captured in Transylvania by Russian forces which crossed the Carpathian mountains from Romanian Moldavia. Among them was Bistrita, 30 miles from the Transylvanian border.

By last report the Russians in Hungary were less than 50 miles from Budapest, the capital.

Victory Loan Goal In Belleville Div. C.N.R., $283,000

Vice President Pringle and Other C.N.R. Officials Visit Belleville

J. P. Pringle, Vice-President and General Manager of the Canadian National Railways, accompanied by R. E. Johnston, general superintendent of the Southern Ontario District, was present at a meeting arranged for Fri. afternoon in the city by O. W. Duff, Superintendent of the Belleville Division, as convener, called for the purpose of planning in this Division for the forthcoming Victory Loan. Mr. R. J. Holmes, Central Region of the C.N.R., liaison officer of the War Finance Committee, also addressed the gathering.

The Vice-President announced that the objective of the campaign was to raise $5,500,000 for the Central Region from the Maritimes boundary to the head of the Great Lakes. This will be a new high goal.

Mr. Johnston said the objective of the Belleville division was $283,000, another new goal.

Mr. O. W. Duff announced that a meeting in the Belleville Division for all employees and their wives here on Monday night when an interesting program will be presented. There will be special speakers including returned men.

Friday afternoon's meeting was primarily an organization meeting for the canvassers to talk over the various methods to be used in the campaign.

FORMOSA RAIDS CUT OFF JAPANESE IN PHILIPPINES

Sixty-Three Ships Sunk or Damaged And 396 Planes Are Wiped Out in Attacks

RIP RAIL SYSTEM

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 14 — (AP) — Japan's army of 150,000 in the Philippines, harassed by guerillas, was believed cut off from its main source of reinforcement at bomb-ravaged Formosa which B-29s blasted today after two days of carrier plane attacks.

Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent, said that view was taken here of official reports showing upwards of 1,000 U. S. carrier aircraft sank or damaged 63 ships, wiped out 396 planes and ripped Formosa's railway system in giant raids Wednesday and Thursday within 100 miles of the China coast.

Tokyo radio, while telling Japan of the raids, claimed six carriers and four warships were sunk but Admiral Nimitz said last night the Japanese air force failed to damage the fleet units in their Wednesday night torpedo and bombing attack.

Pearl Harbor correspondents were permitted to speculate that the marauding carrier forces, which in four days accounted for 140 ships, 87 smaller craft and from 525 to 530 planes at Formosa, the Ryukyus and the Philippines, still may be in action against Japan's inner defence arc.

The newly-announced raid of Superfortresses on Formosa substantiated Tokyo radio's expressed fears that the base was in for attack by land and sea.

Open for Invasion

The Philippines, by many signs, appeared wide open for invasion.

Not a Japanese plane took to the skies from Manila's many airdromes Tuesday to oppose carrier planes which erased 10 to 15 grounded enemy aircraft on Luzon, the navy disclosed last night.

Tokyo radio, quoting naval and diplomatic officials, told the Japanese that "American guerillas" are disrupting communications in the Philippines and that fuel and commodity shortages have arisen due to shipping difficulties.

Of the hundreds of American planes which swept over Formosa, 45 were shot down, Nimitz said, indicating surprisingly thin air protection for such a formidable base. The raiders erased 174 planes on the ground and bagged 221 in sky fights.

In the southern Palaus, where 12 invaded islands form one base for invasion of the Philippines 515 miles to the west, Nimitz announced the end of all organized Japanese resistance less than a month after the invasion opened Sept. 15. Enemy remnants still remain on Peleliu and Angaur.

Royal 22nd Regiment of Montreal Fights Battle That Was "Butchery"

By BILL BOSS
(C.P. War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Oct. 14 (CP) — "It was butchery," said the Royal 22nd. Regiment after the battle of San Fortunato Bridge, key to the plains of Lombardy.

"Dead and wounded Germans filled every trench and dug-out, and prisoners taken were something terrific."

The battle was characteristic of the dash and vitality of the regiment's Three Rivers colonel. The "Van Doo" attack maintained its momentum until the objective was made secure, and the enemy either dead, prisoners or fleeing.

Boldness and speed the evening before had swept the battalion to objectives just short of the southwest crest of the ridge. Beside it was a Maritime battalion, and farther to its right, holding a similar position, short of the southeast crest, was the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Picton, Ont.

They were ready to push in on the Germans in the morning, and other battalions were already behind the position to receive the Germans who could only fall back into their hands when that attack was launched.

It had been a long, steep climb for the Royal 22nd. The rise was a foot in every hour, and the distance was roughly 1,200 yards.

Heavy shelling came as the assault began. But they didn't stop. Platoon commanders such as Lieut. J. B. Pelletier, Ottawa, and Lieut. P. P. E. LaRochelle, Three Rivers, Que., led their men at the double ahead of the enemy's steadily advancing shells.

Between the beginning of the attack and the companies' arrival on their objective an hour later, LaRochell's men cleared three houses, took 40 prisoners and cleared an area of snipers. Pelletier, who had run almost a mile just before the attack went in, brought up tanks to support it, and almost exhausted, led his men to their goal. He reached it first. On the way he took time out to drag 25 Germans, literally by the scruff of their necks, from dugouts and trenches.

Though on the hilltop in 60 minutes, the regiment was not entirely on the dominating feature. This was the Chateau Belvedere, a large castle in the midst of a thick wood, strongly held. This took sharp fighting before it finally fell.

FANATICAL NAZI DEFENCE MADE ON ITALIAN FRONT

Determined to Defend the Po Valley at All Costs

HEAVY RAIDS

By LYNN HEINZERLING
(AP War Correspondent)

Rome, Oct. 14 —(AP)— Allied troops supported by low-flying fighters and fighter-bombers hammered out small gains in furious fighting yesterday against a fanatical German defence of the Po Valley.

Headquarters announced that Allied 5th Army troops seized some new hills in the central sector south of Bologna, while British 8th Army forces to the east pushed the Germans back along the entire battle line except in the Adriatic coastal sector.

Canadian troops reached the Scolo Rigossa canal in the area adjacent to the highway, headquarters said. They pushed back strong enemy rearguards and reached a point within 17 miles of Forli.

Eighth Army troops also captured Casale, about two miles southwest of Montiano, the Allied communique said.

At the same time it was disclosed that another contingent of Brazilian troops had arrived in the battle zone.

Fight Way Up Hill.

American troops fought their way up Hill 462, about nine miles southwest of Castel San Pietro, on the Bologna-Rimini highway. farther west, Poggioli, about half a mile north of Monterenzio, was taken.

Along Highway 65—main road north to Bologna from Florence—there was intense fighting as American units seized some high ground east of the road. The Germans fanatically defended a hill north of Livergnano.

West of the highway American units pushed forward about two miles and captured Monte Bombiana.

Strong forces of escorted bombers yesterday struck at railway yards in Italy, Austria and Hungary and a synthetic oil refinery in Germany.

As the M.A.A.F. stepped up its day's activities to 2,500 sorties, 36 heavy bombers and 12 other aircraft were lost. Two enemy craft were shot down.

MACKENZIE HEADS NEW DEPARTMENT OF PENSIONS

Howe Named to Post of Reconstruction, Claxton to Health and Welfare

COAL COMMISSION

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Oct. 14 (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night announced a cabinet expansion and reorganization designed to meet post-war needs.

Under this plan Munitions Minister Howe takes over the new post of reconstruction minister while still retaining his present portfolio. Pensions Minister Mackenzie heads the newly created Pensions Department and Hon. Brooke Claxton, Liberal member for the Montreal constituency of St. Lawrence-St. George, becomes Canada's first Minister of Health and Welfare Mr. Claxton has been parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister.

As part of the reconstruction program Dean C. J. Mackenzie, acting President of the National Research Council, has been confirmed as head of that body and the resignation of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton accepted. The council will in future be under the reconstruction department instead of the trade department.

Royal Commission on Coal Industry.

The appointments were announced by Mr. King at a hurriedly-called press conference held in his office in the east block. A short time before the ministers had gone to Government House to take their oaths of office. Mr. Claxton and Mr. Mackenzie were with the Prime Minister.

Mr. King said the action the government had taken was in accordance with the general post-war policy laid down in the Throne speech at the last session of Parliament.

Maximum Employment

The domestic objective in this regard was maximum employment, maximum production and social security after the war.

"Post-war planning falls naturally into three broad divisions — preparation for the rehabilitation and re-establishment in civil life of the armed forces, reconversion of the economic life of the nation and its reconstruction so as to provide opportunities for useful employment for all who are willing to work and insurance against major economic and social hazards," Mr. King's formal statement said.

"Each of the new departments becomes mainly responsible for one of these divisions."

Reconstruction Only Temporary

Reconstruction is the only one of the new departments that is to be of a temporary nature. The veterans and health departments are considered permanent.

GERMAN TROOPS ON CORFU ISLAND GIVE UP FIGHT

No Confirmation That Huns Have Evacuated Athens and Greek Flag Over Acropolis

DELVINO OCCUPIED

Rome, Oct. 14 — (AP) — Allied troops have captured the fertile Greek island of Corfu in the Ionian Sea after the German garrison of only 60 men surrendered without firing a shot, it was announced today.

At the same time Albanian partisans on the mainland occupied Delvino, an inland road centre north of the port of Sarande (Porto Edda) which previously was captured.

The fall of Corfu, Sarande and Delvino eliminated both the Albanian coastal road and coastal waters as avenues of German escape northward from Greece. The comparatively light opposition encountered in the area indicated the enemy no longer attached high value to these routes.

106,000 Population.

Earlier it had been reported the Germans had garrisoned Corfu with a regiment of troops. The island is approximately 38 miles long with a width carrying from three to 20 miles. It has an area of 275 square miles and a population of 106,000.

Allied headquarters announced that at Sarande delayed action explosives left by the Germans blew up the centre of the town but before were no casualties.

Prior to the Allied landing, R. A. F. planes dropped leaflets urging surrender, and shortly afterward white crosses and flags began to blossom from the island.

Low-flying pilots saw crowds waving when the tokens of surrender appeared.

The capture of Sarande, which the enemy had been using as a supply base, cut off the German garrison on Corfu.

Allied headquarters once again was silent on the contending operations of British land forces and partisans on the Greek mainland. The light column which marched across the Peloponnesus from Patras last was reported at Corinth.

There still was no official confirmation of yesterday's reports that the Germans had evacuated Athens and that the Greek flag was flying from the Acropolis.

Island Bombarded.

The bombardment of the island of Aigina just off Athens in the gulf of Saronikos Oct. 12 by the British light cruiser Colombo was announced. The cruiser shelled an enemy battery on the island but there was nothing to indicate whether the Germans still were manning defences there.

Proclamations by the Greek government, Gen. Wilson, Allied Commander in the Mediterranean, and Lt.-Gen. Scobien commander of the British troops which this week swept into Corinth, made it plain an Allied force was about to be landed to supplement the small units already ashore.

Since the new landing has been withheld until the Germans have withdrawn most if not all of their forces from the area, it obviously will be primarily an expedition bringing food and other relief necessities to the population.

Move Up Armor, Guns To Defend Island Approaches

Americans Press Farther In Ruined City of Aachen

London, Oct. 14 (CP) — American soldiers pressed farther into the rubble heap of Aachen today while to the northwest Canadian troops were subjected to fierce pressure in German efforts to defend the approaches to the Dutch Islands, a supreme headquarters communique announced.

German counter attacks were thrown against Canadian forces south of Bergen or Zoom, who still cut off the spit of land that runs to the German-held islands of South Beveland and Walcheren.

On the opposite side of southern Holland, where Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd. Army troops are driving toward the German border south of Overloon, the communique reported a 1,500 yard advance against stiff opposition.

One front dispatch said German reinforcements attacking Canadian positions cutting the German escape route from the Dutch Islands in the Schelde Estuary had placed Lt.-Gen. Crerar's men on the defensive.

German armor was being rushed up and assault guns were in action against the Canadians.

Use Flame-Throwers.

U. S. 1st Army troops, using flame-throwers, grenades and machine-guns, were fighting their way slowly into Aachen. An attack from the northeast had narrowed the lane into the city.

Field artillery and Allied aircraft hit repeatedly at German reinforcements trying to advance from the east, and the enemy was unable to launch any major counter-attack to relieve the blazing city.

Eighty-four German tanks had been knocked out in 48 hours through Friday.

Germans in Aachen had to be squeezed from pill-boxes and dug from wells and cellars or ruined houses.

Four miles north of Aachen, tank-reinforced Germans threw in stronger pressure, several counter-attacks were dispersed by Allied planes and artillery.

Southeast of Aachen, the Allied communique reported progress near Germeter, 12 miles from Aachen and one mile southwest of Hurtgen town, to regain ground lost earlier to a strong enemy counter-assault.

In Holland the Germans brought up assault guns and tanks south of Bergen op Zoom in apparent all-out attempt to rescue forces tapped on the Schelde Estuary islands. Fighting rose in intensity and Canadians holding the spit of land running to the islands lost the initiative at least temporarily.

Gain 2,000 Yards

Canadian troops that landed on the south bank of the Schelde River meanwhile hit south another 2,000 yards, and now were only 4,000 yards from joining other Canadians holding a bridgehead over the Leopold Canal.

Americans in France gained ground in the Moselotte River bend southeast of Epinal despite heavy resistance, and struck over rugged terrain to near Cornimont, 22 miles from Epinal, the headquarters bulletin said.

Pressure was maintained from three sides of the town of Le Thillot, 15 miles above Belfort. Elsewhere in the Vosges foothills there was "vigorous patrolling" and artillery fire, the communiqe added.

Germans in Slit Trenches Cut Down by Tommies With Bayonets

By ROGER GREENE
(AP War Correspondent)

With the British 2nd Army on the Maas River Front, Oct. 14—(AP)—Enemy troops, battling with wild and savage fanaticism to defend the doorstep to Germany, grudgingly yielded more ground southeast of the Dutch town of Overloon today.

The progress of British troops was slowed, however by thickly-planted mines and by the soggy terrain which greatly impeded tank echelons.

After a night of sharp clashes the vanguards of Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's forces still were little more than one mile beyond Overloon.

This is grim, embittered fighting with every foot of ground hotly contested as the German struggles with suicidal fury to guard the last few miles before the Maas. The enemy is paying a heavy price in killed and wounded — cut down by Tommies with bayonets in the slit trenches.

While the main action centred on the Maas front the Germans threw in a determined counter-attack on the west flank of Dempsey's salient in Holland near Schijndel, southeast of 'S Hertogenbosch. The enemy thrust made but slight headway in its initial phase and was soon stopped.

CRUNCHING AIR ATTACK FOLLOWS COLOGNE RAID

Germans Reported Planes Over Germany and Austria

HEADQUARTERS HIT

London, Oct. 14—(CP)—Mosquito bombers carried out a raid Friday night on the German industrial city of Cologne, less than 40 miles from Aachen on a straight road to Berlin, preliminary to what looked like a crunching two-day air attack on Germany today.

Before noon the German radio reported Allied bombers over northwestern Germany and Austria.

At the same time it said a new type plane known as "blitz fighters" soon will be used against Allied air attacks and "will change the face of aerial warfare."

While the main force of Mosquitos was hitting Cologne, a key railroad centre, others were attacking unspecified targets elsewhere in Western Germany. All aircraft returned.

Rocket-firing R. A. F. Typhoons yesterday smashed their second enemy filed headquarters in three days. Both were located in Holland.

Three Buildings Wrecked.

The second attack, on three large buildings in the centre of a country estate, was timed for 11 a.m. at which hour the German commander was said to hold a daily conference with his top officers.

"Yesterday that conference ended abruptly and violently," the Air Ministry said, "for the Typhoons put in an appearance at 11:05 precisely, taking 50-pound bombs and rockets to the party. Within a few minutes all three houses were razed."

R. A. F. fighter-bombers based in France and Belgium sank eight barges and damaged 21 others with which the Germans were trying to evacuate the Schelde estuary.

A formation of fighter-bombers flying through a heavy rainstorm late yesterday bombed loaded freight cars at Amersfoort and Utrecht, where the Air Ministry said the Germans were suspected of trying to make a getaway by rail.

Col. Yates Composes New March Score

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, famous fighting unit of the First Canadian Division, now smashing the Hun defences in Italy, will thrill to the tune of a new march dedicated to them in the near future.

The musical score, which bears the name of the crack district regiment, "The Hasty Pees" was composed by Lieut. Col. A. V. Yates, commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion (R) H. and P. E.

It has been transferred to wax, and recordings are now on their way overseas to the first battalion.

Another recording is in the musical library of the Belle Theatre here where patrons occasionally enjoy the spirited martial tempo of the composition.

Hydro and Liquor Control Should Cease To Be Political Footballs Says Holly Acres

Member for Carleton County Speaks to Women's Conservative Club

Going on record as being definitely opposed to government by commission and stating that the Ontario Hydro and the liquor control commission should cease to be political footballs and be operated by commissions of party members responsible to the government for their actions, Mr. Holly Acres, M.P.P. for Carleton County ran the whole gamut of provincial and federal political affairs as he spoke before a special meeting of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association at their club rooms on Friday evening.

Members of the above two provincially operated commissions should be comprised of men chosen from all parties represented in the House, instead of the purely partisan commissions chosen under the present system. "At present commissions make decisions and the government takes the responsibility," he said.

Disapproves of Flat Rate.

Asserting himself as one who had never voted against his conscience in all his 20 years' experience at Queen's Park, Mr. Acres stated that he disapproved of the flat Hydro rate and claimed wiping out of the Hydro service charge by the Drew government to be a mistake. Service charge should be maintained at $1 per month with the kilowatt hour rate decreased.

Premier King came in for scathing criticism from the guest speaker, he stating that Mr. King was a "politician for office and for office only." In an attempt to appease the French-speaking population Mr. King had failed to send call-up troops overseas with 76,000 of them still in Canada. With trained men needed overseas these men should either be sent overseas or taken out of their uniforms and put to work on the production front, he said.

Favors Baby Bonus if Properly Administrated

Although claiming himself to favor the baby bonus system if properly administrated, Mr. Acres nevertheless asserted that all social legislation rightfully belonged to provincial administration.

Conversely the soldier settlement problem was rightly a federal issue, but if the federal government failed to provide properly for the returned men, then the provincial government had a right to intercede.

The speaker claimed that the beverage rooms for women as introduced into the province by the Hepburn government were a disgrace and claimed that tables and chairs should be "thrown out of the beverage rooms." If there must be beverage rooms, he favored the old-fashioned bar system.

Farm Produce Floor Price Right Policy

A floor price for farm produce was favored by Mr. Acres, he pointing to the fact that the bonus system had been greatly responsible in the early years of the war for needed increase in the production of cheese and bacon. The present milk bonus which bonuses milk distributors was termed "foolish", with the variations in the different parts of Ontario of the price of milk to the producer being "unfair." Mitchell Hepburn, in the light of previous statements predicted return to active politics, was termed as a man whose word was undependable.

In the view of lack of hospital space for returned wounded the speaker advocated utilization of present army training centres for this purpose, rather than building expensive new hospitals.

Nor did the agricultural committee as formed by the Drew government escape criticism by Mr. Acres. The 23 members of this organization had still made no report, he said. Again this committee should be composed of party members responsible for their actions.

In closing Mr. Acres charged that in view of the stand taken on compulsory service following the plebiscite, no true Canadian would support Premier King in the next federal election. People, he predicted, would rise and support Mr. John Bracken as leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

Wants No Collaboration.

In introducing the guest speaker R. D. Arnott, M.P.P., for Hastings West, reiterated his stand made at the time of the last provincial election that the Progressive Conservatives should run their government as if they had a clear working majority over the House. There should be no collaboration with the Liberal government as result of their lack of consideration for the war situation when calling the election, and there should be no move to seek support from the C.C.F. party.

Roscoe Robson expressed the opinion that the Progressive Conservative party was gaining steadily in favor and that if Mr. Drew came back to the people for a mandate this time they would get a working majority. Mr. George Stokes, M.P., for Hastings South, stated that there was now not much chance of Premier King calling a federal election before Spring. Attacking the C.C.F. party he asked who was going to pay for their proposed social security program. People of Canada would not be carried away with promises of a fine time and nothing to do, he said.

President of the Women's Association, Mrs. Harry Rollins presided over the evening's meeting which was the first for the new season and marked by a large attendance. Entertainment was provided by Ronald Elmy who was heard in solo and by Bill Navin who gave several vocal numbers and acted as piano accompanist. Light lunch was served to conclude the program.

Waste Paper Collection To Start 7.00 P. M. Monday

Members of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Kinsmen clubs of the city have joined forces in a collection cavalcade that will pick up parcels of used paper in the Emergency Waste Paper campaign scheduled for Monday, October 16th.

Campaign Chairman Alderman Clarence Clapp announced today that decision to make collection at 7 p.m. on Monday instead of at 9 a.m. as formerly announced was reached at a special meeting of the service club committees.

Sixteen trucks, manned by service clubmen will form the motor cavalcade, and will conduct a house-to-house canvass of the city on or about seven in the evening. Trucks and other vehicles to be used in the collection have been donated by various service club members.

City Engineer Charles Mott has divided the city into zones to facilitate collection. Assembly point for the cavalcade will be the City Hall.

It is expected that eighty tons of waste paper will be the result of the campaign, and this will mean a close combing of the city for every piece of available paper.

Citizens are urged by Chairman Clapp and the service clubs to co-operate to the fullest in the drive for this important war material.

J. J. Trudeau Named Chairman Of County Victory Loan Com.

Active in every Victory Loan since the 3rd, Mr. J. J. Trudeau; well-known Belleville automotive dealer, has again accepted the chairmanship of the Hastings County Victory Loan committee and will head this organization for the Seventh Victory Loan which gets underway throughout the county on October 23rd.

Mr. Trudeau was named as chairman of the county Victory Loan organization last spring, succeeding the late R. A. Elliott of Deloro. In addition, during the last loan he acted as general sales chairman, a position he will continue to hold during the forthcoming campaign.

Organizational work for the county is now practically completed, according to Mr. Trudeau, who has surrounded himself with a capable roster of sub-committee chairmen and other campaign workers. The work of preparing for the loan has been progressing favorably and everything will be in readiness when the opening gun goes on Monday, October 23rd.

Increased Objective

Yesterday Mr. Trudeau announced the objective for the county in sales of Victory Bonds during the 7th Victory Loan to be $3,400,000, with the armed services' objective extra. Objective for the Dominion of Canada is $1,300,000,000, with Ontario to be asked to raise approximately one half of this amount.

Full confidence that the people of Hastings would again support the loan to the fullest of their ability, thus enabling the county to meet its quota as in previous loans, was expressed by the chairman. "It will, however," he said, "require a very strong organization, and also the best effort on the part of every committee member, and on the part of the salesmen."

Instruct Salesmen

Salesmen, according to Mr. Trudeau, will be asked to come through with a greater effort in the coming campaign. To prepare salesmen for this, greater stress is being given to the instruction of salesmen.

Also the general public will be expected to make more cash purchases of bonds as the compulsory savings portion of the income tax has been discontinued and the government still regards this as savings and are expectant of it being used to increase purchases of bonds.

With experience in four previous loans as general sales chairman, and as vice chairman and chairman respectively of the past two campaigns, the chairmanship of the county loan organization is in good hands with Mr. Trudeau at its head. He is a man trusted completely in the administration of municipal affairs as his position as city alderman and many other public offices proves.

He is a man who offers his services to his community, not for the personal glory which he might achieve, but through a conscientious desire to be of service to his fellow citizens. Time spent in preparation for the Victory Loan is time willingly given, and given with the thought that mere "time" falls far short of the sacrifice being given every day by the boys on the fighting fronts.

Fire Destroys Large Frame Barn, Season's Crop

Rawdon, Oct. 14 —(Special)— Fire of an unknown origin completely destroyed the large frame barn and entire season's crop owned by Mr. Raymond McConnell, five miles west of Stirling on the Campbellford road on Friday evening. The fire started approximately at 7:30 Friday evening and quickly got beyond control, although neighbors saved other nearby buildings by forming a bucket brigade.

The entire season's crop from the 100-acre farm went up in flames as did a milking machine and other stable equipment. The barn and stable had only been recently improved with modern equipment installed. What livestock was in the barn was saved. Loss, estimated at over $5,000, was partially covered by insurance.

Sulphuric Acid Streams Over Road When Tank Breaks

Over 300 gallons of sulphuric acid streamed over Highway No. 37 two miles north of Belleville late Friday afternoon, when a 630-gallon tank of the acid rolled off a large truck, while en route from Sulphide to Trenton.

The truck, owned by C. N. Roberts of Trenton, was being driven in a southerly direction when the driver claims he was forced to the shoulder of the road by a northbound automobile that was travelling in the centre of the highway and at a high rate of speed. When the truck swerved to avoid a collision the large 630-gallon tank shifted and due to the strain broke off the right truck rack and rolled off into the ditch, where fully one-half of the contents of the tank leaked out, filling the boulevard to a depth of fully two feet. The strong odor of the acid was distinctly noticeable, especially to passing motorists. Traffic Officer Chas. Siple investigated, following which flares and guards were placed to warn the motoring public of the presence of sulphuric acid.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police answered a call to a Victoria Ave. residence Friday night when the occupants phoned to say persons were endeavoring to enter their home. When the long arm of the law arrived, however, they found the owner of the house was merely trying to gain entrance in order that he might serve notice to his tenants to vacate. As it was purely a civil matter the "boys in blue" quietly retired from the scene.

14-Year-Old Held.

Police apprehended a 14-year-old Toronto lad after complaints had been received relative to the stealing of money from milk bottles at the Montrose Dairy offices on Pinnacle St. The lad was held and today sent back to Toronto and his parents. He had run away from home, police learned after apprehending the boy.

Fenders Damages.

The front and fender of a motor car driven by R. C. Moss of this city, were damaged when it was struck by a truck driven by Wm. Mayer on Front St. yesterday. Police investigated and the minor damage was settled amicably.

Drinking in Car.

Three local young men were apprehended consuming spirits while sitting in a parked motor car along the Bay Bridge road late last night. After being questioned at the police station the trio was permitted to return home, but not until L.C.A. charges were preferred and their "giggle soup" confiscated.

GRADUATE CLASS, PARENTS, FRIENDS FETED BY CLUB

Dinner at King George School Marked by Presentations

"Great and good things only come as the result of strenuous effort" was the highlighting advice given by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby to the Graduating Class of the King George Public School at the dinner and convocation exercises in the auditorium of the school on Friday evening.

Twenty-nine graduates with their parents, friends and teachers, enjoyed a sumptuous dinner prepared and served by the Home and School Association of the school.

Mrs. M. C. Ward, President of the Home and School Association, acted as chairman for the program following the dinner. A toast was proposed to the King by Mr. Merritt Hackett after which the National Anthem was sung. Cameron Hitchon, one of the graduates in proposing a toast to the parents said, "We know that we have reached an important milestone in our education. We realize that ours is one of the most important jobs in the world. The students build the future world which we want to be a good one." This toast was responded to by Mrs. William Johns. Miss J. H. Smith, on behalf of the staff, proposed a toast to the graduates, extending to them, each and every one, continued success. Bill Clare on the graduates' behalf responded in a few well chosen words. He expressed his personal gratitude to be able to speak on behalf of his class. He also extended thanks to the Home and School Association and to the fathers and mothers who have contributed greatly to the life and happiness of the graduates.

In Praise of Teachers

Marie Marinoff in a toast to the teachers spoke in glowing terms of them and said that without them the class could not have gone ahead. Mr. C. A. Brown, principal of the school, in responding on behalf of the staff, addressed his remarks to the graduates stating, "The highest concern of the school is your concern. We as teachers have watched you and have been interested in you as you made your progress through school. School is a way of life. It is a place where you learn to work with others — where you have to learn to work with others."

Douglas Vanderwater and Muriel Duffin, two of the graduates, on behalf of their fellow students, thanked the Home and School Association for preparing the banquet. Mrs. M. C. Ward in replying said that everything that concerns the child concerns the association. By adding parent power to this, the community is made child conscience. The association endeavours to establish a link between the home and the school Mrs. Ward extended a warm welcome to the parents, graduates, teaching staff and to the honored guests, of the evening.

Presentation of Diplomas.

The presentation of diplomas to the following pupils was made by Mr. Carl D. Crosby, chairman of the Board of Education, Jeanette Ashbury, Gilbert Barriage, Gwen Birdie, Dorothy Bone, William Clare, Alice Court, Jack Dawson, Herbert Dean, Muriel Duffin, Jack Ethier, Cameron Hitchon, Marjorie Ingram, Bill Jackson, Betty Jeffs, Dorothy Johns, Marion Knott, Marie Marinoff, Gerald Moore, Jack Nevery, Bruce Patterson, Myrtle Reid, John Smale, Audrey Tebworth, Dorothy Tebworth, Douglas Vanderwater, Shirley Wilson, June Stringer, Curwood Butcher, Betty Rees

To Jeanette Ashbury, Mr. Brown made a special award for the highest academic attainment in the high school examinations. Jeanette, in delivering the valedictory, said to the assembage: "The good times that we graduates have had together while here in King George School will remain with us. We now understand, as we grow older, the importance of school and education. School spirit is an important thing. School also trains us to be good citizens, and with the help and support of the teachers, we succeeded in entering high school. We will, however, never forget the school where we got our start."

Challenge to Meet New Demands

Rev. J. G. Hornsby, in addressing the graduates, said: "You no doubt got a thrill when you were successful in passing into High School with its new atmosphere." You have broken with something old and taken on the new. You have entered into that field of change. You are challenged to meet the future demands in life. Your responsibility lies in making a contribution to life through the medium of your career. The world demands that you and I become the best that is in our power to become. Your teachers are there to help you and they want to see you advance. The higher the purpose the greater the difficulty, continued Mr. Hornsby. Let the difficulties you meet at high school stimulate you instead of discourage you. Make your mind your slave. Discipline it or it will one day master you. Difficulties make us conquerors or cowards."

Mr. L. A. Kells, Inspector of Public Schools, expressed thanks to Mr. Hornsby for his very inspiring lecture to the graduates. He also expressed congratulations to the graduates, and spoke in high praise of the Home and School Association. He commended the boys and girls who had taken part in the program.

Delightful musical interludes interspersed the program. Community singing was led by Miss Helliwell with Mrs. T. S. Aman as piano accompanist. Dorothy Bone contributed a piano solo.

Ultra-Modern Radio Set Presented To Corvette by Stewart-Warner-Corp.

"They shall have music wherever they go."

Literally true in the case of the officers and crew of the corvette "HMCS. Belleville." For thanks to the generosity of the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation of Canada here, a handsome radio set, the last word in aerial reception will bring them programs from all over the world.

Designed, engineered and built by Stewart-Warner artisans, the beautiful gold and gray radio will be officially presented to the commanding officer of the corvette some time next week. It will be so located that all ranks of the ship's complement will be able to hear programs at the same time.

Equipped with twenty-one tubes, the set has standard as well as complete short wave facilities. In other words any short wave broadcast in the world can be picked up.

Specially built for its purpose, the set is shock-proof. Specially designed circuits have been installed. Another scientific achievement that is a feature of the set is the fact that radiation is reduced to a minimum. Enemy submarines or other enemy craft lurking nearby receive no signal that the corvette is near when the radio is "on."

On the front of the set is inscribed: "Presented to HMCS Belleville by the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Corporation of Canada, Belleville, Ontario." On the face of one of the attractive dials, in the famous blue and white of the navy, are the letters "R.C.N.".

Stewart-Warner officials stated that the set is a forerunner of radio "things to come" in the post-war period.

MACKENZIE

The primary job of Mr. Howe's new department will be to assist in rapid reconversion of the country's wartime economy to the fullest possible peace-time employment.

"The largest of its tasks will be to assist in the speedy reconversion of war industries so that there will be the least possible delay in the provision of employment opportunities," Mr. King said.

As Minister of Munitions Mr. Howe had directed the conversion from a peace to war economy and it was thus appropriate that he should co-ordinate the two departments in the next step.

Disposal of War Assets.

The disposal of war assets, now under the direction of the munitions department, will come under the reconstruction department as will housing, apart from financing which will continue to come under the jurisdiction of the finance department.

The reconstruction minister, in co-operation with other departments, will supervise the planning and co-ordination of public works and developments necessary to provide employment on a flexible basis to fill employment gaps in industry. This responsibility will include the co-ordination of federal programs with provincial and local activities.

Housing as Source of Employment.

"Housing is looked to as one of the most important sources of employment," Mr. King said. "Methods of co-operation will be worked out between the department of reconstruction, which will be particularly interested in community planning, research and promotional activity, and the department of finance, which is particularly concerned with the actual lending and other financing of house-building.

Dealing with the transfer of jurisdiction of the National Research Council from the department of trade to reconstruction Mr. King said new impetus had been given research by the war and it would inevitably play a large part in creating employment opportunities.

Sheik Entertains Wellington Crew in Royal Fashion

Written for The Canadian Press by Flt.-Lt. William Dumsday, R.C.A.F.

Poona, India, Oct 14 (CP)—It was like a scene from an Arabian Nights tale when a Wellington bomber force-landed near the Persian Gulf in Saudi Arabia. Fearful of their lives because the desert tribes were then considered hostile to the Allies, members of the crew instead found themselves royally entertained by Sheik Hassa.

One of the bomber's crew was Flt.-Lt. Bliss Lewin of 350 Brock Ave., Toronto, and Royal Oak, Mich. An American who trained in the R.C.A.F. at Montreal and Fingal, Ont., Lewin worked in a Toronto night club in 1929. In the early days of the forward pass in Canada he served as part-time coach of Toronto's Bloor Collegiate football team.

One tour of operations completed in India, Lewin now is gunnery leader of an R.A.F. Refresher Flying Unit. On operations he was gunnery leader with a Wellington bomber squadron served by 20 other Canadians and his trips included raids on all major Burmese targets.

On the way to India the plane in which Lewin was flying had fuel trouble in daylight and force-landed in the desert, rolling 50 yards before coming to a stop with wheels hub-deep in sand. The wireless operator made contact with his base and the fuel trouble was repaired but it was impossible to take off.

As darkness set in natives from a village gathered 100 yards from the aircraft and as the airmen believed the territory was hostile they did not feel too happy about their plight.

Just Like the Movies.

"But we knew we were helpless so the pilot and I walked towards the group and in jig time we were guided to the palace of Sheik Hassa," said Lewin. "It was just like you see in the movies. Bodyguards met us 500 yards from the palace and it was like a scene from Arabian Nights as we walked over heavy red-plush carpets to be presented to the boss man."

Problems for the fliers were not over because they learned the Sheik could not speak English. But he seemed friendly and motioned them to make themselves comfortable on fluffy pillows on the floor. Then fruit and sweet coffee were produced before the Sheik retired to his prayers.

When the Sheik returned the fliers asked, by a series of motions and gestures, if it was possible to have their aircraft pulled out of the sand and when he "caught on" the Sheik smiled "sure thing."

But it was dark and the Sheik was more interested in where his unexpected guests were going to sleep. The boys indicated they would slumber beneath the wing of their aircraft and although the Sheik urged them to stay in his palace they explained they had to rejoin their crew mates.

Just after breakfast the Sheik arrived with a bodyguard while far behind came a labor gang. The natives went to work with ropes to pull out the bomber and when the ropes broke and they floundered in the sand they roared with laughter and tried again.

After seven hours the aircraft finally was freed and by placing blankets under each wheel it was able to take off. The Sheik and his followers stood waving until the bomber disappeared from view.

London, Oct. 12 — (CP) — The council of governors of London House have launched an appeal for $3,375,000 to complete this "hall of residence" for Empire students in London and to provide an endowment.

Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, and Viscount Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, were present at a Mansion House luncheon launching the appeal where it was announced that the first contribution, a Nuffield Foundation gift of $1,012,500, had been received.

Before the war London House provided residence for 800 Empire students by studying in the capital and Sir William Goodenough, chairman of the Council of Governors, said that as the war drew nearer its close it was right that they should think increasingly of the future.

In the field of sound education, greater friendship throughout the world would be based. It would also be the field in which competition would be fiercest.

"We have perhaps failed to realise fully," Sir William said, "the importance of the background in which educational work is carried on, especially to those who come here from overseas."

Lord Bennett said that in London students from the Dominions would find the cradle of civilization. They would be able to trace the development of British civilization and its people, the greatest in the world and never greater than today.

Since the war began, 7,000 officers, many of them from Canada, have been accommodated at London House.

The speaker of the House of Commons, Col. Douglas Clifton Brown, will not have his brother, Gen. Howard Clifton Brown, sitting under him in the next parliament. The General, at 76, 11 years his brother's senior, is not standing at the general election. He has been in parliament 21 years, compared with his brother's 25.

Successor to Gen. Brown, if the Conservatives hold the Newbury seat, will be Anthony Hurd, whose father, Sir Percy Hurd, represents Devizes in the Commons. Sir Percy who has been in parliament 25 of his 80 years, is another of the approximate 200 members retiring after the present parliament.

Los Angeles, Oct. 12 —(AP)— Composer Walter Donaldson, whose song hit "My Blue Heaven" glorifies cozy domesticity, was divorced yesterday by Actress Walda Mansfield. She was granted a decree on her cross-complaint charging cruelty. The court allocated Donaldson only one item in the couple's household goods—the piano.

$10,000 Estate Left by Evangelist

Los Angeles, Oct. 14—(AP)—The will of Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson disposes of personal property valued at less than $10,000 to blood relatives and makes no provision for her son to succeed her as head of Angelus Temple, her attorney said Friday.

The will was scheduled to be filed later in the day.

At the same time the Canadian-born evangelist's daughter, Mrs. Roberta Salter, long at odds with her mother, announced that she would not contest the provisions of the will.

"I haven't even thought about Temple affairs," said Mrs. Salter, vice-president of the Four Square Gospel organization before the break with her mother seven years ago. "As far as my mother's will and her wishes are concerned—after all, she was my mother and although we had not seen each other for some time I would like to respect her wishes."

Joseph Fainer, attorney for Mrs. McPherson, said the will "mentions only blood relations; no strangers or others are mentioned."

He added it made no provision for Mrs. McPherson, who was born on a farm near Ingersoll, Ont., to be succeeded as head of her denomination by her son, Rev. Rolf McPherson. He had been so designated before her death in Oakland, Calif., Sept. 27.

Election of Rolf McPherson's wife, Lorne Dee McPherson as vice-president of the Four Square Gospel organization to succeed her husband was announced last night.

Nazi "Superman" Seven Feet Tall

With the Canadians Outside Calais, October 14 —(CP)— If Canadians are wondering what the German Superman looks like, troops from Eastern Canada who knocked out Nazi gunposts directly east of Calais can give a pretty fair description. He's colossal.

Canadians gasped in amazement as this superman came from the fortification with his fellows. He towered seven feet, three inches and guards who searched him for weapons nearly had to stand on tip-toe to do the job. He spoke English and told interpreters he was a former circus performer, acrobat, and prizefighter and had made peacetime trips to England and the United States.

Rev. H. W. Outerbridge Guest Preacher At Bridge St. Ch. Sunday

The guest preacher at Bridge Street United Church next Sunday will be the Rev. H. W. Outerbridge, D.D., Professor in Theology, and former Chancellor of the new Christian University at Kobe, Japan. Being a graduate of Mount Allison University, and the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, he was considered the high ranking Christian citizen of Kobe, and was the most popular man with both Canadians and Japanese. When the former Dean of the University retired the Japanese members of the staff came to Dr. Outerbridge and asked him to accept the position. Freedom in speaking in Japanese made him in demand as a speaker on important occasions. In addition to his scholastic attainments he had, too, the greatest of all gifts for a successful teacher and missionary, the ability to earn the loyalty of the people. In addition he was compelled to handle the finances of the University, help in building the new school plant of 2,000,000 yen and invest the endowment fund of that university, of 2,000 students. The president of the university thought he was the most all round man he knew, physically, mentally and spiritually. Since returning to Canada he has not been idle, but has accepted positions of great responsibility, for there has been a great shortage of ministers owing to so many being called to the armed services.

Dr. Outerbridge married the daughter of the late Rev. E. N. Baker, Principal of Albert College. He has two sons and one daughter. The oldest son is Ralph Outerbridge, medical doctor, stationed in China.

Aimee McPherson Died of Shock

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 14 —(AP)— A coroner's jury Friday returned a verdict that the Canadian-born evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson died last Sept. 27 "from an accidental overdose" of sleeping tablets.

The jury of 13, including four women, deliberated only a short time.

A pathologist told the jury the evangelist had died "of shock and respiratory failure due to overdose of a barbital compound" and a kidney ailment.

The witness, Dr. Mary Ruth Oldt, said she had examined the stomach contents.

Coroner Mark L. Emerson asked Dr. Oldt whether the death could have been accidental.

"It could," she replied. "A person could get in such a state of forgetfulness that he may not remember how many he has taken of these pills."

Mrs. McPherson was born on a farm near Ingersoll, Ont.

"Victory is Certain"

The way of the war moves steadily towards its climax in victory. That is witnessed on every hand. General Eisenhower, supreme commander of the United Nations invasion force from the West, said the other day in putting the present situation before the public, "we have a hard job ahead, but victory is certain."

That is an indication of the power that the Allied forces are exerting against the enemy, a relentless power which with the advancing armies in Italy and in the East will cramp Hitler's Germany into a position where "unconditional surrender" will be the logical and only outcome.

The fighting fronts are throwing their full energy into the mounting power that is striking the Hun. There will be no let-up in aggressive action, the supreme commander said. That is the spirit of the Allied forces. The enemy is putting up strenuous resistance as at Aachen, which means casualties but the fighting men of the United Nations will see this struggle through to victory. The soldier knows the fighting is hard and the home front must realize the paramount need that this should be realized by the peoples of the free nations everywhere.

Over the much talked-of possibility of an early end of the war, the supreme commander put the situation in this way, that while there is always the possibility of a sudden collapse of the enemy, there is no reason to rely on its coming at any given time. He made it clear that the Allied threats can have no effect upon the enemy leaders who face the loss of everything once they admit defeat. The general's statement was, "I have every confidence in the peoples of the United States, Britain and France and all the United Nations to see this war through to final victory. So long as they will see it through I know that the soldiers and sailors and airmen possess the indomitable will to win. We have a hard job ahead but victory is certain."

That means fighting with the full power of the United Nations war strength and the entire strength of the home fronts.

Industrial Rehabilitation

An experimental centre of industrial rehabilitation, the first of its kind in Great Britain, has been opened at Roffey Park, Horsham, for the benefit not only of wartime office and factory workers but also for discharged soldiers who have found difficulty in adapting themselves to industry.

Sickness absence in industry has increased by over 30 per cent since 1939 yet only 7 per cent of sick absentees are hospital cases. Most of the remaining 93 per cent are suffering from "debility," "nervous dyspepsia," "catarrh," and other manifestations of industrial fatigue and "sub-health". Most industrial medical officers agree that there is no large-scale malingering but that most workers return to work too soon after an illness and break down again.

It is estimated that the 15,000,000 insured workers in Britain lose 40,000,000 working weeks a year. On an average wage of only $13.29 per week, this means an annual income loss of $531,600,000. Yet, so far, there has been no general attempt to deal with this vast problem which will be even more serious when tired men and women return from the services on demobilization and try to adapt themselves to a new life.

In the Pacific

Steadily moving towards Tokyo and the heart of Japan, Americans have struck against the great island of Formosa with powerful carrier forces to leave a trail of 396 aircraft of the enemy wiped out, 63 Japanese ships sunk or damaged, according to Friday's communique.

Formosa was until 1895 part of the Chinese Empire but in that year it was ceded to Japan at the close of the Chinese-Japanese war. It was in fact the first step in aggression by the Japanese, who at Pearl Harbor and elsewhere in 1941 and since have demonstrated how completely Japan is dominated by the military clique with their eyes set on conquest.

But for a long while now the evidence is being accumulated on all hands how steadily Japan is losing in the struggle for the Pacific and its islands. The Allied march upon the ocean is steady and advancing towards Tokyo.

British Agriculture

Wheat, oats, beets and potatoes have all been good crops in Britain. The other day a statement was made that Britain is now satisfying a large part of her own food needs.

An example of the intensification of interest in agriculture is shown by the figures for acreage of potatoes. The total number of acres cultivated in 1939 was 454,327 acres. Next year it had risen to 537,186 acres, in the third year it was 707,307 acres. In 1942, the total was 898,385 acres and last year 957,043 acres. It is expected that the crop this year will be about seven tons an acre as in 1943.

Nuts Yield Silk

Britain's research chemists look toward a more abundant wardrobe for women of the future. J. B. Speakman, director of textile research at Leeds University, has just announced progress "on many revolutionary fabrics" and says "we have found a way to make rayon from low grade wool." The fabric, he said, is unshrinkable, takes dyes well, and makes fine stockings with long-wearing qualities. The same wool waste, formerly dumped for fertilizer, makes buttons, buckles, and decorative gadgets for women's hats and combs. He forecasts a wide expansion in uses of nylon particularly in fabrics for women's dresses, and including ornate theatrical hangings. And, he adds, the industrial chemists can now make rayon from certain nuts.

Early Man

A strange and very wide geographic gap exists in the distribution of the earliest known race of men, Professor Fay-Cooper Cole of the University of Chicago pointed out in his address at Cleveland as retiring vice-president of the association's section on anthropology, Science Service reports.

Some scores of thousands of years ago during the last great Ice Age, Pithecanthropus appeared in Java and Sinanthropes in China. At approximately the same time Heidelberg man appeared in Germany and two ancient (and still-disputed) human types in England. But in the vast continental stretch between Northwestern Europe and Southeastern Asia no human remains of comparable age have yet been found.

Professor Cole also cast some doubt on the claim of Africa to title as cradle of the Negro race. There are some indications, he stated, that Negroes may have originated in Northern India and that their occupation of Africa may be of relatively recent date, in terms of evolutionary time.

Swiss Explanation

(BBC London Letter)

A Swiss broadcast recently recalled Hitler's proud boast that the Allies would not remain on the Continent of Europe for more than nine hours.

"But today," the broadcaster added, "the Allies possess first-class commenders, while the Germans no longer have the generals who won the victories of 1940 and 1941. Halder is no longer Chief-of-Staff; Rundstedt has been dismissed; Leeb and Brauchitsch hold no command; Witzleben has been hanged."

And the Swiss radio concluded: "The superiority of the Allied military leadership is certainly one of the reasons for Allied victories in the west."

Rebuild the Churches

(London Spectator)

The proposal to leave some of the blitzed churches in London and elsewhere in ruins as a reminder to future generations of what the blitz was, seems to have aroused little enthusiasm, and we are not surprised.

What need, after all, is there for this kind of reminder? Books by the hundred and photographs by the thousand will tell for all time of what London and other cities suffered. Ruins of historic abbeys in settings of natural beauty are one thing: ruins deliberately kept as ruins in the midst of shops and houses are very much another.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

By EDGAR A. GUEST

USHER

I have often thought that I
Would an usher like to be,
And the good folk satisfy
As they told their wants to me.

I'd be happy, I repeat,
Could I serve as ushers do,
And find everyone a seat
In a satisfactory pew.

I should like to bow and smile,
In an usher-sort of way,
And walk up and down the aisle
With the folks who come to pray.

But I couldn't quite pretend
To be blind as bat or mole
To the money-squeezing friend,
Giving dimes to save his soul.

That I'd sneer, I can't deny,
As I lingered at his pew,
Which may be the reason I
As an usher, wouldn't do.

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Oct. 14 — (CP) — The United States Congress, supervising the administration of a $78,000,000,000 government with the machinery and rules established 50 years ago when the annual budget was about $318,000,000, is expected to reorganize itself soon after the elections next month.

Some months ago the Senate passed without dissent a bill calling for the creation of a committee to sit with a House of Representatives committee on Congressional reorganization

A similar bill seemed likely to pass in the House of Representatives but for some reason it got bogged down in the rules committee. However, it is reported that an agreement between majority and minority leaders in that chamber will result in its revival when Congress re-convenes.

Representative A. S. Monroney (Dem.-Okla.), co-sponsor of the resolution, has forecast action before the Christmas holidays.

Gasoline vital: Office of Price Administration ration officials, doling out motor fuel as carefully as if it were blood, discourage applicants for extra rations by printing on application forms such facts as these: Half the supplies shipped to the Army overseas are petroleum products: it takes 25,000 gallons of gasoline to drive a tank division 100 miles; a 1,000-plane six-hour flight of four-motored bombers burns 1,850,000 gallons of fuel and it takes 12,500 gallons to train a single pilot.

Tip to Candidates: A wise candidate for Congress would include in his promises one to work for production and distribution of clothing for babies and youngsters. There will be more women than men among eligible voters in the United States on Nov. 7 and the great plaint of all mothers here is that the stores are packed with luxurious wearables for grown-ups but they can scarcely get a pair of baby shoes or a suit of youngsters' undies.

Stay Home or Walk: Director Johnson of the Office of Defence Transport has warned prospective travellers for winter vacations in Florida that they go at their own risk. There will be no special trains this winter to return stranded sunseekers from the south. Traffic so far this year has increased 8,000,000,000 passenger miles over the same period last year and there will be no relief until after Japan is beaten.

Bureaucrats: Republican campaigners have been saying so much about Washington bureaucrats who must be eliminated that Attorney General Francis Boddle was moved, in a speech the other night, to define a bureaucrat. "A bureaucrat," he said, "is a man holding a job in public life that a Republican would like to have."

TRAINING CENTRE AT ST. HYACINTHE EMPIRE'S BIGGEST

Officers, Ratings and Wrens of Canadian Navy Cover Wide Range of Studies at Quebec School

St. Hyacinthe, Que. — The eyes, ears and voices of the Canadian navy are turned out at this training centre—the biggest of its kind in the Empire. A party of newsmen toured the school on completion of its facilities.

Seventy-three buildings on a 250-acre site beside the picturesque Yamaska River house a total of 3,200 officers, ratings and Wrens studying subjects ranging from simple semaphore signalling to the abstruse mathematics involved in the theory of radar and other branches of electronics.

The newest course—covering all forms of communications and radar—is a seven-month grind for officers, qualifying them for specialist duties. But the most important task of the school is training hundreds of Wrens and ratings to become wireless operators, radio operators, visual signalmen, radar operators and coders. The girls qualify for shore berths while most of the ratings go to sea. So that they won't forget they belong to a "fighting navy" the students take a course in commando pistol shootings.

This town is nearly 250 miles from tide-water so the navy has improvised bridges on the roofs of school buildings—some of which simulate the roll and pitch of a ship and are called "rocking horses." The rolling bridges are not to test the rating on seasickness but to teach him how to maintain his balance and send a legible message from an unsteady position.

Musgrave in Command

Commander of the school is Capt. A. P. Musgrave, a Californian of English parentage who served in the Royal Navy in the First Great War. He joined the R.C.N. as a lieutenant the day before the outbreak of the present conflict. On his staff are Lt.-Cmdr. Johnny Loaring, the Windsor, Ont., Olympic hurdler, chief radar instructor, and Lieut. Jeannie Dunlop of Toronto, commander of the Wren unit.

One of the most important weapons to come out of this war both for offence and defence, has been radar, and a specialist course for officers is given here on this subject. The officers taking the course are all university graduates in physics or electrical or other branches of engineering, who have been entered directly in the Radar branch of the R.C.N. Their radar course lasts several months and they are entitled to use the letter R after their rank on graduation.

Prospective wireless telegraphists are given a general knowledge of receivers and transmitters from the technical standpoint, although they are not expected to be able to repair major defects. Radio telephony, in which messages are sent by voice, must also be learned.

At the end of their 21-week course successful ratings are awarded what the navy calls their "non-substantive" badges—the winged lightning bolt which they wear on their right sleeves as the mark of their speciality. This company, which originated here, is the navy's nearest approach to the air force's presentation of wings to qualified students.

Visual Signalling

Visual signals have been the chief method of ship to ship communication ever since there has been a navy. The subject covers flag hoists, in which flags having various meanings are displayed from signal halyards, semaphore, by means of hand flags, directional signalling which is accomplished by searchlights, signal projectors, Aldis lamps and other similar devices, and all-round signalling by means of masthead lights.

A small number of ratings are trained as convoy signalmen. Their duty is to maintain contact with the warships forming the escort so that the merchant ships may be immediately notified of any changes in course and speed or other urgent orders. In the early days of the war, and often still in the case of small convoys, the merchant ships' officer of the watch or wireless operator often had to act as signalman on the bridge as well. Since his training was not primarily concerned with flag messages there was often considerable delay in the exchange of signals.

More than 80 signal flags, each with its own meaning, are carried on modern warships and the signalman has to know how to prepare and hoist flag signals quickly and correctly.

There are fleet model rooms and convoy model room with tables on which models of ships are mounted. Each ship carries lights which may be flashed so that signals can be passed from one to another in the same manner as at sea. In the case of the fleet model room, the model ships can be moved to demonstrate the way in which fleet manoeuvres are carried out.

THE VINEGAR TOPER

I have a habit of drinking vinegar (writes Mrs. L. J., who says she is 26 years old and weights 110 pounds—which is probably 16 pounds too little if she is of average height for women of that age). I drink about a tablespoonful a day. After drinking it I have an idea I feel lots better. Will it hurt me?

From frequent inquiries it would seem that the notion is commonly prevalent that one who overeats can reduce by drinking some vinegar every day.

As a condiment a few drops of vinegar on your cabbage or beans, if you prefer it to lemon juice, is harmless, although it is well to remember that vinegar is practically dilute citric acid and citric acid is is not readily utilised in the body, whereas lemon juice is practically dilute citric acid and citri acid is utilized in the body. Therefore citric acid may be regarded as food, and acetic acid, taken in excess, may "chemically produce an injurious effect" (Webster) and thus act as a poison.

Pure acetic acid, officially called glacial acetic acid (glacial means resembling ice) is a clear liquid with characteristic pungent odor, sometimes used as a caustic for destroying warts, corns and the like.

The correspondent taking her nip of vinegar daily, just because she likes it, probably will not shrivel up and waste away nor become pickled, but, on the off chance that she may still wish to keep her youthful good looks I suggest that she switch to lemon juice, straight or diluted with water, or orange juice, or grapefruit juice—these are wholesome, healthful, good sources of vitamins A, B-complex and C and always desirable in the daily diet (the fruit or its juice) to preserve the acid-base balance in blood and tissues. Like tomatoes the most fruits the citrus fruits or their juices tend to keep the blood alkaline and to oppose acidosis. Vinegar, on the other hand, tends to make the blood and tissues less alkaline, the urine acid. So I say, instead of becoming a vinegar toper gratify that craving by taking a glass of tomato juice or lemon or grapefruit juice, or any combination of these that suits your fancy. This will improve your health and vite and appearance. Vinegar will not.

Let me remind you that I use vinegar as a condiment and I know no reason why every one should not do so. I like lemon juice on salad greens, spinach etc., but for my baked beans and boiled cabbage I want vinegar. And if I were going to have sliced cowcumbers—but, come now, let's keep our tempers — you have vinegar on your cowcumbers if you like. I refrain from commenting upon your taste.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Flappy Arms

Can you tell me how to get the upper part of arms hardened or firm—flappy arms, I call it.

(Mrs. B. W.)

Answer—If you mean there are pads of flabby fat around the shoulders and upper arms, follow the regimen outlined in the chapter "Reducing on Four Square Meals a Day" in the booklet "Rules for Reducing"—for copy send 25 cts. and stamped self addressed envelope.

Doctor Laughed

I consulted our doctor about the injections for developing of the breasts and he just laughed at me. From your reply I was led to think one could get such treatment from a physician.

(Mrs. D. J. T.)

Answer—If such semi-weekly hypodermic injections of the hormone are indicated any competent physician will at least give the treatment a try. But whether or no, when your doctor laughed at you he told you plainly enough, did he not, that does not deserve your confidence? A doctor should laugh with his patient, not at her.

Running Ear

Several years ago I followed your advice for running ear. My daughter had been afflicted with running ear for many years. Two doctors treated her for months without benefit. The discharge ceased after we used the drops (boric acid crystals and grain alcohol) for about three months, and she has had no further signs of it now in over three years.

(Mrs. P. L.)

Answer—Thank you for the report. Since I first recommended such drops for chronic running ear, it has become difficult to get the solution (boric acid, ten grains, in grain alcohol, one fluidounce) without prescription. If your druggist cannot supply it on your request, there is nothing further I can do about it—possibly your physician will give the necessary prescription. Details of the treatment in pamphlet mailed on request (no clipping will do) if you provide stamped self addressed envelope.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

About a billion wood lead pencils are made in the United States every year.

"Penny" is not the official or legal designation of any coin minted by the United States. It is merely a colloquial name for the American one-cent piece.

But "penny" has been applied to the American cent since the beginning of the United States coinage system. Until after the Revolution the English penny circulated freely in America. Although one-cent pieces had been previously issued by several of the States, the word cent as the official name of a national coin appeared for the first time in an act of Congress approved August 8, 1786. That law prescribed; "Cents: The highest copper piece, of which 100 shall be equal to the dollar."

On October 16 of the same year Congress ordained, "That no foreign copper coin whatsoever, shall after the first day of September, 1887, be current with the United States of America." This law removed the English penny from circulation in the United States, but the name penny was transferred to the cent in popular usage and it has tenaciously clung to it ever since.

Americans still say, "Penny wise and pound foolish" and "A penny for your thoughts." Somehow "cent" will not serve the purpose in these old sayings.

Bern is the political capital of Switzerland. Many people erroneously suppose that Geneva is.

From the close of the Napoleonic wars in 1815 until 1848 Bern, Zurich and Lucerne shared equally the honor of being the capital and the seat of government and shifted from one to the other every two years.

In 1848 a federal law made Bern the sole political capital and designated it the permanent seat of the Swiss government and the place of residence of foreign ministers accredited to Switzerland.

"Bern" is a corruption of the German word for "bears." According to tradition the city was founded in 1191 by the German Duke Berthold V on a site where he had killed several bears while hunting.

The image of a bear occurred in the earliest known coat of arms of the city and the bear is still the emblem of Bern. Pastries, candies, pipes, toilet articles and all sorts of things bearing the image of the bear are sold in Bern shops, and the likeness of this animal figures in door knockers, gates, fountains and lamp posts throughout the city.

For centuries live bears have been kept on display in pits at public expense in Bern, and during the French Revolution the famous bears of Bern were taken as prisoners to Paris.

Johannes Prophecy

Editor's Note: In response to many requests from readers we are publishing for the third time this remarkable prophecy.

* * *

About the Year 1600 A.D., there wandered through Middle Europe an itinerant scribe whose devout sayings and writings marked him as a man of letters.

His name was Johannes, and many French and Swiss villages contain records of his writings. The most remarkable sample of his work is a prophecy in which modern students of political history see an amazing picture.

Events forecast over four hundred years ago by the wandering savant have unfolded and are unfolding before the eyes of the modern world.

The following key to his prophecy is used by Johannes. France is represented by a Cock; England, a Leopard; Russia, a White Eagle; Germany, a Black Eagle; Austria, the Other Eagle. The Lamb stands for Justice, Mercy and Truth. Hitler is Antichrist.

* * *

Toward the year 2,000, Johannes wrote, the Antichrist will manifest himself and his army will surpass in numbers all can be imagined. There will be Christians among his legions—and Mohammedans and Savages (Indian troops) among the defenders of the Lamb.

For the first time the Lamb will be all red. There will not be a single spot in the Christian world that will not be red, and red will be in the heavens, the earth, the waters and even the air, for blood will flow in the domains of the four elements at once. (The World Wars.)

The Black Eagle will throw himself on the Cock who will lose many of his feathers, but will strike back heroically with his spurs, but would soon be crushed were it not for the help of the Leopard and his Claws. (The invasion of France, and the entry of the British Empire into the war.)

The Black Eagle will come from the country of the Lutherans' and will surprise the Cock and will invade the country of the Cock up to the middle of it. (Germany's occupation of half of France.)

The White Eagle coming from the north will surprise the Black Eagle. (The smashing advance of the Russians after being driven back to Moscow), and the Other Eagle will invade the country of the Antichrist from one end to the other. (Johannes here forecasts an invasion of Germany by Austria.)

The Black Eagle will see himself forced to liberate the Cock in order to fight the White Eagle and the Cock will pursue the Black Eagle into the land of the Antichrist to help the White Eagle. (The evacuation of France and the invasion of Germany by the Allied forces.)

* * *

The battles fought up to this time will be as nothing compared to those which will take place in the country of the Lutherans (example, the Battle of Aachen), for the seven angels will together pursue in their censers on the impious earth, which signifies that the Lamb will order the extermination of the race of the Antichrist.

When the beast sees that he is lost he will become furious and for many months the beak of the White Eagle, the claws of the Leopard and the spurs of the Cock will cross the rivers (the Rhine, the Meuse, Moselle, Scheldt) over the bodies of the slain, and these in places will change the course of the waters. They will bury only the men of noble families and leading commanders because to the carnage made by the armies will be joined those who will die of hunger and of pest. (The people of the occupied countries.)

The Antichrist will ask many times for peace but the seven angels who walk in front of the three animals defending the Lamb have declared that only will peace be granted on the condition that the Antichrist be crushed like straw on the barn floor. (Unconditional surrender, demanded by Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin.)

The executors of the Lamb cannot stop fighting as long as the Antichrist has soldiers to fight against them. (Hitler's power over his troops.)

* * *

The fight which will take place where the Antichrist forges his arms will not in any way be a human fight. (It is possible that Johannes foresaw gas and disease germs being used by Hitler.)

The three animals defending the Lamb will exterminate the last army of the Antichrist, but they will be forced to erect a pyre as large as a city for the bodies of the dead will change the aspect of the countryside as there will be mounds of the slain.

The Antichrist will lose his crown and will die in solitude and madness. His empire will be divided into 22 states, but none of them will be possessed of fortresses, arms and vessels. (Disarmament of Germany.)

The White Eagle by order of St. Michael will drive the crescent from Europe and will instal himself at Constantinople. (Here Johannes sees the invasion and crushing of Turkey by Russia.) Then will begin an era of peace and prosperity for the earth, for there will be no more wars, each nation being governed according to its desires and living according to the rules of Justice. (The end of dictatorship?)

There will no longer be Lutherans or schismatics. The Lamb will reign and supreme happiness of humanity will begin. Happy will be those, who, escaping the perils of that period, will be able to enjoy the fruit of the reign of the Spirit and of the purging of humanity which can come only after the defeat of the Antichrist.

Size of Sardines Is Governed by Wind

Washington, Oct. 14 — A curious relationship between the strength of winds along the Pacific coast, the size of California sardines and the number of eggs taken from henhouses was traced today by a man who has been studying sardines seven long years.

It works out this way:

The wind beating upon the shallow waters of the continental shelf produces a ponderous overturning of the top and bottom water. The winds vary greatly from year to year, and so do the speed and extent of the turnover.

The lower stratum of water is rich in nutrient salts, which ascending toward the surface furnish food for microscopic plants and animal life.

Those minute life-forms represent breakfast, dinner and supper to the California sardine or pilchard, by long odds the most important commercial fish of the U. S.

About two-thirds of the average annual catch of 1,000,000,000 pounds goes directly to mills where it is turned into meal and oil.

Hens eat the rich fish meal and lay more eggs.

Dr. L. A. Walford, fish and wildlife service biologist assigned to the sardine study, said today he had found fluctuations in the sardine's growth directly traceable to the winds.

"It also appears likely that the number of baby fish which survive may be controlled by the same factor," he said.

Rotarians Enjoy 'County Night' At Plainfield

Any one could have called the Belleville Rotary Club a "bunch of stuffed shirts" last night—and got away with it.

For, literally speaking, that is what they were after proving themselves masters of gastronomy at the lavishly covered tables of the Plainfield Orange Hall, where Rotarian girths ranging from perfect thirty-sixes, to rotund seventy-twos, underwent a temporary period of inflation due to the excellent cuisine of the ladies of the United Church there.

One hundred and twenty clubmen, their wives and guests, enjoyed a "country night," that included a rural banquet, that to those with a touch of agricultural blood in their veins, must have been reminiscent of the good old days when "Maw" cooked for the threshers.

If the old adage that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach" holds true, then spinsterdom is doomed forever in this quiet Hastings County village.

The tables were a gourmet's delight. There was chicken, garnished with chicken, and still more chicken, tasty dressing, golden brown scalloped potatoes fresh from oven, and all the country trimmings of salads, jellies, pickles, topped off with a half dozen varieties of pies that would cause an urban restaurateur to go green with envy. The red of MacIntosh apples in nests of blue grapes added a colorful touch to vases of Autumn blooms that graced the tables.

No Speeches.

A usually scheduled highlight of such meetings; one that usually occurs, when well-fed men are content to relax in gastronomic bliss and allow Mother Nature's digestive aids to function properly, the after-dinner guest speaker, was conspicuous by his absence. He, figuratively speaking, was not missed. No one questioned his absence, afraid perhaps such a being might materialize.

Perhaps President "Pink" Pinkston prefers peace and soft music to post-prandial propagandists. In any event, a highly entertaining musical program asserted itself as soon as the clubmen had returned to some semblance of digestive normalcy.

Individual artistry marked the performances of the vocalists and instrumentalists contributing to the program.

Billy Grant's talented xylophone and piano family, including Billy himself, daughter Helen and Mrs. Grant, the latter at the piano, gave fine instrumental interpretations of several numbers. The talented trio generously responded to requested encores. Billy and Helen were heard in both solo and duet.

Miss Ethel Smith, Belleville's sweet-voiced young soprano, delighted her audience with "White Cliffs of Dover" and "When the Lights Come On" with that master of accompaniment, Leo Riggs at the piano. The talented young singer later in the evening sang "God Bless America" by special request.

John Deacon Heard.

That Rotarian songbird, John Deacon, was in rare voice, garnishing his solos with some witty repartee. John sang three numbers with Mrs. Deacon at the piano, and in response to insistent request, topped off a fine musical menu with "Rule Brittania."

Charles Dolan, bearded the ladies in the Rotarian den with a humorous brief speech on "Women." The Dolan sense of humor was at its best, apparently believing there is safety in numbers. His stories anent the fair sex, evoked roars of laughter, even from the ladies themselves.

The Rev. George MacKenzie, pastor of Plainfield United Church responded to a toast to the ladies of his church proposed by Prexy Pinkston. The reverend gentleman offered broad competition to the Dolanian wit with his own stories of the ladies, and expressed appreciation of the concert.

OCTOBER'S TRAIN

October leads her radiant train
O'er all the countryside,
In trappings gay her cavalcades
In proud procession ride;
Her flaming banners float and fling
Their color 'gainst the sky,
As in these sun-filled languid days
Her brilliant train sweeps by.

And when we see her banners float
From every scarlet tree,
When weirdly calls the plover's note
O'er all the fallow lea,
Our spirit answers to the call,
Our gypsy pulse beats high,
And we too join the cavalcade
When autumn's train sweeps by.

For who can view the magic scene
Of these October days—
The trees in scarlet green and gold
Veiled in the lilac haze,
The placid waters of the lake,
The tender blue of sky,
Unheeding of the mystic thrill
As autumn's train sweeps by?

Bay of Quinte Country Club Dance Enjoyed

Tommy Carruthers captured the major golfing honors at the Bay of Quinte Country Club for 1944. Not only did Belleville's No. 1 golfer walk home with the cub championship, but won the President's Cup and Graham Trophy for good measure.

The annual closing dance and presentations of trophies and awards of the Bay of Quinte Country Club was held at the Country and Golf Club last evening. The club house decorations had an autumn atmosphere, which added to the picturesque surroundings along the bay front. A large number of club members and their friends were present to enjoy the evening and honor the golf champions of the year.

Women's Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

Mrs. Rowsome, Trent Road, opened her home for the October meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Windover took the chair and opened with a short devotional period. Mrs. M. Button sang a Thanksgiving hymn. A draw was made for a luncheon set, the proceeds from which are to be used for ditty bags. The winning ticket was held by Mrs. Charles Champaign. Further arrangements were made for the bazaar which the Aid is holding next month. Refreshments were served and a social half hour spent. A vote of thanks to the hostess was moved by Mrs. F. Denyes.

Last week Mrs. Rowsome was hostess to the Aid at their October War Service Party. Euchre was played during the afternoon, the winners being Miss Kay Carson and Miss Aylesworth. A lunch was served by Mrs. Rowsome and her committee and a vote of thanks was moved to them for such an enjoyable afternoon.

JOHNSTOWN W. A.

Mrs. D. Carr entertained the W. A. at her home on Wednesday with a large attendance of members and guests. The President Mrs. Wm. Harry presided with Mrs. G. Stickle at the piano. The program was carried out in a Thanksgiving manner. Readings were given by several ladies and a piano solo by Mrs. G. Stickle. Mrs. E. Brooks gave a contest the prize going to Mrs. F. Meyers. Mrs. C. Curtiss sang a solo.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction. Lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour was spent. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Harder.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 14—(CP)—There is all sorts of entertainment to be had in New York this week—some really good shows have finally hit town, the ballet season has arrived there are paintings to be examined hanging from the walls of Washington Square and a real, live rodeo is on view in Madison Square Garden.

Biggest and best of the recent theatrical arrivals is "Bloomer Girl," a grand-scale musical that looks to be set for a long run at the Shubert Theatre.

When it opened late last week most critics were unstinting with their praise and even the dyspeptic ones admitted it would be a hit.

It stars Celeste Holm—formerly of "Oklahoma!"—and features another "Oklahoma!" original, Joan McCracken, dancer and comedienne, and Negro singer Dooley Wilson of "Casablanca" fame.

Miss Holm has a small but attractive voice and with David Brooks gets a lot out of the somewhat disjointed songs which Harold Arnold and E. Y. Harburg have provided. Mr. Harburg's lyrics have the edge on Mr. Arlen's music, while neither of them has much to do with each other or with the libretto.

The show misfires in spots and lacks conception of pace, but is big, well-cast, well-costumed and by now fashionable. It will be with us for some time.

The ballet season opened at the Metropolitan this week and the gladsome cries of "bravissimo!" rise from the throats of the balletomanes in the crisp October air. The ballet theatre's varied repertoire will delight them for a full month before the opera season starts.

A return of "The Merry Widow" with Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth has replaced Helen Hayes' "Harriet" at the City Centre. Present revival run is scheduled for a month.

Musical comedy stars keep popping in and out of casts with confusing frequency. Ethel Merman won't play the lead in the forthcoming "Sadie Thompson"—Somerset Maugham's "Rain" with music—because she objects to the lyrics, and June Havoc, late of "Mexican Heyride," has moved in because she doesn't . . . Connee Boswell has joined the Lou Holtz "Star Time" show.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

TAKE IT FROM EVE

Another thing besides cold waffles and a cooled summer romance which can't be warmed over, is a dead and cold political issue.

It is delightful to meet a seasoned married man, who is as highly polished as he was in his wolfing-days, and has not acquired the "dull finish" of domesticity. There is really nothing about a happy, contented marriage to cramp a man's style or rub the beauty off his manners.

Why does a husband demand hotel service in the home these maidless days, says Cynical Sybil, and then complain if he can't get home comforts and home-cooking in a hotel? For the same reason, no doubt, that he married a brunette but still likes to stare at blondes. It's the mule-complex.

How does a stenographer become a private secretary? She does that automatically when she learns everything about a man's business and knows enough not to tell anything.

When love dies a girl closes the door of her heart and locks it in, where she can remember it; a man closes the door of his heart and locks it out, where he can forget it.

After a few years of daily scrapping, a man doesn't care what a woman thinks about him so long as she can't prove it before a judge; and a woman doesn't care where a man goes evenings so long as he doesn't slam the door when he comes in.

Three-quarters of a man's reason for marrying a girl is to prevent any other man from getting her. But no sophisticated girl ever kidded herself into believing that just by putting a man on a legal leash, she is preventing any other woman from getting him.

You are not a real celebrity, in these days, until the fact that you are happily married is "news."

A girl has lots of faith in herself nowadays; but she will still run around to beauty parlors and starve herself down to a shadow in order to hold a husband whose love should be as secure as her back teeth.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

It's Natural to Use Artifice

During the last decade or two the world's viewpoint on the use of artifice as applied to lovely ladies has done a turn-about. Our great-grandmothers would writhe in their graves if they knew about it. In their day, imitation of any kind was considered not only in bad taste, but also vulgar. It was the era of handmade lace, complexions uncontaminated with powder, real jewels. But, a funny thing! There was no prejudice against demountable hair. Many a yard long "switch" was put to bed every night in the dresser drawer. Well, a lot of water has flowed under the good-looks bridge since then.

Even the facelift has become respectable. The woman who has been dewrinkled makes no bones about it. She's as casual when she mentions the subject as she would be if she were talking about a visit to her dentist. She just decided to have a few tucks taken in her countenance, preferring tucks to shirrings and puckers. Why not, for goodness sake?

The advent of the lipstick was regarded with horror. It was believed that cheek rouge made a girl look cheap, that "nice girls" would never resort to factory blushes. But did they? Some of them fairly wallowed in them. If the blue-nosed critic protested, they had an answer. "Yes, it is synthetic beauty. It does things to our souls, and you can go jump in the ocean."

Everybody realizes that make-up has helped many a drab looking woman to emerge from the back row of the good-looks chorus. So three cheers and a lot of hand claps to cosmetic chemists and those brave make-up pioneers who dared to challenge public opinion.

There was a prejudice against hair dyes and bleaches that persists to a certain extent even now, tho' nobody can offer objections if the job is well done. Professional treatment by an expert will produce results that defy detection. Many a head of doctored locks looks as natural as the pristine growth. Hair dyeing has become one of the cosmetic arts. And, if a woman has subjected her head to the dye pot, she doesn't care who knows it. What of it? And whose business is it?

Mama Nature never gave a woman blue or mauve hair, yet you see it often enough. The white-crested sisters have taken a fancy to it. When they get tired of it, they have a shampoo, and the silver threads are back to normal; no harm done. It is attractive, too when the skin is a delicate pink and white, eyes a deep blue, lips lightly tinted like the rose bud. Again we ask you, why not? These matters are pleasantly exciting, harm nobody, and have placed the beauty business among the foremost industries of Uncle Sam's domain.

Let us rejoice that we do not live in the days when powdering the impertinent nose was the only good-looks diversion.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Widow Uses Her Husband's Name.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A widow I know says that she should still use her husband's name ..Mrs. John Smith. But I tell her that she should now go by her own name, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, for I have always thought that after the husband dies, the widow drops his first name, and uses hers. Who is right?

—E.

The widow is right. The advice you gave her is completely and entirely wrong, and I hope that you will assure her at once that you were wrong, and that she is right. And not only were you wrong about the proper name for a widow to use, but you were wrong in suggesting that a woman should use "Mrs." before her first name .. socially, this is never correct. A married woman is Mrs. John Smith. A widow is still Mrs. John Smith. A divorcee is Mrs. Robinson (her maiden surname) Smith. (Sometimes a married woman in business or profession prefers to use Mrs. Mary Smith, but this is not the proper social form.)

The rule about a widow's name is simple. When Mary Jones married John Smith, she became Mrs. John Smith. And Mrs. John Smith she is, whether her husband is living or whether she is a widow. A widow "wears" the name her husband gave her just as she continues to wear the wedding ring he gave her, for both are sacred symbols of their life together.

Write Him a Friendly Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it ever permissible for a girl to begin a correspondence with a man friend of many years standing? This friend has been divorced for two years, and I have just recently heard about it. We were teen age sweethearts, and I should very much enjoy a friendly correspondence with him, although I assure you I don't intend to write romantic letters. I was brought up by a very strict aunt and uncle on a very high standard. This man was brought up in much the same way, but because of the divorce I feel sure he would be reluctant to begin the correspondence. I would be grateful for your advice about whether or not I may write to him; and if you think I may, what the first letter should be like.

—A Perplexed Miss.

I believe it will be all right for you to write to this man, and I believe, too, that the chances may be good for his remembering you as the friendly, straightforward girl your letter shows so convincingly you are. Your first letter to him must be, as you must fully realize, mighty discreet, brief, and with no hint that you wish either a renewal of the friendship or the start of a correspondence. For I judge from your letter that you have had no way to know about the circumstances of this man .. and in the two years since his divorce he may, remember, have chosen another No. 1 girl. So any follow-up must be left to his judgment. Your first note (and I mean note, not letter) might be just a message that any friend would have the right to write to a friend .. that you have just heard of his divorce, and that you want to tell him how sorry you are that this unhaapiness has come to him; then send him your best wishes for his future welfare and happiness.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A WAR-BRIDE'S COURAGE

Most of the young war-brides whose husbands have had to leave them, feel that they are making a pretty big sacrifice, and I agree with them.

But almost everyone of these lonely girls has some compensation—a baby to take care of, or a baby not yet arrived. Or they find distraction through the Red Cross or in actual war work.

Here's a girl, however, who feels that she has nothing to help her through this hard period but her love for her husband and his for her. Perhaps it will help to fortify some of the girls who don't realize their own relative good-fortune if I share with them the following letter from Lois D.:

"Sometimes I am nearly crazy with happiness, just from knowing that Jim and I are married and that we love each other as deeply as we do. Fortunately, this knowledge is enough for me, since I have nothing else—no baby, no house of my own, not even the privilege of managing my own life.

"I live with my mother, an invalid whose arthritis gets worse every day. She is a very dominating woman and still treats me as a child. So I am imprisoned at home and can never get out to see my friends or do any war work, and though I am now grown up (19) and married, I am not at liberty to invite the people I like to come to see me.

"Indeed, I cannot secure any freedom for myself without scenes and quarrels and these I am determined to avoid. I can't even have the satisfaction of talking about Jim, because mother, though she is never affectionate to me, seems to be very jealous of him.

"Of course, I do manage to write long letters to my husband and he to me, and that is what we both live on. That, and the knowledge that some day, even if mother does live with us, we shall have the joy and comfort of being permanently together with our own lovely home and a family and a normal married life.

"I suppose the real reason why I can endure this waiting is that we not only adore each other but trust each other completely, so that even years of separation wouldn't make our love any less. That may sound foolishly romantic to most people, but I hope not to you, Miss Fairfax. Jim and I are a romantic pair and I don't think a temporary separation is going to cure us of that. So I keep a stiff backbone and dry eyes and watch my calendar. A year, already. How much longer must it be?

LOIS D."

Thousands of girls, by their present bravery and cheerfulness, are richly earning the domestic happiness that is in store for them later on. But don't you think that Lois is earning hers under greater difficulties than most of the others? And isn't she an example, also, of the surprising strength that love can give?

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, Oct. 14 (CP)—Plain, old fashioned oatmeal is one of the best sources of vitamin B...the vitamin so many Canadians find hard to pack into their daily fare, says the Nutrition Division. So, menu planners, give a thought to how oatmeal can be used more often.

It isn't limited to porridge and cookies. Consider the possibilities of oatcakes, quick breads and cakes. Use a little to thicken soup and in the dressing for fowl. There is no shortage of oatmeal and it costs about a third of the price of ready-to-eat cereals.

Baked Onions and cheese on toast: What to serve a famished family at lunch time is a perennial problem for most homemakers, and here's the answer straight from the experts in the Agriculture Department testing kitchen.

Peel and slice six onions crosswise and cook in boiling water until nearly tender..about 15 minutes. Drain well. Arrange six slices of toast in a greased, shallow baking dish and place onions in it with three-quarters of a cup of grated cheese. Beat one egg and one cup of milk together, add one-half teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of paprika and pour over onions. Dot with one tablespoon of butter and oven poach for about 40 minutes at about 350 degrees fahrenheit. This serves six.

Saving Wool: Have you been in the habit of discarding a needleful of wood? It may seem only a short length, the Prices Board consumer branch says, but it can be put to a variety of uses...the day may come when you'll want to eke out enough of that color for a reinforcement job or to sew up seams.

Sometimes several tiny balls of wool may be left over from knitting multi-colored socks or two-toned sweaters. A practical way to use these bits of wool to good advantage, say the experts, is to make gloves with each finger a different color, knitted into a plain dark palm.

Coal Savers: Experts have estimated that the amount of coal saved by installing tight-fitting storm windows is more than 350 pounds per window, which means that by using them more than a ton of coal can be saved each year in a home with six windows.

Cooking Cauliflower: When you are using cauliflower as a vegetable, save some of the flowerets to use raw in a mixed salad, Nutrition Services suggests. The stalks and tender green leaves should not be discarded but cooked with the rest of the cauliflower. Since the stalks take slightly longer to cook, they should be sliced and started a few minutes before the "flowers" are added.

Refrigerator Sense: We speak of "wrapping up against the cold," and when food is put in the refrigerator wrapped in paper or paper bags, it is literally wrapped up against the cold, for the paper acts as an insulator, preventing the cold from reaching the food.

SWIMMER AT 70

Torquay, England (CP) — To celebrate his 70th. birthday, J. W. Hobbs attempted to swim across Torquay's 1,000 yard inner harbor. Cold forced him to give up after 750 yards but he intends to try again when the weather is warmer.

Fashion Flashes

It seems agreed that this is a season for strong colors. So there is a place for a lovely, loosely cut full-length coat of tangerine-colored woolen, lined with nutria and made with an upstanding fur collar and narrow tuxedo revers in one. Deep nutria cuffs. Fine with browns or grays.

It's a good season for waistcoats designed to give warmth or beauty, or both, to suits. We admired a sleek waistcoat of pink woolen cross-barred with black sequins, and good with velvet, satin or wool suits.

Gradually skirts seem to be easing up, albeit they still conform to government specifications. A charming frock of black silk taffeta, made with big bow-tied neck, has a fairly full skirt. Fullness in the front is held by a wide belt of petunia-pink suede.

Dress up a simple dinner suit of satin, wool or velvet with a pailletted satin scarf and gloves to match.

If you possess a piece of fur left over from your coat, or if there is a nice bit of fur in your grab-bag, then have it cut into an Ascot and line it with vivid satin, say deep pink or bright green for nutria or leopard, purple for Persian lamb, and wear it with an untrimmed suit or coat.

Elegance extends to the house-coat too. Made for dining at home, and looking dignified yet comfortable, is a coat of rayon jacquard faille in parma blue or shocking pink with black velvet collar and two buttons of velvet at the double breasted slim waist closing.

The War Today—

Psychological and Military Value of Aachen is Very Great

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Few battles for cities in this war have so intrigued the peoples of the western Allies as that for ancient Aachen, probably because they hope that from it they can learn the strength of Germany's determination and the extent of her ability to make a finish fight.

It's likely that this grim battle will indeed give us a fairly accurate answer to the problem — which is both military and psychological. Already it is clear that Hitler intends to make this a test case, as witness the manner in which he has flung crack armored troops into the conflict at the approaches to the town. Thus we have further confirmation that he is determined to hang on to the death, and still is capable of causing plenty of trouble.

On the other side of the ledger is proof that not all German soldiers or civilians are willing to die for him. His officers in Aachen have been shooting both civilians and soldiers who tried to surrender. However, that's not conclusive, and further evidence is needed to enable us to gauge the dictator's control over his people.

Berlin brags that the Nazi commander who rejected the American ultimatum to surrender replied: — "Even an American cannot ask a city like Aachen, where 37 German Emperors were crowned, to surrender.

Germany Cannot Afford to Give up Aachen

He would have been more accurate if he had said: "Germany cannot afford to surrender a famous old city like Aachen — the first important city to be attacked by land forces in the Fatherland proper since the days of Napoleon." Loss of Aachen will be a tremendous shock to German morale — so great that Hitler dare not risk it if he possibly can hang on. If by hook or by crook he could build out of it an epic of German resistance, it would strengthen morale.

By the same token, the Allies need Aachen for the psychological effect on the Germans. But that's only half the story. Militarily this city is of great importance to both sides. For the Allies it's the gateway in the corridor leading from Belgium into Germany — a vital railway and highway centre. For the Germans it's a powerful defensive anchor in their Siegfried Line.

Capital Closeups

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 14 —(CP)— The politicians, not the reporters, are asking the questions these days.

Although it is between-session time in Ottawa there's a constant ebb and flow of members of parliament who visit the Capital to see if they can find out what is brewing about the general election. By their own admission, they don't find out much of importance and they're willing to accept opinions where they can find them.

Ingenuity: The naval tradition of ingenuity has been handed down to the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service. A woman reporter visiting a Wrens public relations officer at teatime was—according to hospitable custom—given tea and cookies. The tray was set on a table and the tea cups lifted—revealing an oil painting of a destroyer at full steam.

The office building boasted no tea-tray, so the Wren simply took a picture from her office wall for temporary duty. It went back on the wall after tea.

The Rolling Main: M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, looking uncomfortable with a pair of heavily-framed spectacles, has his own vigorous opinion of the English Channel. When he visited France recently he was permitted to make the return trip to England aboard a landing barge carrying prisoners many of them men of nations friendly to the Allies who had been forced to serve the Germans.

When the barge pulled out from shore the prisoners sang happily, although they were not sailing for England in the way the Germans had said they would.

Out a bit, the weather became choppy and the singing became less loud. In the tumultuous ride that followed the singing stopped entirely and prisoners discovered they were not sailors. Mr. Coldwell, a good sailor, just broke his glasses as the barge lunged about.

You Don't Get Thin On Lumber Camp Meals

By BRIAN WHITE
of Ottawa Journal

Here are some odds and ends gathered on a recent 1,000 mile trip through Northern Ontario. This piece has nothing to do with the original purpose of that trip—which was to view postward land settlement projects—but is concerned with a little-known Ontario railway; a lumber camp meal which shattered old impressions; on how the U.S. army came to Ontario, and a community centre which puts most such projects in the shade.

• •

The railway is the Algoma Central, which started out with the idea of linking Hudson Bay with Sault Ste. Marie but has settled on Hearst as its northern terminus. It is not a very well known railway, especially down here in Eastern Ontario, but serves a very useful function and some magnificent country. It also runs through about 200 miles of the dreariest land imaginable. On its entire 300 miles there is not a community larger than Carp.

On the map it appears to run almost due north from the Sault to Hearst, crossing the main transcontinental lines of the C.N. and C.P. railways. But railway maps never do show the interesting curves and the A.C.R. has plenty. At many a point a traveller in the rear car can look out to see the locomotive doubling back, especially when the passenger cars are at the end of a long train of pulp-log cars. Pulp logs, and some coal and iron ore, are the life blood of the A.C.R. Passengers are incidental.

Unfortunately our party started our A.C.R. journey at the wrong end—from Hearst—at an unearthly hour on a cold morning. To get a good impression one should start from the south, at the Sault, and not bother going beyond Hawk Junction, or better still, not beyond the first 100 miles. The scenery along that first stretch is unsurpassed east of the Rockies, great mountains on either side of the rails, numerous lakes and rivers, long trestle bridges, sudden glimpses of vast Lake Superior through breaks in the hills. This is a tourist paradise and the A.C.R. makes the most of it. Its trains are crowded with American business men trying to look like north country guides, and Indians in city clothes. It's a motly and interesting crowd. You hear good stories of big fish and moose.

Over the divide the country loses its grandeur, becomes flat, then swampy, and the line runs through many an abandoned lumber camp. There are several prisoners-of-war camps along this stretch, though they cannot be seen. The final few miles into Hearst is through country that may become good farm land but is now chiefly given over to pulpwood cutters, who provide some 30 carloads daily during the season for the A.C.R. to take south to American mills.

In the main the A.C.R. is a lonely railway, still very much a pioneering road.

Lumber camp meals traditionally consist of beans and salt pork. Well, maybe that was once true, but it is no longer, at least not in Northern Ontario. There is such keen competition for available men up there that meals have become the main bait to attract cutters. The camp owner prizes a good cook, there is competition to set the best table, and the men shop around and stay only as long as the fare is plentiful, well cooked and shows variety.

Our party had a noon-day meal at a pulpwood camp about forty miles west of Hearst, four miles off the very excellent TransCanada Highway. We were assured this was the regular meal served in that camp every day at noon. There was tomato juice for a start, soup, choice of well fried pork chops, lamb steaks and excellent beef steak; fresh peaches and bananas; four kinds of pie, each cut in four pieces; three kinds of bread and hot biscuits; two kinds of tea, coffee and milk. Down the centre of the table were a couple of dozen bottles of all kinds of pickles and preserves and a large jar of pickled eggs. There was no limit to the servings, just all one could eat. One old-style lumber camp habit had been retained; there were only two eating utensils, a large tin mug for all liquids and a white enamel plate. You wiped them out between courses with a piece of bread.

We were assured this meal was not unusual, in fact it was essential to retain help. The pulpwood cutters work piecework, $4 a cord, and pay a nominal amount for meals and board; not nearly enough to provide the kind of meals they were getting. Camps were judged by their meals.

• •

Incidentally, that Trans-Canada Highway between Cochrane and Hearst is an excellent road. The gravel up there is fine and packs well; there is plenty of moisture to keep dust down. We were assured it was equally good on the long and lonely stretch west of Hearst through Geraldton and down to Nipigon and Port Arthur. Leaving Hearst there is a large sign: "Have You Gas? Are Your Tires Good? 155 Miles to Next Garage."

• •

About ten miles north of Hearst we came upon an abandoned U.S. Army camp, which later linked up with things we saw in the Sault. Apparently the theory was that if the Germans tried a suicide attempt to damage one vital spot in America that spot would be to the Sault canals and locks; to cripple the steel production of both the U.S. and Canada; block a vital traffic artery. At least that is the theory we were given to understand.

Well, the result was that even the Canadian side of the Sault was declared a U.S. Army area and for over two years, until last March, was garrisoned by more than 2,000 U.S. troops, many of them colored. There were 73 barrage balloons flying over the locks and the Canadian city.

Then up to James and Hudson Bays there were a string of aircraft detection posts, each with around 75 men from the U.S. army. It was one of these posts we saw near Hearst, several ordinary camp buildings and one huge frame structure said to have contained the listening apparatus. Several of the U.S. soldiers married Hearst girls. At the Sault we were told the U.S. soldiers were popular during their two years' stay in Canada, had been little trouble. Now the whole place is peaceful again, but strangers still can't get near the vital locks.

• •

Another sidelight on eating. The T. and N.O. Railway out of North Bay have a restaurant car that is the centre of a lot of admiring attention. Railwaymen are going up there just to see it. The counter is the full length of the car, there are stools and it looks very much like an oversized city soda fountain. They serve everything from a coke to steak dinners. It is air-conditioned and tastefully decorated with murals. Unlike most railway diners it has paid since the first day and the girls like to work in it. It is crowded from early morning to late evening. The car was outfitted right in the T. and N.O. shops at North Bay.

In the original stories on this trip I made passing mention of the big community centre operated by McIntyre Mines at Schumacher, just outside Timmins, and the flower show being held there. People ask if this is really as fine a building as I have claimed.

Well I have never heard of anything better, or more up-to-date, in Canada. There is a rink surface said to be as large as the Maple Leaf Gardens, artificial ice; a quickly removable wooden floor for roller skating or big dances, platform for band, loudspeaker system, and comfortable seats. In another section are six curling surfaces with ice made artificially, bowling alleys, a big gymnasium, swimming pool and showers, a banquet hall and cafeteria, lecture and concert hall where smaller dances can also be held. It is all housed in an attractive brick and stone building, modern in every way, and the building itself is just on the edge of big formal gardens which surround the mine fence.

Every step forward cost

From the time that Allied Forces landed in Italy until they entered Rome, the material cost of their equipment and supplies amounted to $6,000,000,000!

This means that every bitterly contested step of their march cost $4,000! That is only the material cost and does not include the toll of suffering and death.

The fighting in Europe is growing in fierceness and intensity. The enemy is fighting desperately with the sullen doggedness of the doomed. It will take mountains of material and millions for munitions to keep him on the run. That is why there must be a 7th Victory Loan . . . for, with Victory in sight, our men must have ample supplies of everything it takes to win, and win quickly.

With the war at the peak of its intensity, Canada must borrow $320,000,000 more this year than last. $70,000,000 of this is due to the cancellation of Compulsory Savings. The Victory Loan provides funds to meet the cost of war by voluntary means . . . gives you a chance to do your part.

Victory Bonds enable you to Lend your money to make sure that Canada's forces have enough of everything needed for a speedy Victory. Victory Bonds are Canada's safest investment and will provide you with a nest egg for your own future. Buy one more than before . . . join in the march to Victory.

Reliance Boxing Club Gives 1,700 Fans Real Thrill When Ten Good Bouts Are Carded

Main Bout Between Wheeler and Downes Stopped in Second

FAIR DECISIONS

Boxing in Belleville again drew a capacity crowd at the Hume Arena Friday night when upwards to 1,700 exhuberant fans placed their approval upon the manly art of self-defence in the second show presented by the Reliance Boxing Club.

When it came to ring orchids, however, the Doug Day-Dave Thompson bout stole the show over the top of the main attraction, that Referee Fred Parry had to call after Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, the pride of Oshawa, had cut Jerry Downes' eye open early in the second round of the main go.

Stepping out strongly Day, a local comer, and Thompson, of Peterborough, refrained from wild ring antics and sparred strongly for position punching from the outset. Both boxers moved in fast and at close range exchanged hard lefts and rights early in the bout. However, the Peterboro' boy gained a slight edge in the second round with his inside fighting Day elected to shoot his hard left with effectiveness. About even going into the final round again Day endeavored to measure his opponent with the old "one-two", but Thompson moved inside with his experience and after tying Day up won a narrow-margin decision in the best bout on the program.

More Effective Blows

Starting off the show Harry Whitmarsh, of Belleville, landed the more effective blows in the final round to gain a margin decision over Len Webb of Trenton. In the second bout Jim McDonald of Trenton was unable to answer the bell for the third round and Al Smith of Oshawa was given the verdict after some early strong exchanges of punches that saw Smith steadily move to the fore and win.

The third scrap brought the fans to their feet when Chuck Hewson of Belleville, out-slugged Everett Rushnell of Trenton to win. There was little caution in this bout as both boys swung leather from the proverbial floor and there was little to decide until Hewson got in the odd left and right to Rushnell's noggin that settled matters, insofar as the judges were concerned. It was one of those swing hard, and hope to conk scraps that the fans really went for.

Gord Woods of Trenton, kept the home town honors clean when he used an effective left into Jim Higgins' face, Higgins being an Oshawa boy. Here again the fans howled with glee as Higgins and Woods stood toe to toe and slugged it out for two rounds, with Woods winning in the final stanza by driving over strong right punches to Higgins' head.

Oshawa Boy Wins

Crabby Crandell of Oshawa, gained the decision over Tom Graham of Trenton in the next bout with an effective left hand that was continually in Graham's face. Graham elected to fight it out with Crandell in the final round and tossed leather with abandon, but Crandell had piled up too many points for the Trenton boy.

In a grudge fight Georgie Palmanter, one of matchmaker Bill Crawford's better scrappers, came close to knocking out Joey McPhee, of Oshawa. Palmanter continued to force the fight and used an effective short left to carry through to McPhee's head with a hard right that occasionally rocked the Motor City scrapper to his proverbial heels. However, McPhee weathered an early storm of blows and even after his Oshawa seconds tossed in the towel, which Palmanter refused to accept as victory, McPhee went on fighting gamely, but he could not counter-act the strong two-fisted punching of the local lad, who won going away.

Wins Close Decision

Rance Bush of Belleville, kept his left mitt in Buddy O'Brien's face early and often to win a close decision over the visiting boxer, who didn't take any too well to the judges' decision. Here saw a strong hard-hitting bout with O'Brien electing to use rapier lefts against Bush, while the local lad rocked the Oshawa scrapper with hard rights to the head in counter punching. Bush changed his style in the last round to keep his left mitt out in front and punch himself to a win. For hard hitting this bout stood out, as both boys spired occasionally and let loose with those socks that shock the teeth of even the spectators in the front row.

Main Bout Good

In the main bout the fans saw all-out fighting in the initial round when "Dynamite" Wheeler, of Oshawa and a grand drawing card in Belleville, exchange punches with our own Jerry Downes. Electing to slug it out both Wheeler and Downes tried for that old "K.O." early and often and there was little to choose from in the initial round. However, early in the second stanza Wheeler hit Downes with the front of his right open glove resulting in the lace cutting Downes' right eye wide open and as the blood flowed freely Referee Fred Parry halted the ring hostilities and the fans left the Market St. sports palace well satisfied in the fact they had seen another swell boxing show. Promoters Fred Fisher and Bill Crawford later announced there would be another highclass boxing show at the Hume Arena in the near future.

The officials of the night were:-

Referee, Fred Parry; judges, Joe Samain, Geo. Wallbridge and Harry Robinson. Announcer, Maurice Callaghan and time-keeper, Harold Kurtz.

Tunney Coming To Our Town For Next Bout

Watson and Rasputin Rematched to a Finish; No Time Limit This Time

It's Billie Watson and Ivan Rasputin all over again at the Hume Arena next Wednesday night, but under much different circumstances than previously. The "white-haired" Watson and the Mad Russian have been rematched by Promoter Tunney in a finished bout with no time limit stressed.

"There have been a continued number of complaints reaching my office regarding Rasputin's recent ring tactics. What, this tack business the fans are protesting about is actually a mystery to me, but I will be in Belleville next week myself to see what goes on and if there is anything illegal I'll personally intervene and see the patrons receive full value for their admission fee," stated Promoter Frank Tunney over the telephone to Arena Manager Walt Gerow today.

There have been repeated protests by Hume Arena wrestling patrons regarding Rasputin's manner of winning his last two bouts here. However, over the finished fight route Watson and the Mad Russian should have ample time to give the patrons plenty of action and it's an assured fact Watson won't fall victim for the "tack racket" a second time. Two highclass preliminaries start the show off.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Two traveling salesmen were spending Saturday and Sunday in a hotel in Chicago:

First Traveling Man—Let's go up to State and Monroe and watch the parade.

Second Traveling Man — I don't care much for parades; I'd rather rest here.

First (insisting)—A perfectly nude girl is going to ride a big white horse in this parade.

First—Oh, in that case, I'll sure go; I haven't seen a horse in 15 years.

They Deed It.

Again Bill Crawford and his Reliance cohorts proved that all Belleville sport fans ask for is action. In the revival of the fight game here the Reliance Boxing Club have now put on two successful shows in the amateur mitt-slinging ranks. It took a preliminary bout to steal the honors of last night's show, but that's what makes boxing. The scrap the fans liked best was the go between Doug Day and Dave Thompson. The local lad lost the decision, but Douglas won himself a lot of friends and supporters, simply because Doug waltzed in and exchanged punches with a more experienced boxer. And after all that is the only way the game will ultimately be revived. Unfortunately the main scrap had to be terminated abruptly after Jerry Downes' eye was cut open, but even then the fans left the arena well satisfied with their lot. Skipper Bill Crawford says he has good bouts lined up and after all that's all the fans ask for.

Here's a Free One.

Over at Batawa last night there was revelry by night, the occasion being a banquet and social evening to honor the Bata "Bombers", 1944 Intermediate "C" champions of the O. A. S. A. (No, the local Marines and Squires won't be in on any such celebrations this year).

'Tis rumored, and we mean rumor in every sense of the word, that the Bata "Bombers" feel they are just about the best softball nine in Eastern Ontario today. And that includes the SACO "Marines", Intermediate "A" finalist. Quite frequently October gives over to bright, warm sunshiny afternoons and with Wednesday still being a civic half holiday in our town there is little or no reason why the "Bombers" should not have an opportunity to cross bats with the "Marines", say here next Wednesday afternoon. The Fair Grounds diamond is available and played for sweet charity such a gurdge softball game would prove even more than interesting, that is if the Intermediate "A" finalists have recovered from their Fort Erie shock. (The suggestion doesn't cost a cent, as a matter of fact it might prove a revenue producer.)

Remember When.

George C. Foster, secretary of the St. Louis Browns of the American League, and James R. Kearney, a director of the club, resigned five years ago today, apparently in protest over the team's disastrous 1939 season during which the Browns lost 111 games. Maybe they've lived to regret such snap decisions by now.

About Time.

Promoter Frank Tunney says he's coming to Belleville next week to see what the "tack racket", introduced by Ivan Rasputin, is all about. It seems "Whipper Billie" Watson complained to Tunney regarding Rasputin's newest ring rachet and naturally Marse Tunney immediately became interested. In order to witness things first-handed Tunney rematched Watson and Rasputin to a finished match with no time limit for his next show here and in order that the fans may be assured of no further "Rasputin Tack Rackets" Tunney is going to personally supervise next week's show. And it's about time.

Marion the Difference.

Baseball experts are of the firm opinion that the big difference between the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns was Marty Marion, the Cards' sterling shortstop. They even go so far as to suggest had Marion been at the Browns' shortfield position the Sewell-led crowd probably would have won the 1944 baseball classic, due, no doubt, to Marty's ability to shut off run after run with one dazzling play after another. The experts are even mentioning Marion in the same breath with the great Hans Wagner of old, which in itself brings Marion up in a class with baseball's greats.

When you get away from Marion, the next eye-catching part of the series was the record number of strike-outs. The most extraordinary part of that was the most of the Brownies went down with their bats on their shoulders. At least the Cardinals went down swinging. But the Brownies just stood there like statues.

Advice From Klem.

This brings to mind the time Bill Klem, the self-styled old abritrator, called a third strike on a batter. The indignant hitter wheeled around and bellowed, "You missed that one, Bill."

Klem glared at him for a moment and boomed, "If I'd have had a bat in my hands, I wouldn't have missed it." That squelched him immediately.

LESSON NO. 595

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Yes, indeed. There is method in the seeming madness of a high opening bid. Its aim is to give and get unusual advices. That's how it is with an opening bid of three in a major suit.

What unusual information is given by such an opening? That it contains an unusually long and strong suit. That the suit expects to stand up as trump without any help in it from partner.

It promises something else unusual. It says that it expects to take the unusual number of eight tricks. Incidentally, it admits a sure trick in some suit outside of trumps.

Generally, one little card in that suit is fully enough support for it. Anyway, the suit expects to lose no more than one trick even if partner has no card in it. That's how unusual it is.

Having eight tricks and such a suit, a hand like that needs no more than two tricks from partner to make a game. And it may make a game even if partner has an unusual holding of only one trick.

So, in answer to such a bid it is common practice to make some responding bid with anything but a trickless hand. That unusual leeway is conceded the partner of a three bidder.

The responding bid for showing a mere trick or more is a simple assist to four in the bid suit. Only with two sure tricks should the responding bid be something other than four in the suit.

When partner opens with three spades, suppose you have this hand:

♥6
♣10 8 7 3

Your hand looks practically worthless by itself. Under almost any other circumstances, you would not consider making any bid with such a hand. You would be glad of a chance to pass it.

But with what your partner has shown, your hand suddenly looms as quite a help. Instead of being useless, it is all that partner says he needs to help make a game in his suit.

So, your response with that hand is a bid of four spades. That denies having two sure tricks and admits that your hand is not absolutely trickless.

It may not promise much. But it shows more than a whisper.

Toronto, Oct. 14 —(CP)— All ready to get dolled up in their hockey duds, but with no one to play against—that's the sad fate of the R.C.A.F. Seahawks on the west coast. Hawks, recruited from a flock of Pacific coast air bases, have the makings of what they fondly hope might be an Allan Cup team, but they can't get into a league, Duke McLeod reports in the Vancouver Sun.

Service regulations prevent them from playing against civilian teams in any organized league, the army just won't enter hockey this year because of a little matter of some players not being on general, or active, service and the navy isn't a mite interested.

So the airmen, boasting five former N.H.L. players and a flock of other good men, probably will wilt with the winter frosts and disappear without ever getting a crack at the honors. If a team can't play, it just doesn't amount to much of a team, and hasn't a sunbathing snowman's chance against teams used to regular competition.

Available for Hawk hockey purposes on the coast are goalie Legs Fraser of the old Glace Bay Miners and Montreal Canadiens, centre Johnny Quilty of Les Canadiens, Wingy Johnston of the Chihawks, Jack Adams, another Montrealer, and Joe Fisher of Detroit's forward lines.

Besides that, Bobby Kirk who performed with New York Rangers, also could turn in a creditable performance if need be. Then there are others, such as Hal McBride of Sydney Millionaires, Doug Norris, a former professional with Spokane Clippers, Stan King of Port Arthur Bearcats, Lou Lahovitch of Vancouver Lions, and numerous others.

Yes, they are all dressed up, and though they have some place to go they don't know how to get there.

Chitchat.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson calls St. Louis Cardinals the "Canadiens of Baseball," in that they are practically of pre-war potency—something very uncommon these days in either fact or spirits . . . Artistic prodigies of the boxing and wrestling rings have to take a back seat to scrapper Steve Belinki, now pastiming around London, Ont. Steve is quite the boy when it comes to plunking out Ukrainian jam and jive on the piano, and is adept at the folk dances as well. What he is doing in the ring we wouldn't know . . . Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott thinks, with some reason, that Canadian football should be opened up a bit with more daring lateral passing attacks instead of more conventional forms of attack. More onside kicking also would be an improvement and get a bit more surge into the spectacle these days. . . .

LACROSSE GAME TO BE PLAYED AT THE GARDENS

New Westminster and St. Catharines Settle Differences Amicably

MAY PLAY IN HAMILTON

Toronto, Oct. 14 —(CP)—All is quiet on the lacrosse front today following settlement of an almost week-long dispute over the playing of the fourth game of Mann Cup series for the Canadian championship.

The two contenders for the title—New Westminster Salmonbellies and St. Catharines Athletics will meet here tonight. Athletics hold a 2-1 edge in games the best-of-five series.

If a fifth game is necessary, its venue will be announced later by E. E. Barnes of Vancouver, President of the Canadian Lacrosse Association. However, it will probably be at Hamilton.

The dispute was settled amiably at St. Catharines last night after Barnes and four other C. L. A. executives: W. G. Easterbrook, secretary-treasurer, and Lyle Barr, also of Vancouver; Jack McDonald, Mimico, Ont., and Gene Dopp Toronto immediate past-president, went to the Garden City to discuss the situation with the executive of the St. Catharines Lacrosse Association.

The fourth game had been set for St. Catharines for last Thursday night, but Salmonbellies refused to play there because the constitution provided that Mann Cup games be played in an enclosed rink.

Mr. Barnes told the executives—which voted 9-4 in favor of meeting New Westminster here tonight—that the C. L. A. assumed all responsibility for the mix-up.

"Salmonbellies," he said, "had not been notified in writing" that if a fourth game was necessary it would be played at St. Catharines and there was nothing the C. L. A. could do but cancel the game in the Garden City.

The C. L. A., however, he said, would assume all financial obligations incurred by the St. Catharines Club in making their plans for a home game.

"I am gratified," Barnes said, at the sportsmanship of the St. Catharines Club." Their acceptance of the C. L. A. decision was "one of the finest acts of sportsmanship in my knowledge in lacrosse annals of Canada."

ARM MEASUREMENT

The oldest known standard of length—the cubit—was the distance between a man's elbow and the tip of his middle finger.

RAY ROBINSON WINS DECISION

Boston, Oct. 14 — (AP)— The untitled Sugar Ray Robinson, considered the scourge of the world's welterweight and middleweight boxers previous to his induction into the U.S. Army, today proved that 14 months in the armed service had not dulled his oldtime skill.

For his first opponent since being discharged, Robinson drew Izzy Jannazzo and the Harlem Flash made it three in a row by gaining a technical knockout verdict over that Brooklyn veteran in the second round of their scheduled 10-round main bout before a 7,347 crowd at the Boston Garden last night.

Robinson, apparently a bit rusty from his long layoff, took matters easy during the opening session and went to his corner with the honors even. But as soon as the second got underway, he climbed all over Izzy, gave him everything in his book and after dropping him twice within 90 seconds with terrific lefts and rights to the head, persuaded referee Tommy Rawson, Jr. to intervene to save Janazzo from needless punishment.

That brief but exciting clash was far from being a matter contested by strangers. Two years ago, before Robinson was inducted, he defeated Janazzo in Philadelphia and Cleveland within a matter of two months.

Robinson weighed 143 1/2 against 153 for Janazzo.

RULES CHANGED FOR KING'S PLATE

Toronto, Oct. 14 —(CP)— Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, announced last night that Canadian-bred two-year-olds that raced in the United States in 1944 will be eligible for the 1945 running of the King's Plate.

Previously no two-year-olds which raced across the border could enter the event—the oldest continuously run race in North America.

The new ruling permits the Canadian-bred juvenile, Uttermost, recent winner of the Canadian championship at the Long Branch Jockey Club meet here, and several other top Canadian-bred sprinters to enter the race.

The changed conditions also permits yearlings to be taken to the United States for training. Estimated value for the race next year is $14,000. Weight for the major Canadian race also has been increased seven pounds over last year when the scale was 112.

The five-pound penalty imposed on the Plate trial winner in the King's Plate this year has been removed from the conditions.

The two former fighters who met in a famous bout in 1921, had a joyous reunion. They laughingly struck a few pugilistic poses.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

There's a possibility manager Jack Adams will have an all-amateur forward line on his Detroit Red Wings roster this season. The three, now at Wings' training camp in Windsor, are: Gerald Couture from Saskatoon, a right-winger; Steve Wochy of Port Arthur, centre, and Ted Lindsay from Kirkland Lake, Ont., a left-winger.

Adams so far has given the axe to 31 of 68 charges who reported for training and selected 11 holdovers from last year as regulars for the coming season. He'll probably sign 15 players to contracts although he can dress only 14 for a game.

In between workouts — two hours in the morning and two in the afternoon — the golf enthusiasts trying for berths with Toronto Maple Leafs are getting in some conditioning on the Owen Sound golf course.

Bill Ezinicki, classy winger with last year's Memorial Cup champions, Oshawa Generals, has become the property of Maple Leafs. Coach Hap Day traded Don Webster and George Boothman for his services. Bill was the property of Eddie Shore, manager of Buffalo Bisons, American Hockey League champions last year.

Lester Patrick announces again this year from his New York Rangers' training camp at Winnipeg that he's "experimenting" with his defence. He's trying Ott Heller and Hank Goldup as one team and Kilby McDonald and Roy Thistrand as the other.

Ahlstrand is one of four Americans bidding for a berth with Rangers. The other U.S. citizens are Bob Dill, Alex Palazzari and Manny Cotlow. Dill and Cotlow are defencemen along with Lan Wharton and big Bucky MacDonald.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 14 — (AP) — A recent United States lawn tennis association bulletin reviewing the amateur-professional or "tennis bum" situation pointed out that 2 years ago the United States Board of Tennis Appeals ruled the association is exempt from Federal income taxes "because of the amateur character of our organization and the nature of our work." ... This helps a lot to explain why the U.S. L.T.A. isn't interested in open tournaments or liberalizing its rules... The New York Americans Soccer Club, which is losing Dr. Cesaer de Rostaing through an army transfer, has signed Dr. William Nesto of Boston to play fullback. Must be handy to have a patcher-up in the lineup...Columbia's most experienced footballer, Otto Apel, has classes until 12:30 today — just two hours before the Lions face Yale at New Haven.

"Choo Choo" Charlie Justice, 19-year-old back of the Bainbridge, Md., Naval training centre football team, has handled the ball seven times in two games and scored on runs of 83, 52, 50 and 35 yards. He doesn't count the other efforts, which averaged 22 yards...The local fight mob is spending its spare time speculating about a successor to J. Walker Wear, who resigned yesterday as commissioner — and whether Gen. Phelan will continue as chairman after his term expires Dec. 31...Jedge W. G. Bramham, the minor league boss, is reported as recovering rapidly from his illness but he'll be in hospital several weeks more.

AMERICAN BRED

By Franken Meloney

CHAPTER 29

"Yah, but there's more to it." Hans placed his finger alongside his nose for emphasis. "I been talking to his handler und the man says the dog has been sold. Und guess who?" Hans' face suddenly turned red and he looked embarrassed. "No, don't guess. I talk too much." He slipped Gretel's tie chain and started to lead her from the bench.

"Sure I can guess," Christopher threw after him. "A beginner—somebody who doesn't know anything more about Danes than their outsides."

"Yah, a beginner. I groom Gretel now—" I meet you by the exercise ring—" Hans waddled down the aisle.

"Oh, Chris!" The voice cut above the ear-rending cacophony of barking dogs. "Chris, wait!" Brenda rushed over to him. "I've been looking high and low for you. Isn't it fun, isn't it exciting?"

"You never used to think so. What brings you to a dog show of all places?" He concealed his impatience with difficulty. Brenda was up to no good.

"But Chris, I never knew," she expostulated. She expected him to follow up with, "Never knew what?" but he maintained a perverse silence. Nothing daunted, she burbled on, "Dog shows aren't any fun, really, unless you show dogs. Look, Chris." Her voice dropped an octave and she called forth that throaty effect that always made all the men within earshot turn about and look. "I wanted to tell you before anybody else told you. I'm showing a dog today."

"That so? Good luck to you. What breed?"

"What breed, idiot?" She gave the impression of gleefully clapping her hands. "Why, a Dane of course. I'm your competitor." She had manoeuvred him toward Konstantine's bench, and pointed dramatically. "What do you think of him?"

So that was the darky in Hans' wood-pile! Brenda was the beginner who had bought Konstantine.

"He's a good-looking dog and stands to win today," Christopher said generously.

"He'd better, or I'll have been robbed," Brenda pouted. "And you'll be responsible, because you were the one who taught me to go into the big brackets for a top dog. I paid twenty-eight hundred for him."

Christopher thought silently, You paid plenty. Aloud he said, "Keep him in the show ring, and you'll get your fun out of it." And that's all she would get out of it, for it took more than payment and transfer of ownership to supply the real satisfaction of picking a dog before he's proven, and sticking to him. "Good luck to you," he said briefly.

"Here's hoping! I'll see you when the Best of Winners comes up to meet Konstantine."

"Oh, I don't expect we'll be meeting in the ring." Christopher smiled good-naturedly. "I'll be thankful if we take our class today."

"Oh, the poor Baron's death—" Brenda made a business of looking sad. "It'll be a shame not to have a Wain dog out in front at the final judging. Except that there will be a Wain dog," she added softly. "I mean, it's all in the family."

Christopher wanted to tell her that he'd have none of Konstantine's monkey meat under his kennels, but he refrained.

"Oh, and before I forget," Brenda gave out as a parting shot, "your Miss. Rivers certainly has adopted the Wain touch with the claim price she's set on her dog."

"She's not my Miss Rivers," he retorted angrily.

Brenda gave her tinkling laugh. "Well, things are serious with you. You needn't bite my head off. She's somebody's Miss Rivers, and I just made her yours in a manner of speaking."

"You're a person of hasty conclusions, Brenda."

"I hope you prove me wrong," she returned. "Well, anyway, good luck—" She waved archly.

Christopher ploughed on through the aisles like a preoccupied thunder cloud. Brenda made him angry, and he wanted to wring Ann's neck, which was rather ridiculous, since being angry at Brenda should, by all that was logical, make him want to wring Brenda's neck....

After a man's made a mess of one marriage, he's prone to look into his soul before jumping into another one. He'd been looking into his soul pretty ruthlessly, on and off, and he didn't like what he'd found. There was a lot of room for improvement. Well, maybe that was the silver lining to a second marriage—practice makes perfect.

On the other hand, he wasn't the sort to go around snatching engaged females out of other men's arms. Still if this Barton fellow wanted to hold on to a girl like Ann he wasn't going about it the right way. For one thing, he ought to have been here with her today. The thought that Tom Barton might show up did not dissipate the gathering thunderclouds.

He found Hans polishing Gretel as if she were a brass doorknob. "Can you get along without me? I've got to see someone."

"Sure didn't I work on her all yesterday?" Hans smiled.

Christopher strode off in the direction of the Steward's office. He knocked on the door. A tattersall waistcoat with a chubby little man inside it looked up from a desk. Christopher made short shift of his business.

"I'm Christopher Wain. You have a Dane on your lists owned by a Miss Rivers, and entered with a claim price of five thousand dollars."

The chubby little man was ready to smooth Christopher down. "Yes, yes, it's ridiculous," he propitiated hastily. "First time the dog's been shown. Slipped by while we weren't thinking." He waved to a group of reporters and camera men in a corner, and made a series of little fat clucks with his tongue.

"I agree with you," Christopher said loud enough for the newspapermen to hear. "I'm claiming the dog at that price. That's the way I like to pick them."

There was a gasp from the tattersall waistcoat. There was a gasp from the reporters. "This is getting to be a real story," one of them announced.

"You call this a story?" Christopher scoffed. "This is just the beginning."

He could have kicked himself as he left the steward's office. Paul and Ann had prepared a beautiful spot for themselves, and he had walked in and usurped it. Well, if jackasses were in the making today, he was going to be one of them. But at least he was going to get a dog and a wife out of it!

The moment this show was over he was going to go ahead with the figurative wringing of Ann's neck and then he was going to bundle her and her highly publicized pooch into his car, and head for some other state. He tried to remember which of the neighboring states would serve his purpose. New York and Connecticut were out—they apparently didn't believe in hasty marriages. Maryland was in the wrong direction. He'd have to look into the question of Rhode Island....

Paul had picked a private little corner for himself, and fitted it out with a collection of pails, towels and instruments worthy of a field hospital. Ann watched his sure, swift strokes. There was something of genius in what he was doing.

Flashing curved scissors cut back long hairs to give a sharp flesh line. Rowdy's beautiful, ever-curious whiskers were deftly snipped, and her ears clipped and rubbed until they were translucent as old black English porcelain. Next, sand and emery papers; after that, a soft grooming brush to burnish her coat to a flawess perfection; and last of all, brilliantine until she was fashioned into a glowing living thing of highlights and dark shadows.

Rowdy seemed to take it as if it were an old story in her life. "You're just eating it up, you glamour girl!" Ann said huskily, feeling like a mother who sees her baby suddenly transformed into a debutante.

Paul sat back on his heels and viewed his work. "Well," he approved, "that's all that man can do for her. She has to go the rest of the way on her own."

"She's magnificent!" Ann breathed. "It hardly seems fair to doll her up like this."

"Fair? Sure it's fair," he brusquely declared. "I can't make her a better dog than she is, but I can make the best of what she's got, and then all I can do is hope the judge knows what to look for—Now come on, we're late."

As they returned to the bench, a fawn dog was paraded by, his handler carrying a purple ribbon.

"Oh." Ann exclaimed in mingled hope and dismay, "we've missed the show!"

"No such luck. That's Peterson's Achile; he took Winner's Male.—Hi, Pete, congratulations—" He turned back to Ann. "Our classes are just coming up, we've still got a wait ahead of us. Puppies, Limit, Novice, and then American Bred—that's us. You better go over to the ring. You'll just get nervous hanging around here."

Paul wasn't nervous. He was a portrait of a calm and collected young man, lighting a cigarette by holding the trembling match a full six inches away from it.

The puppies had already been judged by the time Ann reached the ring. A whitehaired old gentleman with a military waxed moustache was handing out four ribbons, blue, red, white and yellow. Ann eyed the winner with misgiving. What a manificent animal! It had been nothing short of madness to let Rowdy in for this—a schoolgirl's dream that she could retrieve Paul's fortunes by a kind Miss Horatio Alger fairy tale.

The Novices were being led into the ring. She saw Christopher hand over Gretel's leash to Hans. Then he caught sight of her, and came over and stood beside her.

"Excited?"

"No." Her voice sounded to her ears like wind through dry leaves. "Are you?"

"Me? Oh, this is an old story."

In spite of his bravado, she noticed that he, too, was having difficulty lighting his cigarette. In the end, he puffed it cold for a moment, and then carefully ground out coals that had never been.

"I like the judge," Ann whispered. "He looks like a daguerreotype."

"He's good." Christopher whispered back. "Best in the circuit. Knows his dogs. Name's Barrie, Dr. Seth Barrie. There they go!"

Yes, it had commenced—like some mysterious performance of initiation. The dogs paraded in a large circle, while the judge knelt with supernatural intentness. Then they wheeled into an extended line, and he examined each animal as if he were taking it apart and putting it together again. He looked at mouths, eyes, ears. He put his hand on their quarters and let his weight test soundness of limb, after which he put each dog through his paces, walking, gaiting, and standing still. And never so much as by a flicker of an eye did he disclose his mind. As he came to Gretel Ann's hand went out to Christopher's arm. She looked up at him and saw that his face was set and a little pale.

"Gretel's lost," he muttered grimly. "The fawn's got it."

"Don't be silly, it's impossible to tell—"

But Wain was right. As long as she lived Ann would never know by what subtle shades of penetration Christopher had discerned it, for it was minutes later when Dr. Barrie picked up a handful of ribbons, and, like a general commanding troops indicated the four dogs of his choice.

After what seemed an eternity, he placed Gretel second on line, and with a small ceremonious bow before the fawn, presented the handler with the ribbon.

"Oh—" Ann cried on a little moan of disappointment. "I'm so terribly sorry!"

Wain glanced at her. "Thanks. I really think you mean it."

"Oh, I do!"

"It makes it pretty tough on Paul. Unless," he gave a short laugh, Rowdy saves the day."

"Don't—" Ann implored.

He caught her hand. "I didn't mean it that way. Look here, you're trembling. You mustn't."

"I had no right to enter her," Ann confessed abjectly. "At first I did it to spite you. Nothing good ever came of spite—"

"Nonsense, you believe in the pup."

Ann smiled. "The funny part of it is, I do."

And then she saw Rowdy entering the ring with Paul, and the world went black.

Rowdy walked like a woman losing a stocking and having girdle trouble at one and the same time. She held one ear erect; the other she wore with absent-minded carelessness. A car backfired in the distance. She came to attention, jumping like a startled camel, her tail shooting ignominiously between her legs.

Paul's face glistened with perspiration, and his coat showed damp spots across the back. People started to snicker. She heard a light tinkling laugh close at hand and looked around to see Brenda smiling up at Christopher.

Province, City Help Singer's Musical Career

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Associated Press Writer)

New York (CP) — As far as Portia White knows, she is the only singer whose expenses as a budding concert artist are financed by a provincial and city trust fund.

Portia, a rising young Negro Nova Scotian contralto, who will make her first American tour this fall, says her living expenses at present are largely underwritten by a trust fund created by the province of Nova Scotia and the City of Halifax and administered by a board whose members include Dr. H. E. Kendall, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia; Provincial Secretary Arthur Barnstead; Dr. Henry Monroe, superintendent of education; Mayor J. E. Lloyd of Halifax, and her teacher, Ernesto Vinci.

Expenses are heavy for a young artist whose fees are not high, whose appearances are relatively scattered and who must furnish her own accompanist and pay his travelling expenses as well as her own. The city fathers help out, even to the extent of a glamorous white fox cape to take the place of the plain wrap she wore backstage at her first concerts.

Portia's black eyes grow starry when she speaks of that white fox cape. Daughters of preachers with 13 children aren't born to luxuries like that. Portia's father, Rev. W. A. White, was serving as a chaplain in the First Great War in Europe when she was born and he died when she was 19. But between those years he reared a family which burst into song at the slightest provocation and formed the whole choir in his church.

School Teacher at 17

By the time Portia was 17, her rich powerful contralto was pretty well known in the city. That was the year she went to teach in the country school for $300 a year, and on weekends slogged three miles on foot through knee-high Nova Scotia snow to catch a train for a music lesson in town.

"Sometimes I used to wonder why I did it," she says. "Then I happened to win a silver cup at the Nova Scotia Competitive Musical Festival. And the Halifax Ladies' Musical Club gave me a scholarship to the Halifax Conservatory of Music. That gave me a boost.

"Then in 1941 Miss Edith Read, a school principal in Toronto, telephoned, asking me to sing for her, and then arranged a concert for me in Toronto. It was a success and I got other concert offers right away. I turned right around and wired my resignation to that school."

Later Miss Read, principal of Branksome Hall, arranged for Portia to sing for Edward Johnson, impresario of the Metropolitan Opera House. In March of this year Portia made her New York debut in Town Hall. Critics gave warm praise to her voice and Portia subsequently appeared in the national Negro festival at St. Louis, Detroit and Chicago.

She is now planning her first tour under concert management. It includes appearances in New York, St. Louis, other western U.S. cities, Toronto, Winnipeg, Peterboro and London, Ont.

MAY BE FULFILLED

Kitchener, Oct. 14 (CP)—Mayor Meinzinger of Kitchener said yesterday he had "reliable information" that Premier George Drew's promise to effect a 50 percent reduction in school taxes soon will be fulfilled. The Mayor thought it would mean a cut of about five mills in Kitchener's tax rate.

Stanislaw Augustyn Held on Charge Of Murdering Woman

Toronto, Oct. 14 (CP)—Stanislaw Augustyn, 42, a carpenter, was arrested here last night charged with the murder of Mrs. Nellie Casovan, 38, wife of a local foundry worker, who was found slashed to death by a sheath knife in her Orange Avenue home in downtown Toronto.

Her body was found by her nine-year-old son, Raymond, lying in a pool of blood on a bed in a room between the kitchen and living room. Augustyn was taken into custody in a nearby rooming house less than an hour afterward.

A struggle apparently had taken place in three rooms on the ground floor, police said, after an argument developing during the drinking of beer.

The son found the doors of his home locked and broke a kitchen window to climb in. His screams when he found his mother's body awakened a roomer who notified police. The father, William Casovan, came home from work after police arrived.

Police said they found a blood-stained suit in a clothes closet of Augustyn's room and a nine-inch knife on the bed. They said the telephone wires had been cut in the Casovan home and the doors were locked. Two gas jets of the kitchen stove were turned on. They added they believed the woman had been dead for some time before the body was discovered.

HELPED PARCEL PARCELS

Salisbury, N. C., Oct. 14—(AP)—Sgt. Allen R. Hartman is one soldier, at least, who is pretty sure he will get his Christmas presents. Here on a 30-day leave from his post in Trinidad, Hartman helped his wife wrap the parcels and carry them to the post office for mailing to him at his station. However, he did not know what was in the parcels.

GROWING UP WITH CANADA...

An early print of the original McLaughlin plant and staff at Enniskillen, Ontario. Second from left is the late Robert McLaughlin, founder of the Company which is today General Motors of Canada.

-FOR 75 YEARS!

Up through 75 eventful years of Canadian history . . . up from horse and buggy days to the fast-moving, mechanized world of today—General Motors of Canada and the pioneer venture from which it sprung, have grown with this growing nation.

Thanks to the constant and continued support of the Canadian public, General Motors, through three-quarters of a century of service to Canada—has developed into a vital national asset . . . a power for progress in peace, a tower of strength in war!

From GM's busy assembly lines has rolled a mighty measure of the automotive transportation that has helped build modern Canada. From GM's factories and foundries, at this critical time, is pouring an overwhelming volume of that splendid fighting equipment which is speeding Victory.

As a partner in Canada's forward march to nationhood and inspired by a seventy-five year long tradition of high craftsmanship—General Motors of Canada, in this its Jubilee Year, pledges itself anew to the proud task of producing "More and Better Things for More People".

CANADIANS CAPTURE PIVOT TOWN IN HOLLAND

Woensdrecht Falls Forcing Germans To Withdraw Line

Americans Retire From Footholds Inside Ft. Driant

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Oct. 16 —(AP)— Allied forces today clamped a two-edged grip on the sea entrance to Antwerp, sent patrols across the Neder Rhine in Holland and fought to within 32 miles of the Rhine in the Vosge foothills.

Formations of the 1st Canadian army were waging a crucial battle for the opening of Antwerp as a supply port before winter's gales, and the drive in the Vosges, on the south of the long Allied front, aimed at clearing the snowy range before winter. Supreme headquarters said the 6th Army group, comprising the French 1st army and the American 7th army, had "gained momentum" in the advance north of the Belfort gap.

British patrols crossing the Neder Rhine on probing expeditions, where British "Red Devil" parachutists failed three weeks ago to hold the bridgehead menacing Adolf Hitler's comparatively defenceless northern frontier, were a tentative threat to Nazis fighting fanatically in the Western Netherlands.

Unsuccessful Ending.

But along the Moselle the bitter battle inside Fort Driant ended unsuccessfully after 10 days of close-quarter combat. American forces withdrew three before dawn Friday. Installations the Americans had occupied were wrecked before the withdrawal.

At Aachen, in the battle of the Siegfried Line, U. S. 1st army troops fought off the third ferocious German countersmash in 24 hours and edged forward by blocks inside the city.

The Americans threw a German charge off Crucifix ridge, northeast of Aachen, and in cold and bloody fighting turned back a counter-attack inside the city by Nazis crazily screaming "Heil Hitler" as they rushed the American lines.

Thirty enemy tanks had been knocked out yesterday and today by artillery and planes at Aachen a staff officer estimated.

The Canadian drive to oust the Germans from Antwerp's approaches gained ground.

Swiftly capitalizing upon the link-up of Canadian troops along the western shore of Savojaargs Inlet, the combined force slugged its way westward, capturing Woensdrecht, pivot town on the causeway linkink South Beveland with the mainland.

One Solid Line

The move forced the Germans to withdraw their line within the Scheide trap with the Canadians established in one solid line.

Prior to the weekend, the Canadians had been advancing in 3 separate columns — one from the Scheide beachhead, one from the Leopold Canal and one from Antwerp — upon the trapped enemy troops.

Ross Munro of The Canadian Press said today the Canadians were continuing their drive with a series of dogged attacks, and now held an area four miles deep and six miles long between the Scheide and the Leopold Canal.

Northeast of the Canadian sector, the British 2nd Army rolled close to Venraij with its capture anticipated soon.

American troops have withdrawn from their small footholds inside Fort Driant five miles southwest of Metz, after blowing up enemy installations.

Myriad of Tunnels

The withdrawal climaxed 10 days of close quarter fighting in which troops of the U.S. 3rd Army penetrated only 100 yards into one of the underground passages of the bristling fortress, honeycombed by a myriad of tunnels.

They cut down steel doors with acetylene torches and fought from entrance to entrance. But they were handicapped in efforts to advance in upper portions of the fort by mushroom pillboxes which were raised hydraulically to fire upon the soldiers who had passed them.

The fort, one of the main bastions guarding Metz, was pounded heavily from the air and by artillery with only slight effect.

Even though the infantry was withdrawn after holding the northwestern and southwestern corners for several days the fort and adjacent strongholds on both sides of the Moselle were still under heavy fire from American guns.

Gain in Vosges Foothills

At the southern end of the western front, Gen. Eisenhower's communique said "Our advance eastward gained momentum" in the Vosges foothills where the U. S. 6th Army group is attempting to burst through the Belfort Gap north of the Alps.

"Gains were made against strong resistance along a wide front and several towns were freed" including Baccarat, Glonville, Fontenoy and [illegible], the bulletin added.

3-hour Counter-Attack

For three hours today the Germans gave furious battle with infantry and tanks in a desperate counter-attack at Aachen, but a storm of American steel smashed the effort to knife through to the besieged Nazi garrison, field dispatches reported. Four enemy tanks were knocked out.

German accounts, and the headquarters communique itself indicated however, that the Germans had made some small gains in their determined counter-attacks. The headquarters communique said Allied planes had bombed Wurselen, three miles north of Aachen, a part of which at least had been previously held by American troops.

Berlin asserted Verlautenheide, 3 miles northeast of Aachen, which had been taken by the southern jaw of the American pincers about Aachen, had been recaptured, along with the village of Knopp.

Over the German radio came a report the Aachen Home Guard is engaged in "a desperate struggle to keep open a very narrow corridor leading into Aachen."

Says Scale of Income Must Be Kept Up

Windsor, Oct. 16, (CP)—With incomes in both rural and urban areas of Canada higher than ever before, the peak of expenditure for war purposes is at a new high, Graham F. Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, said in an interview here today.

Mr. Towers, who is here to speak at a meeting of Seventh Victory Loan Workers tonight, said ways and means of keeping up the scale of income in the post-war perioa must be found. This would be possible through export trade and capital development in the Dominion.

"Housing can be one of the means, for housing has not been of sufficient good quality", he said. "I am not a technician nor an engineer, so that I can not enumerate all the other means of maintaining high income levels, but I believe they exist".

Hume Cronyn, Actor, To Take Part in Broadcast

Toronto, Oct. 16 —(AP)— Hume Cronyn, 32-year-old movie actor, who was born at London, Ont., arrived in Toronto yesterday to take part in a Seventh Victory Loan broadcast. Alexander Knox, another movie star from the London area—he was born at Strathroy, also will take part in the broadcast.

British Imperialist Rule Is Not Same As in 1770's Says MacDonald

Boston, Oct. 16—(CP)—The people of Britain and of the United States should learn more about each other so that there may be "genuine understanding and co-operation" between the two countries after the war, Malcolm Macdonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, said today.

"Anyone with a clear and honest vision can see that there are differences of character and temperament between the British and Americans, and certain prejudices on both sides, which may stand in the way of wholehearted co-operation between them when the desperate peril of battle has passed and unity between them may appear less essential," said Mr. Macdonald, speaking at a conference sponsored by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"The most serious apprehension that some Americans feel about Britain is on account of her imperialism. "Some of you feel suspicious of the British government's policy in its Empire and doubt seriously whether it can be reconciled with the great principles of government in which the Americans believe . . ."

Many Americans were under the impression that British imperialist rule was the same today as it was in the 1770's. Such impressions were not well founded.

"The main purpose of British imperial rule today is that freedom shall be extended as fully as possible to all the peoples of the British colonies Burma, India and the Dominions, whatever their race, color or creed," said Mr. Macdonald.

TORNADIC ALLIED AERIAL OFFENSIVE STILL CONTINUING

Great German Ports Of Wilhelmshaven, Hamburg Flattened By Huge Forces

London, Oct. 16—(AP)—The tornadic Allied aerial offensive swept over the great German ports of Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg last night and even severe electrical storms failed to slow R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. bombers in the climax to an unparalleled weekend which broke almost every bombing record in the books.

The Air Ministry reported 11 planes — including four Canadian craft—were lost during the night.

Flashes of lightning silhouetted the brown and black bombers against the sky as they thundered across the north sea to carry out the 14th and 15th Major Allied raids on Germany within 40 hours. Hail and rain peppered them all the way home.

Halifaxes and Lancasters dumped the main load on Wilhelmshaven, while smaller, faster Mosquitos gave Hamburg a paralyzing blow.

Canadians in R. C. A. F. craft and others flying with the R. A. F. participated in the Wilhelmshaven raid and reported large fires and huge explosives within the target area.

Leading their units to the German Naval Base were wing cmdrs. Vaughan Ganderton, D. F. C., Edmonton, of the Lion squadron, and A. G. Lewington, D. F. C., Oshawa, Ont., of the Porcupine squadron.

Despite the weather crews said they found openings in the clouds, and bombed visually at Wilhelmshaven key water and rail link with the northern sectors of the western front.

During the weekend more than 40,000 tons of bombs cascaded on Western Germany. More than 7,000 planes participated in the 15 principal attacks.

Cologne, Duisburg Pounded.

Bombing reached to greatest intensity at Cologne and Duisburg, where four nightmarish day - and - night assaults were carried out in rapid-fire succession.

Other attacks were directed against industrial and rail targets at Saarbrucken, Haiseralautern, Berlin, Brunswick, Dusseldorf, Hamburg, Manheim, Risholz, and the big Sorpe dam, 20 miles southeast or Dortmund.

Never had any city—not even Berlin—been subjected to such saturation bombing as was done at Cologne and Duisburg.

These two vital Ruhr centres, less than 40 miles behind the battlefront, were plastered with more than 17,000 tons of incendiaries and explosives which crews reported left them burning from one end to the other.

"The rule book days are over — this is the beginning of the third degree," said an Air Force officer commenting on the two punches.

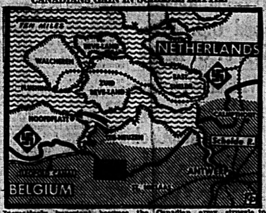
FUR COAT 'AD' GOES TO NEW GUINEA

Atlanta, Oct. 16 —(AP)— A fur coat advertisment followed Maj. James Canley from one army camp to another and finally reached him in New Guinea. "That's the limit in high-pressure salesmanship," the Major wrote his wife.

CANADIANS GAIN IN SCHEDLE BATTLE



Increasingly important becomes the Canadian army struggle to wrest from the Germans the approaches to Antwerp which would shorten the Allied supply line by 500 miles. Some 20,000 Nazis are dug in to hold these approaches, and the fighting is heavy in the Schelde river area and along the Leopold canal, held by the Canadians. In a spectacular move to gain footholds on Nazi-held beaches, Canadian amphibious forces jumped from Ter-Neuzen to land behind the German lines at Hoofdtplait (indicated by arrow) and established bridgeheads near there in the face of terrific enemy fire from Walcheren. It was at Walcheren that R.A.F. bombers knocked out the sea wall.

REDS CUT NAZI SEA ESCAPE ROUTE FROM N. FINLAND

Port of Petsamo Captured and Road Junction Near Norway Seized

By W. W. HERCHER
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 16 — (AP) — The German sea escape route from northern Finland has been cut with the capture of the Arctic port of Petsamo and advancing Red Army tanks were reported today to have won an important road junction close to the Norwegian border.

Pravda, described the newly-won highway centre as the "key to Norway," without naming it further and said it had been captured after Russian forces beat off a counter-attack by a German armored column retreating toward Norway.

Pravda said the land and sea assault on Petsamo, capture of which was announced officially by Moscow last night, routed two picked enemy Alpine divisions in a three-hour battle.

Moscow did not report on progress of the Red Army in Hungary.

The battle for Belgrade was not mentioned in the official Soviet communique, but Berlin acknowledged that Russian troops and tanks and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans had fought their way into the city after reaching the outskirts Saturday.

Berlin implied also that other Soviet troops had crossed into German East Prussia on a 27-mile front in the Memel territory.

Herd Germans in Strip

Moscow announced Red Army troops had advanced three miles west of the fallen Latvian capital, Riga, as they steadily herded the enemy into the narrow trap sprung when the Soviet 1st Baltic Army reached the Lithuanian coast north of Memel.

In Yugoslavia, the Russians announced the fall of Pozarevac, an important communications point 35 miles southeast of Belgrade, as well as Krusevac, 95 miles southeast of the capital.

Other Moscow dispatches described the tank battle on the Hungarian plains as one of the heaviest of the war and the Soviet communique announced that 143 German tanks had been knocked out Saturday.

This made a nine-day total of 1,294 German tanks destroyed on the basis of Moscow bulletins, and presumably most of the toll was taken in the battle that has forced Hungary to her knees.

Standard Time To Be Discussed By Federal Cabinet

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—A telegram received by Toronto Board of Control today from Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the Federal cabinet will meet in the near future to discuss a policy relative to resuming standard time in Canada.

The telegram was in reply to a request by the Board that such action be considered. Controller Robert Saunders had expressed in a motion before the Board that a ruling from Ottawa would have been available for a city council meeting here today.

SUPERFORTRESSES ATTACK FORMOSA FOR SECOND TIME

Approximately Two-Thirds of Target at Okayama Destroyed in First Raid

Washington, Oct. 16 —(AP)— Superfortresses have attacked Formosa for the second time in 48 hours, striking installations at Okayama and Heito.

The second mission was accomplished without loss of aircraft, the 20th Airforce said.

Of four B-29's previously unreported on the Oct. 14 mission, the Airforce said, two are safe and 10 of the 11 members of the crew are safe from a third plane that crash-landed at a forward base. This leaves only one Superfortress lost on the two missions, both of which carried the heaviest bomb loads so far employed by the big planes.

"The weather over the target area was good, and very good bombing results were observed by participating crews," a communique said. "The same targets that were attacked on Oct. 14 were struk again at Okayama. Heito is an important Japanese airfield and air supply depot.

"Photo reconnaissance of the Oct. 14 strike against Okayama reveals that the bombing results were excellent. Thirty-seven buildings were totally destroyed and 16 other heavily damaged, accounting for approximately two-thirds of the target.".

Into Third Day.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 16 —(AP)— A furious air-naval duel off Formosa, which began Friday, went into its third day today, Tokyo reported after officially announcing the Imperial fleet had joined the battle.

(It was announced from Washington, that B-29 Superfortresses struck at Formosa today. Details of the latest raid were not announced immediately.)

Admiral Nimitz announced yesterday strong Japanese attacks precipitated the engagement in mid-afternoon Friday and said "this fight is continuing." The Japanese counter-attack, third of the Formosa campaign, followed new American raids on that island and Luzon.

The Admiral issued a later communique but made no mention of the Formosa engagement in recounting routine aerial blows from the Kuriles to the Marshalls. This indicated radio silence prevented the U. S. 3rd Fleet from making further reports.

HEN STRAYS, BRINGS IN CHICKS

Sarnia, Oct. 16 —(CP)— It was a lucky day for L. A. LaLonde of Forest, when a hen strayed from his flock. He gave the bird up for lost or dead—but it reappeared with 11 baby chicks which it had hatched from 13 eggs laid in a nest along the roadway.

CORMORANT SEEN OFF POINT TRAVERSE

Picton, Oct. 16 —(CP)— Note to nature lovers: Sportsmen say several cormorants—or bald ravens—are to be seen in waters off nearby Point Traverse. The birds, seldom seen inland, are skilful fishers, and appear wary and shy.

HUNGARY TOPPLED INTO CHAOS BY BID FOR PEACE

Armistice Petition Greatly Damages The Waging of War Says German Agency

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 16—(AP)—Hungary has toppled into political chaos after regent Nicholas Horthy's dramatic bid for peace.

Horthy's quick eclipse—at least on the Budapest radio — by Count Ferencz Szalasy's last-ditch group of Nazis only emphasized that Hungarians were fighting among themselves instead of against the invading Red Army. Reports via Stockholm today said that in some places they were fighting the Germans too.

This all added up to a melting of the barrier between the Red army and a great drive past Budapest to Vienna and a possible final decision in the east.

The Germans took quick measures to stave off the debacle but admitted through the official German News Agency that Horthy's petition for an armistice had "greatly damaged the waging of the war."

Berlin dispatches to Stockholm newspapers said Nazi troops swiftly took over all strategic buildings in Budapest and that a new government shortly would "try to get Hungarian troops to continue battle on the German side." One report said Horthy had escaped arrest and was holding out in a strongly-fortified castle.

A Transocean broadcast from Germany said a "detailed declaration" on the Hungarian developments would be forthcoming later. Meanwhile Berlin's morning papers refrained from mentioning Hungary.

That Hitler and his advisors should pause for some fast thinking before explaining the Hungarian collapse to the war-weary German people was only natural. It was far more than the defection of Hitler's last satellite—it must seem to any German like the crashing of the gate guarding his country's most vulnerable area.

Pro-German elements presumably aided by S. S. divisions rushed to Budapest from Vienna, apparently seized control of the country immediately after the petition for an Armistice was broadcast early last evening in an order of the day signed by Regent Horthy.

Within a few hours another broadcast from uBdapest announced the Hungarian Nazi party headed by Ferencz Szalasy had "taken matters in hand to eliminate traitors at all costs" and promised "the most ruthless measures," including the death penalty, would be imposed on those disobeying orders.

Says Action Will Give New Aspect To Balkan Front

Cairo Says Cyclades Is. Will Be Liberated Soon

London, Oct. 16 — ((CP)—Berlin radio indicated today that the Germans had decided to evacuate Greece.

The broadcast by the Transocean agency said:

"Because of the German evacuation of Greece the Balkan front will assume a different aspect, said a German military spokesman this afternoon. Events there are still very fluid. The decision in this sector will fall later."

Transocean added that Bulgarian and Russian forces were attacking the Germans in "interference operations" designed to "slow down the German retreat and hinder building up a new German front."

"These "interferences" may be possible but the German concentrations cannot be hindered," it said.

Reliable reports in Cairo indicated all of the Cyclades islands in the Aegean Sea southeast of Greece would be liberated in a matter of hours.

The R.A.F. said the garrison on Naxos surrendered yesterday.

Main enemy garrisons still are located on Crete, Rhodesia and a few smaller islands used as staging points along the route the Germans are attempting to evacuate. A considerable force is believed trapped on them, for sea movement has become practically impossible and air evacuation is becoming increasingly more difficult.

Naval Force at Athens.

Rome, Oct. 16. (AP) —A strong British naval force has arrived at Piraeus, the Port of Athens, and will begin disembarking troops immediately, Allied headquarters announced today.

The force consisted of the Cruisers Orion, Ajax, Aurora and Black Prince, with Royal Navy and Royal Hellenic Navy destroyers and other units.

H.M.S. Orion was flying the flag of Rear Admiral J. M. Mansfield, R.N.

The communique said the fleet's arrival was delayed by an enemy minefield.

Liberation of Athens and nearby Piraeus was announced Saturday night, but there still were no details of this operation.

Field dispatches, meanwhile, reported that the comparatively few Germans remaining in Greece were heading for Yugoslavia in an effort to escape the trap which advancing Russian forces are closing in the north.

"There will be ration books for all, and none need fear a shortage". Mr. Harold Bateman, Ration Board head stated today. "There will be lots of time for all to get their books, and the Board would appreciate co-operation on the part of the public by coming at various hours during the allotted time of issuance".

The offices will definitely close at six p.m. on the dates on which the books are to be issued. Potential receivers are requested to adhere to the regulations pertaining to the books as laid down in recent advertisements.

'DESERT FOX' DEAD BERLIN STATES

Rommel Died of Injuries Sustained During Strafing on July 17th

London, Oct. 16 — (CP)—Doubt over the fate of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, famed commander of the Afrika Korps and one of the ablest leaders in the German army, was dispelled yesterday when the Berlin radio announced he had died of wounds.

Rumors of Rommel's death had been current since late July when Allied field dispatches quoted German prisoners as saying he had died of injuries suffered when his car was strafed by Allied planes in Normandy.

The Germans subsequently denied his death but acknowledged he had suffered a brain concussion and other injuries in an automobile accident during a strafing attack July 17.

No Details.

The Berlin broadcast yesterday did not say how Rommel was wounded or when he had died, but said Hitler had ordered a state funeral. The announcement described him as one of Germany's "most successful army leaders."

Rommel, who became known as the "desert fox" during the African campaign, when his troops drove the British 8th Army to the gates of Alexandria before they were stopped in October, 1942, was ground commander of German forces in Normandy at the time of the Allied invasion.

Quarrel with Rundstedt

He was reported to have quarreled with Field Marshal Von Rundstedt — then overall German commander in Western Europe — concerning tactics used in combatting the invasion. The Berlin radio announced July 6 that Von Rundstedt had been replaced by Field Marshall Von Kluge in a move that apparently was a victory for Rommel.

A veteran of the First Great War, Rommel won promotion to Field Marshal at the age of 50 during the summer of 1942 for his up-to-then successful campaign in North Africa, becoming the youngest German officer ever to hold that rank.

7-Month Contributions To D.U.I. Fund Reach $216,171,931

Contributions to the Dominion Unemployment Insurance Fund up to the end of July, 1944, amount to $216,171,931, according to figures released in the labor Gazette.

In July of this year contributions and interest on investments, amounted to $6,585,122.

Earning power of the fund is such that all claims paid thus far have been absorbed by interest accumulated through investments.

Consequently all contributions made by employers and employees have remained intact in the fund.

Commenting on the situation today, Mr. H. H. Reed, National Selective Service representative here, stated that the maximum number of claims occurred in the early months of the year when various industrial changes were being made. The number dropped from approximately 12,000 in February to slightly over 3,000 in July.

No Lack of Pumpkins For Canning Factory

Seven hundred tons of pumpkin in one huge pile spreads over quite an area, but that is the amount of potential pumpkin pie which is stated to be in one large pile at the Baxter canning plant in Bloomfield. The pumpkins are being stored outside in preparation for processing and packing into cans.

Officials of the company stated the pumpkin crop this year was somewhat above normal and since the conclusion of the tomato pack, employees have been hard at work at the pumpkin pack. The pumpkins are first washed thoroughly in large vats of hot water; then they are sliced, cleaned and cooked before going into the cans.

The one large pile of 700 tons is not the complete backlog of pumpkins to be processed by the Baxter firm. The approach to the factory proper is filled to capacity, another pile is being started in an adjacent field—and the pumpkins are still coming in from the farms.

Will Run Special Train to Kingston For 'Adoption' Ceremony if Required Number State Intention to Attend

Arrangements for the adoption of the new corvette HMCS "Belleville" scheduled to take place at the Canada Steamships Lines dock at Kingston on Sunday, October 22nd, are rapidly nearing completion, Corvette Committee officials announced today.

While it is expected a large number of city residents will travel by automobile, there is naturally a number who will not be able to travel this way due to gasoline restrictions.

Committee officials point out that timely railway services will be available with a train leaving here at 12.30 p.m. on Sunday and leaving Kingston at 6.30 p.m.

It has been intimated by railway officials that should a required number of residents definitely state their intention of travelling by rail, a special train could be arranged for.

In the meantime practically all of the supplies and comforts provided for the ship and its crew by residents of this city, have been purchased. They will be transported to Kingston this week by truck where they will be placed aboard ship to be inspected next Sunday at the "open house" being held between 10 a.m., and 3 p.m.

Greater Industrial Trade Relations Between Canada and U.S. After War Looked for Says J. O. Herity

Industrial Commissioner Returns After Extended Business Tour

American industry with interests in Canada with new foresight as a direct result of wartime operations, will attempt to build up trade between the two countries as part of its post-war efforts. It is taking the aspect of international trade more seriously now than ever before, Mr. J. O. Herity, dean of city service clubmen, stated today.

Mr. Herity has just returned from a tour of several states of the Union during which he officially represented Canada at a special meeting of the Rotary International held at Excelsior Springs, Missouri.

American industry, he stated, has come to the realization that international trade is a two-way affair. It has built up a great system of export and taking practically nothing back. It does not expect free trade between the countries, but does look forward to modifications of the present tariffs.

Canadian industry's part in the war effort has earned the admiration of Americans in all parts of the States. On all sides and in nearly every state he visited, Mr. Herity heard warm praise of the achievements of the northern neighbor.

Closer industrial relations with Canada will be sought through the medium of factory construction. Much interest was evinced by American industrialists in the Canadian market situation.

Mr. Herity followed his Rotarian activities in Missouri visited Texas, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Nebraska, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas, Kansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and California. Here he visited business men and industrialists.

In many states, especially California, Texas and Kansas, Mr. Herity met many Canadians, and those who have relatives or interests here.

Holidaying from his official tour Mr. Herity visited Mexico staying for a short time in Mexico City. "Mexico," he said, "is living in one of the biggest booms in its history. Its capital city's population has almost doubled, and everyone is enjoying prosperity."

Schools Conduct Fire Drill In Orderly Manner

Rounding out a Fire Prevention Week program of inspection of stores, backyards and fire escapes, fire drill in all Belleville schools was conducted last week for the benefit of members of the local fire department who made the inspection. Fire Prevention Week officially ended on Saturday after running from the 8th of October.

Rapid clearing of all schools by students following the alarm featured fire drill at the four public schools, the Belleville collegiate and St. Michael's Academy, according to Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance. In all schools pupils made their exit in an orderly manner with a complete absence of rushing.

In the tests a total of 2,968 students cleared six schools in an average time of approximately 55 seconds. According to Assistant Fire Chief Vance a school such as is in Belleville which can be cleared in an orderly manner by students in a minute or slightly better, is considered safe.

Seven hundred and sixty-five students cleared the Belleville Collegiate in one minute and twenty seconds with 500 students at St. Michael's taking only 50 seconds. Times in the public schools were: Queen Mary, 402 pupils, 50 seconds; Queen Victoria, 465 pupils, one minute; Queen Alexandra, 480 pupils, 50 seconds, and King George, 356 pupils, 45 seconds.

Inspection of all public buildings in the city has not yet been completed by firemen who urged that residents continue to guard fire hazards despite the fact that Fire Prevention Week is now officially past.

William W. Adams Drowned Trying To Save Camp Cook

While attempting to save a member of his survey party from drowning, 27-year-old William Watkin Adams, formerly of this city, was drowned in a lake north of Kapuskasing, Ont., last Thursday. An inquest was ordered in the accident that took another life also.

The late William W. Adams was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Adams, former well known shoe merchant of this city, who is now employed as manager of a shoe concern in Toronto. Born in Belleville, William Watkin Adams received his early education in Belleville following which he attended the University of Toronto graduating in forestry. At the time of his death Mr. Adams was in charge of a forestry survey party in Northern Ontario. According to reports from the scene the survey party was proceeding across a large lake when one canoe capsized, the cook of the party being hurled into the water. As foreman of the party Mr. Adams leaped into the swirling waters in a futile effort to save the cook. Both were drowned. The late W. W. Adams enlisted with the Royal Canadian Artillery after his graduation but since had been returned to industry.

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Adams, formerly of this city, now residing at 128 Jamieson Ave., in Toronto, a sister, Mrs. Byron Jackson of Paris and two brothers, Jack and Bob, at home, survive. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davison of this city are immediate relatives.

Percy O. Pitney Honored by Staff

The postmaster and representatives of the letter carrier and clerical staffs of the Belleville post office paid tribute to Mr. Percy O. Pitney one evening last week when they gathered at his home on Ann Street to make a presentation in appreciation of his many years' service with the department.

Mr. Pitney retired from his position as a postal letter carrier on the 30th of September, following service of more than 31 years. At the time of his retirement he was senior letter carrier out of the Belleville post office.

During the course of the evening Mr. Pitney was presented with a charming mantel clock upon which is a plaque suitably engraved with Mr. Pitney's name and his length of service as a letter carrier. Following an enjoyable social time together the guests were entertained to luncheon by Mrs. Pitney.

Victoria Avenue Baptists Observe 71st Anniversary

Victoria Avenue Baptists marked their seventy-first anniversary on Sunday with large congregations in attendance at both morning and evening services. Professor G. P. Albaugh, M.A., B.D., professor of church history at McMaster University, was special speaker for the day.

Speaking on the subject, "Undergirding Facts" at the morning service, Professor Albaugh enlarged on St. Paul's benediction to the Corinthians, "The grace of the Lord Jesus, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Spirit be with you all."

In the New Testament the grace of the Lord Jesus is the sum total of the blessing, pointed out the speaker. It means to us divine favour. Every man has a capacity for being better than himself if he only tries. No matter how far we miss the mark at times, there is always that Divine spark which enables us to live better lives than we are. All we have to do is make use of this spark of divinity that is available through the grace of Jesus.

The second great fact mentioned by Paul is the love of God. The earth is full of the love of God. His love is the only thing we have that binds up life's inconsistencies. Behind each act in this world, whether we like it or not, there is something that turns to something good. We must assume that the universe is fundamentally good in all its prevailing moods. The love of God is the second great pillar of our faith, or this world is ridiculous.

The third undergirding fact, the communion of the Holy Spirit, means fellowship of the spirit of God, so that it will never be necessary for us to feel lonely, no matter what befalls. The soldier at his secluded outpost, isolated from companions and friends, need not be lonely. He may fill his mind with thoughts of home and loved ones and not be lonely. On the other hand, one may be physically close to another, may shake his hand and look into his eyes but receive nothing but a cold clasp and a glassy stare. There is no communion of the spirit in such contact and that person is indeed lonely. No matter what the circumstances may be, no one can be lonely who has communion with the spirit of God.

Speaking at the evening service on "The Task of Religion", Professor Albaugh said that reconstruction of the world was not the primary purpose but rather a renewal of our commitment to Jesus Christ. A reconstructed world starts first in the individual lives and hearts of people. Begin with the persons within and from there branch out into all the world.

The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Fred Jobson, with Mr. Dorland Houston presiding at the organ console, provided excellent music. Anthems heard were, "The Splendor of Thy Glory, Lord", "Ye That Dwell in the House of the Lord", "And God said 'Let the Earth' ".

Guest soloist in the morning was Miss Margaret Hall, of Castlefield Baptist Church, Toronto, who sang "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings". The pastor, Reverend H. O. Eastman, was in charge of both services.

Queen Alexandra H. & S. Assoc. Meets

The first meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Assoc. took the form of an open house last Tuesday evening.

Teachers were present in their classrooms and the parents were at liberty to discuss and view their children's work. Teaching demonstrations were held in various grades.

Mrs. H. O. Trusdale, the President of the Assoc. occupied the chair for the meeting and outlined the objectives of the Home and School Club. Regret was expressed at the loss of the club by the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barclay to Porth Arthur.

The parents' attendance prize was won by Miss Sullivan's room.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Myers whose talk was entitled 'Education for the Brave New World'.

It was pointed out that everybody must have hope for a new world and a better one. However, it must be realised that any such world will not come through wishing but must be actively worked for and according to well made plans.

Education must cultivate intelligence by providing facts for immediate use. In other words place in the hands of the children materials to work with in order that they may develop by making things and using their faculties to good purpose.

Through education the children should be taught to work in cooperation with others and not to work in a competitive spirit. Not only should children learn to work with but also through others.

Parents must learn to live happily with their children and teach them to derive satisfaction from the real things in life. The home and school and the church must work together to make religion a living thing for all children.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Rural Dean Proctor Tells of Life Of Pioneers in Peace River

Modern pioneers of the western prairie lands, with those of Britain, who migrated to the virgin lands of the Peace River district of British Columbia in the twenties faced hardships equalling those of early Canadian settlers, Rural Dean T. D. Proctor of the Diocese of Kootenay told a St. Thomas Church congregation Sunday morning.

Rural Dean Proctor, the first clergyman to bring the church to this 56,000 square acres of territory that lies 500 miles north of Edmonton, painted a graphic word picture of the struggles of these pioneers to establish homes in their new environment.

Early Days in Settlement.

Fired with the zeal of pioneer forebears, they hewed their homes from the forests, cleared patches of land, and fought a winning battle against the elements despite handicaps that would have discouraged less determined people.

Some of them travelled fifteen hundred miles by wagon upon which were piled their entire belongings, leading cattle and other livestock.

Their first homes were crude structures built with sods cut from virgin soil. Their entire food supply during the first winter consisted of frozen wheat and frozen potatoes, with an occasional wild rabbit snared by those fortunate enough to catch one.

The winter of 1929 there were three thousand inhabitants scattered over the vast territory. Now it has increased to over 13,000.

Describing his experiences in the district, the speaker told his congregation that he travelled to the "end of steel" 500 miles north of Edmonton, then trekked overland 50 miles to the first small settlement.

First Services Are Held.

No church services had been held in this gateway to the vast acreage of the Peace district. His first service was held in the settlement hall where dancing and smoking had taken place a few hours previously.

The second was held in a poolroom with settlement residents sitting on benches around the walls and others standing. A billiard table was used as altar, pulpit, lectern and communion table.

Speaking with a group of trappers and prospectors in the middle of the week, one asked jokingly if he would now hold a service in the settlement.

"There will be one next Sunday," Dean Proctor replied.

"That's too bad," another replied, "we won't be here."

"Would you go if we held a service here??" he asked.

"Sure," came the reply.

Third Service in Bar Room.

In this settlement the only available place at this time was a bar room. With the assistance of the bartender the place was cleared of its business facilities, and the service was held.

Later Rural Dean Proctor assisted in the erection of the first church in the district. This was built of rough logs cut from the forest near a village called Sunset Prairie. Church furnishings were donated from the "outside." Within a short time fourteen churches were built in far-flung sections of the district.

People in the northern counties of England came to the rescue and sent funds to provide church equipment.

Hardships During Depression.

During the great depression, further hardships struck the district. Wheat prices dropped so that no grain could be sold. The eastern provinces sent bales of clothing and other supplies which alleviated to a great extent the privations suffered by these people.

For these gifts, Rural Dean Proctor brought personal appreciation and the gratitude felt by his former charges in the Peace River.

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne officiated at the choral communion celebrated following the address by the distinguished guest.

City-Wide Canvass for Salvage Paper Starts at 7 P.M. Tonight

Public Requested to Tie Paper Bundles Securely With Stout Cord

"Lest we Forget."

Tonight is the night. At seven p.m. or shortly afterwards overalled city service clubmen, manning heavy trucks will conduct a house-to-house collection canvass of waste paper.

To facilitate this collection, householders and others desirous of contributing their used papers and magazines to the war effort, are urged to have their parcels tied and ready for transportation.

The collection cavalcade will assemble at the City Hall a few minutes previous to the zero hour of seven p.m. and under the supervision of service club "sergeants" and their crews will "take off" on the large task of covering the city.

Services of the men and trucks are gratis to the Salvage Campaign. Rotary, Kiwanis and Kinsmen members, are giving their time and labor in a city-wide effort to reach the quota of this important war ingredient allotted to Belleville.

A few minutes work on the part of householders will greatly facilitate their efforts. It is doubly important that papers be tied in bundles with heavy cord and placed in a handy spot on the verandah or near the street. Loose packages will cause delay and inconvenience.

Help the war effort, and the city's efforts by doing your part.

POLICE BLOTTER

Trenton police reported the theft of a 1939 model Chrysler sedan bearing Ontario licence plate number 8-S-366 over the weekend.

Police Called.

City police were called to quell an argument on Front Street Saturday evening. Upon arrival a husband and wife, who gave Oshawa as their home address, were engaged in a heated discussion that naturally attracted a large listening audience. Taken to the station house the husband and his spouse were warned to keep their personal verbal differences within the confines of their home.

Damages Settled.

Driving out into Front Street from a gangway opposite Campbell Street Saturday evening a motor car driven by B. E. Chaplain was in collision with a south-bound automobile driven by Mr. A. Currie, Trenton R.C.A.F. Fender damage resulted to the latter vehicle while the matter of damages was settled amicably.

Police Investigating.

In a recent report of a theft at the Tyendinaga Reserve Council House, Mrs. Rosalind Robertson, of Shannonville, told Provincial Police her top coat and purse had been stolen from a parked motor car. Also missing was a motor rug and registration card, but no beer or wine permits, as originally reported. Provincial Police are investigating.

Charges Laid.

Several inebriates ran into the clutches of the "boys in blue" Saturday night after imbibing too freely of "wobble water". Charges were laid before the parties were permitted permission to proceed to their homes for the Sabbath.

Fire Destroys Log House at Hermon

Bancroft, Oct. 16 —(Special)— Fire of an unknown origin starting shortly after midnight on Sunday forced Mr. and Mrs. George McCathern, of Herman, with their seven children and aged grandfather to escape in their night clothes as their two-storey log residence and its entire contents were destroyed by the flames.

Awakened an hour before midnight by the barking of his dog, Mr. McCathern made the rounds of his barn and returned to bed after checking the kitchen stove. An hour later he again awoke to find the home filled with the reflection of flames from the adjoining woodshed roof.

Quickly awakening his wife and family, and his aged father, he led them to safety in their night clothes. Then realizing his two-year-old daughter, Emily, was still in the burning dwelling he made his way through the smoke and flames to the upstairs to rescue the infant.

Calvin White of Herman, returning home, saw the flames and arousing neighbors assisted in forming a bucket brigade to save the other buildings of the homestead. The McCathern family were sheltered by neighbors for the remainder of the night. The two-storey farm home and contents were a complete loss with no insurance carried, it was reported.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

B. C. I. & V. S.

ASSEMBLY, OCT. 11, 1944

Quartet Takes Trip.

Once again, the four vocally-inclined gentlemen who comprise the B.C.I. quartet, appeared to announce the Glee Club supper dance. This announcement began with one of the members of this organization's becoming horizontal, after which the boys launched themselves into a series of puns, (mostly bad), and left their audience with the impression that the future held an event that should not be missed.

Aftermath:

An announcement was made by Miss Vera Flindall, (Mme. President), to the effect that the results of the appearance of the Don Cossack chorus were the sum of $350, and the memory of a very pleasant evening. She thanked all the masters and students who had given of their time and effort to make this concert a success.

The voluminous receipts are now in the greedy, clutching hands of treasurer James Watson, and the memory of the evening is firmly entrenched in the minds of all those who attended the concert.

Ex-Student Wields Mighty Pen:

Mr. Turner waved a thick manuscript at the assembled students, and told them that these pages contained the words of "Old-Boy" Mac Dowsett, who is now a member of "The King's Navy." The letter was evidently too lengthy to be read in public, but now, it is reposing in the office and may be obtained by anyone, for the asking.

BOYS' SPORTS

B.C.I. 26—Picton 0.

Yes, believe it or not, B.C.I. has finally come through with a junior rugby team of championship calibre. On Thursday after school, our Juniors, without too much effort, gave notice that they are the team to watch in the Junior Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. rugby schedule. From their first play of the game, a sneaker forward thrown by Locke to Strahan which resulted in a touchdown, the issue was never in doubt.

For Belleville all of the players turned in a strong effort, especially Rollins and McCarthy for their fine bucking and tackling, the pass combination of Locke and Strahan which clicked to perfection, and Carefoot, for blocking three attempted kickoffs by Picton, thereby putting B.C.I. in a scoring position each time. For Picton, McDonald and Foster turned in a good game. The score B.C.I. 26; Picton 0.

Lineups:

Belleville: Carefoot, snap; McCarthy, R.O.W; Rollins, L.O.W.; Strahan, quarter; Locke, Diamond, halves; Alternates, Denton, Marcus, Campbell, Neal.

Picton: McLean, snap; Wright, R.O.W; McDonald, L.O.W.; Hepburn, quarter; Foster, Rutter, halves; Alternates, Scott, Scott, Kleinsteuber, Hogle.

Referees: Schreider, Fitzpatrick.

Next Thursday the Senior schedule gets under way as B.C.I. meets St Mike's on our campus.

HOUSE LEAGUE BASKETBALL

This year Grades IX and X have been organized into four basketball teams, coached by four members of the Senior team, with four Juniors as assistants. These teams have been practising faithfully for over a month, and last Thursday night the league officially opened with Team A, coached by Gord Bankier playing team B, coached by Maurice Rollins. There was a fair crowd in attendance and the game was very closely contested, with A team finally winning out 13-11. The passing and general play was exceptionally good, and we feel sure that the results of this league will become even more apparent in years to come as these boys graduate to the Junior and Senior teams. Several players stood out on both teams. For A team, Lockyer, Ethier, Buchanan and Graham turned in a good game, as did Bridger, Bongard, Massey and Barlow for team B.

Lineups:

A team: Boldwin 2, Buchanan 10, Ethier, Allison, Maxwell, Summers, Lockyer 1, Drumm, Graham, Burke, McBride.

B team: Bongard 4, Bridger 4, Massey 3, Marsh, Barlow, Donaldson, White, Best, Thompson.

A second game was played in this league on Friday when team D coached by Stuart Wood defeated team C, coached by Bill Spafford. The score was 12-10. Overtime was needed to decide the game. Gibson with 6 points was high scorer. This league will continue next week, and better support would be in order from the student body. These players are the Seniors of tomorrow.

XIC vs. XIII.

Another in the challenge rugby series was played last Friday when the Grade XIII Explorers surprised themselves by trouncing XIC 14-5. Packing much more power on the line the heavier Explorers crashed through to break up several of XIC's plays. The first half was very closely contested with the score being 7-5 for Grade XIII. At the four minute mark in the first quarter the Explorers started the score by a safety touch for 2 points. McCarthy carried the ball 30 yards for XIC on an end run, but XIII held firm till Wood recovered a fumble to save a touchdown. In the second quarter a 25 yard pass from Locke to Thrasher and a buck by Philp put XIC on the five yard line. However, the Explorers again held for three plays and Grade XI lost possession of the ball. Holway was high tackled and XIC got a 25 yard penalty. Then Wood went for yards, Spafford bucked 9 yards, and Wood rounded the end and crashed through for a 17 yard touchdown which was not converted. Strahan on the next kick showed a great burst of speed to run the entire field for a touchdown. This ended the first half scoring. In the third quarter Massey and Bankier combined to take out McCarthy behind XIC's goal line with Massey falling on the ball for a touchdown. Wood converted with a drop kick. In the 4th Philp intercepted a pass and ran 25 yards. Then Spafford intercepted a pass and on a quick kick Strahan was rouged by Bankier for one point. This ended the scoring for the game, as the Explorers, looking noticeably tired, were content just to hang on to their lead till the final whistle. The final score—XIII Explorers 14, Grade XIC 5.

This was one of the best games played in this series, and if the players hit their league opposition as hard as they were hitting each other, there will be some changes made in the final league standings as compared with last year. All of Grade XIII turned in a good, hard-hitting game, as did the line and backfield of XIC.

Lineups:

XIC: Stebbins, snap; Strahan, R.O.W; Scott, L.O.W.; Locke, quarter; McCarthy, Philp, halves. Alternates, Thrasher, Campbell.

XIII: Bankier, snap; Edwards, R.O.W.; Stewart, L.O.W.; Spafford, quarter; Wood, Holway, halves; Alternates, Massey, Laskaris.

DON COSSACK CHORUS

Russian songs with their peculiar haunting melodies, and rollicking tempos were more than done justice to by Serge Jaroff and his Russian Cossack Choir in our auditorium on Monday, October 9th. These husky soldiers from the Valley of the Don with their diminutive leader have sung their way around the world during the last 25 years and are now completing their fifteenth Canadian and American tour. The Cossacks sang as one voice, the tenors especially outdoing themselves in excellency, but the bass section, with that bottom C were equally impressive. Not to be omitted is their skill in dancing. With elastic grace, light and sure-footed, two Cossacks demonstrated the movements which go to make up the Russian folk dances.

GLEE CLUB SUPPER DANCE

The well known tea dance took on a new form on Friday, October 13th, as the hours were 7:30 to 10.30 instead of 4 to 6. This new idea was well received, as the girls' gymnasium was packed from start till finish with pleasure seeking students who thronged to B.C.I.V.S. on an ideal star-lit evening to jostle their way across the over-crowded dance floor.

In spite of the fact that the out-of-doors was simply crammed with cool, refreshing atmosphere, the interior of the school was a trifle warm, as a result of which the students consumed in the vicinity of ten gallons of cider and gave off a slightly larger amount of honest perspiration. However, the dancers would not be thwarted in their search for an enjoyable evening and so they merely settled down and enjoyed themselves with the result that the Glee Club supper dance became a complete success.

The orderly manner in which this dance was conducted is suggestive of similar events in the future.

COMING EVENTS

Week of Monday, October 16th to Friday, October 20th, 1944.

Tuesday, October 17th — For the basketball-minded people, there will be another tussle in the Junior House League, this time between the teams of Bankier and Spafford. The former having defeated Rollins (12-11) is confident of victory. A real scrap is expected. Today also marks the initial showing of the 125 lb. rugby teams, who will clash on the campus at four-thirty. Under "Zeke" Philp and Jack Dodson these fellows have become hard tacklers and masters of their plays. This will be a game worth seeing.

Wednesday, October 18—Nothing to report as yet.

Thursday, October 19 — B. C. I. Seniors will make their debut of the season against St. Mikes. There will be a great many new faces on this year's team, among them Willie Spafford, Fred Miles, Leon Spafford, Don Freeman, and Reg. Edwards. Today is you chance to meet your new Senior Team. In the meantime it's Rollins vs. Wood in the boys' gym with Rollins' team out for revenge after the close game in which they were defeated a week ago by Bankier's team.

Friday, October 20th—This time Rollin's team meets Spafford's in the basketball House League. This is the first meeting of these two teams and it should be worth seeing.

This is our knowledge up to the deadline of events planned for the coming week. We are sorry if we have omitted any which may be scheduled.

$617 RAISED BY KINSMEN CLUB FOR MILK FUND

Despite inclement weather which saw rain fall for the greater part of the afternoon, $617 was raised by the local Kinsmen Club as result of their Saturday's tag day for their Milk for Britain Fund, it was announced today by President "Mat" Currie. This is sufficient to buy 6,170 quarts of milk to send overseas, it was stated. Although officials of the club expressed their full appreciation for the amount raised in their tag day, it was felt that had they been favored with better weather the amount raised would have been considerably bettered.

Premier G. Drew Answers Godbout

Toronto, Oct .16, (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario Saturday declared that the statement of former Premier Godbout of Quebec, at Quebec, on Thursday, attacking Premier Drew for his stand on the Federal Family Allowances Bill, "is surely one of the most remarkable statements ever issued by a man of supposed responsibility in this country".

Premier Drew's statement declared: "When Mr. Godbout charges me with creating disunity he ignores the fact that my remarks referred to the challenge to national unity by Mr. Godbout himself and the Quebec Legislature. It was he who raised the threat of civil war last May in the Canadian government followed the will of the great majority of the people of Canada as expressed in the (manpower) plebiscite. . ."

7th Victory Loan Is Challenge To Pride, Patriotism

Ottawa, Oct. 16—(CP)—War Services Minister LaFleche said Sunday in a brief address that "surely every true Canadian will look upon "the forthcoming Seven Victory Loan" as a challenge to his patriotism and his pride, and will invest in victory by making his susbcriptions to the loan greater than the last."

The address was recorded earlier and broadcast during a commercial program over the Dominion Network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"We have a responsibility by intensifying our own individual efforts, by perfecting a unity of purpose and endeavor, and by putting the Seventh Victory Loan triumphantly over-the-top, we Canadians when victory comes, can proudly stand and say: 'We, too, have wrought to bring about this day.' "

Armored Troops Properly Trained Officer Claims

Edmonton, Oct. 16 —(CP)— The plan devised by Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, commander of the Canadian Corps in France, in the battle of Caen was "brilliantly daring," Brig.-Gen. Bob Wyman, said here in an interview yesterday.

Home after more than three years overseas service, he said "we tried twice to get south of Caen but failed."

"Then Gen. Simonds conceived a brilliantly-daring plan. We took the guns out of our heavily-armored vehicles and loaded them with infantry and under cover of darkness went right through the German lines and gun positions."

Asked about statements made by Maj. Conny Smythe of Toronto about poorly-trained reinforcements, he said that "as far as the armored troops are concerned, everything that could be done to prepare and train them for the future was done."

Canadian Troops Take Gambitolla In Adriatic Sector

Rome, Oct. 16 — (CP)—Canadian formations with the British 8th Army drove across the Scolla-Rigossa Canal during the week-end and captured two points within five miles of the road junction of Cesena in their thrust westward along the Rimini-Bologna highway, it was disclosed today.

A field dispatch reported the fall of the village of Bulgaria, four miles east of Cesena and half a mile north of the highway, and today's Allied communique announced the capture of the town and Tambitolla, one mile east of Bulgaria.

American units of the Allied 5th Army seized the hotly-contested hill town of Livergnano on the main Florence-Bologna highway 11 1/2 miles south of the city of Bologna.

The 8th Army has captured 10,-300 prisoners since the battle for the Gothic Line started more than a month ago.

Livergnano fell to American infantry, tanks and tank-destroyers after four day's bitter fighting.

In the hills south of Cesena a general advance of about 1,000 yards was made by other 8th Army forces and a number of important terrain features were captured northwest of Carpineta with 160 prisoners.

Carpineta is 4 1/2 miles south and slightly east of Cesena.

Indian troops farther west advanced about a mile capturing Dio La Guardia on a road leading north to Cesena and took up positions on Mount Delle Vacone, a commanding feature in that area.

West of fallen Livergnano, British and South African troops of the 5th Army cleaned the villages of Veggio, Grizzano and Campiara.

Road and rail bridges in northern Italy were attacked yesterday by Allied medium bombers, while fighters and fighter-bombers gave ground troops close support.

No Truck, Trade With Communists Says Col. G. Drew

Alliston, Ont., Oct. 16. (CP) — Premier George Drew of Ontario said here Saturday that any Liberal who sells his principles "to follow the Communist Party line in Canada is not worthy of a party of great tradition that has contributed many splendid men to public life in the past".

Mr. Drew, assailing proposals of a coalition to defeat his government, termed "silly" and "fantastic" charges that he "was setting up embassies overseas".

His recent trip aboard had been "more than justified" in the establishment of closer relations between men overseas and the plans for their rehabilitation and Ontario's post-war needs for her farm products.

Mr. Drew said arrangement to foster Ontario's sales in France—which would require many things after the war—would not cost Ontario "one nickel".

The attempt to wed Communists and Liberals was 'serious' and typical of the methods of Communism—to seek control of other groups.

"So long as I am leader of this government there will be no truck or trade with Communists or their fellow-passengers. We will be elected on the principles of the Progressive Conservative party or not at all. There is great room for establishment of confidence on that basis".

MORE WRENS FOR NFLD. AND U. K.

Halifax, Oct. 16—(CP)— Cmdr. Adelaide Sinclair, director of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service on a tour of naval establishments in the Maritimes and Newfoundland, said more Wrens would be sent to Newfoundland and the United Kingdom soon but said she doubted if they would go to other overseas areas.

9,934 HAVE VOLUNTEERED FROM TORONTO UNIVERSITY

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—Dr. H. J. Cody whose resignation as President of the University of Toronto becomes effective next June 30, said in an interview last night that 9,934 graduates and undergraduates of the University have volunteered for active service in this war. Three hundred and fifty-two have been killed in action or are missing.

HOLD BROAD STRETCH

Stockholm, Oct. 16—(AP)—Finnish troops have reached the heights overlooking Rovaniemi, German stronghold in northwestern Finland, and now hold positions along a broad stretch of the Kemi River, a Helsinki communique announced today.

"Here, Young Fellah—Beat it into the kitchen and have a feed of these sweet-as-a-nut Grape-Nuts Flakes!"

"Whee-ee—Thanks, Soldier! Watch me go for a couple of bowlfuls of these toasty-brown, malty-rich Grape-Nuts Flakes!"

"Yes, Young Fellah—If you want something to make you big and strong Grape-Nuts Flakes are just the ticket!"

"I know—They've got carbohydrates for energy, proteins for muscle, iron for the blood, phosphorus for teeth and bones and other food essentials in 'em!"

"Right you are! Grape-Nuts Flakes sure taste good and they're good for you. When you've finished that package, walk slowly over to the grocer's for another."

CANADA'S VETERANS

Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the third in a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get the full details save and read every advertisement.

For complete information write for the booklet, "Back to Civil Life."

A Civilian Again—

WHAT ABOUT A JOB? WHAT ABOUT SECURITY?

These are questions uppermost in the mind of every man and woman discharged from the forces. They want to know how to get a job. They want to know what protection there will be if they become ill, or if any other situation arises which cuts off their income. The people who planned Canada's programme of re-establishment took these things into account and much legislation has been passed looking to full employment. Many plans are still being made. There are social security provisions, especially for those in the forces, and there is assurance for veterans that when a helping hand is needed, it will be available.

JOB PLACEMENT POLICY

Special arrangements have been made for Canada's veterans who are seeking employment. Although they apply as do all Canadians through Employment and Selective Service there is a special division to deal with the problems of ex-service men and women. The staff in this division understand veterans' problems and many of them are themselves ex-service men. In addition, in key centres throughout Canada there are veterans' welfare officers who give ex-service men and women every assistance in job finding and in planning their careers.

RETURN TO FORMER JOBS

As stated in a previous advertisement, if your boy or girl held a civilian position before enlisting and was not engaged to replace somebody already in the forces, and if the position still exists and your boy or girl is capable of filling it, it is the employer's duty under the law of Canada to reinstate him or her in that position with seniority. Application for reinstatement must be made to the former employer within three months of discharge from the forces or from hospital.

CIVIL SERVICE PREFERENCE

Under the law of Canada, every ex-service man or woman, with overseas service, or disability pensioners receive preference, in civil service appointment if qualified for the position for which they apply.

TO ASSIST EMPLOYMENT

Parliament, at its last session, made provision for a new Department of Reconstruction, whose function is the co-ordination of measures for the provision of full employment in Canada. Much legislation has already been passed to bring this about, while a special committee has been sitting since March of 1942, hearing expert evidence on Canada's post-war needs. Industry, the provinces and municipalities are all making plans which will provide jobs in Canada.

SOCIAL SECURITY MEASURES

Under the re-establishment program, Canada's veterans are protected against casual illness or unemployment in the 18 months following discharge. Maintenance allowances up to $50 a month, if single, and $70 for a man and his wife, with children's allowances, may be paid, for the period of service to a maximum of one year, should either condition arise. The out-of-work benefits are for those who are fit and able to work and for whom there is no work immediately available. In the case of serious illness, there is free treatment, hospitalization and allowances, for any condition, in the year following discharge.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Every veteran who enters insurable employment is entitled, after fifteen weeks in that employment, to unemployment insurance credits as though the whole period in the services, since July 1, 1941, had been spent in the insured employment.

VETERANS' LIFE INSURANCE

Canada's veterans, in most instances, may purchase life insurance, without medical examination, to a maximum of $10,000.

OTHER LEGISLATION

A new Housing Act has been passed, providing money at low interest rates, for home financing.

Family allowances will distribute $200,000,000 a year.

Acts have been passed to maintain farm and fishery prices.

Consideration is being given, with provincial co-operation, to a wide program of National Health Insurance.

Veterans' welfare officers are stationed in key centres throughout Canada. They are the friends of ex-service men and women. It is their duty to advise and assist all ex-service personnel with their re-establishment problems. If there is anything about the rehabilitation programme which you do not understand consult your nearest welfare officer.

Christmas Parcels for Services

These times are busy for those preparing boxes for Christmas for the service men and women across the seas.

This year will see a larger flow of gift boxes sent at earlier date than ever, it is expected. There is every sign that there will be a few tardy boxes presented at post offices. Everyone is at the job of getting them away as fast as possible. Good results of the campaign for early shipping to assure arrival and delivery before Christmas are reported.

The dates set for shipment of parcels to all war theatres but France and Britain have been passed. The middle of next week sees the expiry of this latter date too, October 25th.

The service men overseas are assured of gifts from home and from various organizations, religious and secular, that will bring them the real Christmas spirit of the family folk at home. Many of these boxes have gone forward, more are to follow.

The real spirit of Yuletide will be marked in Canadian camps everywhere in the world, in the Old Land, in the East and Middle East, in the Mediterranean theatre of war, in the countries which have been liberated in Western Europe and wherever Canadians as well as Americans and British and others have penetrated in the Allied progress.

Getting Ready for Loan

Next Monday will be a memorable day for on that time Canada launches the Seventh Victory Loan for a minimum objective of one billion, three hundred million dollars. War and Victory Loans of the Dominion have had a steady rise to the present goal which was exceeded by the subscriptions to the Sixth Victory Loan. The First War Loan of 1940 was for $200,000,000 and the second loan for $300,000,000, the First Victory Loan in 1942 reached $730,376,250 and the second in 1942 no less than $843,127,000 and the Third Victory Loan $991,389,050. The fourth, fifth and sixth victory loans have all exceeded the objective in the Seventh Victory Loan, the fourth standing at $1,308,716,650, the fifth at $1,374,988,500 and the sixth $1,407,576,650.

These large figures are indicative of the zeal of the Canadian people to back up with every dollar possible the war effort of the Dominion.

In the next few weeks Canadians are going to show how strong are the sinews of war which Canada can wield against the enemy. They have thoroughly realized that the work of the home front is a task that will allow no relaxation of effort and Canadian dollars will be poured into the loan to show that the service of the servicemen is supported by the greatest possible strength and financial effort in the war.

Canadians have money to invest and invest it in the Victory Loan they will. Every loan has so far been on the ascending scale. To exceed the minimum goal and to make a new record will surely be the answer to the appeal.

Satellite Empire Crumbles

Hitler's satellite empire has gone the way of all such associates. Hungary is nearing collapse and its fall is seen only a matter of time before the terrific weight of the Russian armies force that country out of the conflict.

Russia has shown the might of her striking power in the Balkans. She is driving with irresistible force through that region as well as in the Baltic region and is drawing close to the Reich itself, shorn of its buffer states or satellites.

Japan Shorn of Conquests

Japan which spread her octopus tentacles into the Pacific with great speed in 1942 with the initial step launched with treachery, is now finding that retribution is near as the Allies are cutting off the gains of the early days and have been so successful that they have steadily hit at the Philippines as well as at Formosa with disaster to the Japanese. Tremendous air losses have been inflicted upon the Japanese by the American forces and sunk or damaged half a thousand Jajanese ships.

Sea Serpents

(By Lt.-Cmdr. R. Gould, R.N., in London Express)

There is nothing surprising or unlikely about the report of a sea serpent off the coast of Brazil. It fits in with several others.

The mouth of the Parahiba river, in Brazil, somewhat to the southeast, was the scene of the best authenticated instance in modern times, that of the creature seen from the Earl of Crawford's yacht, Valhalla, in December, 1905.

It had an ell-like neck rising several feet above the water and supporting a turtle-shaped head, while glimpses of a large submerged body were occasionally seen.

A little to the northward, off Cape San Roque, Brazil, a very similar but larger creature was seen in July, 1875, by crew of the British barque Pauline, while near the St. Paul Rocks, one was encountered in April, 1920, by the S. S. Tyne. It passed her some 400 yards off, swimming 12 knots. Its neck was estimated at fully 25 feet long and its body at 50 feet or more.

In the very month of August, too, H.M.S. Daedalus, while on passage from the Cape to St. Helena in 1848, was passed at close range by a huge creature with a serpent-like head and long, slender neck swimming at great speed southwest—heading, that is, straight for the Brazilian coast.

All experience goes to show—and I have notes of more than 100 cases—that these creatures, while formidable in appearance, are perfectly harmless, although inquisitive. There are many instances of their following small boats and letting ships approach them. In May, 1917, H.M.S. Hilary passed within 30 yards of one basking on the surface, which she afterwards killed by gunfire—but there is no case on record of their having ever attacked or molested human beings.

Britain Dances Again

(London Daily Mail)

Another step towards a brighter wartime Britain is promised this winter.

Dances, which for the past five years have had to end before midnight, will probably continue into the early hours—with the approval of the majority of the police chiefs and licensing magistrates.

Police chiefs welcome the opportunity of allowing a little more gaiety to come back into the lives of millions of people for whom dancing was the principal peacetime pleasure.

The first move was made by Darwen (Lancashire) magistrates, who granted an extension for a works dance until 2 a.m.

This is the first time in the war that the young people of this cotton town, with a population of 37,000, have been able to go on dancing after midnight.

Whistling in the Dark

The German Minister of Finance, Walther Funk, came out with a plan in which he pledges that the output of German factories after the war will be used "To wipe out the clearing balances Germany owes other countries."

The whole plan sounds very much like an effort to bribe the occupied countries into helping Germany to preserve German industries in case of defeat.

The Nazi-controlled Amsterdam newspaper "De Telegraaf" says that this plan would serve the Germans in dual manner, in that it would rid Germany of the large clearing balances the country now owes and at the same time would ensure an outlet for much German manufacturing capacity after the war.

Moanin' Low

Incorporation papers for a new club, The Moaners, Inc., have been filed in New Haven, Conn. To qualify for membership the applicant must prove he has passed the "griper" stage and is a "chronic moaner."

Under the by-laws, if a member's disposition improves, he is liable to suspension or even dismissal.

INDIAN SUMMER

When men look out on life with scorn
And say that care strews every mile,
A red and gold October morn
Makes every passing year worth while.

'Tis something to have lived to see,
Though heavy were the burdens borne,
The gold and scarlet pageantry
Of every Indian summer morn.

Worth while the toiling and the pain,
The stress of strife and doubt of fear,
To walk about and see again
The golden triumph of the year.

Last winter did we trudge the snow?
And were the skies of April gray?
Be glad, for we have lived to know
Another Indian summer day!

Mephitis; A Friend of Man

(New York Times Editorial)

The skunk isn't at all a bad chap to know. His reputation, based on smell, does not do him justice. Anyone who has been a mother skunk lead her brood of little ones in single file across a lawn at dusk, each tiny fellow with his tail held aloft like a banner, has seen one of the most appealing sights in nature's museum. Mephitis and his relatives cover the Eastern part of the nation, from Maine to Florida, from Wisconsin to Louisiana.

As man has cleared a home in this New World, some forms of wildlife have retreated to swamps and mountain security; some have been eliminated entirely. But the skunk, like the fox and the opossum, has learned to survive in farm areas. Indeed, he can frequently be found, or smelled, in urban centres. It may be that Mephitis likes the company of man in spite of the way he has been persecuted.

He is a good friend of the farmer in spite of an occasional foray on the chicken coop. He eats tremendous quantities of May beetles and their grubs; he consumes many field mice which eat the bark of trees, the heads of timothy and the grains of oats, wheat and buckwheat. Repeated surveys by biologists have proved that "Stripe Suit" more than earns his way.

The common opinion is that Mephitis is a lethargic, stolid chap that goes bullheadedly on his way. But while he seems indolent and slothful if he comes forth in the daylight hours, he's a changed being on a cool, moonlit autumn evening. Then he's an active, nimble creature; he hustles about in the crisp air, flipping stones to one side as he hunts for a grub or digs in the soil for a beetle or worm. He responds to good weather environment—as do other animals, including homo sapiens.

When the time of cold arrives, he goes into semi-hibernation in a rabbit or woodchuck hole, beneath an old building, or occasionally digs his own burrow. The countryman has a folklore saying that if skunks come around the farm buildings in numbers during the fall, it means a long, hard winter. Mephitis has a drawback in polite society, but he sets a good example in sobriety of action, and tends strictly to his own affairs if the world leaves him alone.

NO SILK STOCKINGS UNTIL JAPS BEATEN

Paris (CP) — "Neither New York nor Paris will have silk stockings until Japan is defeated," says M. Bianchini, president of one of the great silk houses of Paris.

There will be no crepe de chine nighties, either. France has no more raw material for the famous Lyons silks, although the machines are believed intact.

Bianchini's fall collection includes handsome substitutes, however, in uncrushable rayon crepes and satins, so skilfully made that even an expert would find it hard to distinguish them from silk.

The season's greatest fabric success is a marvelous synthetic slipper satin in black, white and pastels, suitable for hostess and evening gowns, or dressy blouses to brighten classic black tailleurs for theatre and restaurant wear. Rayon faille, in pastels, wine reds, brown and flag blue, also resemble the prewar fabric. "Sillon" is a new rayon fabric resembling heavy whipcord, only with a perpendicular instead of diagonal weave. It is shown in a wide range of colors, including hyacinth blue, popular for afternoon gowns.

Velvets are limited in range, and are shown principally in corduroy varieties. Damask satins have small peasant flower or heart designs, unlike the former varied patterns. These are used in combination with plain fabrics, and also for house wraps and padded gilets to wear with winter suits.

Scarcity of Lames

There is a limited amount of small patterned metal lames in oriental designs, but the whole collection is only a fraction of what is normally produced.

A new committee to control production and distribution of raw material was introduced by the French government under German control and manufacturers feel it hampers initiative. Even when raw materials are available, it will take at least a year before any quantity of silk fabric will be ready for market.

Fabric prices depend upon the scale of living costs. M. Legrand, president of the lace manufacturers' syndicate, says the lace makers hid the copper parts of their machines before the German occupation, but the present situation is desperate as they have neither cotton nor silk and little rayon. He is unable to see how prices can be adjusted for foreign markets unless the tariff laws are revised.

During the occupation of Brittany the Auvergne lace makers produced Irish lace gloves to replace scarce leather ones. The couture has made ten per cent of their collections in lace models, to help out the fabric shortage. Houses not enjoying the privilege of the luxury class in abolishing ration coupons used quantities of lace tulle, which could be sold without coupons. Lace also is widely used for lingerie.

Dognin, a leading lace manufacturer, shows a white rayon resembling voile, with an openwork flower design, and also rayon patterned rings and dots on a tulle ground. Colored laces are important for blouses, but this season the lace manufacturers have only 40 or 50 designs instead of 1,000.

Diet of Pearls Fatal to Goat

(From the Chicago Daily News.)

Edwin Anderson's goat "Queen" was dead today, believed to be a victim of her taste for the luxurious.

Anderson, stonemason at Newark, Illinois, acquired Queen six or seven years ago. From the outset it was apparent Queen was no ordinary goat. She wouldn't eat just any tin can. She scoffed at receptacles that once had contained lowly beans or succotash.

But let her nibble at an old caviar can and Queen was like a woman wearing a Paris original. And of course Queen never got fat and slovenly like some goats for in Newark no one ever cared much for caviar. That's why Queen had a trim figure to the end.

A person might think that caviar cans would be a fancy enough diet for the haughtiest of goats. But not Queen. She was never satisfied, always looking for something a little better. If it hadn't been for that, Queen probably would have lived for years yet, the proudest goat in town.

The beginning of the end started the other day. Anderson was hunting clams in the Fox River as Queen surveyed the operation. He found six clams bearing pearls and laid them aside to resume his search.

When he turned to retrieve his pearls there was a look of pleasure in Queen's eyes he had never seen before. For the first time in her life she appeared contented. The last of the pearl-bearing clams was sliding down her throat.

For a time Queen's carriage was more regal than ever. She held her head high and cast a speculative eye at Anderson's diamond ring. Then it happened. Queen slumped to the ground, her legs paralysed. The end came in a matter of hours.

Anderson didn't have the heart to retrieve his treasure then. He laid Queen to rest intact—a proud look still on her face—the pearls still inside her.

I BELIEVE IN SOAP AND WATER

Strange as it may seem to the Wiseacres, I, Ol' Doc Brady, believe the people, all the people, do not make nearly enough everyday use of soap and water as a cleansing, antiseptic, disinfecting agent.

Recently I quoted here an observation of Prof. Barnett Sure's (The Little Things in Life, Appleton-Century, '37):

"Relatively clean teeth may be extremely decayed and filthy mouths may contain sound teeth and healthy gums."

Frankly, I do not understand what Prof. Sure means by filthy and Webster doesn't help much. Webster says filth is foul matter; anything that soils or defiles disgustingly; and filthy means defiled with filth disgustingly dirty, polluting. That's clear enough even for my dull comprehension, but I'd feel happier about it if Prof. Sure, or any other intelligent or competent person would show me a "filthy" mouth containing sound teeth and healthy gums. I honestly believe that would be as singular as a mouse's nest in the cat's ear.

Still and all, I say we do not use enough soap and water in this country. Especially not enough soap. In a good many places where water, even running water, is provided there is a conspicuous absence of soap, whether in solid, liquid or powder form.

Now soap costs money while water is so cheap that almost any municipality corporation or individual is willing to provide it for washing the hands, or for drinking, that is, for citizens, patrons or guests. When it comes to providing soap, few municipalities or corporations or indivduals are willing to provide it, not regularly and constantly. I'm not an economist and I do not know whether the cost of soap should be paid by the corporation or employer or municipality or by the public or by the user, but I do believe this question should be answered by the law and some sort of ordinance or sanitary law set up and strictly enforced so that the penalty for failure to provide soap would be more costly to the delinquent corporation or individual than a year's supply of soap.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Phenobarbital Habit Broken

Had been taking phenobarbital regularly for nervous spells. It was prescribed at first by a prominent physician, but later I got it myself . . . When I read in your column how the drug affects morale I . . . started eating the B-complex and D rations you advise in the pamphlet . . . now I sing happily at my work . . . I used to bawl at the drop of a hat . . . I don't think you have any idea how much help and joy your column gives people.

(V. S. G.)

Answer — Thank you, Ma'am. Trouble is, so many people read my hard-boiled column only to deplore my unprofessional lack of sympathy and understanding. The pamphlet to which you refer is entitled "Young Folks and Old Folks", and deals with the common nutritional deficiencies of young people and old people. It does not allude to the barbiturates or other drugs. Copy mailed any reader who asks for it in writing and incloses stamped self addressed envelope.

Enlarged Tonsils

Son, 7, tall, weighs 52 pounds, has enlarged tonsils, pitted but apparently no pus pockets. Physician advises removal of tonsils, but that seems to be a wholesale business here. Aside from underweight and occasional leg ache the boy seems well enough. (Mrs. R. S. C.)

Answer—Mere enlargement of tonsils (and adenoids or pharyngeal tonsil) is a normal condition in young children, especially in autumn and winter. The atrocity was a wholesale business throughout the country twenty or thirty years ago, but something has abated the zeal of the born specialists and the clinic racketeers for that line of work. Send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet "Tonsils and Adenoids"—but please remember, a clipping of this item will not suffice.

Wheat Germ

Where can I get freshly milled wheat germ. We were getting it at —— mill until we found out they were getting it from some one else. (Mrs. W. S. E.)

Answer—Any mill that produces wheat flour or other wheat product should have wheat germ or any miller can catch out a few pounds whenever it is wanted. Just plain wheat germ should cost no more than just plain wheat. Of course you must pay for delivery, if you can't carry it home yourself.

Wartime Increase In Ersatz Foods

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(A.P. Science Editor)

New York (CP) — Americans have been getting a lot of ersatz food in this war, mostly illegal, including even an ersatz whiffasafedita substituted for garlic.

The report was made to the American Public Health Association by W. R. M. Wharton, chief, eastern district, United States Food and Drug Administration, New York City, in a talk on war-time food and drug adulteration.

He said that ground pecan shells, flavored with essential oils, became pure spices. Shelled pumpkin seeds were sold as almonds, and mixed with nuts were sold as salted nuts.

The report contained the following statements:

Grated carrots furnished a considerable percentage of the alleged fruit in fresh preserves.

Puffed wheat and soy beans were substituted for peanuts in peanut brittle. A cereal formed to the appearance of cocoanut shreds was used as topping for cocoanut bars.

Ground cocoa residue, largely cocoa shells, appeared in cakes and candy as a substitute for cocoa.

Mineral Oil Used

Mineral oil made its appearance in chocolate for ice cream coatings, candy and popped corn. Wharton noted the antagonism of mineral oil to the body's absorption of vitamins A and D.

Alleged pure olive oil, imported from countries lacking tight adulteration controls, was largely adulterated with cottonseed and other less expensive edible oils.

Enough diethylene glycol to kill two million people a year was offered by a manufacturer as a substitute for glycerine in drugs, medicines, foods, cosmetics and lotions. The administration caught it before harm was done and the manufacturer paid a $3,000 fine.

Nearly one million cases of Spanish and Portuguese brandy, itself perfectly good, was detained due to defective bottles which spread glass slivers through the drinks.

Lead tubes, substituted for tin, caused a chemical change that rendered a birth control preparation worthless.

Inferior rubber stoppers caused chemical changes in medicines with serious damage to patients.

Some people who bought sulfathiazole tablets, as they supposed, were put to sleep for a week because the stuff was really phenobarital, an error blamed on wartime housing conditions in the factory which produced the drugs.

FOLLOWING THE WAR

Johannesburg (CP) —A giant war map, measuring 23 feet square, has been erected outside the city hall to enable citizens to see the latest Allied advances on the four land fronts of Europe. Similar maps will be erected in other large centres.

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

MONKEY BRIDGES

It is often said that monkeys sometimes cross streams by means of "monkey bridges."

According to the popular notion, the monkeys take hold of one another's tails and suspend themselves in a living rope from the limb of a tree on the bank of a river that they wish to cross. They begin to sway back and forth until they gain enough momentum to swing the lower end of the column to a tree on the opposite band.

The other end of the "bridge" is then released and swung across the stream.

Naturalists are inclinde to doubt these stories.

Dr. William T. Hornaday, the noted zoologist, who for 30 years was director of the New York Zoological Park, expressed the opinion that the living monkey bridge is a myth. Still, said he, one should be very cautious in stating what animals "never did" and what they "cannot do."

Monkeys do hang on to one another from time to time and frequently one will climb up the tail of another. One monkey will sometimes even draw another up.

Dr. William H. Mann, superintendent of the National Zoological Park, thinks the stories of monkeys making bridges by taking hold of one another may have been suggested by the habits of the spider monkeys of South America.

At any rate, these natural acrobats of the forest and jungle are the animals that usually figure in the monkey-bridge stories.

They are very fond of taking hold of each other and performing all kinds of gymnastics.

Their remarkable prehensile tails serve as a "fifth hand."

More than one writer has reported cases of the red howling monkeys of Central and South America spanning tree-tops by linking hands and tails and forming a living chain.

Appearance of Noted Author's Wife on Adriatic Beach Signal for Hasty Retreat by Naked Bathers

By DOUG HOW
(C. P. War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic Front (CP) — Soldiers' stories about soldiers:

It was at the height of one of these security periods when the whole emphasis in corps life was upon the need to deceive the local population into believing anything but that these strangers in their midst were Canadians. With that thought surging in his mind, one military policeman came one night upon an Italian house from which a song came beating forth in more or less mutilated form. He went nearer and made a grave and disconcerting discovery: three Canadians were teaching an Italian family the music and words of "O Canada."

For some days Martha Gellhorn Hemingway, wife of the author of "For Whom the Bell Tolls," brought glamor and gossip to a Canadian infantry division through whose ranks she passed in shorts to gather material for a news story. She chances one day upon an Adriatic beach in scant white bathing suit just as a few platoons of Seaforth Highlanders were about to avail themselves of its swimming potentialities. They fled with all the haste naked men can put into their stride upon the approach of a woman.

With the departure of Mrs. Hemingway, the divisional paper, Red Patch, expressed to her the appreciation of the division "for whom the belle strolls".

Story of a Cow

Then there is the story about the time the Cape Breton Highlanders were holding down positions in a farmyard opposite the then uncaptured ridge through Coriano. A shell fragment had splintered the leg of a cow shortly before she was to bear a calf.

Three Highlanders laid aside their rifles and went to work. From a well within full view of enemy positions they brought in buckets of water, nursed her through her trials, then had the discouraging experience of finding her calf still-born. The tragedy was completed shortly after when the cow herself died.

They brought in one day one particularly disgusted German. His temper had been aroused because for some petty crime his superiors had drafted him from his comparatively soft job into the front lines.

He became a prisoner without undue opposition and told with malicious glee to interrogating officers the location of his divisional headquarters. The air force paid it a visit shortly after, knocked out a couple of subsidiary hangouts and put five close ones around the house sheltering the general himself.

Interrogation officers delight in following the careers of any German officer. For weeks one Netherlander with a British division entertained himself by questioning prisoners about a certain Lieut. Elser with a certain company of a certain German battalion. The response was inevitably sharp and disgusted and went something like this: "Every time a shell comes over Elser finds some excuse for running back to battalion headquarters."

ENTERTAINED KRUGER

Johannesburg (CP) — A native woman living at Kliptown, Johannesburg, reached her 107th birthday this week. She lives with her two grandchildren, both of whom are still at school. One of her clearest memories is of handing a cup of coffee to President Kruger when he stopped at a station on his way to Krugersdorp.

Polish Regimes Likely To Form Combined Govt.

Moscow, Oct. 14 —(AP)— Leaders of the rival Polish regimes of London and Lublin were reported to be reopening negotiations for a combined government today.

They have heard from Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin of the importance attached by the Allies to a united Poland.

Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in London conferred today for 2 and ½ hours with Mr. Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden and British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr. He had met last night with Messrs. Stalin and Churchill.

There was no announcement concerning the joint meeting, but it was expected Mikolajczyk's next move would be a second session, possibly today, with leaders of the Soviet-sponsored Lublin Polish Committee of Liberation.

Even before the Premier went to the Kremlin last night one source expressed confidence a blueprint would be drawn there for final settlement of the differences that have kept the Polish government in London and the Lublin committee at odds for months.

The session with the senior statesmen was attended also by Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, and Tadeusz Romer, Foreign Minister of the London Polish group.

In separate talks earlier yesterday Mr. Mikolajczyk had conferred with representatives of the Lublin group and Messrs. Harriman and Molotov. The Polish Premier appeared in good humor and hopeful when he was seen between his visits.

Although the belief grew that at least a tentative compromise might be reached no quick public announcement was expected because Mr. Mikolajczyk probably would have to return to London to confer with his cabinet.

35 Survivors Of U-Boat Attack Landed in Halifax

Halifax, Oct. 16 — (CP)—Thirty-five merchant seamen, survivors of a U-boat attack, have been landed here by a British rescue ship.

The survivors' ship was sunk in a four-day running battle between the largest convoy ever to sail from the United Kingdom and a U-boat pack. The freighter's crew, three of whom were lost in the sinking, were the first survivors to be landed here in more than a year.

"The torpedo struck the after part of the ship and she went to the bottom like a rock," said one survivor.

The Canadian frigate Montreal picked up the freighter's men, some from crowded boats, others from the sea.

A crewman revealed the three men who were lost, apparently unable to see the Montreal coming to their rescue, attempted to swim to a ship more than a mile away. Becoming exhausted, they drowned despite rescue attempts.

A rescue ship took the men off the frigate five days after the sinking.

Washington at War Worried His Mother

Fredericksburg, Va. (CP) — Just as war mothers do today, Mary Washington worried when her son, George, went away to war. She wrote her half-brother, Joseph Ball, Jr., in London on July 26, 1759, "There was no end of my trouble while George was in the army but he has now given it up."

During Washington's service in the Virginia military force from 1753 to 1759, he had undergone immense hardships and returned to Mt. Vernon physically exhausted to be nursed back to health by his mother. Mrs. Washington's first news of the outcome of Braddock's expedition was that her son had been killed.

When the letter was written, Washington—only 27 — had resigned as commander-in-chief of the Virginia forces, had married Mrs. Curtis, had been elected to the House of Burgesses and his mother's worries as to his safety appeared to be over.

A copy of the letter has recently come into possession of the library of Mary Washington college, in Fredericksburg — Mrs. Washington's old home. The original is in the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

Hospital Vessel Hard To Identify

By DOUG HOW
(C. P. War Correspondent)

With the 8th Army in Italy (CP) —"Red Leader" told "Highfield" he had spotted a ship lying off the coast of Italy in the Adriatic Sea. They talked back and forth and in a matter of minutes we had learned a lesson about such things as Allied respect for the Geneva Convention and air-ground liaison.

"Red Leader" was the leader of a flight of Kittyhawk dive bombers prowling about above the battle-lines around the Gothic Line. "Highfield" was a parent ground station—possibly a radio-location station—with whom the flight was in direct radio contact. We were listening in through another ground station which could hear both of them.

The conversation went something like this:

R. L.—"I've spotted a ship about a mile off shore. Do you know anything about it?"

H.—"It shouldn't be there. Have a look, but be sure it hasn't any red crosses on it."

R. L.—"It's about 1,000 tons and lying between Rimini and Ravenna."

H.—"I'm checking to see if they know anything about it."

A Tongue Twister

R. L.—"I'm making a recce. It's

R. L.—"I'm making a recce. It's over ch-ch-ch." (His Australian pronunciation of an eloquently involved Italian name was terrific.)

H.—"Will you spell that name, please?"

R. L. (sidestepping request). "It's north of Rimini. I'm going down for a recce .. (later) .. It's a greyish ship with a small cross on the funnel. If it's a hospital ship it's very poorly marked .. (later, with just a trace of disappointment in his voice) .. Yes, it's a hospital ship."

At our station, LAC. Fred Waddell, a skeptical Dundee Scott, operator of the radio, scoffed "red cross or no red cross, the damn thing's probably loaded with ammunition. You can't trust those guys."

That was that. The ship continued on its tranquil life. The Kitties, their period of patrol about over, wheeled southwest for the alternative target they were given on taking off in case no other targets showed up.

Camouflage Fools Japs in Far East

Sydney, Australia (CP) — The first details of what was known in New Guinea in March 1943 as the Goodenough Island Deception Scheme have been made public by the Australian Army in an official publication. The booklet describes how after the battle of Milne Bay, the Japanese were deceived by the largest and most successful camouflage operation ever undertaken by the Australian Army.

The publication issued recently calls it "the greatest bluff of the Pacific war."

Goodenough Island was captured by the Australians in October 1942, but the force left to garrison it was too small to repel an expected invasion by the Japs from Rabaul and Lae. A small camouflage unit was therefore sent to the island to practice a little deception.

The force holding the island comprised only one company of infantry and some attached troops —not more than 200 in all. To delude the enemy it was necessary to deceive him into believing that the place was held by an entire brigade of 3,000 men complete with guns, tanks, motor transport and powerful fixed defences.

Dummy trenches were dug in strategic positions. They were only a few inches deep, but the soil was darkened by oil to give the appearance of depth from the air. Dummy 25-pounder guns, Bren and Bofors guns and anti-tank guns were made of wood, tin and hessian. Dummy tanks were made of wooden frames covered with painted hessian and were half-concealed under trees. Dummy trucks and jeeps were scattered about in large numbers. Dummy tents gave the appearance of numerous camps, washing was hung on lines and dummy figures left reclining at tent doors.

To aid the deception a fleet of small ships sailed in convoy from Milne Bay to Goodenough Island. They plied back and forth for some days—but they were empty ships. To what extent the Japanese were deceived is not known, but though many enemy reconnaissance planes flew over the island no expedition was ever sent to recover it.

"Oh Lord God, when Thou givest to Thy servants to endeavour any great matter, grant us also to know that it is not the beginning, but the continuing of the same until it be thoroughly finished which yieldeth the true glory."

This prayer, commended by Field Marshal Montgomery to his men on the battlefields, is as fitting for us on the homefront.

Victory is in the persevering. In five years of war, Canada's accomplishments have been magnificent — but so much remains to be done.

The cost of today's Victory operations is greater than ever. The situation calls for all out lending by all — for the very maximum support and effort.

WEDDINGS

COUTURE—WATSON

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a pretty Autumn wedding on Wednesday morning, October 11, at ten-thirty o'clock, when Cpl. Isabelle Ida Watson, C.W.A.C., Kitchener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Watson, became the bride of E.R.A. Gerald Gerard Couture, R.C.N., stationed at the east coast, and son of Mrs. O. Couture and the late Mr. Couture, Trenton. The Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell solemnized the nuptial mass.

White 'mums and a profusion of Autumn flowers adorned the altar for the occasion. Mrs. J. Grant presided at the console of the organ, and Miss Ethel Smith delightfully rendered "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "I Love You Truly".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in an exquisite gown, the top of which was white slipper satin fashioned with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the wrists, and the full sweeping skirt of lace appliqued with satin lovers' knots and which fell in graceful folds from a sheath-tight bodice. Her finger tip silk veil embroidered with lovers' knots was caught to her hair with a tiny cap of white velvet flower petals. She carried a white prayer book from which hung streamers of white ribbon and bouvardia.

Cpl. Evelyn Watson, C.W.A.C., Ottawa, as maid of honor, and Pte. Ida Watson, C.W.A.C., Ottawa, and Zeta Lafferty, Trenton, wore charming floor length gowns in deep yellow, misty green and dusty rose faconne respectively. Their dresses were made with sweetheart necklines, long torso waistlines and long tight fitting sleeves. Atop their heads they wore tiny Juliet caps dusted with veiling in matching shade to their frocks and hats. They carried nosegays of Johanna Hill roses and baby 'mums.

Mr. Harry Lafferty, Trenton, was groomsman, and the ushers were Tom Anger and Keith Chambers.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother selected for the occasion a navy crepe ensemble complemented with navy and white accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The mother of the groom was attired in black and white crepe with black accessories and corsage or Briarcliff roses.

Guest Speaker.

Mrs. James Laughland, a member of the Dominion Board without portfolio and chairman of the Home Organization Cmmittee, was the guest speaker and chose as her theme, "Going Forward Together". The first loyalty of the W.M.S. is to the church—a member must be informed, active, pray, give and remain steadfast. She would read the study book, book shelf and missionary monthly. Several interesting posters depicted, "the church woman as a citizen", "the church in my community" and "our missionary staff". Yesterday there were 363 workers today in the midst of war there are 293 workers and in the coming 4 years 50 young people are needed for service. A living religion costs us something and proportionate giving is best.

She closed with the thought "Let us go forward together, always with our hand in the hand of God ever ready to serve where needed most".

Mrs. A. Empey retiring vice president of Madoc Section, spoke a few words of appreciation for the co-operation she had received during her four years of office. Mrs. Dafoe, of Madoc, Mrs. Harris, of Hazzard's, and Mrs. Spafford, paid tribute to Mrs. Empey's leadership.

Straight Back a Beauty Asset

Lynn Bari has perfect posture.

BY HELEN FOLLETT

To slap a young girl on the back and tell her to stand up straight is the supreme insult. That is what members of the family are always doing to the young lady who has rounded shoulders. We suggest that she give the matter some thought. Because of slouchy carriage she is ruining her figure, and a lovely shape is as great a beauty asset as a pretty face.

Every day of her young life, let her do this exercise:

Stand erect, hands at the sides. Lift the hands above the head. Up higher and higher until the spinal column is fully extended, then swing the hands and body forward and back.

Correcting Poor Posture

The simple habit of pulling in the abdominal muscles, keeping the tummy flat, will help to correct rounded shoulders. With the midsection tight and taut the chest lifts, the back straightens, arms have an easy pose. Unless some disease of childhood has caused the rounded back, the condition is due to poor posture. That can be corrected. Good posture begins in the mind. Feel steppy and vibrant and you will carry yourself like a queen.

Slouchiness is the attitude of laxness or defeat, and it is not pretty. It is a common sight. In the aged, it is forgiven.

Straight Back

The spinal column is the main support of the body. It should be treated with respect, should function normally. It is embedded in innumerable muscles that must be kept strong and resilient. Let them weaken and the body lacks snap and style.

Keep the head balanced, on the level. If the head droops, the muscles of the shoulders weaken, the arms are thrust forward. Movements are inclined to be awkward.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Here's a Story of Real Love—It's About a Soldier and His Girl

Everyone who has written has tried to define love. But the actual experience defies blueprinting. Like a bird, it takes wings and soars aloft. The "divine madness" is a pretty fair definition.

Only in real life or accounts of real life does one catch the reflection of true love. DeMaupassant, in one of his short stories, the name of which eludes me, tells of an old old couple, found living in the direst poverty in Corsica. They were still in love and still happy, and never regretted leaving the brilliant and successful careers which had been theirs in Paris.

A letter comes to this column sometimes which tells of an experience not unlike the one related by DeMaupassant. One came the other day, telling of the radiant happiness of a couple after two years of poignant trials, impossible if theirs had not been real love.

They'd been engaged since the day they received their diplomas at high school together, but decided not to marry 'til after the war. So eager was he to do what he felt was right he enlisted in the Canadian regiment, went through the nightmare of Dieppe and came through that Hell, a parody of what he had been when he asked his schoolmate to be his wife.

He was sent home but he didn't want the girl he loved to even see the wreckage war had made of him. He wrote her a bitter letter, told her he had fallen in love with someone else, and she was released from her promise and he hoped she'd marry and forget him. But you see this was real love, and she didn't believe the things he told her about the other girl in his letter.

From hospital to hospital she went, seeking him, for he got some buddy to mail that letter releasing her, from another town. But she guessed, with the clairvoyance of real love, that this tale of forgetfulness and the other girl was only a way out.

So she continued her searching from hospital to hospital, her family repudiated her as a creature with no pride. When funds were low, she would take a humble job and continue the quest. Some thought she was a little crazy, but she never lost faith.

Finally they met and she insisted on fulfilling that promise of the marriage ceremony, "for better or for worse." She writes me she is happy, and battle-scarred though he is, a useful job was found for him. And in making life livable for the boy she went to school with, she has found her true mission. Their story tells of real love.

New Guinea Wedding Improvisation Model

Port Moresby, New Guinea (CP) —Australian reputation for improvisation has rarely been better demonstrated than at a recent service wedding in Port Moresby. The bride wore a wedding gown of surgical muslin, artificial orange blossoms of antiseptic cotton and a bouquet made from surgical ribbon.

The wedding ring was fashioned from old pieces of surgical gold by a dental mechanic. A few spoonfuls of brandy from medical supplies were used as a "preserving ingredient" for the wedding cake.

The bridegroom was a young Australian non-commissioned officer, the bride an Australian Army Medical Service member.

SERVICEMEN PREFERRED

Cape Town (CP) — The Cape Town city council has adopted a motion stating that in future preference will be given to ex-servicemen and women in the engagement of employees.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am expecting my first baby in a month, and would like to know the correct wording of birth announcements. Also is it all right to write exactly the same thing in every announcement?

2. The mother of a friend of mine lives with her and her husband. Should I send a separate announcement to her mother, or could I enclose her announcement in the one envelope?

3. While I am in hospital, I plan to have a private nurse for a few days, then just the floor nurses, and then bring a nurse home with me to stay for about two weeks. Is it necessary to give a present to each of these nurses? It is customary? If so, to which ones, and what would be suitable?

(M. S.)

1. I judge you wish to write notes to tell the news of your baby's birth . . . I hope you do, for this is the most personal and friendly way to send this personal and so-important announcement. Your notes may be brief, telling just the essential information, and you may write the same thing in every note:

Dear Betty and Phil,

This is to tell you the happy news that John Peter Smith, junior, arrived on November fifth. He's a fine, husky young man, and both he and I are well and flourishing. And you can well imagine how happy John, senior, and I are!

Devotedly,
Mary. . .

2. When you are including another member of the household in your news, just change your first sentence to read for example: "This is to tell you and Betty's mother."

3. It isn't ever "necessary" to give a present to a nurse, and indeed some hospitals forbid their nurses accepting presents. If you find that there is in your hospital no rule against this, you may follow your own inclinations. It's certainly the most natural of feelings to be so grateful to a nurse and her kind and expert services that you wish to make her happy by "remembering" her. Customary gifts are: a purse, gloves, handkerchiefs, lingerie, perfume or toiletries, fountain pen. Occasionally a check is given for the nurse to choose what she wishes, or a gift certificate.

Bride Stands at Groom's Right

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the receiving-line of a wedding reception, should the bride stand at the right or the left of the bridegroom?

(H. R.)

At his right.

Either Side Correct

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a salad is served with the meat course, on which side of the dinner plate should it be placed?

(W. T. R.)

Either side is correct. But it is usually more convenient to the guest to have the salad plate placed at the right of the dinner plate.

Fashion Flashes

"WHY the open-back, sling pump when cold weather is approaching?" ask many women. The answer is, who cares about the temperature, when the open back makes the foot look ever so much shorter!

COLOR EXTENDS to the hands. Made for dressy wear is an eight-button glove of purple suede with chartreuse suede piping on the rounded section of the flared cuff, to match the chartreuse suede bow.

GOOD FORTUNE jewelry includes wishbones and horseshoes of gold-washed sterling studded with gem tone stones. Nice for lapel, bodice, bag or belt.

THE SOFT LOOK is flattering in hats. Very soft and becoming is a low, wide-crowned sailor of black velvet, its brim formed of small black satin bows that overlap and give the effect of a trick brim.

JUST MADE for the slim of figure is a striking dinner dress of brown silk crepe with deep narrow V neckline and long tight sleeves. A broad peplum of brown satin extends into a fishtail point that reaches the hem-length skirt in back.

ACCUSED ACQUITTED

North Bay, Oct. 16—(CP)—A supreme court jury Saturday acquitted Bernard J. (Barney) Lents of a charge of murdering Gordon Faught in the Lents kitchen last June 27, and also returned a verdict of not guilty on a lesser count of manslaughter on the same charge.

Why VICKS VapoRub Is So Good For Relieving Miseries of Childrens Colds

More than two generations ago—in grandmother's day—mothers first discovered Vicks VapoRub. Today it is the most widely used home-remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds. And here is the reason . . .

The moment you rub VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours—to ease coughing spasms, help clear congestion in cold-clogged upper breathing passages, relieve muscular soreness or tightness. It promotes restful sleep. Often most of the misery of the cold is gone by morning! That's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike. Try it!

POPULAR MASTER OF CEREMONIES ON BREAKFAST CLUB

A Happy Start Makes for a Happy Day is "Breakfast Club" philosophy

This column today is by way of introduction to Don McNeill, the 6-foot-two master of ceremonies on "The Breakfast Club." The continent's most popular daytime radio show is to be sponsored by Swift's over the Trans-Canada network beginning with November. Don, who is 36, weighs 200 pounds, is married and has three children. He has been "father" to "The Breakfast Club" for 11 years. He'll start your day right with his happy-go-lucky antics each morning Monday through Friday. See my accompanying panel for time and radio stations in your locality which carry the program.

During his em-cee-ing of this happy show, Don has won just about all the entertainment awards going. In one day a solid ton of mail is delivered to his Chicago studio. All of which goes to prove that people like to be told if they sing before breakfast, their whole day is off to a better start.

And from time to time, I'll be on "The Breakfast Club," to discuss your wartime food problems. In the meantime, do remember that food is a weapon of war. Buy it wisely; cook it properly; use it up.

GOERING WARNS GERMANS FIGHTING FOR EXISTENCE

"Hardest Test Any Country Ever Had to Undergo," Quoted as Saying

"DEFENCE AT STAKE"

London, Oct. 14 —CP Reuters)—Field Marshal Goering in a speech at a newly-constructed armaments factory in central Germany, quoted today by the German radio, warned the German people they were fighting for their very existence.

Goering declared "we are facing the hardest test any country ever had to undergo. If we can pull through it will show for all time that Germany cannot be annihilated.

"Our present sufferings from air attacks, our heavy and grievous losses, the hardships and privations we undergo are as nothing compared to the fate that would engulf Germany if only one of our enemies overcame us.

"To avoid such a fate no hardship is too great. We must endure everything that must be endured but we must never capitulate. There can only be one slogan in Germany today; "Work harder and harder again; fight fiercer and fiercer yet, for the defence of Germany is at stake.

"Stand firm and unshaken in fanatical allegiance to our Feuhrer."

Goering told the German people there were difficulties and quarrels among Britain, the United States and Russia but these should not be over-estimated.

One thing was clear. "Today they are united in the determination to annihilate Germany," Goering concluded.

Head Hunters Help British To Kill Japs

(Government of India Information Services)

The Nagas, who are doing such good work with the Indian Army on the Assam-Burma border, were head-hunters without much discrimination before this war, but now they are concentrating on Japanese heads. Courage and loyalty are in the blood of these doughty hillmen of Manipur State, whose militant "Home Guard" helped in knocking the "eyes" out of the Japanese "face."

The Nagas live in bamboo huts covered with plaster. In choosing sites for their villages they prefer the tops of hills which afford a natural defence. To reach a village you have to go up a long series of steps at the end of which is a heavy wooden door, apparently set in a wall. You climb another series of steps, to reach yet another door. Then comes a man-driven hole in the rock just large enough for one person to get through, and you are in the village at last.

The Nagas practise agriculture and fishing. They are probably the only people in the world who discard hooks and bait and use drugs to kill or incapacitate fish.

• •

Dogs are reared for food as well as hunting.

The Nagas' favorite drink is zu, their native wine, which they drink in a big wooden horn. Arts and crafts include weaving, dyeing, pottery and rough wood-carving. The Naga dance takes one's breath away.

The Nagas' chief weapon is the throwing-spear, but cross-bows are also used.

And the Naga girl?

Very attractive she looks with her hair fringed and bobbed in the Anna May Wong way and her throat encircled by brightly colored necklaces made of seeds and beads and even buttons and shells. But even the most eligible girl has to work hard for her daily rice. From early years she looks after the baby brother or sister, and later she helps her mother to husk the daily rice. She is also taught how to weave, for a Naga woman is expected to clothe her entire family.

On festive occasions the Naga girl dances in the firelight, often until dawn, with other girls and the handsome young men of the village who present a gorgeous spectacle with their bare, bronzed torsos, bright necklaces and head ornaments of vivid flowers, leaves and feathers.

Once she is married, however, all that comes to an end. The wife must devote herself to the household chores, to the field work and the spinning and weaving.

• •

This is the background against which is set the story of Naga grit and courage in the war against the Japs.

The Naga tribes were in the thick of the fight in and around Kohima and they have come out of it with credit. They have proved courageous, cheerful and friendly.

They brought the Indian army valuable military intelligence, helped in evacuating casualties, took prisoners, worked on roads, killed the enemy whenever they had a chance.

The information they brought has been a major factor in the Indian Army's success against the Japanese.

Many of our air strikes resulted directly from it. The Nagas not only gained us information but fooled the Japs by giving them false information.

Our jungle allies have not only captured a large number of Japanese prisoners but also killed many enemy troops in combat.

Their co-operation has been a main factor in preventing the infiltration into India of Japanese agents.

They have consistently harbored and guided Japanese deserters and our prisoners escaping from enemy custody. Never did they falter. Thorughout our successes and failure their loyalty continued and it was never more evident than when the enemy looked like being near a major success.

Revelry Runs Riot in Freed Brussels as Germans Ousted

By ALAN RANDAL
(C.P. War Correspondent)

Brussels (CP) — Even on Saturday night, Poplar Point, Manitoba, wasn't like this.

It's an old custom to promenade on the main street Saturday night and perhaps a little on Sunday. But Brussels, liberated better than two weeks has yet to get over it. The Bruxellois say they don't want to get over it—not until the last Canadian and Tommy have left.

On a Sunday these people of Brussels swarm into the streets in numbers that remind you of a Santa Claus parade in Canada. They hardly leave room for the little trams, running tandem and crowded to the point of overflowing.

It is a carnival, a Sunday in Brussels, with the people seemingly out only to stroll the main thoroughfares and cheer the soldiery and wave to passing convoys of Allied vehicles which force them to give up some of their walking space. Or perhaps they will sit for a bit and have the Belgian equivalent of a small beer in one or other of the sidewalk cafes. But they still cheer and wave to all passing soldiers.

They say it was terrific when Brussels was first liberated. It must have been because it is that two weeks or more later. And they say too, that it was different when the Germans were there. The people of Brussels hardly saw the Germans, as near as one can gather. They did not want to see them. And the Germans did not like it one bit.

In fact, the girls of Brussels did not have one thing to do with the Germans. So the Germans, seemingly, did the next best thing. They brought their girls from Germany which is a far cry from the happy carefree association you see in a young Canadian airman in a cafe jitterbugging with a young and pretty Belgian girl—with her mother watching from a side table over a small beer.

Canadians Popular

You can't stop for long on the streets of Brussels, even yet, with your identity standing out on your shoulders as a Canadian without being surrounded by Belgians. It may start near the main bank, with the Belgian who used to work on a farm near Coleman, Alta., and wants to know if you know his brother. Or it may be just some little umbrella-carrying Belgian on his way to work who wants to admire your jeep or anything that has to do with the forces of liberation.

And the girls! There was the Canadian lieutenant who said "Hollywood should come here." There are a lot of them that Hollywood might be interested in. Somehow they managed to save what seems to somebody from London a lot of fine clothes. Their silk stockings look sheer and those of them who wear hats have hats which would make London girls turn handsprings to get.

And then there was the girl who came flying past along Rue Royale near the Botanical Gardens on her bicycle attired in complete Highland costume, kilt, sporran, velvet coat, lace front and cuffs and Glengarry bonnet with feather. The Belgians seem to appreciate the Scots. You see quite a bit of tartan.

The children and the girls give the biggest hand. But the men are most cordial. And they too are well dressed. They have either very good clothes or very work-worn clothes. That is unless you take the men of the Belgian forces of the interior. They are just fierce and very heavily armed men, most of them dressed in a sort of coverall and a beret.

Better Reading in Bed

(New York Times)

Reading in bed has long been one of mankind's best pleasures, and it seems remarkable that so little progress has been made in improving it. The theory of our architects and home furnishers seems to have been that bed and book and possibly an ill-conceived lamp were enough, a notion that is ridiculous.

A man no sooner gets into bed than he begins to think of a number of things he would like to have, and no way to get them except by jumping out of bed and plunging about the house in search of them. A little master-planning in advance would have made this man wholly happy instead of only moderately so, a difference, alas! that exists in many lives, with very little done about it.

• •

In starting a movement to improve the condition of those who read in bed it is essential, first of all, to analyze the fundamentals. One of these is undoubtedly the bed itself. It seems obvious that the designers of beds have, for the most part, been exceedingly unimaginative fellows; they have been in a rut for years, obsessed by time-worn ideas that a bed should be decorative, but that its main function was routine comfort for the sleeper.

There is no evidence that bedmen ever heard of their customers reading in bed. Their lack of initiative is appalling. If drug stores had been equally lethargic they would still be selling drugs and medicines. Anybody can make a bed for sleeping; what we need is a bed designed for reading.

• •

The well-equipped bed of the future will have a headboard that assumes a literate sleeper. A built-in reading light will be of variable brilliance, adjustable to different type conditions and different sets of eyes. This headboard will have the comfort-qualities of a chair, and it will provide arm-rests and a support for the book, as if by magic, by the pressing of an electric button. Does this seem too fantastic? Not if we can wake up the bed-makers.

The surroundings will be premeditated with equal care. The average bedside table is utterly inadequate. It is not large enough; it is cluttered up by that absurdity of uselessness, the boudoir lamp. This table needs to be replaced by some substantial thoughtfully planned piece of furniture that will be useful instead of ornamental. It will have to be adequate for food and drink, cigarettes, pipe or cigars and an oversize ash tray. Its height should be only slightly greater than the top of the mattress. There is nothing more irritating than to have to reach up awkwardly to the level of a too-high table.

• •

Some built-in book shelves should be on the other side of the bed, within each reach, because it cannot be assumed that anyone will know with certainty, before he gets into bed, exactly what type of book he will be wanting to read, or whether he will continue with the same kind until he decides to call it a day.

His mood may change several times, and if a shelf or two of books and one of magazines is at hand he need not be inconvenienced. When one considers how popular is reading in bed, is it not odd how seldom the bedroom is chosen as a place for keeping a portion of the household's books?

• •

For the person who can be reasonably temperate about it, reading in bed is a pleasure beneficial to health. There is no relaxation more complete, perhaps, except sleep itself.

It is assumed that no effort will be made to "improve" the mind by the reading done in bed. There should be no purpose other than pleasure, surely, and other incidental effects may be accepted gratefully as by-products.

Some people complain that they cannot read detective stories (one of the most enjoyable bedtime choices) because they are overstimulating and prevent sleep afterward. The remedy for this is simple. Decide in advance exactly what hour you will attempt to go to sleep, and fifteen minutes before that time lay down your detective story and pick up any book of poetry. No matter what your opinion of poetry, it will make you forget murder within fifteen minutes and soothe you into something like slumber. And it is, besides, a rather good way to spend fifteen minutes a day.

Your furnace burns a mixture of gas and oxygen. The gas is released from your coal by heat—the oxygen comes from the air which YOU feed into the furnace through the drafts.

To fire economically—to save coal and get the most heat from the fuel you burn—study and adjust your furnace drafts. It will pay you real dividends in increased heat and fuel-saving.

Here are FIVE important rules for ALL furnaces and fuels

1. Avoid overheating. Do not wait until house is thoroughly warm before checking fire. 2. Keep the ash pit clean. 3. Replace warped or worn-out grates. 4. Keep a fair depth of ashes above the grates. 5. Keep furnace thoroughly clean.

IF YOU HAVE A HOT AIR FURNACE

1
Keep all Registers Clear. See that Furniture, Rugs, etc., do not interfere with the circulation of air by blocking either the hot or cold air registers.

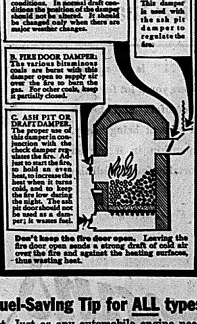
2
Control your Heat distribution. The heat can be distributed as desired to every room by adjusting the dampers in the hot-air pipes leading to the registers.

3
Keep waterpan well filled to humidify the air in your home.

4
Keep all registers, whether intake or output, clean and free of dust.

KNOW YOUR DRAFT CONTROLS

Your furnace is no better than the draft. An excessive draft will waste heat up the chimney and should be cut down by damper. Insufficient draft does not supply enough air to support combustion at the required rate of heat output. Poor draft is caused by a faulty or clogged flue pipe or chimney.



A. KEY DAMPER. The purpose of this damper is to maintain an even draft under varying weather conditions. In normal draft conditions the position of the damper should not be altered. It should be changed only when there are major weather changes.

B. FIRE DOOR DAMPER: The various bituminous coals are burnt with this damper open to supply air over the fire to burn the gas. For other coals, keep it partially closed.

C. ASH PIT OR DRAFT DAMPER. The proper use of this damper in conjunction with the check damper regulates the fire. Adjust to start the fire, to hold an even heat, to increase the heat when it turns cold, and to keep the fire low during the night. The ash pit door should not be used as a damper; it wastes fuel.

D. CHECK DAMPER. This damper is used with the ash pit damper to regulate the fire.

Don't keep the fire door open. Leaving the fire door open sends a strong draft of cold air over the fire and against the heating surfaces, thus wasting heat.

IF YOU HAVE A HOT WATER FURNACE

1
Pipes carry the heat. Cold rooms are sometimes caused by faulty piping and incorrect pipe pitch. These can be adjusted and former cold rooms made warm.

2
Check radiators. If any radiators do not heat up after letting the air out of them, check with your steam fitter or plumber.

3
Insulating saves fuel. Insulate boiler and hot water pipes. If these are now insulated, check for any breaks or faults.

4
Keep plates scraped and constantly free of soot.

Here is one Fuel-Saving Tip for ALL types of Furnaces

Leave a bright spot. Just as any automobile engine needs a spark to ignite its mixture of gas and air, so does your furnace. Rake the glowing coals to the front of the firepot, and shovel new coal in to the back. This method of firing gives you maximum combustion of the fuel you are using.

Hamilton Wildcats and Balmy Beach Continue Undefeated In Ontario Football Unions

Unbeaten Navy Squad Succumbs to Hagersville R.C.A.F. by 12-8

KROLL THE HERO

By The Canadian Press

Two Ontario football teams continued their unbeaten records in Saturday's four-game program, Hamilton Wildcats and Toronto Balmy Beach scoring one-sided victories over Toronto Indians and Ottawa Trojans in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, but the hitherto unbeaten Toronto Navy squad was scuttled, 12-8, by the Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers at Hamilton.

The Hamilton and Beach victories served to focus public attention on the first meeting of the season between the two teams in Toronto next Saturday. Hamilton has won all four of its games to lead Beaches, who have played and won three, by two points in the Union standing. Wildcats defeated Indians 36-2 Saturday and Beaches won from Ottawa 33-0.

The Hagersville victory earned the Bombers a first-place tie with Navy in the services league standing, each team having three victories and one defeat. The other services league game was at Camp Borden where the third-place Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes crushed the last-place St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets, 20-1.

The play of triple-threat Joe Krol highlighted the meeting between Hamilton and the cellar-dwelling Indians in Toronto. The starry half-back, leading point-getter in the O.R.F.U., scored only seven points himself but he paved the way for at least four other touchdowns.

Six Touchdowns

The six Hamilton touchdowns were scored by Krol, Joe Soyka, Red Wheeler, Eddie Remigis, Mel Lawson and Tony Marasco. Krol also had a single and a convert. Paul Miocinovich had two converts, Jimmy Simpson had one and Jack Brown kicked a single.

Al Callow kicked singles for the two Indian points. He took over the kicking duties when Jim Cumming suffered torn ankle ligaments at the start of the game.

The performances of quarterback Frank Stukus and halfback Sam Sward featured the Beach victory over the Trojans at Ottawa. Stukus scored one touchdown and set up another when he ran 40 yards from a fake kick formation to take the ball to the six-yard line. Sward got two touchdowns and the other 3 were scored by Leo Deadey, Earl Selkirk and Al Cole. Stukus and Ross (Red) McKelvey each scored single points on converts and Selkirk kicked a single.

Smart Running

Although he did not collect any scoring points, young Billy Myers, a graduate of high school ranks playing his first season of senior football, was the Beach player who most attracted attention of Ottawa fans. His smart running and forward passing paved the way for Stukus' touchdown and he threw 3 touchdown passes — to Sward, Selkirk and Deadey.

Sgt. Joe Richman, L.A.C. Doug Smylie and Cpl. Bill Summerville featured a last-half drive to victory by Hagersville at Hamilton. Navy built up a first-half lead of eight points on a field goal by Leading Seaman Annis Stukus and a touchdown by OS. Royal Copeland.

Smylie and Richman each had touchdowns and Summerville kicked two singles in the Hagersville offensive in the last half.

Sgt. Doug Pyzer and L.A.C. Bobby Porter were the big scorers of Hurricanes at Camp Borden. The stocky Pyzer scored three touchdowns for 15 points and the veteran Porter accounted for five with two converts and three singles. L.A.C. Ray (Moon) Mullins kicked the single for the only St. Thomas point.

THEY'LL SLUG IT OUT TO A FINISH

With no fear of a time limit bell to end their feud, "Whipper Billie" Watson and Ivan Rasputin, the mad Russian, have been re-matched in a finished bout with the hour time limit removed for this grudge fight at the Hume Arena on Wednesday night. Promoter Frank Tunney, of the Queensbury A.C., will be on hand personally to direct this return match. "I've received repeated complaints regarding Rasputin's ring actions and will be at the ringside to judge matters myself," Tunney said after signing these ancient ring enemies. Added color to the show sees "Irish Tom" Collins of Buffalo, meet Laverne Baxter, the No. 1 ruffian of years past, while the show will open with the popular Joe Malch meeting "Jumping Joe" Christie and it looks like a great night at the Hume Arena on Wednesday. The advance sale is now on at Cook's Cigar Store. Phone 74.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

In the opinion of Bill Cowley, Boston Bruins' great centre, the Montreal Canadiens who outclassed the National Hockey League field last winter would have been just another hockey club in peacetime. "No better than fourth or fifth," said Bill, speaking Saturday at a baseball banquet at Smiths Falls.

Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador, who failed in his last two attempts for the United States national tennis singles title, Saturday vanquished his conqueror in the U. S. tourney and captured the Pan-American singles title at Mexico City for the third time. He defeated Bill Talbert of Indianapolis by 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

The Nova Scotia Amateur Baseball Association disqualified Dominion Hawks as provincial junior champions Saturday and replaced them with Springhill Commandos. G. H. Haystead, secretary of the Association announced Hawks were disqualified from "further participation in organized amateur baseball" for failure to conform to an N.S.A.B.A. ruling. His announcement came as Hawks won a series with Saint John scheduled as for the Maritime title.

It was a great idea to the slightly berserk baseball public of Baltimore, but the proposed game between the Little Word Series champions and the St. Louis Cardinals, the big world champions, won't come off. Mayor Theodore McKeldin challenged the Cardinals to play the Orioles at huge Baltimore Municipal Stadium, guaranteeing "a larger attendance than any world series game this year." Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards put the kibosh on the idea by saying "Our team is now disbanded."

A post-war "world series" for amateur baseball clubs will be held in New York, it was announced Sunday by Ray Dumont, president of the National Baseball Congress. Dumont added that the series, sponsored by his organization, will become an annual event and will be held the week following the world's professional series. Besides eight teams from various sections of the United States, he expects entries from Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and both Central and South America.

DUE TO AIR RAIDS

Stockholm, Oct. 14—(CP-Reuters)—The Stockholm-Berlin telephone break of more than 100 hours this week was due to Allied air raids and not to a new attempt at revolt, a Swede who has returned from Berlin said today.

The political life of Berlin is normal and there are no reports of disturbances in other parts of the country, he said.

WELLAND WINS BASEBALL SERIES

By The Canadian Press

Welland won the "real" Senior "A" Baseball championship of Ontario at London Saturday night by defeating London Majors 5-0 in the fifth and deciding game of the best-of-five series. Sal Maglie had too much on the ball for the London crew as he set them down with only five scattered blows and struck out 10.

In softball Fort Erie scored a double victory over Sault Ste. Marie in the best-of-five Ontario Intermediate championships, winning the first game Saturday 4-0 and the second on Sunday 8-6.

In the Senior softball final series Hamilton Beavers evened their series with Toronto Peoples by taking a 2-0 victory. The visitors were able to gain only one solid safety and one scratch hit in the game while Hamilton racked up seven safe blows.

NORMAN BROWN WINS HANDICAP

Norman Brown won the club handicap championship at the Belleville Golf Club over the week-end.

Playing Jack Jarrett in the final match Brown was one down with 2 to go over the 18 hole match. However, the new 1944 handicap champion settled away to take the 17th hole and then drive home in par while his opponent was short on the final green.

The club championship handicap tournament at the Belleville Golf Club was a straight knock-out draw of match play leaving Brown and Jarrett battling down to the final green before the honors were won.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens are being put through some stiff workouts in an effort to slice off excess fat. Most noticeable offender of the overweights is Mike McMahon who tips the scales at 231.

First training casualty of the season for Les Canadiens was Bill Durnan star goalie, who collided with Butch Stahan in a scramble around the net. This week the champions will drill behind closed doors because of work being carried on within the Montreal forum and also because of the season ticket sale.

Dutch Hiller, former New York Rangers sniper, plans a hard week of training with Canadiens. Coach Dick Irvin is trying to find a man to fit in with Murph Chamberlain and Ray Getliffe. Rèland Rossignol of last year's Quebec Aces may be the player.

Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings returned to their camp at Windsor during the weekend after trimming Al Sutphin's Cleveland Barons of the A. H. L. 7-2 in an exhibition game Saturday.

Adams, who already has given the "axe" to 31 candidates for a spot with his Wings still isn't satisfied with the squad's scoring punch. He's looking for a couple of young forwards. It's possible he may convert a couple of his 12 defencemen.

Sweeney Schriner checked in at Toronto Maple Leafs training camp at Owen Sound at 188 pounds—the lightest since joining the Leafs.

Reports have it that Paul Bibeault will return to Leafs as head goalie this year. Up to now Frank McColl, Calgary, Pat Boehmer, Kitchener and Leo Sargent of St. Catharines have been taking whirls between the posts . . .

St. Michael's College Squad Wins in Wpg.

Winnipeg Oct. 16 — (CP) — St. Michael's College of Toronto came through with a last period rally here Saturday to beat St. Paul's College of Winnipeg 11-6 in the opening game of an East-West High School Football series the first time Canadian High School teams have met in such a hook-up.

The series, sponsored by a group of Winnipeg sportsmen concludes tonight when St. Mikes' meet St. John's College of Winnipeg here. This contest like Saturday's will be played under western rules which permit blocking up to 10 yards.

Four thousand fans saw St. Mike's give a blow exhibition in the opening stages of Saturday's game, then liven up to prove unstoppable. St. Paul's led 6-0 in the third frame following a second quarter touchdown and convert.

The Toronto team scored majors by half back Murray Bulger and flying wing Bob Rafferty, one of which was converted for the extra point.

New York, Oct. 16. (AP)—Overseas sports roundup:

Dead Game.

Tony Cardaro, a soldier from Des Moines, ventures a prediction from England that the United States may be deluged with British boxers and other athletics after the war unless a tax ruling is revised. . . By mental process the tax arbiters decided that boxers, football players, etc., came under the category of "non-living" performers like those moving figures on the screen, as distinguished from "living" performers such as actors, music hall jugglers and comedians. . .The importance of the distinction is that living performers pay only 25 per cent entertainment tax, non-living 47 per cent. . .On top of that the British Boxing Board of Control takes five per cent of all shows drawing more than $8,000 . . . .That does not leave much for the boys who get their noses mashed, and Tony figures most of them will be thinking about Jacobs Beach and the fabulous American purses they've heard about.

Sport Shorts From Britain

London, Oct. 14 — (CP) — A 21-year-old railway fireman climbed grim-visaged from a London ring and critics hailed him as Britain's finest middleweight boxing prospect in years. Vince Hawkins had just won his 61st professional fight without defeat.

Aiming at the British crown, the thick-necked basher from southern England's Eastleigh took every one of the eight rounds to gain a point triumph over Liverpool's Jackie Wilson, an unorthodox stylist with a tremendous ability to absorb heavy punishment.

Hawkins, know as "the man who never smiles," continually sank hooks into his opponent's stomach. In the third round a right to Wilson's head sent him down for a 5-count — and all but blasted him out of the ring. Still he came back for more, while ringsiders marvelled.

Hawkins plainly was puzzled by Wilson's antics when he ran into trouble. At such time the Liverpudlian ducked so low his bobbing head was below the bottom rope and there just wasn't much the fireman could do until Wilson straightened up.

Hawkins is a strong challenger for the middleweight crown held by aging Jock McAvoy for the past 11 years. McAvoy may not defend his crown and in that event Hawkins, Tommy Davies of Wales and the veteran Ernie Roderick, British welterweight champion, are the top-placed contenders.

One fine Tuesday evening 44-year-old Bert Couzens started on a stroll from York, away up in northern England. At midnight he still was walking — and kept right on.

Twelve hours later he was progressing along the Great North Road in his white shorts and a vest bearing the badge of his army unit, the Royal Observer Corps. Under the vest was an oilskin packet containing a message of goodwill from the commandant at York to the commander of the Corps in London.

Into London, past a surprised early-morning traffic policeman at Marble Arch went Bert. Then he passed through Fleet Street and on to Corps headquarters.

The well-known long-distance walker covered the 200 miles in five minutes under 37 hours. The time knocked an hour off the record he set up in 1937.

"I love a little stroll," said Bert, as someone handed him a drink of water.

The King made an important addition to his turf interests when he paid $19,270 for a 17-month-old bay filly by Turkhan, first wartime winner of the classic St. Leger, and Terre Rose. It was one of the most spectacular bids in a day of record bidding at the Newmarket fall bloodstock sales and was made by His Majesty's racing manager, Captain Charles Moore.

The amount was the highest ever paid by the King and followed Royal leasing of two yearlings from the National Stud recently.

ACCEPTED TERMS

London, Oct. 14 — Paris radio, quoting an unattributed report from Bulgaria, said today "the Hungarian government has accepted the preliminary conditions of an Allied armistice."

It offered no details as to the source of the report or the conditions of the reported armistice.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Putting One Over

The trucker was very much surprised to get a call from a man who said he had to have a dead horse, but nevertheless offered to help. The dead horse was found.

"Now," said the 'client', "I want you to drive over to my house with him."

By now the trucker thought the man was crazy, but he was getting paid for the job, so off he went. Arriving at the house, he was told to take the dead horse in and up to the bathroom and put it in the bath tub.

"You mean to say you want this dead horse put in your bath tub?"

"That's what I said."

So the dead horse was placed in the bath tub, with much effort. "Now look here," he said, "just why did you want him put in your bath tub?"

"Well," came the reply, "it's like this. I've got a brother-in-law living with me and he's too darned smart. Everything you tell him he knows it first. Now he's going to come home pretty soon, and he'll go into the bathroom and then he'll come running down to me and tell me there's a dead horse in the bath tub, and I'll say, 'sure, I knew that an hour ago'."

Series Aftermath.

Right after the world series baseball fans usually look for conventional post-series whisperings of the wildest rumored type. Seems 1944 is no exception and now we hear Don Barnes, president of the St. Louis Browns, is headed east lugging along the Brownies franchise et al to far away Baltimore. Seems there are two distinct reasons for Barnes' easterly jaunt.

First the Browns couldn't even fill the 37,000-seating capacity of Sportsman's band-box in St. Louie for any one of their home games in the fall classic just ended. Then of course when the Baltimore ball yard burned down the Orioles moved into Maryland's civic stadium, immediately the Orioles began to draw large baseball followings, which terminated with over 52,000 witnessing some of the Little World Series games, so who can blame the wily Barnes for making overtures in the matter of perhaps shifting the Browns' American League franchise to Baltimore? True enough Baltimore is all in a baseball dither after winning the L.W.S., but then it seems the Philadelphia Phillies talked of moving their National League holdings to the Maryland city on more than one occasion. Maybe the league heads will have something to say about Barnes' bright idea. After all with American League clubes in nearby Washington, Philadelphia and New York, would there be room for a junior loop fronchise in Baltimore on the bay?

Speaking of major league ball it is reliably reported that Branch Rickey, the Dodgers' front office mouthpiece, virtually fired "Leo the Lip" Durocher on Sept. 23rd last after a heated five-hour debate during which Durocher is said to have "talked out of turn." However, on Sept. 28th The Voice of Brooklyn hired Durocher, but one more slip of the lip and "The Lip" is out.

Climbing Aboard.

Two months ago it would have been difficult to interest top-flight amateur boxers to come to Belleville and display their mitt-swinging wares. But now that Bill Crawford and Freddie Fisher have the manly art of self-defence on a profitable basis amateur pugs are beating a patch to their ring door. After last Friday's stellar show the Reliance promoters announced they would feature a bout between "Hub" Smith, former Kingston basher, and "Jibber" Ellis, whose home is in Trenton. Ellis is in the Canadian Army and stationed at Toronto, while Smith has been the principal headliner at boxing shows around the Trenton airport for several years past. "Hub" and "Jibber" should help to pack 'em in for Crawford and company's next show, as both are experienced fighters, something the fans want to see. Another good idea would be to sign a suitable opponent for the two-fisted Howard Wheeler, that also would prove attractive to the fight fans.

Remember When.

Connie Mack, shrewd Philadelphia Athletic baseball manager, bought Bob "Lefty" Grove, ace Baltimore Oriole pitcher for $100,000 cash 20 years ago today. The Oriole southpaw was with the Athletics until the end of the 1933 season when he was traded to the Boston Red Sox and stayed with the beantown nine until his retirement. Mister Mack always contended Grove was one of the best pitchers in the business.

No Holds Barred.

When Whipper Watson and Ivan (The Beard) Rasputin square off for their return grudge scrap at the Hume Arena Wednesday night it's safe betting no holds will be eliminated and the fellow to give sympathy to will be the arbiter of the fight. Promoter Tunney says he'll be at the ringside to see no funny business is injected into the evening's performance and adds the wrestling chips will have to lay where they fall. This should be welcome news of he grappling clientele, who were getting a little suspicious of Rasputin's "tack racket."

Impressive Grid Scores.

In the Big Ten, where American football is usually the strongest, impressive scores were chalked up by the five winners. For instance Michigan beat Northwestern 27-0; Ohio State humbled Wisconsin 20 to 7, Iowa Preflight beat Purdue 13 to 6 in the closest game of the weekend, Indiana blanked Nebraska 54 to 0, Illinois triumphed 40 to 6 over Iowa State and Minnesota beat Missouri 39 to 27.

In the East the U.S. Army team from West Point marched over Pittsburgh 69 to 7. Yale beat Columbia 27 to 10 with George Barksdale sparking the victory. The U.S. Navy boys from Annapolis beat Duke 7 to 0 in the day's thriller.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. [illegible]

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A little here, a little there, and a bridge player gets to be pretty good. And he gets to be very good if he learns each little in its correct order.

First, a player must have a sound foundation of opening one bids and their responses. From these basic rules he can better understand the meanings and purposes of higher openings and their replies.

An unusual bid not only gives unusual information. It also asks for special information from partner. That's how you should think of an opening bid of three in a major suit.

An opening bid could always start with one. So, an opening bid of three is obviously for special information. When you analyze it, that special information sticks out.

Look at it like this. If you bid a suit three times before it is assisted by partner, you say that suit is re-rebiddable. So, if you start with a bid of three, it means the same thing.

Such an opening expects to wind up at a bid with that suit as trump. And partner is not likely to have many cards in it. So, the re-rebiddable suit should be very strong.

Also, when you start with a three bid, partner must reply at a high level. To prepare for that, your hand should have some outside strength; at least one outside sure trick.

Reasoned like that, you can figure out a three bid. It shows a hand with a strong re-rebiddable suit and a sure trick outside. And it can get along with little, if any, trump support.

Hand yourself a hand like this:

♠A K Q 8 6 3 2
♥K Q 2
♦J
♣J 2

You have a strong re-rebiddable suit and a sure trick in a suit outside. Your opening bid with that hand is three spades.

Look before you leap.

Toronto, Oct. 16 — (CP)—There has been some talk recently that hockey should have a high commissioner like Judge Landis to look after its best interests and keep things straight, but it looks as though there is a more pressing and urgent need for some one with a little authority in the lacrosse field.

For a sport that is presumably Canada's national game, so characterized by the Confederation fathers, lacrosse has made a sorry showing this year with the wild and weird bickering that arose over the Dominion finals. The game needs someone to spank the erring children and put them to bed without their supper, even though both sides had some right in their claims.

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman sums it up neatly in his column when he says:

"The players, smugly righteous in their arguments, should realize that in these days when the hopes of the world are centred on matters of life and death no one really gives a damn what happens to a piffling lacrosse series."

Of This and That:

When Les Canadiens started training last week, the only ones in good shape were veteran Toe Blake and slim Elmer Lach. The others, despite their softball training during the summer had put on quite a bit of weight . . . There's talk on the west coast that a racing commission will be set up next year to look after the sport, Johnny Park reports in the Vancouver Province... Still on horse talk, Jim Coleman says he hears King's Plate regulations will be broadened to allow the entry of horses which have been raced in the United States. At present they are barred—which automatically excludes Uttermost and Ferry Pilot, two of the best two-year-olds . . . Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose suggested Eastern Canada should adopt St. Catharines lacrosse team, and call them Restigouches or something to match the Salmonbellies label of New Westminster...

Gehrig's Widow Takes Fling At Pro Football

New York (CP) — Sports fans will see a familiar name in a new setting next fall when Mrs. Lou Gehrig, widow of baseball's "most valuable player," puts a new professional football team on the gridiron.

First woman to invade pro football, Mrs. Gehrig is co-owner with Ray Ryan, of a New York franchise. She declares she is no traitor to baseball, simply because she couldn't get a wedge into that field anyway.

The former Eleanor Grace Twitchell admits her friends are aghast and amazed at her new venture. Her only supporter is Christy Walsh. "He was Lou's business manager and my friend. He got me into this."

Mrs. Gehrig is strictly a business woman and has no intention of breezing through pro football on the strength of her husband's name. "I know what I'm doing," she says. "I've been a business woman before, though not many people know it. And as for being welcome in pro football because of Lou's money, that's ridiculous. In the first place all the men I've dealt with could roll over my money with a jeep."

The Gehrig team is now in process of organization. In addition to signing a coach and players, a name must be found and team colors selected.

First Things First

"Our first game next fall will be a benefit for the infantile paralysis funds. Maybe I'll give my gains to charity. I don't know. Anyway, first things first. We've got to sign up the best coach we can get and we've got some good names to decide on."

One thing Mrs. Gehrig learned in baseball, she says, is never to master-mind a game. "That's going to hold with my football team," she promises. "It's second nature with me never to second guess."

Mrs. Gehrig counted herself "in" when the owners of the newly formed All-American conference accepted her as one of them.

"When I was invited to the conference meeting in Chicago I was at the Blackstone Hotel for five days. The first thing I knew I had a roomful of cigar butts. It was wonderful. Right then I stopped feeling like a fish out of water."

"It is going to be smart to go to Sunday pro football games," says Mrs. Gehrig, and she explained how she intends to make her new business a social success as well.

"Ryan and I have just signed a terrific guy—Glen Dobbs. He's going to get the women, all right—a regular matinee idol. Part of his job will be to drop in at little parties after the games and stay for an hour. Society editors will find news at those parties and they'll be doing me a favor to come."

Mrs. Gehrig is all wrapped up in her new venture. She is even designing herself a pigskin suit. "Not all pigskin, of course," she grins. "Just a little pigskin here and there—pocket flaps and buttons and maybe a pig. If we lose the first two games I'll probably cook it up for stew."

SALMONBELLIES WIN FOURTH GAME LACROSSE FINALS

Fifth and Final Game Will be Played at Hamilton Tonight

SCORE IS 11-8

By ERIC SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—The 1944 Canadian lacrosse championship will be decided at Hamilton tonight when St. Catharines Athletics, perennial eastern representatives, clash with New Westminster Salmonbellies, present titleholders, in the final game of the best-of-five series.

New Westminster, seven times winner of the prized $2,500 Sir Donald Mann Cup and Canadian finalists for 16 of the last 25 years, evened the series at 2-2 Saturday night when they scored an 11-8 overtime victory over Athletics here.

St. Catharines won the first game 17-10, lost the next 13-4 and took the third 11-10.

Also to be decided tonight will be the winner of the Mike Kelly Memorial Trophy, awarded to the most valuable man to his team in the national finals. Last year, Bill Wilkes, captain and coach of Salmonbellies, won the trophy.

Among those mentioned as possible winners of the prize are Walt Lee, star goalie with Vancouver Burrards, runners-up to Salmonbellies for the British Columbia title, who was taken on by the Fishmen before their journey east.

Saturday night's tilt was regarded one of the best play-off games in history with both teams battling closely from start to finish. Lee rose to great heights on a number of occasions as he turned back the hard drives of the St. Catharines' snipers.

Wild shooting by Athletics was their downfall, although their defence and the work of goalie Bill Whitaker proved a hard combination for the champions to beat.

During the game, Whitaker saved 27 direct shots from entering his cage while Lee stopped 22.

Each team netted twice in the opening quarter and New Westminster led 5-3 at half time. The coast team was ahead 8-7 going into the fourth quarter and Doug Cove netted the only goal of that session for Athletics.

Bill Dickinson, who netted two during the match, sank the winning goal just after the four-minute mark of the overtime. Other New Westminster marksmen were Bert Bryant and Ike Hildebrand, each with two, Ralph Douglas, Roy Pinder, Johnny Dale, Johnny Cavallin and Pete Meehan. Roy Morton, Bill Nelson and Bob Thorpe, each counted twice for Athletics and Cove and Norm MacDonald netted the others.

Shaw Societies Asked To Leave Bernard Alone

Dublin, Oct. 16. —(CP)—George Bernard Shaw, who doesn't like Shaw societies, begged Dublin's newly-formed Shaw group last night to "leave me alone".

In a message published today, he said:

"May heaven defend me from Shaw societies. I have to be civil to them. I have more present and future work on hand than I have time for and the societies are concerned only with my old work that is for me past and done with.

"My one prayer to them is do what you like among yourselves, hold your meetings, read your papers, discuss my views of what you imagine to be my views, accept my blessing—but for God's sake leave me alone".

Packing Plant Workers To Meet To Consider Strike

By The Canadian Press

Local unions of the United Packinghouse Workers (C.I.O.) are meeting this week to consider calling a strike in packing plants across the Dominion in their demand for a master agreement with the packing companies. Since the locals first authorized a strike in votes which started at the beginning of this month, a deadlock has existed between the workers and the companies.

Union officials estimate that 15,000 workers at packing plants across Canada are affected. Employees at 11 big plants have already voted authorization of a strike. Fred Dowling, business agent of the union, says "there doesn't appear to be any hope of settlement. The next logical move will be a strike."

If a strike develops and livestock ceases to move through the plants Canadian cities will feel the pinch inside a week or 10 days, while meat exports to Britain and the armed forces overseas would stop immediately, officials in Ottawa stated. In event of a strike smaller communities would not be so badly off as farmers would sell meat directly, but eastern cities in particular would soon be without meat.

Would Affect Distribution

"A strike would vitally affect all livestock producers and consumers and would greatly impair the processing and distribution of vital food products which are urgently needed by Britain and her Allies," G. R. Castle, vice president of the Swift Canadian Company, said in a statement issued at Toronto Sunday, and a similar statement came from J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Ltd.

Both said they had been unable to attend a meeting called by the Union in Toronto last week because of previous business engagements in Winnipeg. Mr. McLean described a minimum starting rate of 75 cents an hour he said was embodied in the proposed master agreement as "obviously exorbitant" and Mr. Castle said a master agreement across Canada was impractical for Swift's because of "the great difference and conditions between plants."

The Puffball

(The Printed Word)

This is the time of year when a wanderer along an upland pasture sometimes comes upon a puffball. (There is no use hunting for puffballs; you just come upon one, like happiness, when you aren't particularly looking for it.) A puffball costs nothing and, fried with a bit of butter and salt, it tastes about as well as you might expect—not as good as a good mushroom, but better than a tennis shoe. Even to one who likes the taste of puffball fried over an outdoor fire, the pleasure to be derived is not so much in eating the puffball as in finding it sitting there in a corner of the field, like an albino pumpkin. If you have had any sort of a worth while childhood, the puffball will remind you of the first time you discovered one and how you felt about it then. It may occur to you with a touch of melancholy that your considerations of the puffball are not now so intense and so filled with wonder as when you were a child. However, you can always point out to yourself that the puffball is not very remarkable anyway, and that as a child you probably overrated the whole incident. (We believe the child was right and that you have deteriorated emotionally, but we are trying to spare your feelings.)

The War Today—

Has Japanese Fleet Been Drawn Into Action Off Formosa?

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

This is a tense moment in the war against Japan, for if we can believe Tokyo's feverish announcements a great naval and air battle—perhaps one of the decisive engagements of the whole Pacific conflict—has grown out of the attacks which American forces have been making against the inner defence ring of Japan.

We know that a big air battle is raging off the heavily-fortified island of Formosa, which was attacked in force last week and assaulted with superfortresses today. What hasn't been confirmed is the Japanese assertion that the Imperial fleet, which we long have been trying to draw into action, "has finally made its appearance off Formosa."

The Japanese also report a new air and sea battle east of the Philippines, and have been making loud and almost hysterical claims for the two engagements. They say they've sunk some 52 American warships, including 10 airplane carriers and two battleships. To this Admiral Nimitz has made no direct reply.

Formosa Most Strongly Fortified.

Formosa is one of the strongest naval and air bases in the world—probably the most powerfully fortified of all Japanese territory outside the home country. It can, and frequently does, provide shelter for a great naval fleet. No wonder the Japs are excited.

When these attacks first got under way it was generally taken for granted that they presaged an early invasion of the Philippines. It's likely that this still holds true, but the Allied program might be influenced by the outcome of the present fighting, if it is indeed true that at long last they have come to grips with the Japanese home fleet.

In any event, these operations would be essential for Gen. MacArthur's recapture of the Philippines. They also are necessary for an invasion of the southeast coast of China and for the day when judgment will be carried right into Japan proper.

Australian Rabbits Meet War's Demands

Canberra, (CP)—War has brought about the glorification of Australia's national pest—the rabbit. A month ago the Indian government was asking for Australian rabbits to breed as food for the Indian services.

Now New Zealand's Internal Affairs Minister Parry announces that Australia is releasing 192,000 rabbit traps to enable New Zealand to continue export of frozen rabbit meat to Britain.

Early settlers brought rabbits to Australia from England. Australia has spent millions of dollars trying to get rid of them. They have been hunted with guns, traps, poison bait, ferrets and gas. A transcontinental, supposedly rabbit-proof fence was built from north to south in Western Australia years ago. But still the rabbit increased.

Today Australia is almost reconciled to the pest. The animals are entirely free of disease. Rabbit meat is coupon-free and even the more select restaurants are now serving rabbit. Export of pelts to the United States is increasing.

New York, Oct. 16—(AP)—Thomas Franklin Manville, much married heir to the Asbestos millions, plans to leave the bulk of his estate to medical science. Little Benny's Note Book

Yesterday I was home from school eating lunch and I had an idea, saying to ma, Hay, ma, tomorrow's Saturday and pop will be home all day, so why cant we pack a lunch with hard boil eggs and everything and go on to the park for a picknick?

Well, it seems slightly late in the year for a picknick, although I suppose it would seem the ideal time to your father, because he never really enjoys the outdoors until the autumn leaves are appearing instead of the ants, ma said. Well, it all depends on the weather, that's the most important thing, she said.

Aw no ma, the picknick is the most important thing, I said. Why dont we decide right now and save time and worry and maybe even get the hard boil eggs started? I said, and ma said, Well, you can call up the Weather Bewro if you want to, you'll find the number in the telephone directory under W.

G, I'll hurry up and telephone right away, I said.

Which I quick ran and did, calling up the Weather Bewro and saying, Will you please tell me how the weather is tomorrow? and the man saying, Low clouds with strong south east winds.

Aw G, we want to go on a picknick, I said, and the man said, That's okay with me.

Well gosh, is that the best weather you've got? I said, and he said, It's the only weather I've got, and I said, Well good night, aren't you ever wrong? and he said, Quite often, and I said, Then G wizzickers you might be wrong this time, and he said, Quite possibly, and I said, Then it still might be a swell day tomorrow, mightn't it? and he said, Quite possibly, and I said, G thanks.

And I quick ran bak in the dining room saying, He said possibly fair, ma, and ma said, Then in that case I may start getting the lunch ready this evening.

Which she did, and today was some of the swellest weather I ever saw, and we had a swell picknick.

Proving if nobody ever made mistakes life might get too monotonuss.

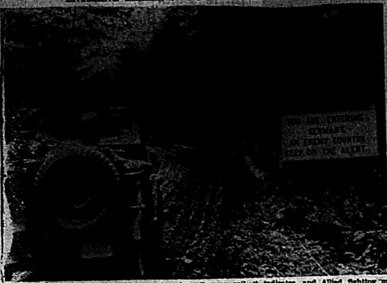
ENTERING GERMANY—NO HELP EXPECTED HERE



The two-man crew of a jeep rides past a sign that tells an important story and marks a new phase of the war. From now on the war will be fought on German soil, it indicates, and Allied fighting men need expect no help from the populace, uniformed or civilian.

AMERICAN BRED

By Franken Meloney

CHAPTER 30

"Too bad about Gretel. I was so hoping that she'd come up against Konstantine in Specials. It would have beer dramatic — But maybe Miss Rivers' dog will take your place. . . ." She turned her smile on Ann. "You are Miss Rivers, aren't you? I met your sister up at your farm. Such a charming person. And I saw your puppy at the Sweepstakes—Well, here's hoping that she has better luck today."

Ann was aware of the guilty flush on Christopher's face and forgot her own troubles in his unhappy embarrassment. It was wicked to let him go on paying for his mistaken chivalry.

"Oh, we lose today and win tomorrow," she tossed out lightly, and broke off as Dr. Barrie walked in Rowdy's direction. Rowdy sank down on her rear, as if she were losing not only her stocking but all her petticoats as well. The crowd tittered; indeed, they had never stopped tittering.

"Oh, he's going to do it," Ann winced. "He's going to send her out of the ring." She closed her eyes, only to open them again with horror's morbid fascination. But no. Doctor Barrie was not throwing Rowdy out of the ring. He was standing beside her, gently stroking her head, and, under his touch, Rowdy was growing quieter. Ann was filled with gratitude. "Oh, bless him for that! If only he'd pat Paul, too, to quiet him. Why do people let themselves in for this kind of thing. It's perverse torture."

Doctor Barrie gestured Rowdy back into the parading line and the torture commenced again. As the line circled toward Ann, she opened her lips to call the dog.

"No, don't!" Christopher's grip was like iron. "It's against the rules."

"Oh, I'm so sorry." Her voice must have carried, for Rowdy stopped, ears askew, and scanned the spectators in an effort to find her mistress. The ringside began to laugh again.

"That's the five thousand dollar claim dog!"

"That's the one!"

"Highest priced monkey meat in the world!"

And then all of a sudden, Rowdy caught sight of Ann, and confusion and bewilderment seemed to vanish. The dog's outer form underwent no change, but it was as if some vivid current of life were infused within it. It was as if a new animal were being created before the very eyes of those who, but an instant before, had only ridicule for the spectacle of a befuddled puppy. The laughter faded into silence.

Rowdy stood there, vulnerable and poignant, like a young actress recovering from stage fright. Ann gave up a little prayer, "Please Lord, don't let anybody make a loud noise, or she'll collapse again—"

Christopher leaned toward her. "You say anything?"

"No, I was only praying."

He pressed her arm. "I'll join you—"

"Thanks."

It was perhaps just some atavism of the breed that had walked with kings awakening within Rowdy—at any rate, she became infected with the spirit of competition in the air. For generations her breeding had been centered upon this moment, directed not only toward the accomplishment of physical perfection, but the ability to show that perfection and to dramatize it. Her hesitation at Ann's side of the ring had allowed the end of the line to connect with the head, and had left an open space before her. She started forward again, leading a procession of her own creation.

There were scowls and muttering from the other handlers. Paul expanded. He, too, began to claim his heritage. He threw back to the handler behind him, "She's got to be up at the front where she belongs or there's no show." He spoke as if Rowdy were the veteran of a hundred shows, and not a tyro in the arena.

In his excitement, Paul fumbled her lead, and it fell from his hand. Rowdy's head swept in an arc, as she caught it in mid-air. This was the game Ann had taught her on those early morning walks. If the lead touched the ground you lost, and had to do it all over again. Paul had frowned at the performance; he didn't approve of show dogs being taught tricks.

Rowdy was doing it all by herself at this moment. She even added the extra fillip of throwing the lead in the air with the manner of an accomplished French chef tossing a salad. Paul clutched at air, and Rowdy was sidling coquettishly away.

The crowd was laughing again, this time in real guffaws of merriment, and Ann could see an embarrassed flush working over Paul's face. It was no time to make an issue, he was deciding. Better let her have her way.

"She must be an adorable pet," Brenda's clear voice rang out.

From woman to woman, and at a dog show, these were fighting words. The innuendo was unmistakable. If I were to hit her, Ann thought, holding herself in, a jury of men would say that I had acted without provocation.

Fortunately, Rowdy distracted the unworthy impulse. Now the self-appointed leader of the procession, she was choosing her own tempo, and showing them all the niceties in walking that Paul had taught her: the high lifting of feet, the deicate poised placing of arched paws to the ground, the slow liquid motion.

But she forgot to make clear that this was a stately progress that belonged to royalty alone, and those not bred to the purple were wise to avoid the march of kings. The handlers behind were thrown out of their gait, they bunched up and had to break stride, and in attempting to control their charges with their leashes they merely added to the confusion.

Doctor Barrie tried to bring order by giving the signal for the gait. In the big breeds, the gait is a revealing test of the individual. He or she must be articulated for fast flowing coverage of the terrain, the movement must be effortless, graceful from every angle, a melody unbroken like a Viennese waltz.

Rowdy stepped forward. Endless miles of early morning workouts, with Ann jog-trotting at her side, head put not only polish but speed upon that gait. Paul made one last futile gesture to grab the lead, lest she begin to pace, or even take it into her head to bound out into the circle of spectators to find Ann. But Rowdy confined herself to gaiting. It semed as if her feet hardly touched the ground.

It is a primeval instinct for the pack to move together. In an effort to keep up with her, the dogs behind began to run and gallop, but Rowdy kept to gaiting, her back so precise and unwavering that she could have held a glass of water between her shoulders without spilling a single drop.

Doctor Barrie squatted on his heels in the middle of the ring, turning like one of the pictures on the inside of a merry-go-round, sighting her outstanding, perfect action. He rose at last, halting the dogs and wheeling them into a line.

Then began the final meticulous and exhausting examination. Without saying a word, he told each handler the fault of his particular dog. His hand rested a moment on a brindle's back—too arched. He pressed twice on a dog's quarters—not enough strength. He spaced the break over the eyes and matched the distance to the tip of the nose—not enough stop.

Waiting for him to come to Rowdy at the head of the line, Ann died a thousand deaths. When he started to examine her mouth, Rowdy dropped the lead to the ground. Paul, watching his chance, reached down for it. Her head lowered; she was still in her coquettish mood. Her motion suggested that if he wanted to play, she was ready for it.

An hysterical ripple went over the crowd—the strain was telling on the spectators as well as the participants. Paul caught Ann's eye and shrugged helplessly and hopelessly. Then Dr. Barrie went back to a brindle, and after a moment returned to Rowdy, patting her brisket speculatively. Paul seemed to slump like a sack that is emptied. Doctor Barrie walked over to the ring steward and took up a handful of ribbons. It was too late. The decision was made.

Christopher's hand clenched Ann's until it hurt, but she was grateful for the hurt, it helped her to hold onto herself. "Rowdy's lost—her brisket!" she gasped. "It was always her weak point."

"Nonsense," Christopher adjured her. "The perfect dog's never been bred. Rowdy ought to take it, hands down. She was magnificent!"

Ann could hardly believe her ears. This admission from Christopher meant more than the win. If only the win didn't mean so much to Paul. Her heart went out to him. He was white as a ghost, and gawping with his mouth as if trying to breathe.

At Dr. Barrie's signal, Paul started forward, Rowdy at his side, tossing her feet like a schooled horse. Together, they walked toward the little ramps in the center of the field behind the squares numbered '1', '2', '3', '4'.

"He pointed toward the brindle first, didn't he?" Ann appealed to Chistopher through dry lips.

"I don't know. I couldn't see. But if he did, second place against this competition is a win you can shout from the housetops."

Rowdy was dancing along with the lead still in her mouth. She had all but passed the little ramps before she noticed them. They looked liked fun, and she wheeled toward them. The nearest one at hand was the number one ramp, and she mounted it, dropping the lead, and freezing to a perfect stance.

"They had a lot of nerve to train the dog to do that," Ann heard a man beside her say.

She saw Paul whip a handkerchief from his pocket and wipe his perspired brow and then take his position beside Rowdy.

There are great blanks in human experience and Ann drew one this moment. She came to herself at the sound of Brenda's high clear voice. "My dear," cried Brenda, "this is just too thrilling! Wouldn't it be fun if we met in the final judging!"

It was only then that Ann realized Rowdy had won.

Christopher was almost as excited as she was. "You'd think it was your dog," Ann exulted.

"It is my dog."

"What do you mean, it's your dog?"

"I bought her an hour ago."

Ann stared at him. "Oh, Christopher, you didn't!"

Christopher expanded. "Don't tell me I don't know how to pick pups."

"But, that was before she won—I mean, she— Oh Christopher!" Ann fell speechless as the significance of his gesture overwhelmed her. "Of course," she reminded him, as coldly as her thumping heart would permit, "the dog is not for sale."

"Too late now to change your mind. The dog is claimed, and that's the end of it. It's the law."

"But this is ridiculous!" Ann sputtered. "I'll buy her back!"

"But the dog is not for sale," said Christopher complacently.

They might have gone on forever if Hans hadn't hurried over to them importantly, excited and out of breath. "Mr. Wain—Miss Rivers, please—come quick, it's Mr. Freund. . . ."

Ann forgot Rowdy; she forgot the ludicrous complication of ownership. Her first thought was that Paul had received word that something had happened to carol. She pushed her way through the milling crowd, with Christopher close behind her. They came up to Rowdy's bench. Ann blinked. There was Paul, ensconced on Rowdy's purple mattress, while Rowdy stood patiently in the aisle.

"What's wrong?" Christopher inquired.

"There's a lot wrong." Paul's voice broke in a bleat. "I got so excited I couldn't see straight, and tripped over a guy wire. Busted my ankle."

"Oh, no!" Ann protested.

A man in a white coat smelling of carbolic stepped forward. "I'm only a vet but that's what it looks like to me," he amended. "Better get a real doc to have a look at it."

Lt. Col. F. Adams Is Awarded D.S.O.

Ottawa, Oct. 16 — (CP) — For directing the wiping out of a German battalion resisting a Canadian advance on the Hitler Line in Italy, Lt.-Col. Fred Dean Adams, 37, Calgary has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order, defence headquarters announced today.

The citation said when the Canadians were advancing May 21 to contact the enemy in the Hitler Line Col. Adams' reconnaissance regiment was ordered to advance on the left flank to clear out pockets of enemy resistance and test the strength of the line.

This move was made "with such determination and skill" that a whole enemy battalion was destroyed. The citation added:—

"The manner in which Lt.-Col. Adams handled his regiment in this very difficult operation is worthy of the highest praise and had a large share in the success achieved by the operations of 22nd and 23rd of May, when the defences were breached and further advance made possible."

Tropical Storm Threatens Havana

Havana, Oct. 16—(AP)—A tropical Hurricane moving northwestward in the Caribbean Sea is increasing in intensity and seriously threatening Havana and Pinar Del Rio provinces, the National Observatory said early today.

400 Foremen Back To Work

Detroit, Oct. 16—(AP)—The Timken-Detroit Company's 400 foremen came back for work today after a two-day strike but the 7,500 production employees remained off the job in a separate walkout.

The company makes axles for army trucks.

Members of the Foremen's Association of America (unaffiliated) had voted to strike for the duration of a lay-off period given two foremen. The lay-off period expired today. The company said the two foremen were suspended for passing defective axles.

The production men, members of Local 174, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), went on strike in protest on the lay-off of a Union committeeman. A company spokesman said the man was laid off for insubordination to a superintendent. The union said the company's action was supreme.

Berlin Says Planes Bombed Salzburg, Near Hitler's Retreat

London, Oct. 16 —(CP)— The Berlin radio reported that American planes flying over southeastern Germany today bombed Salzburg, near Hitler's Berchtesgaden mountain retreat.

An enemy propaganda agency, the International Information Bureau, asserted that the cathedral of Salzburg was heavily damaged and the Mozart House, home of the great composer, destroyed.

"Visibility was clear and the excuse that other targets were aimed at is not acceptable," said the broadcast, indicating that perhaps an attempt was made to bomb Hitler's retreat.

Says Australia To Seek Establishment Of Aluminum Industry

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 16. (CP Cable)—The News, composite newspaper published by Sydney newspapermen and the printers union, said today it was stated officially that the commonwealth government is determined to continue with establishment of an aluminum industry in Tasmania, despite opposition of an international aluminum cartel.

A federal government bill to establish this industry at a cost of £3,000,000 (about $9,750,000) was passed in parliament recently.

The News article said the cartel already has begun underground moves to prevent establishment of the industry in Tasmania. It added that the commonwealth government had official estimates from Canada that aluminum can be produced at six cents a pound but that the cartel has just added another four cents pound to its price of from 15 to 17 cents per pound.

The paper charged that the headquarters of the 'World Alliance' of aluminum interests has been transferred to Arvida, Canada, in order to evade Uniter States antitrust laws". It added:—"The cartel has been charging the Canadian, British and Australian governments 15 to 17 cents but it understood that a special clause under which a premium may be fixed on the costs of production is being used to force Australia to pay 21 cents. Threats already have been made that the validity of the commonwealth engaging in industry will be challenged in the high court.

"Gen. Eisenhower didn't say so and I certainly would not go beyond anything he said."

Will Not Institute Amendments To Landlord, Tenant Act

Vancouver, Oct. 16 —(CP)— Finance Minister Ilsley has informed boards of the Canadian Association of Real Estate that the Federal Government will not institute proposed amendments to the Provincial Landlord and Tenant's Act, A. E. Craddock, secretary manager of the Associated Property Owners of B.C., was advised here last night.

The contemplated changes called for the granting of powers to rentals judges which would permit them to disallow eviction orders if circumstances warranted such action.

Mr. Craddock said his organization had protested the proposed amendments on the grounds that present regulations were adequate to protect security of tenure.

3 U.S. Navy Fliers Killed as Plane Tears Thru Houses

Coquille, Ore., Oct. 16 — (AP) — Three Navy fliers were killed and five civilians were injured after a plane tore through a row of houses in this tiny Western Oregon town.

The plane plowed into a residential district yesterday near the high school. The chimneys of two houses were sheared; porches of two other homes were demolished. A grocery store was hit and then the plane exploded, setting fire to another house."

BRACKEN URGES GOVERNMENT TO MAKE DECISION

Progressive Conservative Leader Speaks at Allison Rally With Drew

Allison, Ont., Oct. 16—(CP)—The government should say whether soldiers drafted under the National Resources Mobilization Act will be sent overseas, demobilized to "take the jobs the fighting men deserve" or maintained at home at a cost of $150,000,000 yearly, Progressive Conservative Leader John Bracken said in an address here Saturday.

Speaking after Premier George Drew had said it was the responsibility of people at home to see that "their men get every support necessary including adequately trained reinforcements," Mr. Bracken declared:

"It has been said in many places, and Col. Drew just now reasserted it, that untrained or insufficiently trained men have been sent into the front line of battle while large numbers of well-trained men remain behind in Canada's conscript army. In the interest of the public, as well as the men overseas, the government should give a full and frank statement."

Mr. Bracken proposed a permanent plan of guaranteed farm prices to replace the government's floor for farm prices during the transition period.

Would Increase Prices.

Terming the floor price plan the government introduced at the last session of parliament "inadequate, impractical and clumsy," Mr. Bracken said the scheme he proposed would increase present farm prices about 20 per cent and give farmers a fair share of the National Income.

"This will mean that a permanent policy of forward contract prices will be guaranteed to farmers by law — prices that will be based on their proportionate share of the National Income," he explained.

"It will not mean the setting up of multiple bureaucracies and boards, because it is our intention that these products will constantly flow in the regular channels for what the consumers here and abroad will pay.

Met by State.

"Any difference between the prices thus received and the prices thus guaranteed to the farmer will be an obligation to be met by the state under this plan to secure to farmers their proportionate share of the National Income.

"The plan will, at the beginning, be applied to the more important farm products and will be extended as rapidly as possible to cover the whole field of production in agriculture and other food products, including fish."

Guaranteed prices would be calculated in advance of the production period by a non-political economic council composed of statisticians, economists and consumers and would be based on the farmers' share of the National Income.

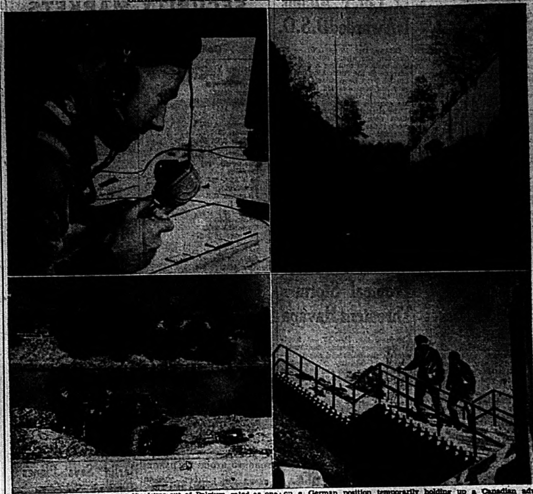
CANADIANS BATTLE BOCHE NEAR SCHELDE RIVER



In the heavy fighting to drive the Huns out of Belgium, rated as one of the toughest struggles of the war, the skill and heroism of Canadian soldiers has played a tremendous part. Some of the men engaged in this bitter campaign are shown above. Upper left: Lieut. L. W. Spurr, Middleton, N.S., directs fire on an enemy position from an advanced command post near the Schelde river. Upper right: Two miles from the Schelde river, Gnr. R. Leclerc, Quebec City; Bdr. O. McIntosh, Fort Frances, Ont., and Gnr. J. Keropelnicki, Grande Prairie, Alta., open fire on a German position temporarily holding up a Canadian advance. Lower left: Fort DeSchooten, built in 1885 by the Belgians, was but one of scores of similar German strong points stormed by Canadian troops. Pictured strolling around the interior of the captured fort are members of the famous Western Canadian regiment which took it. Lower right: Members of a Canadian regiment in Belgium are seen climbing the steps at the entrance to Antwerp Harbor, a few hours after the German defenders had been driven out.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

TORNADIC ALLIED

"The same fate awaits other Nazi war capitals and cities standing in the way of our armies. One place after another will be destroyed so long as the Germans continue to resist."

2,200 Planes Take Part.

The Allied air fleets co-ordinated with the U. S. 8th Air Force drawing Cologne and the R. A. F. taking Duisburg. While more than 2,200 American craft hammered Cologne twice in daylight, the British broke two records on Duisburg Saturday morning then returned with another 1,000 bombers—some of which were R. C. A. F. craft — that night.

In their first visit the largest force of R. A. F. heavies ever dispatched in daylight dropped 4,500 tons of bombs in 25 minutes.

Canadian Halifaxes laid mines in enemy waters last night after R. C. A. F. Beaufighters yesterday left a heavily-loaded oil tanker and an escorting flakship blazing furiously in the Skagerrak.

More fire-bombs were rained on Germany in 24 hours than the Luftwaffe used on London throughout the blitz.

Total Cost 71 Bombers.

The total cost for all the raids was 71 bombers—37 American, 30 British and four Canadian—and 12 fighters.

The R. A. F. lost nine aircraft of 1,500 in action Saturday night.

While the shattering mass attacks were going on American light medium and dive-bombers were popping frontline targets from Aachen to the Swiss border.

Marauders showered millions of leaflets over the Siegfried Line telling enemy soldiers their days are numbered.

MAJ. E. F. SOUTHBY DIES

Port Hope, Oct. 16—(CP)— Word has been received here of the death of wounds in Italy of Major Edward Francis Southby, 30, of the Toronto Irish Regiment. He was severely wounded Oct. 3 and died Oct. 7. His widow, two children and his father live here.

HUNGARY TOPPLED

Ankara radio said the Gestapo was making mass arrests and a report broadcast by the radio at Lille, France, said Horthy had been seized by the Gestapo and taken to Germany.

Effect of the peace move on the Hungarian army, an estimated 30 to 40 divisions, was not known immediately. Horthy's petition, as recorded in London, did not order Hungarian soldiers to lay down their arms. A later broadcast of a statement attributed to the chief of the general staff, Col.-Gen. Cites Voeroes, urged the troops to continue fighting "until the outcome of Armistice negotiations is known," but the Lille radio quoted Swiss reports that large groups of Hungarian soldiers were quitting.

Closing in on Budapest.

Meanwhile Russian armies drove across the country's central plains less than 50 miles from Budapest.

An official declaration reported by the German news agency D.N.B. said that since the spring of 1942 the Horthy government had made "a complete turn" and "tried by all means to weaken the alliance with Germany and made every possible move to sabotage the war effort."

Confirmation of Horthy's Armistice request was expected hourly from Moscow, where Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are in conference. Neutral sources said yesterday Hungarian Armistice delegation were en route to Moscow.

The Ankara radio quoting Horthy's order of the day, said Hungary had accepted Allied Armistice terms. These were believed in Ankara to parallel those offered Romania, which would mean that Hungary would have to turn her armies against Germany. The terms also were said to include the disarming and interning of all German forces on Hungarian soil, restoring Transylvania to Romania, installing a liberal all-party government and eliminating anti-semitic laws and other Fascist dictates.

NEW RED DRIVE REACHES EAST PRUSSIA BORDER

Open 25-Mile Front On Both Sides Of Lithuanian Town

Troops Besieging Memel Threaten City of Tilsit

London, Oct. 17 — (CP) — A great new Russian offensive has opened and has reached the East Prussian border northeast of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis, the German communique acknowledged today.

The drive was on a 25-mile front on both sides of the town by masses of Russian infantry, tanks and fighter-bombers striking after a drumfire barrage lasting several hours. The Germans asserted 145 tanks were destroyed in opening phases of the battle.

"Large-scale troop concentrations had been observed for days past," the enemy broadcast said. "They now have started their storm against the German defence lines.

"Strong artillery fire and severe bombing preceded the attack of tanks and infantry.

Vilkaviskis lies 12 miles from the central section of the East Prussian border, along which Russian troops have been deployed since Aug. 17.

Other Russian troops besieging Memel are threatening the rail city of Tilsit in East Prussia and already have invaded the 1,099 square miles of Memel territory which Hitler annexed to East Prussia six months before the outbreak of war.

Still others are menacing East Prussia from the south from two bridgeheads which Berlin said were established across the Narew river.

Fighting Last Phase

Far to the south, Russian and Yugoslav Partisans were fighting the last phase of the Battle of Belgrade in the streets of that 2,000-year-old capital. The whole German position in Yugoslavia was placed in the greatest jeopardy by the capture of the rail centre of Nis and 175 miles of the trans-Balkan railway south of the Yugoslav capital.

Berlin said, moreover, that 1,000 Russian tanks had been massed for an imminent assault on the Polish capital of Warsaw, where in the eastern industrial suburb of Praga, the Russian armies are bivouacked.

The Germans said the great tank battle on the flat Hungarian plain within 50 miles east of Budapest had "increased in fury" and that the outcome was uncertain.

Massed Assault

Berlin said the attack on East Prussia from Lithuania was on a 25-mile front and came after a drumfire barrage and violent air attack lasting several hours. It was termed a "mass assault by infantry and tanks."

While the Germans acknowledged "local breaches" they insisted that the breaks were sealed before the Russians could get near East Prussia." Seventy Russian tanks were destroyed, the enemy asserted.

Before dawn, Russian planes attacked the Prussian town of Gumbinnen, 36 miles due west of Vilkaviskis, the Germans said.

Gen. De Gaulle To Be in Control Of Most of France

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Oct. 17—(AP)— Gen. Eisenhower is expected to turn over to the de Gaulle administration in a few days formal authority over all the territory of Metropolitan France except some port areas and active combat zones.

Eisenhower will take the action by designating the sections of France not in the present fighting zones as an "interior zone."

The effect will be the transfer to Gen. de Gaulle and his associates of virtually complete control over almost all of France. This may speed up the political organization of the country although the principal delaying factor so far has been the lack of communication and transportation facilities.

Eisenhower has had top responsibility for French affairs since D-Day because all activities of the country had to be subordinated to the military necessity of defeating Germany. Now only the combat zones, certain great supply ports and some key rail lines have primary military importance.

For some weeks after the Allied drive across Northern France Gen. de Gaulle made it clear to the Allied High Command that he did not desire the country to be turned back to him quickly.

Bands of Germans were then still roaming around loose, some French resistance forces would need only military orders and there was the unusual condition, which is reported to remain, of the Spanish Maquis in the southeastern corner of France near the Spanish border who on occasion have defied the authority of the French government.

Now, however, de Gaulle has conveyed to Allied authorities the idea that he is ready to take control and full responsibility for order in the country.

Sisley Huddleston Ex-Newspaperman Arrested in France

Paris, Oct. 17 — (AP) — Sisley Huddleston, former British newspaperman and one-time president of the Anglo-American Correspondents' Association in Paris, has been arrested by French authorities on treason charges, in connection with his writings and radio speeches during the German occupation.

Huddleston remained in France following the 1940 armistice and became a naturalized French citizen by decree of Marshal Petain, according to a civil affairs officer who investigated the case at Nice.

French Forces of the Interior leaders who seized Huddleston on the Riviera maintained he had defended authoritarian principles and attacked Democratic ideals in his writings and speeches.

RCMP Patrol Boat Makes Long Trip Across Arctic

Vancouver, Oct. 17 —(CP)— The Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrol vessel St. Roch chrugged into this harbor last night with the glittering triumph of a journey through the northwest passage from Atlantic to Pacific completed in one season.

In less than four months the 80-ton craft had achieved what elaborate exploration expeditions have sought in vain for centuries.

Distance covered was 6,000 miles. It was the third successful voyage in history through the thunderous Arctic route. The St. Roch also made the second west-to-east trip in 1942.

"The route through the northwest passage is suitable for summer traffic by wooden vessels," said Staff Sgt. H. A. Larsen, master of the vessel.

The St. Roch encountered heavy fog and ice floes all the way through the passage, but Sgt. Larsen described it as a "perfect cruise."

She sailed from Sydney, N. S., on July 25 and thrust through the lonely sea lanes of the north, through the tumult of the Beaufort Sea, past Point Barrow and down the Pacific Coast.

She is the first vessel of any size to have made the northwest passage from both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

British-American Pressure Increases on 50-Mile Front

2,100 AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS ATTACK COLOGNE

Vast Rail Yards Used To Funnel Supplies To Western Front Principal Objective

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—More than 1,300 American heavy bombers escorted by 800 fighters bombed the western front communications and industrial centre of Cologne today for the sixth time in six days.

The raid followed an overnight assault on Cologne by an undisclosed number of speedy Mosquitos of the R.A.F. bomber command.

Cologne (pop. 568,426) has vast rail yards which funnel supplies to the western front and it is the home of the Henschel Tank Works and the Bettenhausen Ordnance Works. Arms, chemicals and machines are other important manufactures in the city.

The huge armada before 10 a.m. flew over the Ruhr city, a great part of which now lies in ruins. It was one of the earliest major daylight attacks on Germany. Clouds obscured most of the city and bombing was by instruments. Early reports made no mention of enemy opposition.

The Mosquito mission over Cologne was without loss.

Cologne, less than 40 miles inside the west wall from Aachen, was ripped by more than 2,000 American heavy bombers during the weekend in the most concentrated raid ever staged by the 8th air force. Reconnaissance photographs showed some of the fires still burning Monday.

A squadron of R.A.F. Tempests, the lightning-fast fighters which gained fame chasing flying-bombs, roamed into Germany for the first time yesterday. They found two trains and set both on fire.

Flying through a rainstorm to answer an army call for help, rocket Typhoons silenced a battery of German field guns near Vernay, in Holland, with 56 rockets.

19 Interceptors Downed

More than 500 American heavy bombers from Italy attacked seven railyards, two aircraft engine factories and other targets yesterday in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia while escorting fighters destroyed 19 interceptors, it was announced in Rome.

Fortresses bombed the west railyards and ammunition dumps in Salsburg, 25 miles northeast of Hitler's mountain fastness at Berchstesgaden. They also hammered Villach and Linz railyards, a synthetic oil plant in the Czechoslovak city of Brux and the sprawling Skoda armaments works at Pilsen in Czechoslovakia.

Liberators attacked the Steyer Walzlagerwerk airplane engine works and railyards at Spittal, Trieben, Graz and Kalgenfurt and the Steyer Daimler Duch Assembly plant at St. Valentine. They bombed the Hermann Goering benzol plant at Linz and the Graz, the Neudorf Air Engine factory, the St. Veit railyards and the Klagenfurt aircraft factory.

Violent explosions and fires resulted from a British bombing of railyards at Zagreb, Yugoslav city. South African bombers flew a 1,500 miles round trip to drop supplies in Poland.

Sinatra asked that no charge be placed against the egger.

British Break Up Clashes Between Factions in Athens

Rome, Oct. 17 — (AP)—British troops, landed from more than 150 warships, patrolled the streets of Athens today after breaking up clashes between rival Greece factions.

The fleet of warships included units of the Royal Navy, and Canadian, South Africa, Greek, French and Polish naval craft.

The Canadian Navy was represented by the liners Prince David and Prince Henry.

The first units of British troops disembarked at the port of Piraeus yesterday and paraded through Athens between lanes of cheering, palm-waving Greeks.

The arrival of the British broke up armed clashes between rival Greek factions in the civil square. Order was restored within a few hours.

The huge fleet was under command of Commodore Geoffrey Oliver and the landing force under the naval command of Rear-Admiral J. M. Mansfield of the Royal Navy.

The landing was completely bloodless. But dispatches from Greece said the Germans during their last week of occupation had machine-gunned more than 500 Athenians and burned scores of homes.

NEW ZEALANDERS MAKE PROGRESS ON BROAD FRONT

Three Lighters Sunk in Adriatic by British Light Coastal Craft

Rome, Oct. 17 —(AP)—Advances on a broad front north of the Bologna highway have brought New Zealand troops of the British 8th Army to the approaches of the Pisciatello River, Allied headquarters announced today.

South of the Rimini-Bologna road British and Indian troops also made good progress.

Monte Romano, three miles south of the road junction of Cesano, fell to the 8th Army.

Allied 5th Army troops are pushing toward the Savio River at several points, the communique reported.

Allied aircraft from the Mediterranean ranged over Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia yesterday attacking military targets.

British light coastal craft, operating in the Adriatic, attacked enemy shipping and sank at least three lighters.

The 5th Army made gains of up to 1,000 yards in the mountains before the famed university city and Northern Italy communications centre of Bologna. Fierce fighting continued south of Bologna.

Field Marshal Kesselring apparently has decided to fight for Bologna and German troops have been shipped into position for a bitter battle for the ancient city, it was announced.

Germans Change Tactics.

The German resistance south of Bologna has changed in character from delaying tactics to an all-out defensive effort with heavy concentrations of artillery fire and frequent counter-attacks.

HUNGARIAN NAZIS FORM GOVT. TO REPLACE HORTHY

Broadcast Declares Horthy Issued Proclamation Revoking Armistice Plea

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 17 — (CP) — The official German news agency D.N.B. reported today that the Commander-in-Chief of the 1st Hungarian Army, Maj.-Gen. Bela Miklos Von Dalnok, had "gone over to the Soviets," with his Chief of Staff, a Maj. Keri.

Conditions remained chaotic in Hungary, where invading Russian troops fought within 50 miles of Budapest, and it was questionable whether the Germans could expect any further effective military assistance from this last remaining ally.

Installation of a new puppet government, dismissal of top-ranking generals, and imposition of a drastic curfew in Budapest were announced last night by the Nazi-controlled Hungarian radio.

The broadcast declared Admiral Nicholas Horthy had issued a proclamation "revoking" the plea for an armistice he addressed Sunday to the Allies as Hungarian Regent. It added Count Ferenc Szalasi had formed a new government after Horthy's "retirement."

The Berlin radio promptly hailed the pro-Nazi coup as a "full victory which marks the end of all negotiations with the Allies or the Russians and assures close collaboration with Germany."

(Moscow meanwhile employed events in Budapest in an attempt to get the people of Austria also to "make a contribution to their own liberation."

(A Moscow broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission urged Austrians to "let

JAPANESE FLEET REFUSES FIGHT WITH U.S. NAVY

164 Enemy Aircraft Drowned in Bombing Of Formosa and The Defense of Task Force

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY
(AP War Correspondent)

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 17 —(AP)— Units of the Japanese fleet approached the Formosa area where the United States 3rd Fleet wreaked heavy damage on enemy aircraft, shipping and ground installations, but turned tail and fled when it discovered the power of the American armada, it was announced today.

Admiral Nimitz announced withdrawal to safety of Japanese warships in a communique which related tersely:

"On discovering our fighting strength unimpaired, they avoided action and have withdrawn toward their bases."

Refusal to engage the mighty task force belies Radio Tokyo's broadcast boast that Imperial warships not only engaged the American fleet but claimed sinking up to 52 ships, including 11 carriers.

Nimitz also disclosed that carrier pilots destroyed 164 enemy aircraft in the Oct. 13-14-15 bombings of Formosa and in defending the carrier force against torpedo attacks.

No Damage to U. S. Ships.

"During the fighting between our carrier task force and the enemy air forces based on shore in the Ruykyus, Formosa and Luzon islands in the Philippines from Oct. 10 until the time of this communique," Nimints elaborated, "There has been no damage of consequence to our battleships or carriers. However, two medium-sized ships were hit by aircraft torpedoes and are retiring from the area."

Nimitz reported 191 enemy planes attacked one of the U. S. task groups off Formosa by day and night in the Oct. 13-15 period. This constituted one of the enemy's strongest assaults on fleet units in many months.

Of the 191 Japanese planes, 95 were shot down by American fighters and anti-aircraft fire, while "we lost five planes," Nimits reported.

Protected Damaged Ships

Fighters from two U. S. carriers shot down an additional 50 Japanese aircraft of approximately 60 which attempted to attack the two damaged, retiring ships. On the same day 15 more enemy planes were destroyed by search and patrol flights from American carriers.

This brought total Japanese planes destroyed by forces in the Ryukyu-Formosa-Luzon operations to an estimated 828 to 843. In addition 37 enemy planes were estimated probably destroyed.

(Washington announced that 20th Air Force Superfortresses struck today at Formosa for the 3rd time in four days, but gave no details in the preliminary communique.)

Germans Hint New Offensive Being Prepared

Canadians Gain Half Mile In Drive From Leopold C.

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—British 2nd Army troops today drove into the Netherlands highway town of Venray, 25 miles south of Nijmegan and eight miles from the German frontier while the Canadian advance in the shrinking German pocket south of the Schelde Estuary gained momentum.

The Germans, proclaiming a budding United States offensive, strove to hold American troops in the Aachen sector wth a wall of artillery fire.

British-American pressure increased along a 50-mile front from Venray southeast to Aachen. An Allied tactical authority likened the situation to that which preceded the Normandy break-through in August.

House-to-House Fighting.

Tommies fought house-to-house for Venray, a few miles west of the Maas (Meusel) River, and other columns approached from the north and east.

Canadian forces gained more than half a mile in a drive northward from the Leopold canal and Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, in a field dispatch reported the Germans were withdrawing in this Schelde pocket sector to a new defence line formed under pressure of a mounting dawn-to-dusk attack.

Berlin radio acknowledged "two small breaches" were opened by Canadian troops, supported by tanks and flame-throwers, south of Breskens.

American forces continued slowly digging Germans out of surrounded Aachen, and repulsed all German counter- blows east and northeast of the Siegfried Line city.

More Reinforcements.

German broadcasts told of strong reinforcements moving up behind American lines, and spoke of a coming "battle of Geilenkirchen." This town is 10 miles north of Aachen in Germany.

The German radio asserted the British 2nd Army, backed by 1,500 tanks, was "at the ready" in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area of Eastern Holland, waiting until it can be sure of a supply port.

At the southern end of the 460-mile western front, the French 1st Army made slight gains in a campaign to outflank Belfort gap. Repeated enemy counter-assaults were repulsed in the Vosges foothills, two of them falling in the Luneville area. Allied troops advanced farther east of the Mostlotte River northeast of Le Thillot.

Called on to Surrender.

On the U. S. 3rd Army sector to the north, the Germans west of Metz with loudspeakers called on the Americans to surrender or "be annihilated" within three hours. The ultimatum expired, nothing happened, and the silence remained unbroken amid a steady rain which filled foxholes.

Firm Base for Assault.

Canadian troops continued their battle to clear the Germans from the 50-mile Schelde River estuary so the Allies can use the great Belgian port of Antwerp, 75 miles west of Geilenkirchen.

By joining three bridgeheads across the Leopold canal in the Watervliet area, the 1st Canadian Army had a solid holding zone four miles deep and more than six miles long south of the Schelde. This gave a firm base for an assault on the German pocket around Brekens at the mouth of the estuary.

North of Antwerp other Canadians won control of Woensdrecht, commanding the causeway leading from the Dutch mainland to the estuary islands of Zuid Beveland and Walchere.

In the Aachen-Venray area and elsewhere along the whole 460-mile line the present phase of the battle of the German border is not a period of lull, even though Allied troops have measured their gains in hundreds of yards for the past week or two, an Allied tactical authority explained.

The maintenance of increasing and shifting pressure means, he said, that somewhere the German defences are going to give way, since the Allies are keeping the offensive.

140 Pigs Eat Up Fabric of Airplane While Travellers Visit

Hanley Falls, Minn., Oct. 17—(AP)—Frank Baker and a Mr. Perce of Stanton, Minn., landed their airplane in a nearby field to pay a visit to Oscar Hanson near here and had to return home by bus because pigs ate up most of their ship. Deserting their alfalfa meal for a while, the 140 porkers consumed all of the fabric from the plane's fuselage and were attempting to reach that on the wings when the fliers noticed the raid.

Vest-Pocket Battle of Estuary Bitter, Enemy Tactics Cost Hun Severely

By ALAN RANDAL
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army, Oct. 17 —(CP Cable)— Here in the Schelde beachhead Canadian infantry are fighting a vest-pocket war all of their own but as bitter as anything on any front,

"These Germans almost never quit, most of them would sooner die by their guns," said a lieut.-colonel from Ottawa commanding Eastern Ontario infantry which came on to these beaches south of the Schelde estuary a week ago (possibly the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont.)

The Germans are not quite the S.S. (elite troops) type met in Normandy. These men are from the Nazified 64th Division, tough nuts every one of them, who have been so propagandized that they figure only two courses are open to them—victory through fighting or death in battle.

"They have been told there will be reprisals on their families if they surrender," said the lieut.-colonel, whose men took the now shell-torn town of Hoofdplaat on the estuary.

"They are considered deserters if they surrender so there is nothing for them to do but fight and die."

These tactics are costing the Germans dearly and this battalion has killed a number of Germans greatly exceeding the number of its own men lost.

During one 36-hour period, this battalion repulsed 20 counter-attacks. After that the lieut.-colonel stopped counting.

"They employed virtual suicide tactics," he said. "They kept rolling in platoon after platoon and we just ate them up. You can say we killed more than at any time since we were fighting the S.S. around Caen—we had to kill them."

These bitter encounters reduced some German companies from 150 men to 20 but they still reformed and counter-attacked anew.

Concentrated Bombings of German Cities Inflict Terrific Casualties

By JON KIMCHE
(Reuter Military Commentator)

Schaffhausen, Switzerland, Oct. 17 —(CP-Reuter)—Stories told by people arriving here from recently-bombed German cities are naturally neither comprehensive nor coherent, yet it is possible to estimate the catastrophe which concentrated R.A.F. attack means to a German city.

Casualty figures for some of the recent raids, circulated by the victims, probably are no more than guesses.

Darmstadt refugees talk of 25,000 dead in the last raid on the city, and add that the entire place is in ruins except the big chemical factory, which remains untouched.

Whether this figure is right or not one cannot say. What is important is that probably every evacuee from Darmstadt believed it to be true and that the news will spread.

People from Karlsruhe say more than 10,000 were killed in the last raid there. What the Duisburg evacuees will have to report cannot even be imagined.

There can be little doubt that the casualty rate in these R.A.F. attacks reach proportions such as the Germans were never able to inflict on any English city.

Some 10,000,000 Germans in western Germany by now are involved in the consequences of the Allied air assault.

THIRD DOG MEETS WITH MISFORTUNE

There is an old saying in the newspaper reporting business that misfortunes of a similar category invariably occur in multiples of three so when a small black spaniel dog was struck by a motor car on West Bridge St. adjacent to the lower bridge on Monday the suggestion of "multiples of three" was substantiated.

Over the weekend two dogs were killed after running into the streets as trucks were passing. Yesterday a black spaniel ran across Bridge St., near the lower bridge, just as Ross Brickman, 66 Catharine St., was leaving the bridge. The dog ran into the vehicle and was knocked to the pavement. Mr. Brickman immediately stopped to render help. However, a weeping little girl lifted the injured dog into her arms and ran over the bridge in the direction of her home. Mr. Brickman reported the accident to P. C. Evans, but was unable to ascertain the name of the little girl or the seriousness of injuries to her pet.

James H. Lazenby Honoredby Friends

When friends of James H. Lazenby met at his home to honor him upon his election to the position of Second Vice President of the Dominion Command of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada Association Monday night the occasion proved to be of a two-fold purpose. Besides being tendered the congratulations of his many friends upon his elevation to office in the Dominion Command, those gathered for the unique occasion at Mr. Lazenby's home added congratulations upon his recent election to the principal office of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Unit 201, as president.

During the evening's program Mr. E. T. Cherry, who was one of the principals behind the honoring of Mr. Lazenby, presented him with a leather travelling bag. To Mrs. Lazenby was given a beautiful chesterfield end table and a parcel to send to their son overseas. In his usual inimitable manner Mr. Lazenby thanked his guests, the majority of whom are directly associated with him in Army and Navy Vets. In a few chosen words, that carried feeling Mr. Lazenby assured all present both he and Mrs. Lazenby would cherish the gifts received. "Coming from such friends they will live long in our memories," he concluded.

During the evening an impromptu program helped to add mirth and merriment to the memorable occasion Mayor Rollins expressed his satisfaction at being present, while Past President Thos. Yorke, of the Army and Navy Veterans, and Sec. Wm. Ford, who also holds the distinction of being 1st Vice Pres. of the Provincial Command of the Army and Navy Vets. also spoke. Milk for Britain FundBottle Taken From Liquor Store

Stealing from charity has always been looked upon as one of the most contemptible forms of theft. As a matter of fact crooks, who take pride in their illegal practices, have been known through the ages to deal with the despicable person who steals from charity.

Placed on convenient counters of stores and shops in the downtown area of Belleville are small milk bottles, upon which are placed explanatory signs indicating that by depositing a dime in the bottle, a quart of milk will be sent to a baby in bombed-out Britain. The charity is known as the Kinsmen's "Milk for Britain Fund" and is Dominion-wide in its scope.

One of these collection bottles has been on the counter at the local liquor store on Bridge Street for many months past. This milk bottle proved a splendid medium for collecting for the club's Milk for Britain Fund, at least it did until last Saturday afternoon when some sneak thief stole the bottle, contents and even the display tag on top of the bottle. Liquor Store employees assured the Kinsmen the bottle contained a goodly sum of money, when stolen by some customer from the store counter. There was known to be a dollar bill, numerous quarters and other smaller pieces of silver, to say nothing of scores of pennies.

Stealing milk from the mouths of bombed babies in Britain is equally as contemptible as stealing from the church poor box. It puts into practice that saying — "stealing milk from the babies' mouths".

Position of Jewish Race in Palestine Theme of Address at Rotary Club

Championing the efforts of the Jewish race to its rights as a majority in Palestine, "a homeland given them on the basis of British promises," Mr. Herbert A. Mowat, secretary of the Canadian Palestine Committee stated that he had "every faith that the promises would be redeemed" in an address to the Rotary Club here on Monday.

At the end of the last World War, British statesmen accepted the responsibility of creating a haven for Jews, a national home for them in Palestine and giving them a chance they never had before. The League of Nations endorsed Palestine as a British mandatory state. In 1922 the United States entered a treaty with Great Britain in which she became a partner as an associate power with regards to the mandate.

"White Paper" Criticised.

A British parliamentary "white paper" in 1939 attempted to destroy the work of the Balfour Declaration which provided for the National Home for the Jews in Palestine. It was bitterly criticised by Winston Churchill for its work in freezing the population for five years on a basis of two Arabs to one Jew to give the Jews a perpetual minority. No further immigration of Jews to Palestine would be considered unless it had Arab acquiescence, the "white paper" stated.

In 1922, Mr. Mowat said, Arabs fomented disorders in protest against Jews entry into Palestine. At this time the quota was laid down on the basis of economic absorptive capacity of the country.

This trouble, the speaker declared, was fomented by those who wanted to upset the British "apple cart" in the Middle East. British Intelligence officers uncovered the facts that Germany had paid 30,000 pounds sterling and Italy 20,000 pounds to Arab terrorists to create disorders in protest against Jewish activity in Palestine, only one-third of one percent of these terrorists were Arabs of Palestine. The rest were from other parts, and were controlled by Nazi and Fascist elements.

500,000 Jews in Country.

In spite of these difficulties, 500,000 Jews have entered Palestine between 1918 and 1940 World Jewry has invested 600 millions of dollars in the country which since the war has proven itself to be the allied arsenal of the Middle East. It has built for itself a foreign credit of four hundred millions of dollars.

"The Jewish National Home in Palestine has succeeded," Mr. Mowat told the clubmen. "Formerly the Middle East was a land of subsistent agriculture, a net result of hundreds of years of Turkish domination. Reclamation of the land started with the development of Zionism. Lawrence of Abria stated that Galilee was one of the most romanised of the provinces. Jewish farms were bright spots in the desert."

Under the mandate of the British Government, Jewish land settlers have prospered, and have developed a country which they believed to be theirs.

Arabs Get Lion's Share.

"No race has hit the jackpot like the Arabs in the post-war period of the First Great War," Mr. Mowat said. "They received a majority in Iran, Iraq and other Middle East countries and the price asked for this freedom was a minority in Palestine with civil and religious rights granted them—a small price indeed."

Jewish agricultural developments of Palestine, the speaker asserted, have been the fruits of a great moral passion. They have set a pattern of achievement that should be an asset to the world. Soil reclamation worked out through a system of irrigation, has created a great increase in food production. All this is sympathetic of what is being achieved for the betterment of the Jew and the Arab.

The obligation of the British Government is clear, Mr. Mowat said, as is the debt of world Jewry to that government. Thanks to British initiative there are great promises in the future for Jewry, and that Jewry is grateful. He had every faith that the promises of the Government made in the Balfour Declaration would be redeemed.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Ed. Bernstein, and club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Dr. Myers. President Pinkston was in the chair.

Tpr. R. Rashotte Dies of Wounds

Tweed — (Special) — Word was received recently by Mr. Joseph Rashotte of the French Settlement near Tweed that his son, Trooper Richard Michael Rashotte, had died of wounds received while fighting with his unit in Belgium on Friday, September 29th.

Trooper Rashotte was a member of the Canadian Armored Corps and was with a Western Canada unit.

He was popular with all who knew him and his sudden death came as a decided shock to a wide circle of relatives and friends. He enlisted at Kingston in January, 1942, and trained at Camp Borden and Kingston and went overseas with a Reinforcement Unit in August, 1943, and was later transferred to the Armored Corps.

Trooper Rashotte was twenty-seven years of age and most of his life was spent in the French Settlement. He attended Tweed High School and prior to his enlistment was employed at the Sawyer Stoll Lumber Camp at Massanoga.

He was a member of St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed, and The Holy Name Society. Dean D. A. Cullinane and Rev. Father L. Le Marche celebrated Requiem High Mass on Monday morning, October 9th.

His mother, who before her marriage was Mary Halliser, died about three years ago. Remaining besides his father are seven brothers and four sisters: John, Ernest, Alphonsus, Tweed; Vincent of Fort William; Private Jonas with the Ordnance Reinforcement in England; Trooper Raymond with the Fort Gary Horse and Trooper Justin, also with the Fort Gary Horse; Nora with the Civil Service, Ottawa; Helen, nurse-in-training at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, and Teresa and Margaret at home.

Supply of Goods Relatively High In 6th Year of War

The fact that Canada still possesses, in this, the sixth year of the war, most of the goods necessary for a relatively high standard of living is not due to chance but is the results of a great program of planning and direction by various supply agencies working in co-operation with the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

Such was the message given to members of the Belleville Kinsmen Club as at their regular bi-monthly dinner meeting at the Quinte Hotel on Monday evening they were addressed by A. G. Smith, of the management service division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Subject of his address was "Canada's Good Show."

System of Supply Set Up.

Indicating that there would be no necessity of control if there were no goods to sell, Mr. Smith told how a system of supply had been set up which had guaranteed that essential civilian needs were satisfied. This had entailed the acquisition of necessary imports; the allocation of Canadian materials between war and civilian needs and the best use possible of short supply materials.

As an illustration of the difficulties which have to be overcome in maintaining supply, Mr. Smith instanced the serious shortage of onions which made its appearance last winter. Arrangements had been made for the importation of onions from Egypt where supplies were available. Shipping difficulties intervened, however, and efforts were made to get supplies from South America. An earthquake took labor from the fields, but further south a small supply was discovered and the cargo finally reached Canada to help relieve the Canadian shortage.

122 Ration Boards.

To take care of distribution 14 regional offices and 122 local ration boards had been set up across Canada. In passing Mr. Smith paid tribute to the Belleville office and its management. Coupon rationing had meant an equal share for everybody but in certain instances this had not meant a fair share. For instance, extra meat rations had been made available for lumbermen, miners and other workmen doing heavy work.

The speaker suggested that in numerous cases a merchant may confuse the amount of merchandise he receives with the amount he could sell if he had it in his store. In many instances there is today a greater production of certain goods than there was in 1941. This was true in the case of chocolate bars of which there were now 75 per cent more being made. Demands for the armed forces and shipments of parcels overseas take up a big percentage of this supply, however.

Restrained Buying Urge.

Restraint in buying on the part of the consumer was urged by the speaker in conclusion. "Buy two units of any commodity when one is sufficient for our immediate needs and we may deny to our neighbor a supply of even one of these articles, although his need may be greater than ours," he said.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mr. Dougall Marshall of the local Wartime Prices and Trade Board office with club appreciation being expressed by Kin Harold Cameron. Business affairs were kept to a minimum by President "Matt" Currie to enable club members to take part in the paper collection scheduled for later in the evening.

Killed in Action

Pte. Charles F. Nicholson, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Nelson Nicholson, 194 Victoria Ave., who was killed in action in Italy on September 29th. A member of the Perth Regiment he enlisted in 1942 and went overseas about one year ago.

Approximately 45 Tons Waste Paper Collected in Drive

Between forty and forty-five tons of used paper were collected from the city in the Emergency Paper Drive Monday night, according to a rough estimate of Alderman Clarence Clapp and his committee today.

The collection filled three railway freight cars placed on the Albion Street siding of the Canadian National Railways.

While salvage officials estimated the amount at the above figures, they emphasized the fact, that this is a rough guess, as collections were not weighed before being loaded on freight cars.

Definite figures will not be available until returns are received from Salvage Headquarters in Toronto.

Under the supervision of Mr. Morley Duff, some twenty trucks, loaned by city business men and industrialists for the purpose, assembled at the City Hall shortly after seven o'clock. Approximately 100 members of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Kinsmen service clubs of the city, stepped out of every day life character, and manned the trucks on their city search for paper.

Residents of the city co-operated with the Salvage Committee in a splendid manner, officials said today. Bundles were neatly parcelled and tied, and truck crews had little or no difficulty in loading their vehicles.

Collections, due to fine organization, were completed by eleven o'clock. Following the evening's work, the truck volunteers were served refreshments of cheese, crackers, coffee and doughnuts at the Kiwanis Centre, Dundas Street.

Mr. Quinn, on behalf of the staff, made a presentation to Mr. Whelan, and read an address which expressed in glowing terms Mr. Whelan's fine contribution and faithful service to the company while a member of its staff. A presentation was also made to Mrs. Whelan. Both she and her husband expressed their heartfelt gratitude for not only the gifts but for the kind words the tokens of esteem contained in the address. Clique Eliminated

The Germans contended that the armistice broadcast was delivered "against Horthy's will" and that the Admiral was the victim of "a traitorous clique who have now been eliminated so that a similar attempt cannot happen again."

A suggestion as to how seriously the Germans regarded the attempted Hungarian desertion was given in a Berlin broadcast saying that "now divisions which have been held back in Budapest are being brought to the Debrecen Plain where Hungary's fate is being decided in the battle with the Russians" some 50 miles away.

Whereabouts Secret

Horthy's whereabouts meanwhile remained uncertain. He has variously been reported assassinated, held by the Gestapo in Germany, and holding out in a Hungarian castle with 1,000 faithful troops.

Although Berlin declared there were "no outstanding demonstrations in Budapest during the night," the so-called Free Hungarian radio reported violent street fighting between Nazi Sympathisers and Patriots, and that widespread strikes had been called.

Dunbar Urges Appointment Full-Time County Assessors

Minister of Municipal Affairs Addresses Meeting at City Hall

Appointment of full-time county assessors to assist local assessors in their work of valuating rural properties was urged today by the Hon. George H. Dunbar, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, in an address in the City Hall here.

Speaking to 120 assessors, municipal heads and councillors or urban and rural municipalities of five counties in Zone 8 of the province the Minister advocated supervision of county assessment by one man working in direct association with local assessors.

Speaking informally, the Hon. Mr. Dunbar, who was accompanied by Deputy Minister A. J. B. Gray, and Supervisor J. P. Coombe, touched upon amendments to the Municipal Act, callable debentures, schools for municipal officers and co-operation between urban councils and public utilities.

Prefers County Man.

In urging the appointment of county assessors, the speaker declared it was better to have a county man permanently in this office than to employ outside valuators who do the work and disappear after their tenure of employment.

"Don't get the idea," he said, "that I advocate the doing away with the local assessor. No such thing. He is invaluable in his job and will be of benefit to the county supervisor with whom he should work."

Assessment, the Minister stated, is the most important thing in municipal government and municipalities should find it worth while to choose assessors with the proper qualifications and to give them a fair remuneration. Assessors in a number of municipalities are not paid fairly.

Four county assessors have already been appointed in the province and more appointments are expected at the next session of county councils. In municipalities where they have been appointed, many difficulties formerly encountered have been eliminated.

Supervise Entire Assessment

The county assessor will supervise the entire work of municipality assessment. If he is not satisfied that the local assessor is doing his job, he can go to the County Council or a Court of Revision. The Minister felt that the plan will work out well.

Turning to amendments of the Act, Mr. Dunbar stated that 102 had been put into effect at the last session of parliament, "all of which have been favorably received by the public". Citing the amendment which requires two signatures on cheques of rural municipalities, he stated that his department will rectify this to some extent during the next session because of the fact that different municipalities have different systems. "Same reeves," he said, "live a distance from his co-signer and this is inconvenient. This will be adjusted."

"We must be sincere about municipal government. We should forget political affiliations altogether and try to work out some system which will be of benefit to the 842 municipalities in this province."

Favors Callable Debentures

Some part of municipal debentures should be callable, he said, and "the department is encouraging municipalities to make all debentures callable in order that the capital debt of the province and the municipalities be lowered. It is better," he said, "to call in debentures to pay off debts than lower the tax rate for the time being. Proof of the success of this is seen in Kirkland Lake where 15-year debentures have been cut to eight years. This is sound financing."

In the case of controversy between urban councils and public utilities commissions over financial surpluses, the Minister declared that his department will have the deciding voice in the argument. "It is not good business to have thousands of dollars stacked in a surplus, unless it is earmarked for a definite purpose. There should be no quarrels between utilities and councils. Both enjoy the confidence of the electorate."

Plan Officer Schools

Schools for municipal officers will open as soon as conditions permit, the Minister stated. At present the idea is handicapped through gasoline restrictions but in spite of that the first school will open in Haileybury on Nov. 1st. Instruction will start at the bottom and the schools will take the form of refresher course for veteran councillors. "We are determined to go through with these schools and they would be going full swing today if it were not for gasoline problems."

The conference which will last all day was under the chairmanship of zone president Max Sloan, Peterborough. Mayor Rollins, introduced by City Assessor Harold Bateman, formally welcomed the gathering to the city.

Addresses by Deputy Minister Gray and Supervisor Coombe and an informal discussion of assessment problems will take place this afternoon.

Treasury To Ask Largest Sum Ever Required

London, Oct. 17 (CP-Reuter) — The treasury on Friday will ask the House of Commons for a vote of credit of £1,250,000,000 ($5,625,000,000), the biggest sum a British parliament has ever been required to sanction.

The previous largest demand for £1,000,000,000 ($4,500,000,000).

The new credit is sufficient to carry on the war for four months. The period covered from now until February is longer than usual because the government does not want to make another demand during the present financial year. The daily war expenditure also is rising.

The amount will increase the total in credit voted for the financial year beginning last April 1 to £4,250,000,000.

Movies Can Achieve New Wonders, Says Alexander Knox

To find himself suddenly being pushed sideways along a railway track by a freight train, while in his automobile, was the horrifying experience of Gordon Boldrick of Thomasburg, here Monday.

Mr. Boldrick was driving his motor car south on Church St. over the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks, when suddenly the vehicle was struck on the side by a freight train, that was spotting a freight car on a nearby siding. Fortunately the shunting process was being done in a careful manner by the train engineer, but the feeling of suddenly being pushed along the railway tracks in a sideway position frightened Mr. Boldrick, who had no chance of escape from the motor car, while was pushed some 15 feet off the street and along the siding before the engineer could bring his train to a full stop.

City police were notified and considerable damage resulted to the front portion of the motor car, including the axle, and entire left front side of the car. After alighting from the horrifying experience, Mr. Boldrick admitted his sideway ride seemed to be an eternity.

Native of County Given Place On Supreme Court

Native son of Hastings county and former school teacher in the Stoco and Madoc districts, Judge A. M. Harper of Vancouver, has been elevated to the Supreme Court bench, according to word received here through his brother Dr. Sinclair Harper of Toronto.

Educated in Madoc public and high school, Judge Harper taught school in Hastings, later attending Queen's University from where he graduated with his B. A. degree in 1900. Moving to Vancouver shortly after the turn of the century Mr. Justice Harper studied law and in 1906 was called to the bar. He was named to the labor commission in 1912 and took part in the investigations which resulted in the passing of the Workmen's Compensation Act. During recent years he has served on many arbitration boards.

A son of Justice and Mrs. Harper, Arthur Harper, was a barrister in Vancouver until he went into the service with the RCNVR. He has been in command of a corvette for many months.

Vancouver newspaper commented editorially on Mr. Justice Harper's appointment, while both provincial political parties endorsed the appointment.

Variety Show Earns $500 for Hospital Fund

Trenton, Special — The Victory Variety Show presented by the R. C. A. F. in the Trent Theatre on Sunday evening in aid of the Trenton General Hospital Fund proved to be immensely popular and a lot of good clean fun. The theatre was packed for both performances and well over $500 was cleared for the fund.

The R. C. A. F. band under the leadership of Major Hancock rendered many fine selections and was much enjoyed by the audience.

Master of ceremonies for the show was Flt. Lt. Jackie Rae, D. F. C., who not only kept the show running smoothly but rendered several very fine vocal numbers himself.

The show consisted of gymnastics, popular songs, dance and vocal numbers and those taking part included Joan Donald, Eileen Cale, Peggy Grant, Dorothy Kinton, Buck Rogers, Harold Barrett, Ross Baker, Audrey Ford, and others under the leadership of W.O. 1 Bill Killock.

The Hospital Board, and the Trenton police force who were the original sponsors of the show, are deeply indebted to Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, M. C. Officer Commanding Trenton Air Station, for his co-operation in loaning his boys for the evening, to all those who assisted in the arrangements, and to Mr. Gib. Martin for the use of the Trent theatre.

Mr. W. H. Ireland, President of the Trenton General Hospital Board, welcomed the guests and expressed the appreciation of the Board, stressing the outstanding assistance which has always been given to the town by members of the personnel of the Trenton Air Station through the years since its first coming to Trenton.

Requests for changes, extensions, new installations—they all come to the Service Representative. If the need is not directly related to winning the war* she has no alternative but to defer the installation and to put the applicant's name on the waiting list.

Sometimes if the applicant is a business man, she suggests re-arranging facilities at his premises so that no new equipment is needed. In these days of acute telephone shortages, our hands are tied. We are doing our utmost, in the circumstances, to stretch available equipment to the limit.

Trends Shown by Vital Statistics

Vital statistics of the Province of Ontario show a number of trends in the ages of the people, the numbers of births, deaths and marriages, the natural increase of the population, and other tendencies.

In the report for 1942 of the Registrar-General it is shown there were in that year 3,825,000 persons in Ontario of whom 1,939,000 were male and 1,886,000 were female. In the first age group there were 926,000 up to fourteen years of age. In the group 15-29 the total was 983,000, in 30-44 it was 816,500, in 45-59 it was 638,300, in 60-74 it was 360,000, in 75-94 the total was 100,500 and for 95 and over, 500, of whom 200 were men and 300 were women.

Urban and rural distribution of 1942 estimated population was—urban, 7.9 per cent in incorporated centres of 1,000 to 5,000 population, 5.8 per cent in incorporated centres from 5,000 to 10,000 and 46.2 per cent or 1,768,506 persons in incorporated centres of 10,000 and over. The rural population, including incorporated centres under 1,000 was given as 1,533,612 or 40.1 per cent. The latter figures are as at the 1941 census.

One of the interesting facts brought out in the report is the natural increase with natural increase rates in Ontario. In 1942 there shows 39,073 excess of births over deaths or 10.2 natural increase of population. Births in Ontario reached the highest namely 78,192 in 1942 while deaths in that year were 39,119 or a few less than in 1941. Back in 1922 the natural increase was 12.5 per 1,000 of population though the excess of births over deaths that year was less than in 1942. The explanation is that the 1942 population is greater than that of 1922. Generally the natural increase rate has shown a downward trend during the past two decades with however considerable recovery taking place during the years since 1939. The birth rate during the war has risen greatly and this is the explanation of the improved natural increase rate. The natural increase rate sank to the lowest level in 1937 being down to 6.2. The previous seven years had shown a steadily falling rate.

The stillborn rate has been on an extremely satisfactory downward trend with a reduction of almost 39 per cent since 1922. In 1922 for every thousand babies born alive 44 were stillborn while in 1942 there were less than 27 stillborn. This is considered as a partial reflection of the improved health of mothers in the province and the improvement in obstetrical services.

The growth of illegitimacy is considered alarming according to the report. In 1942 there were 3,789 illegitimate births registered as compared with 1,519 such births in 1922. Over 48 out of every thousand births in 1942 were illegitimate as compared with 21 in 1922 and 40 in 1931. It is to be noted however that in the period 1922-31 the rate rose 88 per cent as compared with a rise of only 21 per cent since that period.

Of the 78,102 live births in 1942 the mothers' ages were as follows: 27 under fifteen years, 6,414 from 15 to 19 years, 23,432 from 20 to 24; 23,313 from 25 to 29; 14,876 from 30 to 34; 7,696 from 35 to 39; 2,429 from 40 to 44; 201 from 45 to 49, and 4 from 50 and over.

The declining trend in the number of deaths of children under one year of age is shown and this reflects to a larger extent the success of the long-range program directed for the past two decades at reduction of infant mortality. In the years 1921-25 the average total of deaths a year was 5,916, reduced to 5,092 in the five years 1926-30, and down to 3,961 in the period 1931-35 and to 3,194 in 1936-40.

In the year 1942 the deaths under one year totalled 3,139. The ten year average from 1933 to 1942 was 3,324.

In the past two decades there has been a trend toward younger motherhood. However fewer children are now being born to each mother than was the case two decades ago and these are being born in the early years of married life.

In 1942 diseases of the heart proved the leading cause of death, then came in order cancer, diseases of the arteries, violent or accidental deaths, intracranial lesions, pneumonia, diseases peculiar to the first year of life, tuberculosis and diabetes mellitus. Tuberculosis deaths have shown a decided reduction since the beginning of the century. The largest numbers of deaths occurred in 1942 in the age groups 50 to 69 followed by those in the 30's and late 30's. Since 1933 there has been a remarkable decline in the total number of deaths in younger age groups, whereas deaths in the older age groups have not declined appreciably since 1933. The rates however in the ages approaching middle life have in all instances been either more than halved or greatly reduced. Since 1933 there has been a drastic reduction in the death rate among children under four years of age.

In general the annual cancer rate has been rising over the last decade, standing at 130.8 deaths per 100,000 population as compared with 113.5 in 1933. Cancer mortality has been on the rise since the beginning of the century.

A fairly general downward trend is seen in pneumonia deaths. The effect of the public health program is seen in these figures.

Accidents with fatal result show what a heavy toll these exact on the population. Accidental injury by crushing which includes accidents of travel, highway accidents, industrial accidents and such, claimed 911 lives in 1942 of which 491 were in automobile accidents. There were 330 lives lost through accidental drowning and other accidents involving drowning.

There have been significant fluctuations in the numbers of marriages since 1922, natural reflections of the economic trends. There was a general increase in weddings and in the marriage rate leading up to 1929, a prosperity period, followed by a decline coincident with the depression period which continued until about 1933. With a more stable economic condition there was reflected an increase in the number of marriages and in the marriage rate. The effect of the war is clearly apparent in the relatively high rates of 11.0, 11.4 and 11.9 per thousand during the last three years 1940 to 1942.

Since the transfer in 1930 of jurisdiction from the Dominion Parliament to provincial courts there has been a steady increase in the number of divorces. There were 1,185 granted in 1942 which represents an increase in the rate per 100,000 population of from 9 to 10 to 31 in 1942. In 1937 211 divorced persons were remarried, 137 in 1938, and 148 in 1942.

China Mines

("Newsweek" Magazine)

Details can now be disclosed about one of the new Allied secret weapons: anti-personnel and anti-tank mines made of glass and china. The U.S.-made mines, like the wooden-cased ones which the Germans first used in Italy, cannot be located by conventional detectors, which are designed for the metal-cased variety. Furthermore, china mines can be planted as close as 4 feet apart instead of the usual 20. In France, they proved exceptionally effective in blowing up artillery and tanks. Incidentally, the Germans couldn't hope to duplicate them within six months after capturing models intact.

A German prisoner taken by Americans told his captors that he still believed in one of Adolf Hitler's solemn vows, namely: "If I could have control of Germany for 10 years, you wouldn't be able to recognize it." Isn't it the truth? remarks the St. Catharines Standard.

FACTORY MAIDEN

Maiden in the factory, cherish still your dream;
Keep your pretty fancies, spite of air and steam;
Spite of gears and ratchets, microgauge and torch,
Dream of morning glories climbing 'round a porch;
Husband striding homeward, whistling bits of song.
When the war is over he will come along!

Maiden in the factory, never have a doubt
All that you are dreaming time will bring about.
Give your strength to service, hands to duty's glove,
But keep your heart for children and the man you love.
Done with cruel warfare, righted what is wrong,
Then the man you wait for soon will come along.

Maiden, don't let wages be too strong a lure,
Home's your nobler purpose, all it holds is sure.
Cling to every fancy — silver things and chairs,
Shelves of shining glassware, children at their prayers,
Easter day and Christmas, faithful friends to call;
Soon the day is coming you may have them all.

Eastern Ont. Regt. Fights Stiff Battle, Captures Village Near Rimini

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press)

With the Canadian Corps in Italy, Oct. 17 — An Eastern Ontario regiment drove forward north of the Rimini-Bologna highway during the weekend, overcoming fierce German opposition to capture the village to Bulgaria, four miles east of the important base of Cesena and 13 miles west of Rimini.

(A dispatch from Rome said Canadian troops crossed the Scolla-Rigossa Canal and seized the town of Gambitolla, one mile east of Bulgaria).

An Eastern Ontario unit led the Canadian attack on the British 8th Army front, seizing new objectives beyond the Rigossa River, and there were continuing indications the Germans in the sector are withdrawing to the line of the Pisciatello River, which crosses the Rimini-Bologna highway two miles east of Cesena. The next major battle may be fought on the line of this river.

Take 78 Captives

Capt. Max Porritt of Belleville led his company in a brisk two-hour battle for Bulgaria, 1,000 yards northeast of Route 9—the Rimini-Bologna road. It ended with the capture of 78 prisoners while at least an equal number of Germans were killed and an unestimated number wounded. Canadian casualties were slight.

The engagement, fought Saturday afternoon, followed a speedy morning thrust along route 9 by a company under Maj. Oscar Stockdale, of Toronto, supported by tanks under command of Lieut. Bryant Richards, of Edmonton.

When the muddy approaches to an engineer-built bridge over the Rigossa bogged down tanks attempting the crossing, Richards inspected the masonry of a bridge partially blown up by the retreating Germans, which had been condemned by the engineers. He asked permission to lead his tanks over this structure.

Cross Under Fire

Although the locality was being shelled and mortared at the time, he stood at the crossing and guided a Sherman tank, driven by Tpr. Bernie Edwards, of South Battleford, Sask., across the bridge. Eight tanks followed across and ultimately an entire squadron was over the Rigossa. The tanks, from a Manitoba armored regiment supporting the Ontario infantry, are commanded by Maj. Frank Braithwaite, of Toronto.

The advance to Bulgaria flushed five Panther and Tiger tanks which supported German infantry, wavering between counter-attacks and withdrawals. Men under command of Porritt and Braithwaite sat tight waiting. They had a perfect set-up and prayed for the enemy tanks to attack.

One did. A big Panther was seen first by Cpl. Ed Lodwick of Portage La Prairie, Man., who immediately had his gunner fire an armor-piercing shot. The turret of the Panther was hit and the enemy crew poured out. However, Lodwick realized the tank was not entirely out of action and called Sgt. Gordon Johnson of Medicine Hat, Alta., over the inter-communication system to bring Johnson's Sherman to attack too. In less than two minutes the Panther was completely knocked out by five shells fired at 400 yards range. The other four enemy tanks turned and fled.

Mines blew up 11 of a company following under Capt. A. U. Roy, of Westville, N.S. Pioneer troops and stretcher-bearers led by Lieut. W. C. Watson, of London, Ont., and C.Q.M.S. Frank Mowers, of Blenheim, Ont., took four hours to prod a path through the minefield to evacuate the casualties, as well as four German wounded and eight prisoners.

A Toronto Highland unit on the left flank of the Ontario regiment beat off a long night counter-attack.

Many Booby Traps

The advance along Route 9 during the last four days has been featured by the task of removing booby traps from road blocks each charged with 300 pounds of explosive. Regimental pioneers worked with Lieut. R. J. Scott, of Marmora, Ont., and Cpl. Ken Gothell, of Brighton, Ont. Taking them apart piece of piece and watching for trip wires and detonators. Scott completed Johnson's job on the Panther tank the night of Oct. 14, blowing it up lest the Germans attempt to salvage it.

The intensity of the mid-September Marano River and San Fortunato battles was illustrated Sunday at a German cemetery the Canadians found on Route 9. They discovered the graves of 171 Germans, mostly from the same regiment, all of whom had been killed between Sept. 12 and 20.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

AN OPEN LETTER TO CITY COUNCIL

Gentlemen:

You and I and every other citizen of this city are hopefully thinking of the end of this war. Also Gentlemen, we are thinking of how best to provide work for the hundreds of young men and young women who have been doing the fighting so that we might be secure in our homes. I understand that a committee is even now working on ways and means to help these young folks get re-established when they do come back and such suggestions as I offer are only in hopes of helping the good work along.

I propose, Sirs, that the Council at its earliest convenience, enact a by-law to freeze all assessments at their present levels for a period of ten years, and that the present council encourages every property owner to redecorate, to reroof, to refence and generally improve their properties both inside and out, up to at least one quarter of the assessed value of the said property, and that at the expiration of the ten-year period, the value of the repairs, alterations or additions to the property shall not be added to the value of same.

There are many citizens quite anxious to improve their properties by doing needed repairs, by closing in a porch, by making a sunroom, by putting in new bathroom fixtures etc. — but under our present by-laws they are afraid to do so for fear of the assessor jumping the value of the property.

I do believe Gentlemen, a ten-year guarantee from the council that everyone could "paint up, fix up and clean up" etc. to the value of twenty-five per cent of property without fear of penalty would stimulate business in every branch of civic life. Every store would get its share of business, every painter, carpenter, tinsmith, plumber, electrician, laborer etc. would be gainfully employed, and in addition, the city would get its reward from its enhanced appearance, its scarcity of unemployment and its reputation of being a city worth living in.

Trusting you will give this your earnest consideration, I am,

Your very truly,
E. P. Strickland,
221 William St.

SHOULD AN EPILEPTIC MARRY?

Fine young man is subject to epileptic attacks or spells, slight ones —he does not fall or have a general fit or convulsion but he is out for several minutes. A niece of his and a cousin both have similar spells. The young man received a medical discharge from the army a year ago. He claims it started when he had a sunstroke. He has become engaged to marry. Is his condition hereditary? Would his children be likely to have epilepsy? Mrs. A. L.)

Did his niece and cousin have sunstroke, too? No, ma'am, sunstroke does not cause any form of epilepsy.

Further than to say that bad inheritance is mainly responsible for epilepsy, in the opinion of many medical authorities, I can only add that no specific cause of epilepsy is known.

Not epilepsy itself but the neuropathic or psychopathic defect of which it is a manifestation runs in the family. In one member of the family this may be manifest as epilepsy in another as feeble-mindedness; in another as insanity or inebriety or drug addiction or migraine or just some kind of moral depravity or delinquency.

Where an individual has epileptic fits (convulsions) which begin in early life (childhood or adolescence) marriage should be forbidden. In mild cases — so-called petit mal (lapses of consciousness but no spasms of convulsions) — marriage may be permitted if the facts are fully revealed to the prospective husband or wife.

In this instance the family history is unfavorable—children born to this young man would be too likely to be feeble-minded, epileptic or otherwise defective. If he marries at all it should be only to a woman who, for some reason is incapable of bearing children anyway. It is unjust for such a person to marry with the intention or understanding that there shall be no children, if the partner is fit to be a parent.

As a matter of fact no doctor, no authority can say positively that offspring of such a marriage will be defective in any way . . . Of course one or more children of an epileptic may be perfectly normal. But I have tried to answer the correspondent's query by giving what I believe is the consensus of medical opinion today.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

What, a Case of Croup?

Son, 4, has had what we call croup every winter since he was two. It strikes suddenly, at night, sometimes late in the afternoon. (Mrs. H. W.)

Answer—See that he has comfortably warm clothing or covers, but cool air to breathe all night. If the weather is too cold for open bedroom window, insert screen of unbleached muslin in window. That will exclude wind, snow, rain, but admit desirable fresh air and moisture. Send stamped envelope bearing your address for pamphlet "Croup Does Still Happen."

Bow-Legs

Can a woman have bow-legs straightened if she is past thirty? (G.A.T.)

Answer—By surgery, yes. In fact bow-legs can be straightened only by surgery, if the patient is over six years of age. The bent bone must be broken or partly broken under general anesthesia, reset in corrected position, retained in plaster splints for six weeks or more.

Allergic Asthma

Mrs. A. has suffered from asthma for years. We sent for your Allergy pamphlet when she was in the midst of an attack. She found relief in a few days. Since then, when threatened she takes the potassium again, and it has enabled her to enjoy asthma-free days for the first time in many months. She asked me to express her appreciation. (C.S.A.)

Answer—Thank you. On request (no clipping, please) I'll send any reader the pamphlet "Relief for Allergy", or the pamphlet "Asthma", or the pamphlet "The Calcium Shortage"—for calcium deficiency probably contributes to the occurrence of spasmodic bronchial asthma in many cases. If you ask for more than one pamphlet inclose ten cents for each additional one.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

In Latin American countries it is customary when typing to put a dash or hyphen at the end of every line on the page.

There is an old belief that the tail of a recently killed snake continues to live until sundown. Owing to the reflex action of the snake's nervous system its tail continues to wiggle long after the snake is otherwise apparently dead. But there is nothing to the notion that the tail continues to wiggle until sunset and then stops. The belief probably arose from the fact that the movements of the tail of a recently killed snake could no longer be observed after darkness.

Contrary to a popular impression snakes are comparatively easy to kill. A single sharp blow behind the head with a stick will generally dispatch even a sizeable snake.

A fat person floats more readily in water than a lean person. This is because fat is lighter than muscle and bone, and in proportion to size a fat person is lighter than a lean one.

"Trust in God and keep your powder dry" is attributed to Oliver Cromwell. It is supposed to have originated during one of his campaigns in Ireland in 1649 or 1650. According to a tradition, Cromwell made an impassioned address to his Ironsides when they were about to attack the enemy who had taken position on the opposite side of a river. He concluded his speech with the admonition: "Put your trust in God, but mind to keep your powder dry."

This tradition is vouched for by Edward Hayes in his "Ballads of Ireland," published in 1856. The compiler comments on the subject in a note under "Oliver's Advice," an "orange ballad" composed in 1834 by Colonel Blacker, a British officer. Each stanza of Blacker's ballad ends with the sentiment: "Put your trust in God, my boys, and keep your powder dry."

"Simon-pure," meaning authentic, genuine or the real McCoy, originated in "A Bold Stroke for a Wife," written by Mrs. Susanna Centlivre in 1718. In the play Simon Pure is a "Quaking preacher" from Philadelphia who visits the home of Obadiah Prim, a London hosier, who is a "rigid Quaker" and one of the four guardians of pretty Anne Lovely, heiress of 30,000 pounds. Colonel Fainwell gains entrance into the Prim home by impersonating Simon Pure, and while thus disguised he obtains the guardian's written consent to marry Anne. The Philadelphia Quaker then appears on the scene with witnesses to prove he is the real Simon Pure.

ACK-ACK BARRAGE HEAVY

London, Oct. 17 — (CP) — British coastal observers said today the heaviest ack-ack barrage of the war flooded the sky during the night as the Germans loosed flying bombs against southern England and the London area for the sixth consecutive night.

A number of the bombs were shot down by ground gunners and patrol planes but some pierced the defences and caused damage and casualties, the Air Ministry announced.

ATTLEE ANSWERS QUESTIONS

London, Oct. 17 — (CP-Reuters) —Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, told the House of Commons today that "the only countries which can be represented as of right at a peace conference are those which have participated in war as belligerents."

He was answering a question as to whether countries which had adopted a neutral attitude in the war would be represented.

Refreshments were served at midnight and everyone enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

The Marry Go Round

The Lighter Side

A man is never so completely fooled by a woman as when she threatens to do something rash or foolish—and then actually DOES it.

Maybe a calendar is just 365 days to a man; but to a girl it is a series of "dates", dreams, hopes, disappointments, anniversaries and weddings.

In the last analysis, your success is measured not by the number of people who admire you, nor by the people who envy you or fear you, but by the number of people who LOVE you. This is something that the Hitlers and those who strive for power always learn—too late.

The only time when a girl knows any real peace of mind and heart is in the intermission between two love-affairs; yet, somehow, she never wants to prolong that blessed tranquil interlude.

Flattery is something a girl has to be careful about, says Cynical Sybil. If she tells a man how brave and handsome and clever he is, he may suspect her of trying to marry him and be frightened to death; and if she doesn't he may suspect she lacks intelligence and be bored to death. You've got to use tact and technique.

Why is it that it always gives a man a greater thrill to win two dollars by betting on the right horse, than it does to save a hundred dollars by NOT putting his money on the wrong one?

When a girl encourages a man to spend a lot of money on her, he suspects she's a gold-digger; but when she urges him to be frugal and save his cash, he suspects that she's digging for a platinum wedding-ring. You just can't fool 'em!

No man would hire a secretary because of the number of jobs she has lost; yet he will cheerfully marry a woman who can boast of a few ex-husbands as a testimonial to her charms and expect her to make him happy.

FLURRY OF ACTIVITY

Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 17 (CP)— A new flurry of activity was reported today on the Arakan front in Burma, with Allied artillery shelling enemy earthworks and buildings near Buthedaung and Rivercraft on the Kalapanzin.

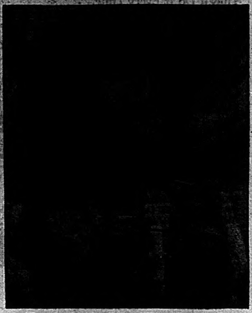
Seasonal Care of the Hands



After a hand treatment Ann Miller applies nail polish.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TIME WAS when only snowy-white, useless looking hands were candidates for beauty prizes. Now the strong, capable hand excites admiration. Always the feminine hands that assume graceful lines will be tops. Strange that more women aren't hand conscious, don't strive to pose fingers prettily.

What with gardening and rough work the girls are doing, more attention than usual is necessary for keeping the flesh smooth. Plenty of tan on the premises too right now. Hands need more lubricating than the complexion because they suffer more from contact with dust and many washings a day that rob them of natural oil. After creaming your face at night, give the leavings to hands, arms and elbows.

Massage for Hands.

Oil your palms, stroke up and down from elbows to wrist. Make a bracelet of fingers and thumb, go round and round the arm with firm pressure, moving the fingers in one direction, the arm in the other. This treatment will help remove discolored skin scales, will give softness and smoothness to the flesh.

Thumb the back of the hand. Start at the base of each finger friction upward, do circles on the fingernail and the surrounding cuticle. Oiling the cuticle is an insurance against hang nails, one of life's worst pests.

Use of Hand Lotion.

If you are a home girl, use a hand lotion after every dish washing session. Neglect the hands for any length of time and they will soon look old and old looking hands are no good looks bargains.

Should it happen that you like to play cosmetic chemist you can compound a simple, inexpensive, effective lotion. Soak 60 grains of gum tragacanth in 14 ounces of rosewater for three days. Add two ounces of glycerine and a few drops of your favorite perfume. This cosmetic jelly dries quickly after it is applied.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Just What Does "Going Steady" Mean?

It seems there are at least half a dozen definitions of that old term of our grandmothers — "going steady".

In the days of hoop-skirts and bustles, it meant a hard and fast engagement. And the young man was supposed to keep a date at the altar even if his affections for the girl had waned. He had "wasted her time" and the parental wail that he had "broken her heart" made him go through with the ceremony.

But in these more liberal days when girls get about more, have jobs, enlist in the services, go overseas, the feminine heart is distinctly less fragile. Young people who have ceased to care about each other are not compelled to go through with a punitive marriage. And unless a girl has some valid claim on a man, such as being the father of her child, it would be a poor-spirited girl who would hold him to an outworn promise.

Among the 'teen age youngsters of today, "going steady" implies a sort of mortgage arrangement. Zoe Ellen, we'll say, has been "going steady" with a soldier at a nearby post. They're not exacty engaged. The sodier is expecting to go overseas. Beyond his youth and charm he really has nothing to offer a girl. He had not become grounded in any business or job before the draft caught up with him.

How long will they remain in love after the soldier goes overseas? He's terribly lonely for a while, then he takes "the goods the gods provide," and falls in love with someone over there. When the next crop of soldiers come along, girls in Zoe Ellen's bunch aren't slow in telling she's been "going steady".

So, Zoe Ellen has some difficulty in again getting into the whirl, even though the soldier has written her he's about to marry one of the native girls as soon as his commanding officer consents.

Again, there's a certain type of selfish bachelor who spends his life "going steady". He's contented with single blessedness plus the devotion of some faithful woman he's been going with since their friends could remember. Once the girl was young and fresh and lovely, before she got mixed up in this spider web from which she has never been able to disentangle herself.

She always expected to marry the old spider who has plenty of reasons for putting off the date. "An old parent" is a splendid excuse, or "younger sisters", etc. And the sweet, gentle creature fades away like a funeral flower. Before embarking on the adventure, known as "going steady" look well into it, and see what it really means to your future prospect.

Women's Activities

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Howard Dafoe on October 10.

Members of Scott's W.M.S. were guests.

The President, Mrs. E. B. Finkle, opened the meeting with a short song service. Twelve members answered the roll call.

Mrs. Frank Lough gave a prayer for missionaries.

Rev. Mr. Cook took the worship service, the theme being: The Law of the Kingdom: Love Thy Neighbor.

The program, which had been prepared by Group One, was taken over by Mrs. Fred Campbell. The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Stillman Gay of Foxboro. She dealt with the first chapter of the new study book, "The Church in the South Pacific Islands". Many interesting and educational facts were told by the speaker. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Gay.

Mr. Cook closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the members of her group.

CANADIAN Y·M·C·A WAR SERVICES

The Orange Group of the Red Triangle Hostess Club under Miss Evelyn Reid brought its week's activities to a close with a most successful weekend. A large crowd was in attendance at the dance in the Armouries on Saturday night. Many novelty dances highlighted the evening's program. The lucky spot dance was won by Joyce Coleman and Stanley Knight, the number dance by May Thompson and John Stadnyk, and the elimination dance by LAW. Patricia Dean and Shell Monston.

The third regular Open House of the Hostess Club was held on Sunday with a fine attendance of airmen and airwomen from the surrounding stations. A few of the "khaki clad" were up from Kingston for the occasion. The day was spent in playing ping-pong, cards and small games. Mr. Bill Navin's piano interpretations gained high appraisal from everyone present. After a most enjoyable supper arranged by the Y. M. C. A. War Services, activities continued until eleven o'clock. And so ended one of the most successful Open Houses of the season.

On Monday night the Art and Dancing Classes were in full swing. The Art Group was under the supervision of LAC. John Thorne. The subject for the evening was "Still Life" which comprised the arranging of figures and color into a composition. Modelling figures out of clay is now an interesting feature of the art class.

FASHION FLASHES

NEW LINES appear on many of the new fur coats. One house shows a handsome cutaway topcoat of black Persian lamb, the small fur band skilfully worked. The rounded cutaway front is extended into a swinging back.

Elegance is the keynote of the smartest costumes that break away from the usual trends. This note is sustained in a suit of navy blue woollen, the knee-length, slim coat collared and cuffed in ermine.

A page for the memory book has been contributed by one bride who wore traditional ivory satin, with boat-shaped neckline extending from shoulder to shoulder, and long, petal-shaped sleeves. Close-fitting, cowl-like headdress of pearls and satin.

No end to the procession of interesting fashions. For instance, there's novelty in a short coat cut on wide, boxy lines, made of black doeskin and lined with honey-colored muskrat. The sleeves are draped and handled much as sleeves in fine fur coats.

Color mounts to the fore these days as colorful hats are emphasized. There's color and to spare in a handsome, draped red velvet sailor trimmed with a lush red rose.

Still important is the peplumed line. Nice for late afternoon wear is a frock of fine black crepe with a shirred velvet frame around the deep square neckline with slanting sides. A pointed peplum over the skirt has two bands of velvet trimming.

PEPPER MARTIN GIVEN RELEASE BY THE CARDINALS

Former Outfielder Asked to be Retired to His Ranch in Oklahoma

By BEN F. PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis, Oct. 17 — (AP) — The Wild Horse of the Osage, John Leonard (Pepper) Martin is heading back to pasture after a one-year return to the big leagues where he excited fans with his daring antics for 12 1/2 seasons.

The 40-year-old Pepper yesterday received his unconditional release from St. Louis Cardinals.

He had requested it, telling president Sam Breadon he figured he had served his time as an active major leaguer.

Martin came back to the Cardinals at the start of the 1944 season after managing Sacramento and Rochester since 1941. He has never said what he plans for 1945 and today was on his ranch near McAlister, Okla., and could not be reached for a statement. It was believed he would again seek a job as manager somewhere in class AA baseball.

Coming to the Redbirds first in 1928 as an outfielder, Pepper stuck around for his first world series, then went back to the minors until 1931. That was his first year as a Cardinal regular, and probably his biggest year in baseball.

It was in 1931 that the Wild Horse became an all-time world series idol. He batted .500 (tying a record), made 12 hits (also equalling a record) and literally stole the classic from Philadelphia Athletics with his base running with five stolen bases in the seven games.

Pepper played almost 1,200 games for St. Louis and led the National League base stealers in 1933, '34 and '36.

RETURNS TO TOWN

It's a long time since Vern Baxter, the Missouri cyclone, hit the Hume Arena ring with some of his turbulent wrestling antics. Baxter brought the wrath of the fans down upon his noggin while grappling here about a year ago. When "Laverne" meets Tom Collins in the semi-final of Wednesday night's wrestling show here he'll doubtless have the fans in a turmoil. However, the principal match is a return finish bout between "Whipper Billie" Watson and Ivan Rasputin, the mad Russian and "carpet tack expert". Promoter Frank Tunney has removed the time limit and is letting the principals go unleashed and without a muzzle. A preliminary pries off the night's lid.

St. Michael's Win Over St. John's 16-4

Winnipeg, Oct. 17 — (CP)—Exhibiting a spectacular lateral-passing attack, St. Michael's College of Toronto defeated St. John's College in Winnipeg, 16-4 in an east-west high school football game here last night at Osborne Stadium. Four thousand fans watched the game.

The Irish were led to victory by fleet halfback Murray Bulger who scored three touchdowns. One was a 90-yard sprint through the whole St. John's team.

Last Saturday the St. Michael's team whipped St. Paul's College of Winnipeg 11-6 in the opening game of a series sponsored by a group of Winnipeg sportsmen.

ATHLETICS WIN MANN CUP AND LACROSSE TITLE

Defeat Salmonbellies in Hamilton in Fifth Game by 11-9 Score

Hamilton, Oct. 17 — (CP) — The Mann Cup and the Canadian Senior Lacrosse championship were won by St. Catharines Athletics last night when they defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-9 here, in the fifth and deciding game of the final.

The climax to the hotly-contested series saw the Athletics taking the lead from the start and holding it against determined opposition from the champions of last year. It was the fourth time in seven years that St. Catharines has won the title.

The final game was shifted here because the Maple Leafs Gardens in Toronto, where the previous four games were played, was taken over by a circus this week and the St. Catharines club had yielded to committee-room protests from the New Westminster club against playing any games in St. Catharines, which has no indoor floor. A crowd of 3,500 saw the deciding game.

K. E. Barnes of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, presented the gold trophy to the Athletics. He also presented the Mike Kelly Memorial Trophy for the player most valuable to his team in the Mann Cup finals to Ike Hildebrand, youthful Winnipeg-born star of the Salmonbellies.

The Athletics used four replacements in the deciding game and 2 of them, Bill Arthurs of Brampton and Bill Issacs of Burlington, each scored two goals. Myers, Morton and Cove also counted two goals apiece, and the other St. Catharines goal was scored by Bill Nelson.

Hildebrand and Binder each scored three goals for the losers, Bryant getting two and Bill Dickinson the other.

The Athletics went on the attack early, and led by 5-1 at the end of the first quarter. They were leading 6-4 at half-time and 7-6 at the three-quarter mark. New Westminster pressed determinedly and a stellar performance by Bill Whitaker, veteran in the Athletics' nets, was perhaps the difference between victory and defeat.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Tommy Gorman of Montreal Canadiens received calmly last night word that it's likely there will be no approval of any N. H. L. player contracts until military status has been investigated. Gorman said "we have been hard hit but we shall survive. We have no deals of any kind in prospect yet.".

There's no telling yet who will be in the Canadiens' line-up but if there are any newcomers they will probably come from Ray Leduc, Bob Filion, Fernand Gauthier, Roland Rossignol or Ambroise Leduc.

In Winnipeg Lester Patrick picked the Canadiens as the team with the best prospects— on paper. Patrick considers his Rangers and Toronto Leafs are improved. He admits Rangers are weak defensively but says this may be overcome by concentrating on back-checking.

At Hibbing, Minn., where the Chicago Black Hawks are training, Paul Thompson has his eye or Russ Bradshaw of Vancouver. Bradshaw is showing speed and cleverness in his try-outs for a left-wing berth. He's reported to be one of the fastest players on the club.

Toronto Maple Leafs, training at Owen Sound, have arranged to divide the squads into two teams for a game at St. Catharines on Oct. 24. Proceeds will benefit minor hockey clubs.

Bill Ezinicki, the amateur star from Oshawa, was going great guns in the Leafs' workout yesterday. There is no indication yet which of the rookies is likely to catch a regular berth. Coach Clarence Day spurred them on with the remark: "Every man on the ice has a chance to make this team."

At Windsor the Detroit Red Wings Camp was reduced by three. Cully Simon, regular defenceman, was forced out of training by recurrence of an old injury to his side. Red Kane, defenceman or forward player, dropped out with blood poisoning in his foot and Tony Buckovitch was called back to his home at Mainesdale, Mich., because of illness in his family.

The Red Wing Camp also dropped—for this season at least— three amateurs Alex Baralke and Clayton Sweeney of Galt, and Stuart Pirie, a goalie from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. There are still 10 amateur players in the Wings' Camp.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Notre Dame, garnering slightly more than half the first-place votes in The Associated Press' second poll of the season, retains its ranks as the No. 1 College football team of the United States in the opinion of 107 sports writers. The Irish got 59 2-3 ballots for the No. 1 spot, and on a system giving 10 points for first, nine for second and so on, compiled 973 points. Army was second with 862, followed by Randolph Field, 681.5.

Lee Oma, Detroit heavyweight, won a ninth-round technical knockout over Al Blake of Baltimore at the latter city last night and headed for a return bout with Tami Mauriello in New York Nov. 3. Oma was to have fought Blake several weeks ago but was permitted to postpone the date to sub for Joe Baksi against Mauriello. The fight developed into one of the best heavyweight tussles in several years, Oma losing by a knockout in the eighth after giving Tami plenty of trouble.

Cpl. Mello Bettina, 190, former World Light Heavyweight Champion, knocked out Saint Thomas, 204, of Dayton, Ohio., a follwer of Father Divine, in the third round of their 10-round bout at Philadelphia last night. The victory was Bettina's fourth of the year and his 26th in 30 bouts as a heavyweight.

Hamilton's Joe Krol continues to set the pace for Ontario Rugby Football Union scorers but stocky Sgt. Doug Pyzer of Camp Borden has replaced LS. Annis Stukus of Toronto Navy as top point-getter in the Ontario Armed Services League, it was shown last night in scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press. Krol's total of 36 points—he tallied seven last Saturday—kept him in front of the scorers in both leagues although the hard-hitting Pyzer narrowed the gap with his three touchdowns for 15 points in his Saturday appearance, bringing his total for the season to 30. Stukus tallied three points Saturday for a total of 28.

Phil Terranova, former N. B. A. World's Featherweight Champion, outpointed an old rival, Vince Dell 'Orto of Philadelphia, in a whirlwind 10-rounder at Providence last night.

H. M. C. S. Cornwallis of Deep Brook, N. S., yesterday captured the Maritime Senior Baseball championship by defeating Saint John, N. B., St. Peter's 9-5 to take a best-of-three final series in two straight games.

New York, Oct. 17—(AP)—Tuesday PM quarterback :...From the looks of Saturday's scores, Army and Notre Dame will come up to their annual tussle without knowing how good they are...The big scores so far don't prove whether they're so good or the opposition so bad...And how about Washington with 247 points in four games --and then comes Southern California?...Navy's coaches must feel like the guys who normally inhabit such football hotspots as Columbus, O., or Baton Rouge, La., during the Huey Long regime... Before every season the fans told them they had a world-beater team and they'd better watch out if they lost even one game...

Hard Bargain

When Lieut. Buster Mills, former Indian outfielder, and Lieut. Birdie Tebbetts, ex-Tiger catcher, were teamates on the Waco, Tex., Army field baseball team, Buster of a gold cigaret case that Tebbetts a gold cigaret case that Tebbetts never used...Then Mills was transferred to another field and when Tebbetts' team was entering a semi-pro tournament, he made Mills an offer to sign up for the event..."Name your own price," said Birdie..."I won't take any money," replied Mills, "But if I play it will cost you that gold cigaret case."...He played.

A keen-eyed mountaineer led his over-grown son into a country school-house.

Mountaineer (to teacher) — This here boy's after larnin.' What's yer bill o' fare?

Teacher — My department, sir, consists of arithmetic, algebra, geometry and trigonometry.

Mountaineer (interrupting)-That'll do. Load him up with trigonometry, he's the only poor shot in the family.

Across Canada the sport scribes are expounding upon the idea of whether or not the National Hockey League should employ a "Hockey Czar", with similar powers to baseball's Judge Landis. What the hockey moguls should do first is clean up their front doorstep — namely unify the playing rules so every referee won't have a different conception of various interpretations of the rules and regulations. This business of changing the playing rules of hockey every time a certain rule or regulation happens to prove a stumbling block to an outstanding N.H.L. club is just as much folly. Place the drafting of playing rules in the hands of a capable body and then let the hockey referees "call 'em as they see 'em". In amateur, as well as professional hockey ranks, whenever a team manager gets a little peeve up against a certain referee, you can bet your next Christmas turkey that whistle-tooter is OUT, but for good. If professional baseball gave an umpire the old heave-to every time loud-mouthed coach or player blew his top there would be more ex-umps, than tea in China. Big baseball men have long since come to realize that competent officials are the very backbone of their game with the result the ball arbiters are able to call games in an unbiased manner. Hockey is not operated on as big a financial scale as baseball, but it could be played on a large orbit if they would legislate uniform rules for pros., amateurs et al and then let the referees do the rest. All that would be needed is a few strong whistle-tooters, who know the rules and aren't afraid to use a little good common sense towards the uplifting of the game, regardless as to what player, manager or club may be concerned.

What can he do?

Promoter Frank Tunney says he'll be at ringside for tomorrow night's Watson-Rasputin return bout over the no time limit route. That's a very good idea, as a matter of fact Tunney should have been here last week, but what good would he have been to avert Ivan's "tack racket?" There is little possibility of Rasputin catching Watson with the old "tack racket" again, after all we do give Watson credit for having better than the average amount of intelligence, insofar as wrestlers go. However, this bearded Russian isn't exactly in the stupid class and any man who can trick Watson and the wiley Wagner in succession could just be capable of thinking up even better tricks than the "tack gag". What Tunney can do in the matter of intervening in case the Russian again proves too cagey is hard to understand. After all the fans will be quite satisfied if Watson returns to form and takes care of Mister Beard himself. That's the general idea of a wrestling joust.

Stonewalls, bars etc.

As far back as May 23, John F. Box, sports columnist on the Echo, published at the Huntsville (Tex.) prison, picked the Browns to win the American League flag. In his sports column of that date, Box wrote in part:

"We urge you to step up and grab a ticket on the St. Louis Browns to cop the American League pennant. If their pitching holds up, the Browns are in. DeWitt's club has a keen competitive spirit.

"There are three facts in sports history that even Jimmy Durante will acknowledge:. (1) Regret was the only filly ever to win the Kentucky Derby. (2) Dempsey got a long count. (3) The Browns never won a pennant. The last item is about to be corrected."

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 567

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

One nice thing about bridge. You can always talk back to your partner. He wants you to. Only you must speak to him in the language of bids.

If your partner starts with a bid of one, he does not expect you to say anything but pass unless you have more than two tricks. Not so if he opens with a bid of three in a major suit.

In that case, he wants you to help him go to a game even if you have almost nothing. Only with an absolutely trickless hand does he expect you to pass. And I mean trickless.

In other words, he wants you to bid something if you have as little as one trick or more. Your trick may be only a short card in some suit. Or it may be a king or a queen in any suit.

If you have one trick or more but not enough help for a slam, your response is four (a game) in his suit. That's the way you give him a signal that you have not help for a slam.

If you have help for a slam, your signal bid is anything except four in his suit. That is, you may bid a suit of your own or no trump or you may invite a slam with some special signal.

What is help for a slam in answer to an opening bid of three in a major suit? Two sure tricks or more. If responder has two sure tricks or better, a slam is quite likely.

When partner opens with three spades, suppose you have this hand:

♠ J 4
♥ A 8 4
♦ A 9 6 4
♣ A 7 4 3

What is your response? Not four spades. That would be denial of two sure tricks. With at least that much, look for slam. Answer with anything but four spades.

You have no biddable suit for a takeout. With three aces, bid four no trump; the ace and king asking convention.

Hope that your partner knows the answers.

Toronto, Oct. 17 — (CP)—Regarding the recently-repeated talk about appointing a hockey "Czar" like baseball's Judge Landis, Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) feels there is no need for such a character in the present hockey scene.

Hockey, says Herb, isn't big enough yet to need a supreme director. The hockey business is on a much smaller scale than professional baseball so there are less chances for "underneath-the-table deals." There may be some, yes, but not enough to get into a dither about.

He feels that the only reason a Landis would be needed would be to preserve the integrity of the game, but right now the set-up is small enough so that every club has a vital business stake in keeping the game on the up and up. There is money enough for everybody without the need for shady dealings to corral the greenbacks in other words.

BELGIAN LETTER

By CHARLES BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Gent, Belgium, Oct. 17 (CP)—Brussels is known to the world as a sophisticated cosmopolitan city; remembered among many things for the "sound of revelry by night" before Waterloo. But for me the heart of Belgium's people will always be represented by this ancent capital of east Flanders.

It was here I first met these Belgians—2,000 years ago Caesar found them the toughest he had ever fought—and learned they had kept their spiritual integrity through four years of German occupation. They are people who build again and again.

It was on the outskirts of Gent (Ghent) that our old Stirling came down on her belly after dropping supplies to the beleaguered 1st airborne division at Arnhem in Holland and taking a burst of German flak in her underbody and tailplane.

An R.A.F. group which had just moved in took our wounded wireless operator away to hospital and the rest of us went into Gent to find a bed for the night.

None of us spoke French or Flemish and the old man we met knew no English. But he understood the uniforms, and figured the police could help us out. So he led the way. The police managed to make us understand where the town major's office was, and we went there in pitchy darkness, the old man with us. No one was there, but nearby, behind the blackout of a restaurant, was light and warmth, food and the town major. It was then that we noticed the old man's 1914-1918 ribbons. He wouldn't take a tip for walking two or three miles around the black streets. "Dont's insult him," the restaurant keeper said, in good English. "Give him cigarets if you want to." He took a package of 10, refused more.

We made a happy group around a table, the crew, the war correspondent, the restaurant man and a woman from Manchester who had lived for years in Belgium. The restaurant man told me he would like his children to go to Canada or the United States when things settle down. "I've had this twice; I don't want them to have it again." But in the next breath he said his eldest son would inherit a tannery business in Gent.

The town major got us rooms in a hotel built in 1228, and next day we set off in a jeep to find the military hospital and our wireless operator, past the cathedral of St. Bavon, which dates from the 9th century, and the great belfry with its golden dragon from Istanbul.

We couldn't find the way, were trying to get directions from a gendarme when a girl who might have popped out of the cover of Vogue hurried up and said in perfect English: "Are you looking for something?"

She turned out to be a nurse in the military hospital we were looking for—an odd occurrence in a city of 170,000. What was odder still, she has cousins in Vernon, B.C.—Baron and Baroness Herry. Her name is Denyse Deirens.

After we had found the wounded airman, Mlle. Deirens told me she had worked in that hospital since 1940. "You ought to have heard what he people said when they used to be brought in smashed up from the Allied air raids," she said. "You know what? They said: 'We can blame only the Boche for this'."

Yes, the people of Gent are tough. They have known war since the days of Baldwin of the iron arm.

In the 14th century this city was the biggest trading centre for Germany and the Low Countries. One reference book says: "The wealth of the Burghers during this period was equalled by their turbulent spirit of independence."

They are not so wealthy now, and turbulence has had to be tempered with patience. But the spirit is there.

The War Today—

Jap Leaders Lie About Fleet, Daren't Tell of Sea, Air Blows

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Japanese war-lords lied to their public in their feverish claims yesterday of a great victory over the American fleet, fearing to disclose the truth—that United States sea and air fleets not only assaulted Japan's inner island defences but administered a smashing defeat to the Mikado's forces.

Tokyo's boast that the Imperial home fleet finally had come out and had decisively whipped Admiral Halsey's force, sinking two battleships and some 50 other warships, was pure hokum.

A communique from Admiral Nimitz's headquarters today discloses that while the Jap fleet did indeed poke its quivering nose out into the open, it fled in ignominous panic when it saw the strength of Halsey's contingent.

As against this, in the fighting which has been proceeding for several days past as the result of attacks in the Ryukyu-Formosa-Luzon area, the Japanese have lost an estimated 828 to 843 planes while some 146 ships and other surface craft also have been sunk or damaged.

May Be Preliminaries.

Luzon, on which Manila is situated, is the northernmost and biggest of the Philippines. We are entitled to attach much significance to the persistent assault on Luzon, as the attacks on island defences in this strategic area enter their second week. It's quite in the cards that we may be witnessing the preliminaries to Gen. MacArthur's invasion of the Philippines.

However, these operations mean far more than the recapture of the Philippines, important as that is. They represent spade-work for the ultimate Allied attack on the Japanese mainland, and for an invasion of the southeast coast of China.

NEW ZEALANDERS

In one 12-hour period approximately 1,000 German artillery shells fell on the forward lines of the 5th Army in the vicinity of Highway 65, the main road leading from Florence to Bologna.

Nevertheless, the American units which captured Livergnano on the highway have cleared that town and advanced past La Mina and Casa Di Bortignano east of the highway, putting leading troops within nine miles of Bologna's outskirts.

Still farther East American troops have reached points north of the bulge in the Castel Del Rio-Castel San Pietro road. Other units were on the southern slopes of the hill town of Santa Anna and in the village of Baccanello.

Advance One Mile.

New Zealanders in their push northwest out of Gambettola made an advance of slightly more than a mile along the Rimini-Bologna railway which parallels the highway. Advanced elements with tank support have reached the east side of the canalized Pisciatello River on the Rimini-Bologna highway, Highway 9. This put them about two miles or a little less from Cesena, the next sizeable town on the highway.

In the hills to the southwest British infantry and armor consolidated recent gains and captured Mount Romano, a high feature three miles south of Cesena. The peak was held against a number of German counter-attacks and fighting proceeded about a mile southwest of it near Monte Neale.

JAP CRUISER DESTROYED

Chungking, Oct. 17 —(AP)— Cooperating with Admiral Nimitz' task force operations, the U. S. 14th Army Air Force yesterday destroyed a Japanese cruiser and probably sank a destroyer in the South China Sea, headquarters announced today.

The American bombers also struck and possibly sank a total of 48,000 tons of enemy shipping which had taken refuge in Hong Kong when threatened by the American Task Force.

SAVED CHILDREN

Wallingford, Ia., Oct. 17—(AP)—Beverly Olson, 13, grabbed the steering wheel of a school bus after driver Howard Bammer suffered a fatal heart attack yesterday and saved nine children and herself from possible injury or death. She kept the car on the road for nearly 90 yards and succeeded in turning off the ignition and halting it.

King George Home After 6-Day Tour Holland, Belgium

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—King George returned home last night after a five-day tour of battle areas in Holland and Belgium during which he visited 1st Canadian Army and British 2nd Army headquarters.

He flew to the front Wednesday in a transport plane escorted by Spitfire fighters. The King was greeted at an airfield in Holland by Field Marshal Montgomery. It was the King's fifth visit to the battle lines during the war.

Quebec, Oct. 17—(CP)—The Provincial Treasury now is richer by $28,000, paid into it by 144 candidates who lost their deposits in the Aug. 8 Provincial General Elections, it was announced last night. A record number of 330 candidates sought seats.

Stirling Scores 11-0 Win Over Madoc Squad

Stirling, Oct. 17th (Special) Coach Good's Stirling High School gridders pried off the season's senior Interscholastic rugby football with an 11 to 0 win over the Madoc High twelve, scoring touchdowns in each half of the game. A large gallery of students from the rival schools was on hand to witness the opening of the season with a goodly sprinkling of adults to add importance to the game.

With some fast ground play and a successful forward pass tossed in for good measure, Nelson finally drove over Madoc's goal line late in the second quarter to give Stirling a 6-0 lead at the halfway mark as the try was successfully converted. With no score in the first and third quarters, when Madoc made its noblest stand, the homesters again drove through with Bastedo romping over the Madoc line on a straight double shift extended run around his opposite end. This try went unconverted and the game ended 11 to 0 for Madoc.

The line-ups:

Finns Cross Circle To Clear Lapland Of Hun Troops

Stockholm, Oct., 17 (AP)—Finnish troops have crossed the Arctic Circle at several points in their drive to clear the Germans from Lapland, a Helsinki communique announced today.

In the environs of Rovaniemi, Germans defending fortified positions offered strong resistance to Finnish attacks.

(A Finnish broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said Rovaniemi had been captured.)

Heavy battles were reported in the Torneajv valley where the enemy used tanks and heavy artillery. Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans who were driven from positions at Turtola and the pursuing Finns captured Kuoksenki, the communique said.

Horthy Accuses Germany of Lies And Intrigues

New York, Oct. 17 —(AP)— Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, accused Germany of lies and intrigues and declared it obvious that the "Reich has lost the war" in his Sunday proclamation seeking peace. It was read today over one Budapest radio which apparently escaped Nazi control.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was all finished with my homework and I was reading my lyberry book called Boy of the Middle Ages while I was waiting for pop and ma to send me to bed, and I said, G, pop, it must of been kind of fun in the Middle Ages when they had magicians and sorcerers and people like that.

There's magicc in every age, and the best kind of magic is right now in your own age, pop said The cleverest magician of the Dark Ages couldn't talk by telephone or see by television or fly by plane, in other words you're lucky enough to be living in the age of science, the most magical age of all. The magicians of today can make invisible dragons visible merely by turning a mikroscope on them, and what's more they can slay them by magic drops of medicine. In fact you can be a magician yourself and turn darkness into light just by pressing a button. Isn't that magic enough for you? he said.

Sure, G, only anybody can do it, I said, and ma said, Well naturally, and that's just why it's all so magical, because nollege is power, and modern education is at your beckon call just by opening a book and using your brains a little. Why just think, we know what makes plants green, and why the earth goes around, and what foods to eat to make us healthy and strong. In other words there's magic all around us, dont you realize that? she said.

Gosh, ma, that's right, I said. For instance take me right now. I've been playing and running all my might all day, but I'm not even as sleepy as when I first get up in the morning. G, it seems like magic all right. Can I stay up and read till I get sleepy to see how long it'll last just for the experiment? I said, and ma said, The most magical thing I know of is how you can always turn the conversation to the advantage of your own personal ends.

RUSSIANS LIKELY TO FIGHT JAPAN

CHAPTER 21

"Yeah, later. After the show. I got a pup to put through to Winner's." Paul hoisted to his feet. A spasm of pain contorted his face.

"Paul, you can't go in the ring. I won't let you!" Ann cried.

"Try and stop me."

"Look here," Christopher interfered authoritatively, "you can't walk on that ankle, much less run on it. Hans can show Rowdy."

"Over my dead body, he'll show her. It was all I could do to hold her in. She'll dance circles around the Dutchman."

"That's true," said Ann. "Why not, as long as she won her class, call it a day and go home."

"You can't do that!" Paul was beside himself. "It'll disqualify her if she doesn't go on." He tried his weight on the injured foot and beads of sweat broke out along his upper lip.

"You're asking for trouble," Christopher said sharply. "Get off that ankle!"

"Look, the dog's gone this far, I can't let her down, can't you see? You don't know what it means to me."

"Of course we know what it means to you," Ann said. "Would it make it any better if I showed her?"

Paul brightened. "Say, you've got something there!"

A brass-buttoned attendant raced through the aisles. "Last call, Winner's class!" he bellowed.

"That's us!" Paul gasped. "Go on, take her in, Ann."

"What do I do?" Panic assailed her.

"Let Hans show the dog." Christopher's hand was on the lead. Rowdy backed away, skittish as an unbroken colt. "All right, take her," he surrendered gracelessly. "It's bad stuff though, owners showing their own dogs. And woman owners at that."

"Oh, I thought you were the legal owner," Ann flung at him.

"There's a way of fixing that up—legally," he assured her.

Paul was impatient. "Come on, let's get going."

"Here, lean on my shoulder," Christopher commanded.

They started off like a three-legged race, Ann walked ahead, with Rowdy straining at the lead. The crowd fell back.

"That's the dog—"

"Here she comes—"

"Ain't she a beaut—"

Subtly, ridicule had turned to admiration. Paul's face was wreathed in smiles in spite of the pain that clamped his ankle.

"I've got Wolfgang dated up twice this week already," he muttered to Christopher. "And Benchler put in a bid the minute he saw the judge falling for Rowdy. Smart guy!" Paul's lip curled. "Gets rid of a piece of monkey meat for twenty-eight hundred and wants to buy in the real thing at a thousand."

"I'll top the highest bidder by five hundred," Christopher said. "But hang on to him."

"You said it," Paul huskily agreed. He turned to Ann as the ring steward slipped a numbered band on her arm. "Good luck, kid. ...Rowdy don't stand much of a chance in this set-up, but she's done her good deed for the day."

That was the last Ann heard, and then she was in the ring. One quick glance told her that this was not like class competition. The ring was filled with winners. Her legs felt like half-filled hot water bottles; there was an express-elevator sensation in the pit of her stomach; and her throat was lined with gravel. She felt a tug at the leash and found herself being pulled into the great parading circle, with the spectators a racing blur before her eyes. As in a dream she saw Paul and Christopher, their faces screwed up with suspense. Poor things. It was much easier to be inside the ring, for panic had abruptly vanished, leaving in its place a merciful numbness. She didn't feel anything. She was like a sleep-walker going through motions.

Then came the moment when the judge stood across the arena with the ribbons in his hand—but this time there were only two of them—a purple and a blue-and-white. Ann was aware of tension that became palpable as a substance. Mercifully, she stood outside of it, but it seemed to unfold Rowdy like an aura. She was straining forward in her stance, every muscle quivering, her great jowls twitching in excitement. The tension grew. Restlessness stirred along the line. A dog broke loose and was circled back into its place.

Doctor Barrie moved forward. He moved toward Ann. He said, in a brusque low voice. "She's young for this."

He's letting me down easy, Ann thought. She managed a smile, and Paul's words came to her lips. "It's all right, Rowdy's done her good deed—"

Doctor Barrie cut her short by extending one of the ribbons, the large purple one. "I couldn't be fair, and not give it to this Dane," he added. Then he went on down the line to give the blue-and-white ribbon to a black-faced fawn.

It was more than Ann could take in. What did it mean? The word Winners danced before her eyes. Confused and giddy she stumbled toward the exit. The steward barred her way. "You stay in the ring, Miss. You're in for the next class. For Best of Winners."

Christopher tried to push by him.

"Sorry, sir, only competing dogs and their handlers allowed inside."

Christopher scowled and then beckoned Ann to the side of the roped enclosure.

Ann had expected cheers, but cheers seemed to be the farthest thing from his mind. "Look here, we're late," he started off, a little petulantly. "This next win's out of the picture for Rowdy. Hurry through it, so we can get going."

"Get going where?" she demanded.

Christopher looked down at the rope that kept him at his distance, and then at the crowd pressing in upon them to see Rowdy.

"This isn't the place to explain," he said irritably. "Suffice it to say that we've got a lot of traveling to do before the day is over. We're going to Maryland."

A large lady in tailored tweeds pushed Christopher aside and peered over the rope. "Thank you, young man. My, my, but she's lovely!"

"Loveliest girl in the world," Christopher conceded. "We're on our way to get married."

The portly lady stared. The amazed Ann said hastily, "Would you like to hold the dog, madam?" And thrust the lead into the lady's hand.

"Good work." Christopher pulled Ann toward an uncrowded section of the rope a little further down. "Now don't be mad—" he held her off. "It was the simplest way to inform you of my completely honorable intentions."

"Mad?" Ann echoed furiously. "It's high time you came to your senses. But why on earth did you have to choose today of all days? Why not yesterday? Why not last week? Last month?"

He leaned forward, and at that instant the crowd milled away from the bellied rope to see the Winners Dog enter the ring. The rope cut across Christopher's middle, and pushed him back.

An argument started down the line. "Well, if you're not going to show the dog, who is?" the steward was asking the lady in tweeds.

"I'm just holding the dog—" she explained, distracted.

"It's me!" Ann called. "I have to go," she told Christopher.

"All right, but for the love of Pete, don't waste any more time. Rowdy's already got her five points, and that's the limit. Go in there and lose!" He spoke like a football coach giving a pep talk with the wrong words.

"I'll do my best," Ann meekly said.

She lead Rowdy into the middle of the ring. "Be a sport, and let that big beautiful dog get the purple ribbon this time," she whispered, "or I'll be here until Christmas..."

But it was a case of love at first sight. The big beautiful dog couldn't put his mind on show-business and acted, not like a coming champion, but like an awkward schoolboy boy parading in front of his best girl's house. The dog's handler was in a lather of despair at his unseemly antics. But admiration went to Rowdy's head. She became more and more beautiful, as becomes a woman who is deeply desired.

Rowdy was all attention as the judge came over to her and put his hand on her head. She had got to like this nice man, and she barked her pleasure. He laughed and handed Ann the Best of Winners ribbon. "It's yours, or rather hers."

"Thank you," Ann faltered. She headed for the entrance of the ring, but again the steward stopped her progress.

"You have to wait here," he told her. "You're in for specials."

"But that's only for Champions," she argued. "Please let me go—"

"For champions and Best of Winners," the steward corrected. "You've got to stay."

Ann could have wept. She scanned the crowd trying to find Christopher. She spied Paul first, seated on his camp stool. There was a crazy jack-in-the-box dancing about him, slapping his back at each wild cavort. The jack-in-the-box was none other than Christopher. He caught her eye, shook his hands in the gesture of a prize fighter, and then thumbs to temples, wiggled his hands at her in sheer ecstacy.

Ann stiffened. From the way he was acting he seemed to have forgotten all about Maryland, and at this rate, by th time they got there, Maryland might have changed her laws.

In the meantime, the applause was growing to a deafening tumult, and Rowdy was eating it up like a prima donna. She did everything but bow.

Then Ann saw Brenda's smartly tailored figure leading a dog into the ring. This was more than she had bargained for. A Great Dane was very becoming to Brenda, and Brenda knew it. Beside her cool and perfect grooming, Ann felt damp and ruffled. Brenda was quick to seize advantage. She approached Ann with a smile of utter composure.

"You've had a very lucky day so far," she purred.

"Good luck to you," Ann said through a thick throat.

The crowd was hushed, now, and a breathless expectancy hung over the arena. Dr. Barrie's pauses were slight, but his keen eyes, bristling out from under shaggy brows, seemed to be penetrating not the body alone but the very spirit of each of the champions who had come before his judgment. At long last, he went over to the steward's table and picked up the massive gold and purple rosette. Then he went down the line again, as if to verify some opinion not yet crystallized.

Finally he came to a standstill in front of Rowdy, and his fingers played speculatively with the heavy piece of silk. Rowdy quivered with the infection of excitement which hung over the field, and then the lead was jerked from Ann's hand, as the dog lifted suddenly forward, her mouth closing on the ribbon.

There was a shout from the gallery of spectators. Ann flushed red and called Rowdy to her. But it was all too thrilling a game—people were laughing and cheering and Rowdy liked the noise of it. She danced circles around Ann, tossing her head and flaunting her beautiful body.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Ann deplored.

Doctor Barrie smiled. "It belongs to her and she knows it. Young lady, you've got a great dog there. I'm proud to have judged her." He turned away, walking unwittingly into Brenda's path.

"This is all completely irregular," Brenda informed him, in a shrill clipt voice. "My dog has been forty times Best of Breed. The handler told me it was impossible for him to lose today!"

Dr. Barrie stiffened, and his eyes grew frosty. "Then, madame, I would suggest your discussing the matter with the handler."

A titter went through the crowd—the same sort that had earlier greeted Rowdy. An angry flush crept up Brenda's smooth pale cheeks.

"Come." She yanked the dog's lead, and walked from the ring.

Ann saw Christopher coming toward her, and she walked to meet him. Dog shows, she reflected, were so much more than dog shows.

"Oh, no you don't—" The rumple-hatted reporter blocked her way. "Pictures first. This way please."

He led her toward the steward's table, piled high with silver trophies. "What on earth are these?" she cried.

"Wedding presents from Rowdy," Christopher whispered in her ear.

It was too pat, and at the same time, it wasn't pat enough. Had a minister suddenly appeared out of nowhere, and had the loving-cups and tea-service suddenly developed shining faces and delivered themselves of blessings, all might have ended on the spot, like a very pleasant fairy tale.

But Christopher's excursion into whimsy served only as an irritant to Ann. Now that the excitement of the show was over, now that she had achieved her goal, perversity reared its head within her.

"What do you mean wedding presents?" she demanded, a little petulantly. "I don't know what you're talking about."

Christopher's face hardened. "Don't be coy," he adjured her bluntly "I can't abide coy women." He caught hold of her arm, and started to pilot her toward the parking space. She hung back, digging her heels into the ground. "Stop this cave-man stuff!" she blazed. "Let me go!"

For once, his cocksure manner dropped from him. "But look here, I thought it was all arranged?" he stammered.

Power surged through Ann. "You thought what was all arranged?" she queried. "You seem to forget," she reminded him coldly, "that Paul can't drive with a bad ankle. Therefore I'm not going to Maryland; I'm going to see that he gets home."

"Suppose you learn to stop bossing things for a change," Christopher suggested. "Hans already has his orders, he's taking the pups and Paul in the station wagon, and we're going in the opposite direction in my car."

"I prefer to go back to the Freunds, thank you."

"I'm not asking you what you prefer, I'm telling you what you're going to do." His voice was an ominous bass. "Now are you going to walk, or would you like me to pick you up and carry you?"

There was no doubt in her mind that Wain meant what he said, and her spirit delighted in his masterfulness. But the thing to do, Ann knew with conviction, was to ask him to give her time to think. If she told him that she was frightened and unsure, he'd understand.

"Christopher—" she began.

And then Rowdy bounded between them, her leash dragging, and Hans drawing up in the rear with much panting and puffing. "Excuse me, she run away, I couldn't hold her," he apologized abjectly. "I'm afraid she wants to go along with you."

Christopher turned to Ann. "Sorry. Do you mind if I take my dog?"

"Not at all," said Ann. "But if you take your dog, I don't see why I shouldn't take my dog. Where is she, Hans?"

Hans blinked.

"Miss Rivers means her dog, Gretel," Christopher explained. "Bring her over to the car. We'll take them both."

Rowdy didn't wait for Christopher to open the low door of the big car. She stepped over into the seat, and arranged herself with all the lumbering stiffness of a dowager queen. The soft leather seat was a welcome embrace to her tired limbs. She gave forth a gusty sigh of exhaustion and relief. A fly settled on her nose. Her eyes crosser wearily; she lifted a sluggish paw to bat at it.

Christopher stared. "Look at her," he croaked. "I've been robbed. I want my money back."

"I always told you," Ann smiled sweetly, "that you didn't know how to pick your dogs. I only hope," she added, "that you show a little more judgment when it comes to picking your children."

"Ann—" said Christopher.

The way he said it, made her want to cry. It was all the proposal that she'd ever want, all the assurance that she'd ever need.

"Oh, Chris—" she whispered.

Guelph Oct. 17 —(CP)— While Nursing Sister Lieut. Jean Borland, R. C. A. M. C., of Guelph, will have many experiences to talk about when the war is over, the thrill of seeing her brother shoot down a German Messerschmitt plane in a dog fight will be one experience she will never forget.

B-29's Really Paid Dividends In Formosa Raids

By JOHN GROVER
Associated Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in West China, Oct. 17—(AP)—B-29 Superfortresses today hurled their massed might against Formosa for the third time in 72 hours blasting the Einansho Air Base installations at Tainan.

A medium sized force of "Formosa commuters" smashed the major Japanese air force installations of Formosa on the same schedule as the two previous raids. Bombing was visual and simultaneous by the formations.

Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, chief of the 20th Bomber Command, in evaluating the strikes, said:

"We knocked hell out of them this trip. We spent a mighty profitable weekend. The B-29s really paid dividends."

Short-Wave Radio Link With Europe Nearly Completed

Halifax, Oct. 17—(CP)—Canada's first short-wave radio link with Europe is almost forged, and by Jan. 1, 1945, should be on the air 18 hours a day, Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, announced upon his arrival here last night.

Dr. Frigon said the new station, now under construction at Sackville, N.B., will ultimately be the most efficient shortwave transmitter in N. America. The first beam will go on the air on an experimental basis in December, Dr. Frigon added, with five other beams to follow, covering besides Europe, Mexico, South America, South Africa, New Zealand, India, and China.

A government subsidy of $1,200,000 has been granted for the new station, which will be operated by the CBC in close co-operation with the Department of External Affairs and the Wartime Information Board.

The Sackville centre will be "the most practical, efficient, and modern short-wave broadcasting unit it is possible to devise," Dr. Frigon said.

POLICE COURT

"This man was held on suspicion of being a deserter from the R.C.A.F., but it has been definitely established he has been demobilized from the air force," stated Crown Attorney Donnan when Leonard Carmichael, Bannockburn, appeared before Magistrate A. B. Collins, K.C., on a charge of vagrancy.

Carmichael was apprehended here on Saturday by R.C.A.F. and civilian police and held on suspicion. Magistrate Collins immediately ordered the charge withdrawn and dismissed the accused from custody.

John C. Brewer who was arrested in Kingston last week, appeared in the local court docket today charged with the theft of a blanket, said to be the property of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. As Inspector J. C. Hayes was not available as the principal Crown witness, the matter was enlarged until Friday. His Worship advised Brewer to procure the advice of a solicitor before his case came to trial.

Captain Riley, Adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry (R), appeared as observing officer when a charge of bigamy was read against Pte. George A. Draper, R.C.E., Petawawa. At the request of the observing officer this case was also adjourned for a week.

Several persons, including one woman, paid drunk fines, while an application to have a child made the ward of the Children's Aid Society was granted to T. D. Ruston, C.A.S. Superintendent.

Kiel Canal Between Baltic, North Sea Blocked by Bridge

Stockholm, Oct. 17—(CP)—Danish shippers here said today their German agents informed them that the critically-needed Kiel canal between the Baltic and North seas had been blocked since Oct. 15 when a railroad bridge collapsed into the waterway. The canal will be useless for three or four months, the shippers were told.

"The greater part of the bridge is lying at the bottom of the canal but there is no accurate information of what happened," the shippers said. "It is believed that time bombs dropped by Allies in the water during a daylight raid on Kiel blew up the bridge supports."

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By The Canadian Press

With the R. C. A. F. Overseas, Oct. 17—(CP)— Recently, Canadian Spitfires formed the cross of Lorraine over Paris.

The R. C. A. F. "City of Oshawa" squadron led by Sqdn. Ldr. M. McElroy, D. F. C. and Bar, of Kamloops, B. C., swooped low over the central boulevards in perfect formation. Below crowds of French people gazed upward and waved. The squadron crossed it in formation four times. As they left, they had to pull upwards to avoid crashing into the Eiffel Tower.

Nature gave the Hun a helping hand by raining bombs of ice plus trimmings down on an R. A. F. Bomber Group Headquarters in Italy. The freak hailstorm wrote one aircraft off completely, damaged several others, sent one man to hospital and perforated the tile roof of the Officer's mess. Flt. Lt. J. W. Bell of Pine River, Ont., picked up a hailstone which measured four and a half inches in diameter.

Unwitnessed by anyone except the men who took part in the action, which occured in Atlantic waters hundreds of miles from the nearest land, another dramatic fight has taken place between a U-boat and two Coastal Command aircraft attacking with machine-gun fire depth charges and bombs. The R.C. A. F. wireless operator-air gunners who took part in the fight were Sgt. Leonard William Barker, 232 East St., London, Ont., and Sgt. James Clarence Hall, 1304 Mountain St., Trail, B. C., members of a R. A. F. Halifax bomber crew.

The bomber was heading back to its United Kingdom base when the crew saw, a few miles away, an enemy submarine fighting it out with a R. A. F. Sunderland flying boat. Depth charges dropped from the flying boat had overshot and missed the target so the Halifax crew immediately attacked with anti-sub bombs. The U.-boat finally levelled up to even keel at reduced speed. Then it started to submerge and as it did so the bodies of seven Nazi gunners were swept into the sea.

At a Canadian Night Fighter base in France: The old swimming hole lives again. It came to life when Royal Canadian Engineers were clearing the debris of battle away from the living quarters built by the Germans during their occupation of the aerodrome. Under piles of smashed concrete and rubble they found what had been a deluxe swimming-pool. They cleaned out the pool, laid down a length of pipe from a nearby well and pumped in water through a purifier.

A Canadian Mosquito crew recently put a stop to the activities of two or more German night raiders over France. In one night two Ju. 88's fell to the guns of 25-year-old F.O. J. Watt Fullerton of Vancouver, B. C. sharing honors in these combats with Fullerton is his 22-year-old navigator, F.O. Bertram Edward Gallagher of Powell River, B. C.

THEIR LIVES SAVED BY DUNKIRK TRUCE

Two children, evacuated from Dunkirk during the truce negotiated between German and British officers before the final assault to take the port, guard their parents' belongings as they await removal to a shelter. Some 20,000 civilians were evacuated before the storming of Dunkirk.

WOOLER

Annual Anniversary Services Are Observed

Wooler. —Wooler United Church observed its annual anniversary services on Sunday, October 8, with the pastor Rev. W. T. R. Delve, taking charge and for the occasion Flt. Lt. A. G. Macpherson, chaplain at 6 R.D., Trenton Air Station as guest speaker.

The chancel was beautifully decorated with fruits, vegetables and autumn flowers of every hue and at both morning and evening services the church was filled to capacity.

In the morning, special music was rendered by the full choir with Mrs. Ken Crews singing a solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul". Mr. Karl Austin gave a saxaphone solo, "My Task". In the evening, music included with the choir was a girls' quintette and two part anthem. Mr. Karl Austin favored with a solo on the saxophone. The Thank-offering was most generous amounting to $900.

Bridal Couple Honored.

The surrounding community at Codrington entertained on Tuesday evening last in the parlors of the United Church in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazelwood, it being the occasion of their recent marriage. Says 4,000 Jew Children Gassed, Cremated By Huns at Birkenau

New York, Oct. 17—(CP)— An eyewitness account of the gassing and cremation of 4,000 Jewish children in the German concentration camp at Birkenau was given today in a London dispatch to the Polish telegraph agency.

The dispatch quoted the letter of a Polish woman, imprisoned in the camp for seven months and later transferred to a Warsaw prison from which the letter was smuggled out.

More than 65,000 women have died in Birkenau during the last two years, the letter stated.

"There are six crematoria in Birkenau, and they are always working," the letter said...The guards have received words to use gas sparingly because it is very expensive. The quantity used may kill the weaker ones but the strongest ones come to on the cart taking them to the crematorium and so are burnt alive."

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

LINKED TOGETHER FOR A BETTER WORLD

AMERICAN bombers wing their way into a great Canadian halfway port . . . take off for British bases . . . then on to the all-important job of bringing war home to the enemy. This is but one of the many ways that Canada serves as a vital link between the United States and Great Britain.

And English, Canadian and American airmen flying wing to wing have shown the same high courage and daring . . . shared the same dangers. Their success has proved that our greatest strength lies in unity . . . that in peace, as in war, we must work together for a better world!

As Churchill declared, "Canada is the 'linch-pin' between Great Britain and the United States". Truly, we Canadians can do much for future world security by furthering the mutual understanding of these two great democracies. This is our responsibility. Let us prove worthy of it!

Calvert
Distillers (Canada) Limited

In our hearts is the same concept of freedom!

CANADIANS, Americans and Englishmen share the same concept of freedom . . . share, too, one of the earliest defenders of freedom. He was a Calvert, a famous English statesman, Secretary of State to King James I.

In 1622 Calvert founded a colony in Newfoundland and, later, a colony in Maryland. Thus, over 300 years ago Calvert forged a link which has strengthened throughout the years...joining together the British Commonwealth and the United States.

In the new settlements the principle of self-government was inaugurated and religious toleration was fully enforced. Thus, in the early 1600's, a Calvert established in the New World many of the freedoms we are fighting for today.

FRONT OF NEW RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE BROADENS

Assault on East Prussia Extends Inside Border Line

Fall of Yugoslav Capital Of Belgrade Imminent

London, Oct. 18—(CP)—Germany implied today that the Russians had invaded East Prussia and that the mighty new Red army offensive from the Baltic States had extended to Schirwindt, a mile inside Germany.

Enemy broadcasts said the offensive, not yet announced by Moscow, had forced the Germans to abandon the Lithuanian highway centre of Virbalis, three miles from the frontier, and that the battle beating against the landed estates of the Junkers generals was on a broadening front.

Virbalis Captured.

"The Russians extended their offensive near the East Prussian border farther to the south and attacked strong German defences between Kalvarija and Schirwindt," the Nazi commentator, Col. Ernst von Hammer said. "After stiff resistance, the town of Virbalis had to be given up."

Kalvarija in Lithuania lies 30 miles southeast of Schirwindt. The German frontier town is 42 miles northeast of the Prussian rail centre of Insterburg and 91 east of the capital of Konigsberg. Other Russians besieging the Baltic port of Memel are within 65 miles of Konigsberg.

Kalvarija lies just north of the Suwalki Triangle, a bit of Poland which Germany annexed to East Prussia, and is on a trunk highway from Kaunas through Mariampole to East Prussia. Russian forces invaded the Sunwalki Triangle in mid-summer.

Capture of Virbalis was a strategic Russian gain for the army group of the 36-year-old Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky.

Six roads meet at the strategic town which lies 41 miles east of Insterburg.

East Prussia Bombed.

Moscow announced at midnight a succession of heavy bombing attacks in East Prussia, homeland of the Junkers generals.

The German radio declared the offensive sprang forward along a 25-mile front on each side of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis, a dozen miles from the East Prussian frontier.

Berlin said the offensive, supported by heavy artillery preparations and swarms of low-flying Stormovik bombers, began Monday.

The Russian bombing raids reached as far as Insterburg, 37 miles inside the Junkers' homeland, toward which the land drive appeared to be aimed. The Moscow communique said supply trains and other objectives were blasted at Insterburg and the intermediate railway junctions of Gumbinnen and Stalluponen.

Berlin also suggested a heavy new Russian assault on East Prussia from the south and southeast, but Moscow remained silent about operations in this sector. Along the northern border on the Niemen river the Russians have approached within artillery range of Tilsit, East Prussian frontier stronghold.

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Oct. 18—(AP)—Moscow's victory guns were primed today to salute the expected fall of Belgrade, Yugoslavia's war-ravaged capital. Dispatches from the area said German troops were in a death trap, with the city largely mopped up.

Many of the capital's buildings were reported in flames after fierce day-and-night street fighting.

An Isvestia front line dispatch said Yugoslav partisans equipped with captured German Tommy-guns and Grenades were pouring into the city to join in the final mop-up. German suicide squads are being exterminated, Isvestia said.

Big Russian self-propelled guns lunged from corner to corner firing point-blank at windows and doorways of German-held warehouses, apartments and office buildings. Thousands of German dead were said to be strewn along the streets and in wrecked hideouts.

A belief prevailed meanwhile in Moscow that Hungarian army units have deserted the Germans and now are fighting beside the Russians in an effort to drive the Nazis from Budapest, the Hungarian capital.

(The Germans announced in a Berlin broadcast yesterday that high Hungarian army chiefs had gone over to the Russian side. Specifically named was Maj.-Gen. Bela Miklos Von Dalnok, commander of the 1st army. Neutral reports said Von Dalnok's army was marching on the capital).

A strategical development which could be fatal for the Germans in Eastern Hungary appeared imminent—a link-up of Marshal Rodion K. Malinovsky's column in Northern Transylvania with Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukrainian army sweeping southward from Southern Poland.

The two forces were barely 30 miles apart today. A junction would form a solid front across the Carpathians between the Polish and Hungarian plains and shorten the Red Army's supply lines by hundreds of miles.

Comrades Speak of Cpl. L. Pope Of Picton With Great Respect

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

With the Canadians in Holland, Oct. 18 (CP Cable)—Flame-throwing carriers of an Eastern Ontario Infantry Regiment which took the town of Boofdplaat in the Schelde beachhead nave been leading the way in this hard, bitter fighting since the landing 10 days ago.

"As the boys say, 'we have been brewing them up good'," said a lieutenant-colonel from Ottawa.

Flame-carriers under Capt. Reginald Smith of Pembroke, Ont., seared the Germans out of Boofdplaat and later took part in the push southwest of the villages of Roodenhoek and Hoogeweg.

For the opening attack, one company under Maj. R. Allyaden of Bowmanville, Ont., moved along a dike by the sea to approach Boofdplaat from the north. One company under Maj. Gordon Clark of Peterborough, Ont., aided b, another company drove straight southwest following the main road to the sea, while Maj. Jack Stothard of Ottawa commanded a reserve company which eventually had to be put in the line to meet stern German opposition.

It must be remembered that this dike fighting, with the Germans dug in 50 to 100 yards apart and with their artillery so conversant with the territory they could pinpoint any dike the Germans evacuated.

Burned Out Enemy.

On the dikes and road the flamethrowers did a terrific job in burning out the enemy.

"It meant getting in on a dike position, cleaning it out and getting off before the Germans could bring their fire down," said the lieutenant-colonel.

There were times when Canadians and Germans were so close that our heavy artillery couldn't be used for fear of hitting our own men.

There were times when this battalion used mortars, which were under the command of Maj. Hugh

CARRIER PLANES CONTINUE DRIVE ON PHILIPPINES

American Troops Land Unopposed on Ulithi Atoll in Western Carolines

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 18 —(AP)— The steady drone of United States carrier planes over the Philippines and a continuing rain of bombs was the answer today to Tokyo radio boasts that the U. S. 3rd Fleet had been dealt an "annihilating" blow and invasion of those islands had been set back two months.

Admiral Nimitz indicated American units have no present intention of breaking off the Philippines attack by announcing last night, without the limitation of a date:

"Carrier aircraft of the Pacific fleet are continuing to attack objectives in the Philippines."

Simultaneously, Nimitz let out a military-secret — that American troops landed unopposed Sept. 20 and 21 in the Western Carolines on Ulithi atoll, the lagoon of which forms a good naval base. He said nothing about it sooner because he had reason to believe the Japanese didn't know about it. Ulithi is about halfway between American invasion forces on Guam and in the Southern Palaus.

Nimitz did not specify the Philippines targets but Tokyo radio accounts have focused attention on the Manila area. Gen. MacArthur announced today his fighter planes have flown from Southwest Pacific bases across Mindanao to wipe out a Japanese convoy of 62 trucks and six staff cars, disperse a cavalry troop and shoot up airfields.

(The sustained air attacks on the Philippines found Tokyo radio toning down previous assurances that the danger of immediate invasion was past.

(The Federal Communications Commission recorded this broadcast observation last night:

("It cannot be thought that the enemy, with this setback, will give up his plans for attacking the Philippines".

(The "setback" was the claimed sinking or damaging of more than fifty American warships, a claim Nimitz repudiated yesterday.)

Lack of opposition at Ulithi was surprising, inasmuch as Ulithi had been used by the Japanese as a minor naval base and for seaplane operations. The main atoll is 19 miles long, 10 miles wide. The Island of Mogmog, which has the main port, was among those seized.

Nimitz' announcement of sustained air action against the Philippines expanded the activities of carrier forces which since Oct. 8 have attacked the Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines, sinking or damaging more than 140 enemy ships and destroying more than 800 planes.

McArthur's announcement marked the deepest penetration in strength of his fighter planes into the Philippines.

NOBEL PRIZE FOR DISCOVERER OF PENICILLIN

New York, Oct. 18 — This year's Nobel Prize for medicine has been awarded to Sir Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, the Berne radio said last night.

More Delicacies Promised Britons by Food Minister In Time for Yuletide Feasts

By MELVIN APPEL
(Reuter Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 18 —(CP-Reuter)— Minus whiskers and all the other necessary trimmins, Col. James L. Llewellin, Britain's Food Minister, today became the Nation's 1944 Santa Claus.

Col. Llewellin, as popular as any Santa Claus ever could be, told a cheering House of Commons his Christmas bag was full of turkeys, raisins, dates, and other delicacies to be distributed to a Britain now in its sixth year of war. Among the things he promised were:

An extra ounce of tea a week for persons 70 years of age and over, beginning Dec. 10 and possibly throughout 1945.

An extra half a pound of candy for everyone between six months and 18 years of age in the rationing period starting Dec. 10.

An additional half a pound of margarine and half a pound of sugar for every ration book during the same period.

An increase in the meat ration from one shilling two pence to one shilling and 10 pence (from about 26 cents to 30 cents) for the week preceding Christmas Day.

The Minister also said extra supplies of dried fruit would help the housewife to make better Christmas cakes and puddings.

He hoped there would be more turkeys this year than last.

There will be 22,000 tons of Sultanas, 4,000 tons of raisins and 9,000 tons of dates.

BRITISH CONTINUE PAINFUL ADVANCE INTO PO VALLEY

Take Over a Few More Yards of Rimini-Bologna Highway

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

Rome, Oct. 18—(AP)—In the Adriatic sector of the Italian front British 8th Army troops, continuing their painful advance into the Po valley, took over a few more yards of the Rimini-Bologna highway and closed in on Cesena from the east and south, today's Allied communique said.

American troops of the Allied 5th Army, driving toward the ancient Italian city of Bologna, have advanced nearly a mile north of captured Livergnano on Highway 65.

While British and Indian troops on the right of the 5th Army moved into a few more hills and consolidated their positions in the face of counter-attacks, the American captured the hill towns of Trepo and Santa Anna and with effective air support fought their way towards Mount Belmonte, where a stiff fight is in progress. This peak dominates much of the country on the right of Highway 65.

With the Germans contesting every curve in the highway American troops drove on but they still were approximately nine miles from Bologna's outskirts at the closest point.

Destroyers Land Troops That Take Scarpanto Island

Rome, Oct. 18 —(AP)— Two British destroyers landed forces which took over the island of Scarpanto at dawn yesterday after the Greek population on the island had "contained" the enemy garrison there, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Located in the Dodecanese group, the mountainous island of Scarpanto is between Crete and Rhodes. The island is 30 miles long and has an extreme width of eight miles. Approximately 8,000 persons live there.

The British destroyers Terpsichore and Cleveland were involved in the operation, carried out without opposition. The landing parties were given an enthusiastic welcome, a communique said.

It was announced officially that German demolitions on the Greek mainland caused severe damage to the harbor installations at Piraeus, the port of Athens, but most of the utilities at the port are functioning.

More Allied parachute troops have been dropped in the Athens area, the communique said, but there was nothing to indicate any enemy opposition was met.

VON SCHWERIN KILLED

New York, Oct. 18 —(AP)— The German D. N. B. Agency said today that Maj.-Gen. Bogislav Count Von Schwerin, who commanded a division in Estonia, had "died a hero's death." The dispatch was reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

OVERSEAS TROOPS 'IN FINE FETTLE' SAYS COL. RALSTON

Defence Minister Spans the Atlantic Ocean by Air in Twelve Hours

Ottawa, Oct. 18 —(CP)—With a cold in his head, Defence Minister Ralston, back from a three-week tour of overseas battlefronts, arrived here today by airplane and said that the Canadians fighting on the Italian front were holding German divisions which otherwise would be engaged on the Western front.

"This is a very important job," said Col. Ralston. "So dogged has been our action on the Italian front that the Germans have been unable to draw any relief for their hard-pressed western armies from the Italian area."

The Colonel, accompanied by Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of Canadian Military headquarters in London, and a group of high officers, was met at nearby Rockcliffe Air Station by Air Minister Power, acting Defence Minister in Col. Ralston's absence, and Lt.-Gen. John Murchie, chief of General Staff.

Mrs. Ralston Greets Husband.

Mrs. Ralston also was on hand to greet her husband.

Speaking to newsmen, Col. Ralston said: "I'll give you chaps a Press Conference as early as possible." But before he broke away he said he had left the Canadians on all fronts "in fine fettle."

He was afraid the people at home might, in their great interest in developments on the Western front, forget about the Canadians fighting with the British 8th Army in Italy. They were fighting through the "toughest kind of country" and against the "stiffest kind of opposition."

"We know the Germans have not drawn any troops from that sector and that is all to the good but it is resulting in a toughly contested campaign and we must not forget the important contribution our men in Italy are making to the general plan for defeating the enemy."

At Montreal, asked for comments on a recent declaration by Premier Drew of Ontario that Canadian troops overseas were sent to combat without sufficient training, the National Defence Minister replied that he had "no comments for the time being on any controversial issues." He said, however, he would present a detailed report of his trip after he reached Ottawa.

SAYS GERMAN PRISON CAMPS TOO CLOSE TO TARGETS

London, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Some of Germany's prisoner of war camps have been or are situated near legitimate military targets in contravention of article 9 of the Geneva Convention, State Minister Richard Law declared in Commons today.

Consequently, he said, a number of British prisoners of war have lost their lives in air raids.

HURRICANE DAMAGES HAVANA

Havana, Oct. 18 — (AP)—Havana was heavily damaged by a tropical hurricane early today, but first reports showed no casualties.

Hours after the centre of the disturbance passed northward, the city was lashed by high winds and rain which paralyzed island communications and delayed official surveys.

PERIMETER WINDS WHIP OVER KEYS AT 75 MILES HOUR

Floridians Battening Down and Boarding Up Against Severe Tropical Hurricane

Miami, Fla., Oct. 18 —(AP)— A dangerous Caribbean hurricane that battered Havana and Western Cuba with winds up to 100 miles, passed into the gulf of Mexico with intensity undiminished this morning.

The centre of the storm is expected to pass close by Mexico Tortugas by mid-afternoon today, bringing extreme high tides and winds of more than 75 miles per hour to the Florida keys.

The storm, the United States weather bureau said, is attended by hurricane winds at the centre and gales over "a rather large area."

Hurricane warnings now are displayed on the Florida keys and the Florida coast from Miami to Tampa and northeast storm warnings elsewhere from Vero Beach to Cedar keys.

Winds 60 miles per hour and higher in squalls were due to strike the southeast coast and interior of south Florida after noon.

The United States Weather Bureau at Miami forecast that the hurricane would move into the Gulf of Mexico just west of Havana about 6 a.m., and warned of 75-mile and stronger winds and high tides on the Florida Keys early today.

It was on the Keys, stretching southwestward from the Florida peninsula, that about 500 veterans of the First Great War were killed by a hurricane Labor Day, 1935.

Emergency warnings were broadcast to Key residents yesterday, and precautions were under way before nightfall.

Havana Isolated

Havana, Oct. 18 — (AP)—Havana was isolated from the surrounding countryside early this morning as a tropical hurricane, with winds ranging up to 90 miles per hour, ripped across the south coast of Cuba near Batabana, scarcely 40 miles from the capital.

Late observatory and Navy reports indicated Havana itself could expect the centre of the hurricane between 6 and 7 a. m. E.D.T. At 5 a.m. wind velocity in the city reached 60 miles an hour, ripping down telegraph and telephone wires.

The two principal radio chains broadcasting from Havana left the air early in the morning due to power failures. Communications with the western end of the island were cut last night.

BEVERIDGE ELECTED

Berwick-on-Tweed, England, Oct. 18 (CP-Reuter)—Sir William Beveridge, Social Security Architect who became world-famous for his "Beveridge Plan," today was elected Liberal member of the House of Commons for Berwick-on-Tweed by 8,792 votes against 1,269 obtained by William D. Clark, Independent.

The by-election was caused by the death of Capt. G. C. Grey, Liberal.

Siberians Producing Tropical Sub-Tropical Plants in Arctic

London, Oct. 18. (CP-Reuters)— Tender southern plants, tropical palms, early tomatoes, flowers and thousands of tons of vegetables are being produced by the Russians in a distant corner of Siberia well beyond the Arctic circle, according to Soviet war news.

There in the 70th parallel pioneers are growing acres of crops on permanently-frozen soil, electrically-warmed. Hitherto the 63rd parallel was considered the northern limit for farming, but now, by a series of amazing experiments, farming in the Arctic has become a practical possibility.

Extensive fields of cabbage and potatoes flourish on land which formerly was swampy tundra, and the day and night sunshine of the Arctic summer glints on greenhouses and cucumber frames — a peaceful rural picture almost fantastic against a background of snow-covered hills, the newspaper said.

Vegetables and tobacco plants are grown in the open on a thin layer of soil resting on permanently frozen sub-soil.

Each cabbage plant is grown separately and then planted in the ground in a pot filled with peat and manure. More than 3,000,000 pots were made this year.

Later the plants are watered with a solution of manure and mineral salts and they grow to a weight of 14 to 18 pounds.

The more tender southern plants are grown in electrically-warmed soil. The sun thaws the top layer to a depth varying from 20 inches to three feet, but the temperature of this layer remains low, so a high-voltage electric current tapped by electrodes stuck in the ground warms the soil round the roots from 20 to 23 degrees centigrade.

In greenhouses covering 10,000 square yards cucumbers and tomatoes, two varieties of tropical palms and many garden flowers are grown. Favorite flowers are mignonette and pansies.

Huns See Threat Of U.S. First Army Aimed at Cologne

Slow Methodical Progress By Allies All Along Front

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Oct. 18 — (AP)—British 2nd Army troops captured Venray, important rail and road junction five miles west of the Maas (Meuse) River, today as the U.S. 1st Army, slowly squeezing Aachen into submission, prepared for a new assault which Berlin said would be aimed at Cologne.

All along the front, progress — slow and methodical, carried out in many cases by bayonets — was reported.

From Breskens, German strongpoint guarding the already-liberated port of Antwerp, to Belfort, here is the picture:

1. Lt.-Gen. Crerar's 1st Canadian Army has reached Ijzendijke, six miles south of Breskens, pressing hard on the newly-formed defence line of the suicide German troops within the narrowing pocket. Meanwhile, Allied Supreme Headquarters reported bombers had attacked the sea dyke at West Kapelle on the neighboring island of Walcheren.

Says 1,550 Allied Tanks Massed

2. In Northern Holland, where Berlin has reported the Allies have massed 1,550 tanks for a drive into the Rhine-Ruhr valley, Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army took Venray after bitter house-to-house fighting and plunged to two miles southeast of the town. Associated Press war correspondent Ned Nordness, with this force, reported that American armored columns on the right flank had bridged Carai de Doorn.

3. Gen. Eisenhower's communique described fighting on the U. S. 1st Army front as a mopping-up procedure. Lt.-Gen. Hodges' troops are mopping up inside Aachen which has set a pattern of punishment for German cities in the path of the Allied advance, and mopping up to the northeast "segments of the Siegfried Line" to clear the way for their next drive.

Bitter Fighting at Aachen.

The German radio, finally acknowledging Aachen has been encircled, described the fighting there as "surpassing everything that has gone before in this war," and said Gen. Eisenhower "is planning an all-out offensive on Cologne after capturing Aachen."

4. U. S. 3rd Army infantry under command of Lt.-Gen. Patton advanced nearly a mile north of Ancy Sur Moselle to within four miles of Metz, another big fortress and industrial city. Associated Press War Correspondent Wes Gallagher said only light opposition was encountered.

5. In the Vosges foothills, where Lt.-Gen. Devers' 6th Army group is engaged, the Allied communique reported progress just south of the road junction at Bruyeres and northeast of Le Thillot despite stubborn enemy resistance and strong counter-attacks.

Object of Attacks.

Local operations on an 85-mile front south of Arnhem by British and American units seemed to represent attempts to gain good jump-off positions for thrusts into the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The battle to break the enemy hold on the Schelde Estuary approaches to the Belgian port of Antwerp was being fought by the 1st Canadian Army over waterlogged terrain. The Canadians entered Ijzendijke, six miles southeast of Breskens on the south bank of the estuary, and the Germans have taken new positions on a line running from Schoondijke southwestward to Sluis, about four miles inland.

From Aachen in Germany to Arnhem in Holland the Allies sparred warily with the enemy, with some of the heaviest fighting centring in the bend of the Maas (Meuse) river.

1,000 PLANES HIT COLOGNE, KASSEL GERMAN AREAS

Walcheren Island Dikes Are Battered by R. A. F. Lancasters

London, Oct. 18 —(CP Reuter)— Industrial targets and marshalling yards in the Cologne and Kassel areas of Germany were attacked today by more than 550 heavy bombers of the United States 8th Air Force.

This is the third time within 36 hours that Cologne, 40 miles east of Aachen, has been attacked.

The bombers were escorted by approximately 450 fighters.

Today was also the fourth attack within five days on targets at Cologne, important Rhine valley industrial and communications centre.

Kassel has many war industries.

No Allied bombs fell in Germany last night.

The aerial blitz was carried on from both the west and south in daylight yesterday, with 1,300 8th Air Force heavies giving Cologne the hardest pounding of the war while U. S. bombers from Italy struck at strategic targets in Austria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

R.A.F. Lancasters battered the Walcheren Island dikes again and dive-bombers ranged the length of the Siegfried Line and beating up communications targets.

WOMAN CYCLIST SUSTAINS INJURIES TO FACE AND KNEES

Mrs. Mary Nigh, Cannifton Road, sustained facial bruises and lacerations to her knees when she was knocked off her bicycle at the intersection of Bridge and Front Sts. early last evening during an automobile-bicycle collision. Amos J. Weeks, Trenton, told police he was driving his motor car north on Front St. and was making a left-hand turn to proceed west along Bridge St. when the collision occurred. The motorist told P. C. Johnson he did not see Mrs. Nigh approaching from the west on her bicycle. After being knocked off her bike Mrs. Nigh was driven to the surgery of Dr. A. E. Miles by Mr. Weeks where medical attention disclosed only minor abrasions and light lacerations.

ANOTHER DOG RUN OVER BY CAR

Dogs running loose on city streets to subsequently become involved in accidents with motor cars are showing a marked increase in this city. For the past four consecutive days police have received reports of dogs being run over by motor vehicles while running at large on the travelling portion of the street. In two such cases dogs were reported killed. Yesterday Mrs. Alice Burgess, Herchimer Ave., informed police that a dog had run beneath the wheels of her automobile on Bridge Street East. However, the motorist was unable to state how badly the animal was injured as the owner of the dog removed the injured pup to a veterinary.

POLICE ON LOOKOUT FOR STONETHROWERS

Property damage resulting from stones being thrown in Belleville is on the upward trend and the practice must be curbed or else the offenders will face court charges. For the third consecutive evening police answered calls to local residences where the occupants displayed damaged property as the result of stones being thrown by mischievous youths. Such complaints were received from the Grier-College St. sector and from Chatham St. last night.

It may be a pre-Hallowe'en basic training in the art of stone throwing, but such efforts are not at all appreciated by the home owners or the police. The wilful destruction of private property is a serious offence and will be dealt with as such in court, if and when the offenders are apprehended.

Municipalities May Fix Taxes On Govt. Homes

Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs Addresses Assessing Officers in City

Local municipalities may by by-law authorise agreements between municipal corporations and Wartime Housing Ltd., fixing the amount of money that shall be paid annually in lieu of taxes and which must not be less than $24 in respect of two-bedroom houses, $30 in respect of more than two bedroom houses, and $150 in respect of each staff house, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs A. J. B. Gray told representatives for Zone 8 Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario here yesterday.

Speaking on the amendments to the Assessment Act, the Deputy Minister said in respect to these agreements that where the assessments of the real property have been included in the valuation of the municipality for the purposes of county equalization, it shall be decreased by that amount and the county rate be reduced accordingly.

The right to vote of tenants of Wartime Housing shall not be affected by the Act and assessment rolls and voters lists prepared in the usual manner.

Make Regulations.

With an amendment providing for the appointment of a county assessor, the Deputy Minister pointed out that the report of this official shall form the basis for the county equalization of assessment. A new clause has been added, which enables the Minister of Municipal Affairs, with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to make regulations and prescribe rules for the guidance of county assessors in determining the value of property.

Further amendments, he said, make it clear that business assessment shall be excluded from the valuation made for the purpose of equalization of the county assessment by the county assessor and county council.

Section 125 of the Act is re-enacted for the purpose of making clear that a person may make application for an abatement, reduction, or refund of taxes in the year in which such person or property is taxed rather than the year in which the assessment was made. It further provides Mr. Gray said, for an appeal to the County Judge where the applicant feels that the Court of Revision omitted, neglected or refused to hear or decide an appeal under this section of the act.

A municipal council under the re-enactment of Section 203 may charge back to any body for which it is required by law to levy rates, a proportionate share of any deficiency caused by the non-payment of taxes.

Amendments Outlined.

Other amendments of the Act outlined by the deputy minister included that to provide that where a municipal property is used as a parking lot and a fee is charged, the property is not exempt from taxation.

Any municipality may provide a reduction in taxation for lands held and used as farm lands only and in blocks of not less than five acres by any one person. The council of any municipality can adjust the taxes levied upon such farm lands by having regard to the type of expenditure incurred and if the said lands would benefit by the expenditure.

Municipalities can also tax the lands of any transportation system, the deputy Minister pointed out. Former provisions of the Act were applicable only to railways, but as busses and trolleys are now used as well as railways, in some cases in place of railway, the new amendments are broad enough to cover any system.

POLICE BLOTTER

Disturbances that turned out to be fisticuffs, resulted in police apprehending two airmen and holding them in custody late last night. The complaint received resulted in police breaking up a general brawl between two airmen and two civilians in the downtown area. The airmen were held in custody while the civilians were dismissed.

Today Provincial Police were investigating the report of an abandoned motor car north of Marysville. Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell was detailed to procure the serial number of the motor car, which Marysville residents report as having been abandoned during the night.

A lone inebriate occupied the cell block at the police station last night and was released today with instructions to appear in Friday's police court.

Open Discussion Features Session County Assessors

Elaboration of Minister of Municipal Affairs George H. Dunbar's address on appointments of county assessors was made in a brief talk to 150 district assessors, councillors and reeves of Zone 8 of the Ontario Association of Assessing Officers yesterday afternoon by Ontario Supervisor J. P. Coombe, who with the Minister and Deputy Minister A. J. Gray were the guest speakers at the conference held in the City Hall.

The Minister addressed the conference during the morning session and urged the appointment of county assessors. Deputy Minister Gray spoke on amendments to the Assessment Act and Supervisor Coombe concluded the addresses in the afternoon with a brief explanatory talk on the duties of county assessors and why they should be appointed.

A period of open discussion featured the afternoon session while many municipal and assessment problems were ironed out through the medium of a Question Box.

The Department of Municipal Affairs is not forcing appointments of county assessors on the various county councils, Supervisor Coombe told the conference. "We are merely expressing an opinion that the only way equitable assessment can be reached is through the medium of a supervisory assessor."

He urged the use of appraisal sheets, using one now in vogue in the city of Belleville as an illustration, also maps of the various townships.

Familiarity with the Act should be one of the requisites of a county assessor. "These men," he said, "will be brought to Toronto and given a short course, also sent out with experienced city assessors to get further knowledge of their work."

He pointed out that farmers should not be penalized through assessment for having good buildings. "It is not the Department's wish to assess paint on barns or buildings, nor to penalize those who protect their property from the elements."

Mr. Coombe and Deputy Minister Gray answered several questions pertaining to assessment problems, while the question box was productive of many interesting themes on which the conference was informed by the government representatives.

Bell-Irving, commanding officer of the station, a splendid program of entertainment has been arranged.

Shirley Temple's Grandfather Is Employed in City

Working unheralded and unsung in the Deacon Brothers plant here for the past three years, and saying nothing of a glamorous motion picture star relation, Mr. Alonzo Sine, seventy-five year old resident of this city, left today for Toronto to see for the first time a famous granddaughter, Miss Shirley Temple.

Miss Temple's mother is a daughter of Mr. Sine, and he has not seen her for the past fifteen years. He has never seen the former child screen actress.

Formerly a merchant tailor in Parry Sound, Mr. Sine entered war work in the Deacon plant a few years ago.

Miss Temple is making a public appearance in Toronto tonight in the interests of the Seventh Victory Loan. Tonight she will see her grandfather for the first time.

It is a big day in the life of Mr. Sine.

Mailing of Yuletide Parcels Overseas Generally Satisfactory

Belleville and district residents are following closely postal regulations and wishes regarding shipment of Christmas parcels overseas with a large number of Yuletide parcels for the boys in the fighting services already having been mailed, according to J. V. C. Truaisch, local postmaster.

"As a general rule people are carrying out instructions for early mailing very well," stated Mr. Truaisch. "They apparently feel that if their loved ones overseas are to get their Christmas parcels in time they must be in the mails early."

Deadline for mailing of parcels to the Central Mediterranean forces was October 10th with October 25th having been set as the last date for the United Kingdom and France. Parcels may be mailed after the deadline, of course, but there is no assurance they will be delivered overseas by Christmas time.

For Those in Hospital

Ottawa—(CP)— Postmaster-General Mulock asks that letters addressed to members of the armed forces receiving treatment in hospital should have the words "in hospital" written boldly on the envelope and just above the name of the addressee.

Mr. Mulock said in a statement that numerous letters were being mailed with the words "in hospital" written in small handwriting inconspicuously on the corner of the envelope. This made it difficult for clerks to locate these letters quickly in the mail stream in order to give them priority treatment.

Hitler Has Ordered Home Guard Set Up

London, Oct. 18 — (AP)—Hitler established by decree today an armed German home guard of all civilian men between 16 and 60, the Berlin radio announced, as Allied armies beat against the Reich from west, east, southeast and south.

Describing this people's army as "not a preparation for defeat, but for victory," the Berlin station said:

"The significance of the German Volkssturm becomes obvious when the possibility of break-throughs in our fighting front or airborne landings in our hinterland are taken into account."

The home guard men will be part of the German army, the broadcast said, adding that "they will wear no uniform, but will be marked by an armband in accordance with international law."

R. Gunsolus New President South Hastings Y.P.U.

Active in young people's work and former citizenship convener of Holloway Street United Church Y.P.U., Mr. Ray Gunsolus of this city was named president of the South Hastings District Young People's Unions at their annual rally held at Stone Church, 4th concession of Sidney township, on Tuesday evening. Mr. Gunsolus succeeds Mr. Earl Dafoe of Plainfield who had acted in that capacity during the past year.

Young People's groups from all sections of south Hastings were present at the rally which got underway with a delicious supper being served by the Women's Association of the Stone Church. Following, an attractive program, arranged by the committee in charge, was enjoyed, with Rev. A. C. McCallum of Bayside officially installing the new officers.

Padre Payton Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the evening was Padre J. Payton, of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, and former chaplain at No. 5 I.T.S. at Belleville. In his address Padre Payton referred to the comparative general lack of knowledge of the Bible by the younger members of the United Church and advocated more Bible group study in lieu of much of the general type of program at young people's meetings.

Grace Church Y.P.U. of Trenton, was in charge of the brief worship service starting the evening's program, while reports from the conference were heard from Mr. Don Williams and Miss Marion Daniels. Discussion groups were Miss Maude Burke, Miss Mabel Archer, Harold Hagerman, Miss Marguerite Armstrong and Miss Marion Daniels.

Reports on the United Church Forward Movement were heard from Miss Ruth Simpson of Toronto. Miss Simpson also led in a spirited sing-song which was much enjoyed. Miss Margaret Hillis delighted with a well-rendered solo "Trees", with Rev. J. A. Dilts of Holloway Church pronouncing the benediction.

Slate of Officers

The complete slate of officers appointed at the rally was as follows:

Hon. pres., Rev. H. H. Hillis; past pres., Earl Dafoe; president, Ray Gunsolus; vice president, Harold Hagerman of Stirling; sec. treas., Doris Scott, Foxboro; citizenship convener, Douglas Harder, Sidney; fellowship convener, Anita Calvert, Sidney; leadership convener, Rev. J. R. Trumpour, Cannifton; mission convener, Doreen Frederick, Holloway Street Church; recreation convener, Wilhemina Huffman, Moira; culture convener, Isabel Hearn, Trenton, and publications convener, Thelma Schievert, Tabernacle.

32 Jap Vessels Destroyed By American Subs

Washington, Oct. 18 —(AP)— Destruction of 32 Japanese vessels including seven warships, by American submarines, was reported today by Navy Secretary Forrestal.

The Secretary also announced that 905 enemy ships have been sunk or damaged by the 3rd and 5th U. S. fleets in the last four and one-half months.

Planes and anti-aircraft guns of the 3rd and 5th fleets since last June have destroyed 3,080 Japanese planes, including 1,827 shot out of the air and 1,253 destroyed on the ground, he told a press conference.

The bag of the American submarines, he reported, included three destroyers, three escort vessels, and a minelayer, in addition to 25 merchant vessels of various types.

This raises to 956 the number of Japanese ships of all types destroyed by American submarines since the war started.

BRITISH OFFICER COURT-MARTIALED

London, Oct. 18 (CP)—The War Office disclosed today that Capt. William Douglas Home, 32, of the Royal Armored Corps, had been court-martialed in Belgium for refusing to obey a lawful command. The court's findings will be announced later. Son of the Earl of Home, he was educated at Eton and Oxford.

Last month, a letter written by Capt. Home was published in a Maidenhead newspaper telling why he "refused to fight."

"When ordered to attack Le Havre," he wrote, "I refused to do so because, rightly or wrongly, I could not bring myself to take part in an operation against troops who admittedly did not want to fight, but whose commanded refused to accept 'unconditional surrender'."

Taggart Says Export Markets Must Be Found

Quebec, Oct. 18 —(CP)— J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Federal Agricultural Prices Support Board, said today in a speech prepared for delivery before the Union of Canadian Catholic Farmers that Canadian agriculture must continue to find export markets for the production of nearly half the acreage of cultivated land.

If there were "reasonable willingness" among world peoples to trade with each other, after the war then the task of supporting agricultural prices in Canada would be relatively simple and a period of great agricultural prosperity was in sight.

But if isolationism and trade barriers again become the accepted rule in the major industrial nations, the prospect for agricultural prosperity was "bleak indeed." Agriculture could survive only by submitting to the severest form of regimentation and undertaking many "unnatural forms of production under authoritative government orders," he said.

"In our own interests, therefore, as well as in the common interests of mankind, we must continue to fight for a speedy victory, for a just peace, and equitable economic relations among the nations."

Heads Board

Mr. Taggart heads a board established at the last session of parliament with authority to support farm prices by buying products at defined prices.

Mr. Taggart said the Board had no authority to deprive the producer of the right to determine how his products should be marketed and handled, but would merely be an agency which had the power to purchase products wherever necessary to support reasonable minimum prices.

The Board also could establish a fair price for an agricultural product. Producers and processors would proceed to sell the product in the normal way to the best possible advantage. Periodically the average price realized by all producers would be determined, and if the average price were less than the fair minimum price then the Board would pay to the producer of his agent the difference between the two.

"It is thought that this method may have particular value in the case of such a product as cheese. The producer or cheese operator would have every incentive to get the highest possible price for his own product, because the amount paid him by the Board would be based on average prices, so that the operator who sold to good advantage would benefit thereby.

"It is recognized, of course, that this particular method might not be suitable for application to products which have a very wide seasonal variation."

GERMAN WOMEN TAKEN CAPTIVE

Marching quickly ahead with their hands held high over their heads in token of surrender, these two German women were seized after they were found with German marines at Brest, France. They were marched with other prisoners of war to the rear lines of the Allied troops who were moving into the city.

RELIEVING THE TENSION

These two lads are tough, they have to be. Members of one of Canada's famous tank regiments, they indulge here in a few minutes of "horse-play" in front of their tank, in Holland, with Dutch head-dress tucked into their berets. Canadian army cameraman caught this post somewhere in Holland.

Some day the story will be told and these battle wagons will get their proper place in history.

The entire eastern front of the war in Europe is encompased by this map. The last European ally of the besieged Reich, Hungary, has sought a truce with the Allies even as the Russians push ahead on a 2,000-mile front toward the back door to Berlin. In the north, the Red army follows up its successes at Riga with renewed pressure against East Prussia and in the south, the outskirts of Belgrade have been reached.

WARNING AGAINST FURTHER BURDENS ON REAL ESTATE

Full Employment Seen Through Expansion of Private Industry

Toronto, Oct. 18 —(CP)— Post-war plans Ontario municipalities must make to ensure full employment through expansion of private industry were stressed here today at the opening session of a two-day meeting of the Annual Conference of Ontario Mayors and Reeves.

Employment problems after the war were discussed in addresses by Mayor W. Garfield Case of Owen Sound, president of the Conference and by Mayor Fred J. Conboy who welcomed the delegates to Toronto.

In the president's address, Mayor Case warned municipal leaders to avoid further burdens upon real estate and industry after the war on penalty of discouraging private industry.

"There is more than one way to bring about state socialism," he said. "One method—one we recognize in the open — is to advocate public ownership of everything. A more subtle method is to keep on increasing taxation until everyone will be working for the government and private enterprise will become discouraged, home ownership abandoned and we will have a socialistic states in all its realities."

Predictions

Mayor Case predicted in the post-war period a "cutting down of provincial authority, an expansion of county councils and other municipal authority in order that we might avoid duplication of services."

A means of providing full employment, Mayor Case said, would be reclamation of lands now unsuitable for agriculture but ideal for national park projects. He suggested as a reclamation project the area near Dundalk, Ont., where the Grand and Credit rivers have their source. This area might be converted to a National Park of 35,000 acres, he said.

He said municipal officials should leave the conference prepared to plan for provision of employment for members of the armed forces after the war.

Post-war traffic problems were discussed during the morning session by H. C. Fester of the Ontario Traffic League. He said municipal leaders could solve their local safety problems by adopting a safety commission similar to that in Kingsville, Ont., where citizens act as voluntary commissioners for prevention of traffic and other hazards.

Movies Can Accomplish Powerful Influence

Toronto, Oct. 17 —(CP)— Alexander Knox, native of Strathroy, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, said in an interview yesterday that Hollywood is a powerful influence in shaping public opinion that intelligent people should support the type of movie which speaks for progress and public betterment.

Mr. Knox in Toronto in connection with the Seventh Victory Loan campaign, played Woodrow Wilson in the movie "Wilson," which is establishing box office records in the United States.

While the Hollywood movie industry is not perfect, it has performed some wonderful jobs and can accomplish new wonders with intelligent support, he added.

Shirley warned her French-Canadian fans not to expect too much of the speech she plans to make to them in Montreal this week for she has been learning the language "from an Englishwoman who speaks French with a decided English accent . . ."

Schelde Pocket Steadily Shrinks Scene Like Handful of Fireflies

By ALAN RANDAL
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Holland, Oct. 18 — (CP Cable)— Everywhere in the Schelde pocket which gradually is shrinking under constant battering by Canadian Infantry, units tell the same story of fierce fighting for every foot of ground gained.

And at night this sector looks like a huge handul of fireflies as Canadian infantrymen creep out to ditches and haysticks to flush out Germans, may of them snipers, with flames.

The Germans—men of the crack 64th division which has been ordered to fight or die — are not even paying attention to the Red Cross flag, to stretcher bearers or ambulance jeeps, said the Lieutenant-Colonel of a Maritime Infantry Battalion.

He and his men have been fighting here for six days and nights. They had a major role in the drive southward from the Schelde estuary coast between Biervliet and the sea to link up with Canadians holding positions in the south near the eastern end of the Leopold canal and thus open a land route into the Schelde pocket for supplies.

Attitude of Nazi Prisoners.

Every day and night they are killing Germans. Every day and night they are taking prisoners. "These Germans don't do what you expect trained troops to do" said the Colonel. "They seem quite ready to die. Some prisoners, especially those from a paratroop training outfit we have encountered, won't even give their names and say they are still sure Germany will win."

At one point on the way past Biervliet, a carrier section under Capt. Bud Williamson of Campbellton, N. B., got right into a village, flushing out a good many Germans as they went. But once they were in, said the Lieutenant-Colonel, they couldn't get out. There were enough Germans in the village to hold the Canadians inside for three hours, sniping and machine-gunning them all the time.

Take Care of 'Dead' Germans Who Start to Shoot.

Finally a company went in to help them out and on the village outskirts they saw many Germans lying in the fields. They looked dead enough to suit anybody.

"But it shows the kind of fighters they are," said the Colonel. "Fortunately some of our fellows kept watching these 'dead' Germans and saw them start to rise to shoot. We were able to take care of them and then we were in that village for keeps."

Kiwanis Delegates Give Report Of Quebec Meeting

Three delegates to the district convention of the Kiwanis Club held at Quebec, President Jack McVeigh, Ross Stiver and Herb Reed, gave an account of the meeting to members of the club at the weekly luncheon held at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Each member took a part of the proceedings and a most graphic and at the same time interesting account was given. Each speaker stressed the goodwill that existed between the English and French-speaking delegates and the consensus of opinion at the convention was that the best of relationship exists between the English and French-speaking provinces and any difference can be ironed out by better understanding of each other's problems.

President McVeigh spoke of the adoption ceremony which is to take place at Kingston on Sunday when the corvette "Belleville" will be adopted by the Corporation. The boat will be open for inspection from ten until three o'clock on Sunday. The President also asked all members of the club to assist the Kinsmen Club in their "Shell Out" party to be held in the Armouries on Hallowe'en night.

The final election for the eight directors of the club for the ensuing year was completed and Gordon Barclay, Taylor Franklin, Archie Harris, Lorne McDougall, Herb Reed, Ross Stiver, Mark Vanner and Jack White were elected. This new board will meet in the near future to select a president for the next term. In the report by the delegates it was shown that the chief concern of the district is the rehabilitation of wounded veterans into civilian life. This will be one of the great tasks of Kiwanis said the president. At the present time there are sixty clubs in the district with a membership of 4,284.

Wounded Servicemen Tell Vivid Stories of Fighting in Italy, France

By JOHN LeBLANC
(CP Staff Writer)

Halifax, Oct. 18 —(CP)— Hundreds of wounded Canadian servicemen—including Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller—streamed ashore from the hospital ship Lady Nelson today with stories of the bitter fighting in France and Italy that had sent them back home as casualties.

About 500 members of the army and air force returned to Canada aboard the hospital ship. One of the casualties from France was Gen. Keller, wounded when an American bombardment fell short of its objective and landed among Canadian troops.

Gen. Keller, who led the 3rd Division into France, was the first officer of his rank to come back to the Dominion.

Other soldiers wounded in the same tragic error came home on the Nelson.

The Nazi practice of booby-trapping some of their own wounded was described by Sgt. Ted Cix of Toronto, a member of the Royal Canadian Engineers, whose job in France was clearing mines and booby traps.

"When the man would be moved by stretcher bearers, they'd all be blown up," he said.

"Last man on the pay list and first to get crocked, that's me," explained Gnr. Clare Zuefle, of Hensall, Ont., who was in France less than 24 hours before becoming a casualty. Lying in bed with a cast about his left leg, he explained how it happened.

"Another fellow walking along just ahead of me picked up a German mortar shell, apparently a dud. He tossed it aside. It wasn't a dud; it was a booby trap. It landed about 12 feet from me, and I found myself going straight up in the air."

The gunner had his leg shattered, and a piece of steel went through his windpipe.

On an adjoining cot, Rfn. Frank Spingman, of Chatham, Ont., both legs in a cast, told of his own narrow escape from death in the blast of an 88 shell.

"Failing to follow out an order saved my life," recounted the good-looking kid from the Queen's Own Rifles. "I was driving a truck, and after an officer had told me to park it somewhere else, I put it right in front of the door of a house near Caen. Later, I was standing just inside the door of the house when the shell landed smack on the truck. If the truck hadn't been there, it would have come right in the door after me."

The truck was loaded with small arms ammunition and gasoline, Springman said, and in a moment the house was drenched with blazing gasoline and echoing to the popping of heat-exploded bullets. Five men playing poker in the building were wounded, but none was killed.

"They curse me plenty for leaving the truck there, though," said Spingman, whose right knee and left leg were broken, "for there were 15,000 good cigarettes aboard."

Safer Up Front.

"The hell of it is," said the rifleman, "that all this happened two miles behind the lines, after I'd spent two months at the front without a scratch. I think you're safer up front."

A victim of "Moaning Minnie"—the Nazis' multi-barrelled mortar—was Rfn. Bruce Alderton of Owen Sound, Ont., he is a member of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles—the "little Black Devils."

Rfn. Alderton was hit as his unit was moving up for an attack an Carpiquet airport, near Caen, on July 6.

Several members of the 1st Special Service Force were in the movement, wearing the "U.S.-Canada" insignia and the paratroopers' wings of the unit. Most of them had served in Kiska and Italy, and all had been wounded, though none seriously, in Italy.

They included Sgt. P. A. Maerbeek, of Goderich, Ont., and Pte. Leonard McAdam, Chatham, Ont.

Won in Crap Game.

Pte. McAdam was wearing a six-inch string of ribons across his chest. "Won 'em in a crap game," he said. Companions explained that, besides the Canadian overseas ribbon, they were the Asiatic-Pacific and European service awards of the American army.

"They're good fellows to fight with, the Americans," said Sgt. Maerbeek. "The trouble was, we had officers of both armies over us, so we couldn't get away with a thing."

All of the special service men aboard, had taken part in the bloody fighting about Cassino and had fought their way to Rome from the Anzio beachhead.

Only survivor of a tank crew blasted by 88-millimetre shellfire was Tpr. Roy James of Orangeville, Ont., who was attached to an armored brigade headquarters. Five men were in the tank with him when it came under fire at Falaise.

Shell fire from an 88 had put BSM. Ross Gibson of Listowel, Ont., out of commission. He was wounded in the foot near Falaise while serving with a medium artillery unit.

Favor New Route From Port Hope To Trenton

Toronto, Oct. 18 —(CP)— A new route for the proposed dual highway on the section between Port Hope and Trenton was urged upon Minister of Highways G. H. Doucett today at Queens Park by W. A. Goodfellow, Progressive Conservative member for Northumberland, and a deputation of 40 from the county, including Warden L. E. Kelly of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham. Mr. Doucett agreed to consider the change.

Mr. Goodfellow said the deputation urges that this 32-mile section of the road be routed straight from Welcome, just north of Port Hope to a point north of the Trenton airport. The proposed survey takes a route south from Welcome, crossing the railway twice then slightly north again to Trenton.

The straight aligament Mr. Goodfellow said would serve the 15,000 people in the district better than if they followed the proposed survey. It would be less costly and would remove the proposed cost of nearly $1,000,000 for two clover leafs crossing the railway.

No Complacency

General A. G. L. McNaughton in a radio broadcast from Ottawa has warned against any spirit of complacency on the part of the public in respect to complete and total support of the war effort. His advice to the Canadian people called for sustained effort in supporting the fighting men overseas. At this time victory is in sight but it has been emphasized by the leaders that there is a hard fight ahead which will culminate in the victory for which the world of free men is looking and praying.

To emphasize his point the former commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, Gen. McNaughton, emphasized that "the Nazi fights to gain time to reorganize his armies; to complete new weapons perhaps of dreadful power; to build defences in the field to bar our progress; to create his forces underground for sabotage and murder."

With this striking statement he spoke of the object of the Allied nations: "The Allied armies strive with all their might to break him finally before this can be can be done or else we face a struggle long drawn out in a different, more subtle, more dangerous kind of war."

Emphasizing this point Gen. McNaughton remarked, "I give you this picture of the situation as it exists, to prove to you that there are no real grounds, as yet, for any complacency and while I am certain that the end of the war in Europe is in sight, we must not, as matters stand, relax in any way the attention and support we owe to our men and women in the field who carry forward this struggle on our behalf. And least of all must we neglect any preparation which is related to the care of those who are wounded in the fight." He was speaking of the need of blood plasma used in ever increasing quantities as the struggle becomes more bitter.

The General pointed to the fact that, "now with the progress of the war a feeling of undue optimism seems to have spread" and he mentioned apathy in the promised attendance of civilian donors at blood clinics. 'The supply has fallen to the point of danger." Prompt correction of this situation is necessary, he made clear.

That alone would indicate what the sense of complacency can lead to. The vital essentials of everything that is needed for the prosecution of the struggle until the victory is achieved must be borne in on every mind. The more complete the cooperation in the war effort in its every phase the sooner will come the end of the struggle which will mean of course the saving of lives.

It is realized that after Germany is defeated time will elapse before Japan will be crushed. Opinion varies how long that period of time will be, and no one can say for certain, for into war there enter so many imponderables. So there must be no slackening of effort. With the fullest endeavor the full fruition of the self-sacrificing service of the forces on the battle fronts will be achieved.

At the present time Canadians are waiting for the opening of the Seventh Victory Loan which will be launched on Monday. Putting this financial effort of the Dominion over the top will be one of the successful means of bringing victory at the earliest possible time. There must be no hesitation, no too careful weighing but the spontaneous total participation in the issue by all Canadians. They make possible the fullest use of that great fighting organization, the Canadian army, which is fighting in Italy and in Western Europe for the highest reward of a democratic and free people—victory and security of all that liberty means to every citizen.

General McNaughton's appeal to Canadians on the need of blood donations and his general warning against allowing any slackening of effort to develop will help to rouse Canadian effort to the fullest expression of the power and spirit as well as of the use to the fullest of the material resources of Canada for the sake of a free world.

Artificial Harbors

There have been many achievements of this war and of these the building of two artificial harbors by the Allies to be towed to the coast of Normandy was one of the undertakings that will have a place in history. While one of the "harbors" was wrecked before completion but not before it had helped to pour a steady stream of men and weapons and mechanism into Normandy, the other was completed so that it became a port as large as Dover.

Here again Allied ingenuity and foresight won a great victory over the Germans for the undertaking is credited with making "possible the liberation of Western Europe." In the history of war there have been many intriguing efforts of great military minds but this one will stand out in great prominence for the part it helped to play in bringing victory in the greatest of wars. In itself it is a proof of the vastness of the Allied effort and of the farseeing engineering efforts which have been made in this conflict.

"Monty" and His Pets

(Hamilton Spectator)

To be kind to animals is no sign of weakness. On the contrary! Note the boy—or man—who acts cruelly towards defenceless creatures, and it will almost invariably be found that he is a coward and a bully. On the other hand, men of heroic mould are generally fond of pets, for humaneness goes with a brave and noble disposition. What manlier example could be given than that of Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery, who has gained so many glorious victories in this war? A hard fighter, who lives a Spartan life with his troops in the field, enduring with them the discomforts and perils of this ferocious military struggle—whether on the hot sands of the African desert, or on the gory battlefields of Continental Europe—he yet has his tender, gentle side. Even when planning and directing a campaign, he has cages of love-birds and canaries hung in his caravan, to delight his eyes and ears, and refresh his spirit in the midst of war's distractions. Also, he takes with him to the front his beloved dogs, with which he finds time to play, busy as he is, and to seek relaxation. The Field Marshal evidently likes to have his little joke, too; his two favorite dogs, it is said, have been named by him "Hitler" and Rommel!"

Those who are truly brave are people of feeling, who steel themselves in a crisis to the stern performance of duty.

Urban Nightingales

(British Information Services)

The nightingale may not sing in Berkeley Square, but nightingales are singing in other urban areas where they have never been heard before.

Many people have reported hearing and seeing the nightingale in their gardens or pieces of waste land with only a shrub or two to provide a "stage." Some pairs have even nested in gardens near London, offering, in return, day and night entertainment for the householders.

From the Home Counties, particularly Sussex and Surrey, have come reports that never have so many nightingales been heard before.

The reason for this apparent urbanization and concentrations of our most strident songster, experts on bird life say, is that the war caused a redistribution of all our birds.

Nightingales are no more abundant, but they have had to "evacuate" their favorite haunts through the felling of trees and the clearing of land for agricultural or other purposes.

So they have moved nearer to the towns and, like many of us in wartime, have had to get together and make the most of available accommodations.

They have come back from Africa this year to find a housing shortage, and they are remarkably cheerful about it. An odd thing about nightingales, and other song birds, too, is that they are unperturbed by the noises of war.

Hedge-hopping fighter planes may roar just over their heads, and they will not even pause in their song, let alone forsake the bush they have selected. They set an example in calmness and adaptability.

THE UNATTAINABLE

Life wisely holds for all, and each,
A goal forever out of reach;
A glimpse of better things to be
Which man far off can dimly see,
For which he'll strive, with might and main,
But never be allowed to gain.

The task completed holds no more
The fierce enchantments of before;
The dream accomplished joins the past
And commonplace becomes at last.
Thus man must keep for life's long length
Some goal that lies beyond his strength.

Always tomorrow's rising sun
Must shine on glory still unwon,
With hopes that time and strength remain
Enough some further goal to gain.
For strip from life its holy grail
And 'twould be dreary, dull and stale.

HUNS FEAR REVOLT OF NORWEGIANS; EXPLOSION NEAR

More Than 1,000 Hostages Seized by Enemy in Last Few Weeks

SABOTAGE GROWS

By EDWIN SHANKE
(AP Staff Writer)

Stockholm, Oct. 18 — (AP)—Conditions in Norway are fast approaching an explosion. The Germans, fearing revolt, are attempting to smash the home front organization with increased terror.

Norwegian Legation sources said today more than 1,000 Norwegian hostages have been seized in the last few weeks. Arrests as often as possible are made of likely underground leaders. Prisons and concentration camps are filled. Grini, the most notorious, near Oslo, is packed with 3,000 captives.

Norwegian sources say German patrols search homes and gathering places day and night and that very often Norwegians are shot "by mistake."

Germans Move Together Into Houses

Violent sabotage is increasing in addition to the passive resistance and causing nervousness among the Nazi occupants, who are tightening restrictive measures. The Norwegians said they had accurate information showing the Germans were moving together into selected apartment houses after ordering out the Norwegians. Nazi suicide squads could convert such buildings into defence strongholds.

As early as Sept. 19, the first shipload of German women and children was sent home suggesting the Nazis anticipated a showdown.

There are no signs, however, of any extensive withdrawal of German troops from Norway, Legation sources said. Troops withdrawn usually are small units and replaced with green soldiers.

Police Probing Baffling Murder

Toronto, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Investigation of the baffling murder of Mrs. Maxime Goch, 50-year-old housewife, at her home yesterday in suburban Swansea was continued today by Swansea police with the assistance of Inspector E. C. Gurnett of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Mrs. Goch's body was found by her two sons, Bill, 37, and Mike 31, when they returned from work. She had been smothered to death by an army greatcoat which was tied around her head with three neckties, all tied from behind. Her hands and ankles were bound with ropes and police said there was no indication of a struggle.

Her husband also was at work, the sons said.

The greatcoat belonged to Bill who had been in the Royal Canadian Engineers but had been discharged, said Mike. The neckties came from a collection of old ties in the cellar.

Particularly baffling to police was the fact that $600 in cash in a trunk upstairs in the house and other money and valuables were untouched. Mike suggested that "Maybe they got scared when they realized what they did."

The Goch family came from Russia to Canada in 1927, living first in Winnipeg and then coming to Toronto eight years ago.

Neighbors said they had seen Mrs. Goch hanging out a washing during the afternoon and police said some washing was still in the laundryroom near where the body was discovered.

Cornwall Private Kills 26 Germans

With the 1st Canadian Army in Holland, Oct. 17 —(delayed)—(CP Cable)—Private Romeo Carriere of Cornwall, Ont., ran his score of Germans killed in the Schelde pocket to 26 confirmed by this (Tuesday) morning and the total may have gone higher since.

Carriere is a gunner in a flame-shooting carrier driven by Pte. Ivan White of Orillia, Ont.

Together they make a great team. At the headquarters of an Eastern Ontario Battalion they told how the other day White had been doing a lot of flame-throwing and finally used up his flames on some trenches near a dike. They came popping up out of the ground at a dead run.

"They didn't get far," said Capt. Reg Smith of Pembroke, Ont.

Carriere just steadied up behind his Bren gun and went right down the German line.

"The Germans went down like nine-pins one after another," said Smith, who is in charge of these flame-throwers. "That gave Carriere 26 but I think White should share in them."

BLACK AND BLUE MARKS

One article you printed long ago is missing from my scrapbook and I have been hoping you might tell more of the subject some time. It is about the appearance of black and blue marks on the skin as though the flesh had been bruised.

(Mrs. H. C.)

Such "black and blue" marks appear without evident cause or following trifling injury when the individual has scurvy. Manifest scurvy (scorbutus, as doctors call it) is a nutritional deficiency disease occurring most frequently, in this country, in infants who are fed too exclusively with canned or sterilized or pasteurized milk and not supplied with a daily ration of tomato juice (fresh or commercial canned), orange juice or other fresh fruit juice.

Then a less manifest scurvy not rarely develops in a person, young or old, whose diet is too rigidly restricted for weeks or months, either from lack of proper food or from ill-advised effort to reduce or to avoid foods the uninformed deems "undigestible", "mucus - forming", "acid" or "too coarse".

This latter mild scurvy may go unrecognized. It accounts for false suspicions or open charges of abuse or brutality in institutions where inmates or patients are fed too exclusively with "groceries", sterilized or cooked or pasteurized or canned food, and too little fresh fruit, fresh greens or vegetables are supplied to prevent scurvy.

Scurvy, due to insufficient intake of vitamin C (chemically known as ascorbic acid), is not the only explanation for the tendency to get such "black and blue" marks from trifling injury. Another nutritional deficiency which is far more common among all classes of people in the United States and Canada may contribute to the same tendency to bleed under the skin (for it is bleeding from minute vessels under the skin that produces the discoloration, just as in "black eye"). This is calcium deficiency. The refined diet of most North Americans is more likely to be deficient in calcium than in any other essential element. One characteristic effect of calcium deficiency is prolonged clotting time—tendency to bleed too easily.

So the appearance of black and blue marks or spots, or minute extravasations of blood under the skin or perhaps under the covering of eyeball or under mucous membrane, without apparent injury, indicates (as doctors say) immediate large increase in intake of vitamin C, calcium and of course vitamin D to insure assimilation of the calcium.

Questions and Answers.

Child Has Hernia.

Our doctor whom I admire and respect (next to you) has advised surgery for our five-year-old daughter's hernia. We should like to know whether the injection treatment you recommend can be given a child with reasonable chance of success.

(Mrs. K. M.)

Answer—A physician skilled in the technique can effect cure in many cases in children with a few injections.

Please Excuse My Grin.

Five years passed since we married and we began to despair. . . but our hearts are happy now because we expect our baby to arrive about the end of March. I'm 35 and I wonder if I can get through it without the hard time so many elderly women have at first childbirth.

(Mrs. H. L.)

Answer—From 35 to 40 a woman should be in her prime. The notion that the first childbirth is likely to be an ordeal if the woman is over 35 is not based on fact. The subject is discussed in booklet "Preparing for Maternity"—for copy send ten cents and stamped self-addressed envelope. Good reading for any expectant mother — "Childbirth Without Fear" by Grantly Dick Read, M.A., M.D., Harper and Broc.

Lucky Kids.

Our two kids are being raised on your teachings. They are 5 and 8, and they wear or leave off what they please in every kind of weather, rarely have even a little cri, and everybody remarks on what surdy, healthy children they are. Thanks a million. In our home if Doc Brady says it's so it's so.

(Mrs. M. J.)

Answer—May I congratulate the kids on their selection of parents?

LONDON LETTER

By FRANK LOWE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 18 — (CP) — W.Y.P.A.P.I.T.B.I.I.T.Y.—On those initials a London pub keeper has built a career.

Right now he keeps a pub, a jam-packed one, in the heart of London. You turn left at Buckingham Palace, skirt a bomb ruin, turn right at Dirty Dick's and "you caun't miss it." And once you're inside, and if you want to know, he will tell you how a set of initials started a butcher's delivery boy on the road to ease and comfort as proprietor of a tavern.

He'll swish a cloth over the bar to make a dry spot for his elbows, scratch his head reflectively as though he didn't know from memory what he was going to say and invariably start with "Well, I was a butcher's delivery boy at the time, about 30 years ago, and I wasn't earning enough money."

From then until he lets out a raucous "time gentlemen" he can't be stopped; even dishing out suds for his thirsty customers only slows him down temporarily.

He points to a card with the initials, "W.Y.P.A.P.I.T.B.I.I.T.Y." and, with a grin, says: "They mean 'Will you put a penny in the box if I tell you.'" so sheepishly, you put a penny in the donation box and wait for the explanation.

It seems that in the village where he was delivering chops and steaks the local pub-owner was annoyed because his customers were not slipping their pennies into a box put there to help a charity. So the first sign was born—two weeks after it went up the box had to be emptied as every visitor of the pub had looked, wondered, asked and paid the penny as the price of their curiosity.

The butcher's delivery boy thought he had something there. He was right.

The next time a charity drive came up he offered his services—for so much of the take—for money-raising purposes. This time he didn't stick to his home village—he went to about 10 neighboring villages and in every pub put up the sign with the initials.

The response was even better and charity was happy and so was the by now ex-butcher's delivery boy. Curiosity and pennies seemed to offer a good living, so he started travelling around England. And as English pubs are innumerable and the gullibility of their patrons inexhaustible, he rapidly increased in wealth.

Finally, however, the wandering life lost its charm. So he fulfilled the ambition of every Englishman and bought a pub in London.

And there he is today with the W.Y.P.A.P.I.T.B.I.I.T.Y. behind him. "I keep it strictly for sentimental reasons," he said, "and don't make any money off it now. Everything that goes in the box goes to the Red Cross."

WHAT MOSQUITOES EAT

What do mosquitoes eat where there are no people to bite?

This question is interesting because mosquitoes seem to be always ready to bite human beings and animals and to suck blood from them notwithstanding the fact that in many cases the insects could not possibly have ever tasted such food before.

There are at least 1,500 known varieties of mosquitoes and there is hardly a place on the earth where they are not found.

Entomologists are not yet familiar with the feeding habits of all species. Mosquitoes are common not only in the vast deserts, where they breed and develop rapidly in temporary pools, but also in the arctic regions, where they breed in icy waters from melting snow.

In no known species is the male equipped with the piercing mandibles necessary for blood-sucking and it never bites human beings or animals. So far as known, the male is a vegetarian and feeds largely on the sweet juices of plants.

Apparently the female also subsists on a similar diet in the absence of blood. Experts say some mosquitoes reproduce without partaking of blood meals. In certain cases the insects while still in the larva stages seem to store up a sufficient food supply to develop eggs. In other cases adult mosquitoes may partake of the sap of plants.

But it is believed that most mosquitoes must have blood to reproduce successfully.

It is hard to see how the hordes of mosquitoes in the arctic regions can be maintained on the animal life available. Somehow they manage to survive by biting the few warm-blooded animals as well as some of the cold-blooded ones.

Mortality among mosquitoes is high and the scarcity of their essential food in the far north probably accounts for their ferocity.

Tag Day Results

It was announced last night, that the sum of $353. was realized from the tag day held by the W. H. A. for Prince Edward County hospital. New Use For Whey

Whey from Prince Edward County cheese factories, used for the feeding of hogs, has a new use now. By a special process, it is manufactured into a sugar which is used to preserve the wonder drug, Penicillin. Whey from several factories is to be taken to Quinte Dairy Products Ltd. at Wellington where special equipment has been installed for processing. It is understood that much of the sugar will go to the United States for the present. The Wellington plant is said to be the second one in Canada equipped for this manufacture, the other being at Cornwall.

In lieu of whey, farmers will receive eight cents for hundredweight extra for their milk.

The first whey for this purpose was collected yesterday and the amount will be increased next week.

Mayor James Inrig, who has been stationed at Kingston for the past three years, has received his discharge from the army and yesterday resumed management of his drug store here. George Anderson, who has been manager during his absence, is leaving to accept a position as traveller with a London firm. At the Kinsmen Club Monday night, he was presented with an engraved silver tray.

Tourist Travel To Be Encouraged Says D. R. Oliver

Picton, Oct. 18—Plans for the continued development of the tourist industry in Ontario were outlined in an address by Douglas R. Oliver, Toronto, Director of Travel and Publicity for the Province, in an address at Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Guests were operators of tourist hotels and homes in the district.

Plans for the future, said Mr. Oliver, include a chain of tourist information bureaus at border crossing points, development of distinctive Ontario dishes, courses of training in hotel and guide work; courses to develop local handicraft, marking of historical sites.

A permanent tourist co-operative committee is being set up to represent all sections of the Province said Mr. Oliver, who announced that L. B. Calnan would be the local representative.

Mr. Oliver pointed out that the tourist business is a big one and an asset to be more fully developed after the war. In an ordinary year, U.S. fishermen and hunters spend 20 million dollars in Ontario. There had been 10,350 requests for copies of Ontario's recently published booklet, "Plan a Cabin of Your Own." bringing total requests to nearly 30,000.

In post-war years, we realize that there is need to be on guard so as to regulate the traffic by aeroplane that the tourist hotel or home operator will not suffer, said Mr. Oliver.

In Ontario, there is a general need for additional accommodation. This should be kept at a high standard, he urged. The development of the tourist business should belong to our own residents, and the boys coming back from the armed forces, and not the wealthy U. S residents, the speaker thought.

D. Baxter, president of the Chamber, presided. L. B. Calnan introduced Mr. Oliver and H. B. Tully and Mayor N. McKibbon expressed appreciation.

A resolution passed by the meeting embodied the points of enlarging accommodation in Prince Edward; extending the holiday season by catering to autumn fishing and duck hunting parties, additional road signs; licensing of tourist places; featuring county products on menus; protection of game fish.

Huge Quantities Of Canned Goods Shipped Daily

Picton, Oct. 18 — Huge quantities of canned goods are leaving Picton harbor almost daily, and there is every prospect of shipping records of past years being smashed. It is also doubtful if all the canned pack can be shipped this way.

Picton has the chief deep water harbor in this district and canned goods are trucked here for water shipment from as far west as Bowmanville and from Frankford south. The largest freighters find no difficulty calling here.

Arriving Saturday evening, the C.S.L. freighter Selkirk loaded 790 tons of canned goods for the west. This cargo alone represents some 33,000 cases or 792,000 single cans, chiefly tomatoes. Leaving Monday night, workmen, who had labored 28 hours, were called upon to help load a similar cargo on the Canadian, east-bound. Then yesterday, the Edmonton, east bound, took on another big cargo. In spite of the rush, no labor problem is experienced. Farmers, with the busy season over, and many members of the Royal Air Force here, join with local laborers in the task which is lightened by the use of steel rollers and conveyors. Formerly, two-wheeled push trucks were used to haul the cases to the boats.

In spite of heavy loadings, the warehouses remained filled, as trucks bring in new loads for shipment.

There was a very heavy pack of tomatoes in the district this year as frosts held off until the entire crop was harvested. Packs of other crops were also good, as increased acreage balanced a drop in yields of some crops.

Two local married women appeared on a charge of shop-lifting and were given one month suspended sentence and ordered to pay $6.75 costs each.

Four teen-age boys appeared on a charge of gambling and were given a month's suspended sentence and ordered to pay $4.50 each. A fifth lad did not appear, but on request of his Counsel, Col. H. J. Smith, had his case enlarged for a week. The Magistrate gave the youths a severe lecture and told them that as this was their first offence he would make the penalty very light.

Four were fined the usual $10.00 and costs for breach of the Liquor Control Act, and one paid $2.00 for breach of the parking by-law.

Bert Campbell was fined $25.00 and costs for careless driving. He had hit a car on a service station lot and according to police evidence was considered a border-line case. He had been drinking.

Josef Valchar, speeding under the War Measures Act, paid $15.00 and costs.

R. Pluwman, $5.00 and costs for speeding.

Earl F. Townes for breach of the National Registration Regulation was fined $5.00 and $18.75 costs. Earl had loaned his National Registration certificate and his Discharge from the army to a cousin who was a deserter from the army and who was travelling under Earl's name. When the cousin was arrested recently it was discovered he was in possession of Earl's papers.

John Bolster, charged with assault was ordered to pay $15.25 costs.

P. Lawson was fined $5.00 and costs for disorderly conduct.

Bernard Hearns, paid $5.00 and costs for speeding.

Walter Connely Fractures Leg

Trenton, Oct. 18—Walter Connely, Bannockburn, received a fractured left leg Tuesday afternoon when the Canadian National Railways gasoline car on which he was riding into the Trenton station was struck by a car driven by Miss Marguerite Wright of R.R. No. 4, Carrying Place.

Connely, along with Henry Dwyer, 72 Murphy St., Trenton, George Caldwell, 22 Princess St., Trenton, and John Nancarrow, Wooler Road, were on the gas car proceeding across Dundas St., and it is alleged Miss Wright did not notice the car as she approached the crossing. Nancarrow suffered minor bruises but the two other men were uninjured.

Miss Wright was uninjured but a woman passenger in her car Mrs. Fairman, also of Carrying Place, received bruises about the forehead and a sprained ankle, while the grill, bumper, right front tire and radiator of the car were badly damaged.

The injured were taken to the office of Dr. J. W. Farley, where they were treated and Connely was later removed to Belleville General Hospital.

Member of Haida Crew on Leave

Trenton, Oct. 18— Petty Officer Robert E. Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Armstrong, King St., is spending a well-earned leave with his parents and other members of the family.

A member of the famous "Haida" crew Bob has seen plenty of action in the past few months. He left an English port three days previous to "D" Day and with other Allied ships cleared the channel for the Invasion crossing. Later they assisted in rescuing survivors of the Athabaskan which was sunk during enemy action, and took part in the sinking of several German subs and surface craft. Bob says it's all in a day's work, though, but gives high praise to his superior officers especially, Commander De Wolfe.

Some of his prized possessions are half packets of Canadian cigarettes given him by German prisoners, picked up by the Haida. These Germans, he says, seem invariably to have Canadian cigs or candy bars, possibly taken from Canadian lads who have previously been prisoners.

Two brothers of P.O. Armstrong are also in the service, Flying Officer Don Armstrong is with the R. C. A. F. on the East Coast and Pte. Norman Armstrong is in the Canadian Army.

He's sending a parcel overseas

Some lucky fellow will get it, and it will bring back to him memories of home—crunchy maple sugar to remind him of Canada, gum and chocolate bars; canned fruit which will make him think of branches heavy with apples, peaches or cherries. That parcel will bring more than something to eat; it will bring Canada into his heart and make him feel that he is not forgotten, that someone at home still thinks of him. He will do a better job and be a happier man because of that parcel Joe is sending.

Have you ever sent a parcel overseas? If you haven't, how about sending one today? Some good man deserves that little attention—he is doing so much for you and me.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Wilson and Mrs. Robert Kincaid, of Shannonville, Mrs. B. Wickens, of Frankford and Mr. John Kincaid, of Kingston, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kincaid and Clarence, Roslin.

A number of women friends assembled at the home of Mrs. James Benson, Church Street, on Tuesday evening, to bid good-bye to Mrs. Charles Keeble and Wynne, before they leave for Calgary, Alberta, to join Flt.-Sgt. Keeble. Mrs. Keeble received many personal gifts and Wynne a bath robe. The evening was spent in playing cards followed by delicious refreshments served by the hostess.

Miss Jean Insley, bride-to-be of the month, was tendered a delightfully arranged linen shower by Mrs. Franklin Martin, 277 William Street, on Tuesday evening. Twenty lady friends of the bride-elect spent a very gay time together. Prettily wrapped gifts of linenware were presented to Jean in a pink and white decorated basket for which she expressed her very warmest appreciation.

Mrs. Annie Cain, 148 Station St., entertained at a jolly birthday party on Monday afternoon in honor of her grandson, Douglas Ryan, who was marking his sixth birthday. Eight young friends of Douglas joined with him to celebrate the happy occasion. The party was spent in playing games which were enthusiastically received by all the children. The hostess served a delicious lunch, the highlight of which was a birthday cake topped with six lighted candles.

NEGLECTED AGE

No one to talk to all the day,
The friends of youth are all away;
No one to lend a listening ear
The twice-told tales to kindly hear;
No one to sit beside his chair
The gossip of the day to share;
For he is old and worn and gray
And youthful days are far away.
The busy world it passes by
Unheeding of his wistful eye;
Alone he dreams of bygone days
And walks again in youthful ways.
Once he was stalwart, strong and wise,
Ambition's fire gleamed in his eyes;
With honest hand and courage strong
He stood for right against the wrong;
And labored hard with brawn and brain
A life's ambition to attain;
A kindly husband, father, friend,
The cause of right he would defend—
But now he's old and in the way
With no one to talk to all the day.
Oh! shame that human hearts should spurn
The love for which the aged yearn!
How tenderly they need our care
Our highest thought and aim to share!
Perhaps some time we'll be as they
Feeble and worn and old and gray
With no one to talk to all the day.

FASHION FLASHES

VERY CERTAIN of admiration is a dull black satin frock, its deep square neckline outlined with a tiny edging of pleated white chiffon. The slim bodice is laced with black velvet pulled through rhinestone eyelets and finished with rhinestone tassels.

The covered-up look extends right through the fashion picture. A handsome dinner outfit has a swathed top of pink wool jersey with long tight sleeves. Five self-covered buttons from the high throat line down for fastening. Full skirt of black silk damask, held in by a wide, perfectly plain black suede belt.

New version of the untrimmed suit are constantly making fashion news. A handsome suit consists of a long-waisted blue woolen coat with sash tie-belt of blue velvet to match the blue velvet skirt.

Figure flattery is obvious in the slim, snugly-buttoned coats now seen about town. We admired one model of this order fashioned of smoky gray and black checked wool that buttons with tiny black Persian lamb-covered buttons up to a small standing collar of the fur. Two big fur patch-pockets at the hipline.

No matter the hat style, the always-right hat to finish off a tailored suit is a small felt sailor or homburg smartly veiled, the veiling tied in a neat bow and drawn under the chin.

Fine detail marks the good fur coat. A really handsome model of Somali leopard, cut on wraparound lines, has a cardigan neckline and finely pleated shoulders.

Toning Midsection Muscles

Esther Williams has a beautiful figure

By HELEN FOLLETT

LET EVERY woman who is faced with the need of daily exercise keep in mind this fact it is the midsection that requires muscle toning. Arms and legs get considerable movement during the day's activities unless one is a desk worker.

Motions that pull upon the muscles that interlace from the lower ribs to the hips aid digestion, reduce weight, act favorably upon the liver and intestinal tract, air-wash the lungs. They are good for a lot of things that ail the fair sex. They make one feel tip-top, they bring becoming coloring to the complexion.

Torso Twisting.

Torso twisting is ace high when it comes to reducing a waist line that is following a policy of expansion. Stand erect, chest high, hands on hips. Turn the body to the right as far as you can, pivoting at the waist, keeping the legs rigid then back to first position. Six times to the right, six times to the left and repeat.

Our old friend, the floor touching exercise, is splendid for trimming down inflated thighs. But there is one thing to remember: bend at the line of the hips, not at the waist else the good effects are lost. The hips are the body's hinges, and it is from the hips that the upper portion of the body should be sent forward. Touch the floor with the finger tips without bending the knees, first bringing the hands high above the head.

Brisk Walking.

Walking is an ideal exercise if accomplished with briskness and spirit. To saunter is to invite fatigue. One should move along rapidly enough to bring warmth to the flesh.

Put on sensible, low heeled, wide soled shoes. Hoist up the chest, keep the head balanced, let the arms have an easy swing. Make it a practice to breath deeply. Drinking in the air stimulates circulation, and brisk circulation means that every cell of the body is getting its full share of nourishment.

Informal Wedding in the Vestry of Church

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

A friend of mine is being married in November in the vestry of the church at an informal wedding in the morning.

1.—Could you tell me what would be correct for the groom's mother to wear? Should she wear a corsage?

2.—What would be the proper foods to serve at the reception. The wedding party will have dinner at the hotel and go to the groom's home after. Could you tell me what punch would be nice to serve with the lunch? Would you serve a salad?

Mrs. H.

1.—Seeing that it is an informal wedding, both the bride's mother and the groom's mother will wear street length ensembles. The groom is obligated to buy the corsages of both his mother and the mother of the bride.

2.—As the wedding party will have a dinner at the hotel, the most appropriate delicacies to serve at the reception at the groom's home would be tiny sandwiches, cookies, cakes, olives, pickles, etc. A punch made of fruit juices would be a very nice beverage to serve with the refreshments. As far as serving a salad, I don't think that it is necessary —what I have already mentioned is quite sufficient.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A "Patient Griselda" Answers an "Impatient Griselda"

Recently this column published a letter signed "Impatient Griselda". The lady kept a boarding house with twenty rooms and provided for a husband who "enjoyed" poor health.

The husband was addicted to making love to young ladies who occupied the less expensive rooms. And one day, when the wife was fed up with his love-making, "poor health" which kept him from getting a job and whispers among the boarders, she rented a room for him in another boarding house, and sent there his belongings.

Now it seems there are other readers of this column who have the same type of husband. They applaud "Impatient Griselda". Here's a fragment of a letter from one of them:

"When my husband paid two dollars for a marriage license, he expected to collect dividends for the rest of his life. Like your 'Impatient Griselda' I'm in the same business. No boarders but have thirteen rooms rented. My husband loves comfort, enjoys poor health, but is a great hand at making love to the roomers.

"In spite of everything, even the pawning of my possessions, I've stood it for twenty-two years. He's turned down jobs while Manpower is screaming for help, and clings to his poor health. Finally when I could stand things no longer I took my case to court, and the law decided on my side.

"This letter is just a hail and good luck to 'Impatient Griseldas' all over this country. Why should we women work our fingers to the bone, put up with infidelity, non-support and horrors I haven't even gone into, just to have things look normal to the neighbors? The neighbors pay no bills for me, and with your permission I shall sign myself Griselda-on-the-Rampage". . .

It's almost impossible to believe that while men are doing and dying overseas and unspeakable horrors exist in almost every hospital—death, amputations, frightful wounds—some able-bodied men (thank Heaven there are not many of them) will take refuge and "enjoy poor health", and permit a capable wife to support them. We're glad to hear from more of these Griselda girls and hope they'll act accordingly.

School Board Holds Box Social At Marsh Hill

The School Board of Marsh Hill School sponsored an old time Box Social in the school on Friday evening. Thirty ladies brought their boxes prettily trimmed and packed with all the good things so dear to the men folk who bid them up.

Rev. E. M. Cooke, Foxboro, was chairman of the evening and the program opened with community singing.

The following program was enjoyed: readings, Evelina Homestead, Mrs. H. Coulter, Mrs. G. Bonter; piano selections, Miss Gena Vanderwater, Miss Lois Mitts; step dance, Mr. J. Campbell and daughter, Joan; Musical numbers, Mrs. Bonter, Mr. B. Johnston and Mr. D. Bleecker.

Community singing closed the program after which Mr. W. Rodgers came forward and auctioned off the boxes. The sum of $38.50 was realised which after expenses are taken out is to be divided between Pine Grove W.I., Chatterton W.I. and Union Vale W.I.

Following the social time a number enjoyed cards and dancing.

The National Anthem closed a most successful evening. The school house presented a very pretty sight in its trimming of red, white and blue streamers.

Christmas Boxes And Ditty Bags Prepared by CWL

At the regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League in St. Michael's High School on Monday evening, Mrs. S. B. Upper presided. After the usual opening exercises, many encouraging reports were received from the members of the executive and conveners of special committees. Mrs. E. Finkle, as convener of the graduation dance, reported on the outstanding success of this event and thanked all those who helped so efficiently to make this affair such an enjoyable one. Mrs. T. Morrell as convener of the tea for the graduates, their parents and friends, expressed her gratitude for the co-operation received from all members of the league. Mrs. V. McIntyre reported on the success of the tag day held early in September and stated that the Christmas boxes and ditty bags were now being taken care of. Mrs. Bulger brought samples of the work done by the Red Cross group on Thursday afternoons and urged more members to attend. In recognition of her outstanding contribution to this work, Mrs. Bulger has recently been made a member of the executive of the Belleville Red Cross Society. Mrs. J. McVeigh reported on the League magazine and the president spoke at some length of the advantages of being a subscriber to this excellent periodical.

Diocesan Convention Report.

Following the above reports, Mrs. Upper gave a splendid account of the activities and work accomplished at the diocesan convention held in Perth early in October. She spoke first of the town, how delightful it was to be a visitor, in such an attractive place and mention was also made of the gracious hospitality and kindness of the women of the Perth sub-division. At the National convention recently held in London a Dominion Council was formed for the purpose of encouraging all members to interest themselves more extensively in civic and national affairs. Lay retreats were stressed and it was felt one should take a much greater interest in these in the future. An interesting item mentioned was that Belleville forms one-tenth of the diocesan membership. Mrs. Upper stated in listening to the reports of the fifty sub-divisions she was astounded at the work accomplished in the smaller places. Next year will be the silver jubilee of the C.W.L. in Canada and a special convention will take place in Montreal to mark this important event. The theme of the convention throughout was the importance of family life and family prayer and each and every speaker urged that these two points be stressed by all members.

After the above report a short discussion took place concerning plans for activity for the coming month. It was decided that early in November a tea would be held and plans were made for a marathon bridge and a series of weekly euchre parties. It was also decided that during the winter months the meetings would be held in the afternoon. Following the business there was an entertaining and amusing 'quiz'. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close this very interesting meeting.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of Shannonville W.A., was held at the home of Mrs. Sam Elliott recently with 14 members and one visitor present. Mrs. Claude Clarke opened the meeting. Mrs. Claude Clarke offered prayer. Mrs. Sam Elliott read the Scripture. Miss Sara Stickney read the Lesson Thought. Mrs. Frank Doxtator gave a reading. Plans were made for the bazaar which is to be held the last of the month at Mrs. Kenneth Vivian's. Mrs. Claude Clarke offered prayer. Mrs. Clarke gave a vote of thanks to Mrs. Elliott for opening up her home for the meeting. The ladies sewed on aprons. A delicious lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Since the children have settled down to scheduled school hours, we have been thinking more about turning on the oven to pop in something that may be fresh and varied from the standard supper dishes of the past month. We can dream about rich pastry cases filled with creamed shrimp and mushrooms, or for dessert fruit and whipped cream—we can still get along without them. There are very suitable substitutes—pop-overs and plain pastry puff shells. The food that is put into these cases may be hot or cold, plain or sweet.

But no matter what you use as fillings, you need to make sure the shells are not tough and heavy. The secret of successful pop-overs and puffs is two-fold—proper beating to incorporate plenty of air and careful baking to hold the shape of the pop-over and puff made by expanding the steam inside. The expanding steam causes the mixture to rise and the combination of gluten in the bread flour and the intense, even heat of the oven does the "puffing." Then reduced heat for the rest of the baking allows the puff to cook inside.

We give you the recipe for pop-overs and cream puffs (war-time versions) together in The Mixing Bowl column because they are similar in principal and use. Pop-overs are sometimes served piping hot with butter in the same manner as tea biscuits—to accompany salads or simple fruit desserts. But they are also good split and filled with cream chicken, creamed green beans and carrots. Use as a main course accompanied with browned potatoes and a generous serving of salad. The puffs, if made large, are perfect for a company dessert if filled with cream custard, fruit sauce or chocolate mixture. You will find these sweet puffs easy on the sugar and yet a satisfactory substitute for rich cakes.

POP-OVERS

¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sifted bread flour, ⅞ cup milk, 2 eggs, ½ tablespoon melted shortening.

Sift salt and flour together. Add milk gradually, beating until mixture is smooth. Beat eggs until light and add to first mixture. Add shortening and beat well. Pour into hot greased muffin pan and bake in electric oven 30 minutes at 475 degrees F., reducing the temperature to 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes. Yield: Nine pop-overs.

CREAM PUFF SHELLS

¼ cup butter, ½ cup water, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ cup bread flour, 2 eggs, unbeaten.

Combine the butter, water and salt in saucepan and bring to boiling point. Sift in flour and cook, stirring constantly until smooth mixture forms. Stir vigorously until mixture forms a ball in the centre of the pan.

Remove from electric element and let stand five minues. Add eggs, one at a time, beating vigorously after adding each egg. Mixture should be very stiff. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered cookie sheet. Makes eight large puffs or 13 small ones or 24 afternoon-tea size. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for 20 to 25 minutes longer. Small puffs will not take quite as long to finish baking. When cool, cut slit in side of puff and fill with cream custard filling, salad mixture.

CREAM FILLING FOR PUFFS

1/3 cup sugar, 2½ tablespoons flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons butter.

Mix the sugar, flour and salt in a double boiler. Add the milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until the mixture is thick (3 to 5 minutes). Cover and cook for 10 minutes longer. Add a little of this mixture to the slightly beaten egg, mix well and return to the double boiler. Cook for a minute longer, stirring constantly. Remove from stove.

* * *

TAKE A TIP

1. Use sweet cider to flavor gelatin moulds for variation.
2. If cocoa is to be substituted for one ounce of chocolate in a sauce recipe, use one quarter cup cocoa and mix with cornstarch and sugar.
3. Bake beets occasionally. Wash, trim and roast as you do potatoes.
4. Increase the amount of salt in a recipe when you substitute shortening for butter.

The Marry Go Round

The Job With Matrimonial Future.

Of all the careers, occupations, jobs and professions, which one offers a girl the best and most attractive opportunities for marriage?

Lots of girls go into a profession or a business because they love it and intend to make a life-work of it, whether they marry or not. But far more of them just "take a job" UNTIL—meaning until they get married. The old idea that a "successful business woman is one who succeeds in finding somebody to take her out of it" still exists.

Hence my very first question should be of vital interest to many girls about to choose a career. And I have asked several young women to give me their opinions on the subject.

"The career of screen star" was the first spontaneous and enthusiastic choice. An actress is seen by more men, meets many of them and is always at her best and most attractive, argued her sponsors.

That's true, yet most actresses marry men in their own profession, and some of the best of them and most beautiful either marry badly or don't marry at all. They are too busy and too much absorbed in being good actresses.

Two young women voted for the model and the chorus girl, as the ones most likely to succeed in the matrimonial game. And if you regard it as a "game", no doubt they were right. Certainly, many of these have annexed wealthy husbands and made fabulous matches. And so have hat-check girls and telephone-operators.

But to my way of thinking the trained nurse has it all over the foregoing beauties like a tent! Given any sort of good looks at all, a nurse is a beautiful sight in her crisp uniform and becoming cap. She is especially beautiful to the sick man, when she appears at his door in the morning, bearing his breakfast and medicine to ease his pain after the long white night. She is more than beautiful if she is sympathetic and gentle, and anxious to make him most comfortable. The mere fact that she wears a uniform makes her more romantic and interesting.

Next to the trained nurse, and right in her category, comes the Airplane Hostess. She too wears a snappy uniform, and has the delightful job of making people feel comfortable. She too meets every type of man. In fact, the airliners complain that it is hard to keep hostesses—they marry too quickly.

My third vote for a job or a profession, with a good matrimonial future is for that of Private Secretary. Even when a private secretary doesn't "marry the boss", (which she often does), she comes in contact with many and all sorts of people through him, including all the men in the office. And it's up to her whether or not she has the right smile and manner to attract the right man.

In fact, these days, it is the girl who stays at home and has no interest in anything except a good time and getting married, that has the poorest matrimonial chances.

MARSHAL TITO RESCUED BY PLANE FIVE MONTHS AGO

First Detailed Story of His Escape From Nazi Paratroop Swoop

RUSSIAN STORY

London, Oct. 18 — (CP-Reuter)— Marshal Tito was rescued by a Soviet Army plane during a surprise German paratroop swoop on the Yugoslav Partisan leader's headquarters in Southwestern Serbia 5 months ago, Moscow radio said today, giving the first detailed account of the escape.

Here is the story of Tito's rescue as told by the Soviet pilot — Capt. Kalinkin in an interview with Red Star:

"We took off at night from a base in Italy, heading for a secret base in Yugoslavia. The flight across the mountains was hazardous. Landing was a problem . . . We nearly came to grief when we narrowly missed a cliff we had not noticed in the darkness.

"Tito boarded the plane. With him were his closest collaborators.

"We set off, swerving sharply at the end of the short runway to avoid crashing into a hill. We made another trip to rescue Marshal Tito's remaining collaborators.

"Our mission completed, we were introduced to Marshal Tito who thanked us and asked us to share his meal. He toasted the Soviet Air forces and decorated us with the Yugoslav 'Order of the People's Hero.' "

More than 1,000 German paratroops took part in the attack on Tito's headquarters. During a fierce encounter with the Partisans the paratroops were surrounded and more than half were annihilated.

SUEZ CANAL

By GLADWIN HILL
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Oct. 18 —(AP)— One of the financial world's most intricate and fascinating games, the game of Suez Canal shares, has returned to France's security marts. The "score" at the moment is—nobody knows who owns the Suez Canal.

The 100-mile lockless ditch connecting the Red Sea with the Mediterranean is so important militarily and economically that it is operated as an international project. But financially it is a semi-private corporation.

There was a report during the occupation of France that the Germans, by manipulating the securities of France, had cornered a working majority of Suez shares. This would be a financial coup of no mean proportions.

However, of the effective 800,000 shares, 353,024 by latest report are in the hands of the British government. The other 446,796 shares are scattered over the globe, potentially holding the secret of who really "owns" the canal.

The canal management does not know because there has been no stockholders' meetings since June 3, 1940, just before the fall of France.

The profits since then have been impounded in Egypt.

The company's Paris offices say they will not be in a position even to guess at the situation for probably at least another six months.

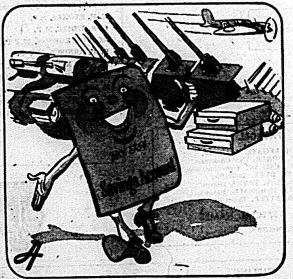
I want to Fight too!

Boy, am I getting fat! And no wonder. "The old man" (he's the depositor) keeps building me up. If he'd only let me "go active" in Victory Bonds! Makes me mad to think how much I could help!

Did you see what it's going to cost Canada to run this war this year? Six billion dollars! We can only meet that cost if everyone goes all-out to help! And that includes even "little me"!

If I could only "enlist" here and get to wear that uniform! That's the kind of battle dress I ought to have. Believe me; when our boys are fighting the war's most critical battles; it's not fair for me to shirk!



Just look what I could buy . . . stacks of anti-aircraft shells . . . vital parts for a Mosquito Bomber . . . or enough smoke bombs to hide the movements of gallant Canadian troops. But why go on?

Maybe if I hang this up in the old man's office, it'll give him the right idea. As a Victory Bond I'll pay good interest and be a swell nest egg for post-war days. The sooner he lets me "go active", the sooner we'll win!

PUT YOUR SAVINGS "ON ACTIVE SERVICE"

History's most terrible war is reaching its climax.

Gallant Canadians are fighting without shrinking from the deadly fire of a desperate and still powerful enemy. So we at home must not shrink from paying the cost of war in money—no matter how high it is.

Today the cost of war on all fronts has mounted to staggering sums! To meet it, every last Canadian who can possibly do so will need to buy Victory Bonds. And all must manage somehow to buy one more than before!

This certainly is little to ask. For Victory Bonds offer Canada's safest, soundest investment. At maturity your money will be returned. And in the meantime, you receive 3% interest.

Still—it's entirely up to you to decide whether or not you'll buy your full share. But before you decide —remember . . . every man overseas is fighting for you!

Will you volunteer to put your savings into Victory Bonds to fight for them?

INVEST IN VICTORY — BUY VICTORY BONDS OBJECTIVE FOR COUNTY SET AT $3,730,000

Area Quotas Increased in Seventh Victory Loan Which Opens in City And Hastings County on Monday Next

Belleville's Share $1,260,000, Trenton To Raise $540,000

With organization for the county campaign virtually completed, the Seventh Victory Loan, which may well be the last such campaign before final Victory over Nazi Germany is achieved, will commence across Canada and throughout Hastings County on Monday, October 23rd.

Canadians and members of the Allied forces on the fighting fronts are sacrificing their all to bring the war in Europe to a speedy and victorious conclusion, but to back their efforts requires an equal "punch" on the home front. And "punch" on the home front means work and money—money to buy the planes, the guns and tanks to assure Victory.

Canadians across Canada in the Seventh Victory Loan will be asked to raise a minimum of $1,300,000,000, or 100 millions of dollars more than was the objective in the last loan. In Hastings County the total objective is $3,730,000, or $230,000 more than residents of this county were asked to raise in the Sixth Victory Loan.

Frankly, $3,730,000 from a county the size of Hastings is a lot of money. But officials of the National War Finance Committee feel that the people of hastings can raise that amount. In support of our valiant men on the fighting fronts, on the seas, and in the air, we cannot dare to fail.

Breaking the county total objective down into its various divisions, officials show that three million dollars is expected to be raised through general sales, with the special names division being asked to subscribe $400,000, and the armed forces of the county $330,000.

As in previous loans the general public is to be kept informed of the progress of the campaign with a general sales chart to appear daily on page two of the Ontario Intelligencer. This daily chart will refer only to the $3,000,000 which is expected to be raised through general sales and will not include purchases of bonds through special names or by the county armed forces.

This procedure is being followed in an effort to bolster sales in the general sales division as previously it has been this aspect of the county campaign which has lagged. Frankly, the county objective in previous loans has in many instances been reached only because of over-subscription in the special names division and by the armed forces. General sales is made up of sales of Victory Bonds made through the banks, through the payroll savings plan and through house to house canvass.

Differentiating from the procedure in the last loan, area objectives only are being considered by county campaign officials in the Seventh Victory Loan. Formerly objectives for the smaller urban centres had been made.

Parade of School Children and Military Personnel Saturday Afternoon Will Feature Opening Ceremonies of Drive

Lt. Korning of HMCS Belleville Included Among the Speakers

An aspect of youth with approximately 1,800 school children of the city taking part, will feature opening ceremonies of the Seventh Victory Loan campaign which are scheduled for Belleville on Saturday afternoon of this week. Outstanding as part of the opening ceremonies will be a colorful parade of school children and local military personnel through the downtown section of the city, while on the Collegiate campus later in the afternoon will be a program of public speechmaking and patriotic songs by a combined chorus of school children.

Every school in the city, including the Belleville Collegiate, Albert College, St. Michael's, and the four local public schools will be represented in the parade. Aside from the military personnel appearing in the march, a patriotic air will be lent the parade with the children carrying flags. Students and pupils of each school will march separately.

Col. Sisler in Charge.

Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer of the local Argyll Light Infantry, has accepted responsibility of parade marshal from the Victory Loan executive and promises everything possible is being done to make the event a colorful one.

Heading the parade will be the Trenton R.C.A.F. band, one of the really outstanding military musical organizations of the Eastern Ontario district. Marching in the parade will be flights of airmen and WD's from Trenton Air Station; veterans of the last war from the local Army and Navy Veterans' Association; from the Canadian National Railways Veterans, and from the Canadian Legion, also members of the Belleville Air and Sea Cadets. Two other bands besides that from Trenton are expected to participate.

Military vehicles from the Argyll Light Infantry and from the local 34th Battery will also appear in the parade.

Route of March.

Route of march will be from the assembly point on the Collegiate lawn at two-thirty in the afternoon to Station Street and south the full length of Front Street and back to the campus by way of Dundas, Pinnacle, Bridge and Church Streets.

Arriving at the Collegiate campus in the official car will be the chairmen of the Victory Loan and H.M.C.S. "Belleville" corvette committee, Mayor Harry Rollins; Lieut. J. S. Korning, recently appointed commander of the "Belleville," and Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, commanding officer at Trenton Air Station.

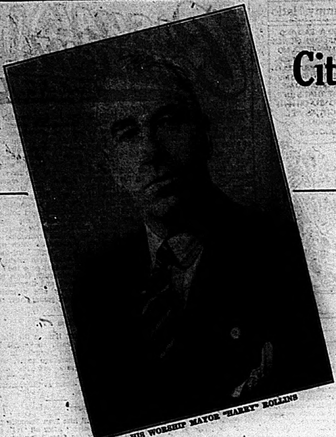
Citizens of Hastings Must "INVEST IN VICTORY" AND BUY ONE MORE THAN BEFORE!



HIS WORSHIP MAYOR "HARRY" ROLLINS

A SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM MAYOR "HARRY ROLLINS" TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE

Monday, October 23rd, is the official opening of the Seventh Victory Loan, a campaign during which Canadians will be asked to raise a minimum of $1,300,000,000. As their fair share of that national objective, the citizens of Belleville have been asked to subscribe $1,260,000.

What the citizens of Belleville are being asked to raise is a fair share of that national objective. I fully concur with the officials of the Hastings County Victory Loan Committee in their feeling that Belleville citizens appreciate their responsibility today just as greatly as they have in the previous six loans and will surpass their objective by many thousands of dollars.

Now as possibly never before, we in Belleville are vitally concerned with the progress of the war and will do our utmost to bring the war to a victorious conclusion. The Canadian forces are in the thick of the struggle on the Western and other fronts. Sons from Belleville and the immediate district are face to face with the enemy, and with the dangers and horrors of war. Many families have suffered the loss of a loved one, or have seen him come home showing plainly the ravages of war.

It is necessary then that to end all this waste of human life and energy, the war must be brought to its soonest possible victorious conclusion. To do this requires only the final "push" which will bring about the unconditional surrender of the German armies. The Allies have forced the fight to the very borders of Germany but to deliver that final knock-out blow they must be supplied with the guns, the planes, and other materials of war.

There is not one man or woman within the city limits, or anywhere in Hastings County, who would not do his or her utmost to end this awful struggle. And to give this final "push" which might well mean Victory the citizens of Belleville are asked to "Invest in Victory" to the extent of only $1,260,000.

Canada owes it to her fighting men, and Belleville, as part of Hastings County, owes it to her sons to supply the necessary materials of war which can only be produced with money. Therefore, permit me to make this personal appeal for your most generous and thorough support of the Seventh Victory Loan.

It is in the general sales division of the County campaign which will require the most effort to put the City, and the County, over the top in its Victory Loan objective. Residents of this County are being asked to subscribe $200,000 more through general sales than was their objective in the Sixth Victory Loan. As part of that $200,000, residents of Belleville are being asked to subscribe an additional $110,000.

In conclusion let me point out that the slogan for the Seventh Victory Loan "Invest in Victory" is well chosen. Buying Victory Bonds is not in any sense of the word "giving" money — it means opening a savings account in Canada, an account which is backed by the entire Dominion's wealth in tradition and in national resources.

Truly "Invest in Victory" has a two-fold meaning. There couldn't be a better investment than investing in the guaranteed future of one's own home, and the Victory which is to be ours is worth fighting for.

BOXERS CALLED UPON TO DEFEND BOXING TITLES

Lightweight and Featherweight Kings State They Are Ready

RATINGS GIVEN

Washington, Oct. 18. (AP)—Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, said today he has called upon Juan Zurita, lightweight champion, and Sal Bartolo, featherweight king, to "prepare for a proper defence of your titles—and soon".

Both boxers, Greene said, had notified N.B.A. headquarters that after a warmup bout or two, they would be prepared to defend their laurels against challengers listed among the contenders by the Association.

"The ultimate aim of the N.B.A.", Greene said, "is to bring about a match between Bartolo and Willie Pep, who is listed as the outstanding challenger. If the sponsors of Pep will not impose impossible barriers, it will then be possible to break up the dual championship claims".

Pep is recognized as featherweight champion by New York and affiliated states.

"No major changes have been recorded in the N.B.A. ratings, although there has been a shift among some of the contenders in the various classes", Greene said in announcing the Association's quarterly lineup of talent. Montreal's Dave Castilloux was listed as an "outstanding boxer" in the lightweight division.

The ratings included:

Heavyweight: Champion, Joe Louis; logical contenders, Billy Conn, Joe Baksi, Jimmy Bivins; outstanding boxers, Melio Bettina, Tami Mauriello Lee Q. Murray, Lee Savold, Joe Maxim, Lee Oma, Jack London.

Light heavyweight champion, Gus Lesnevich; logical contenders, Lloyd Marshall, Freddie Mills of England.

Middleweight: Champion, Tony Zale; logical contenders, George Abrams, Holman Williams.

Welterweight: Champion, Freddie (Red) Cochrane; logical contenders, Ray Robinson, California, Jackie Wilson.

Lightweight: Champion, Juan Zurita; logical contenders, Beau Jack, Bob Montgomery, Ike Williams.

Featherweight: Champion, Sal Bartolo; logical contender, Willie Pep.

Bantamweight: Champion, Manuel Ortiz; logical contender, Rush Dalma.

Flyweight: Champion, Jackie Paterson; logical contender, Norman Lewis.

ALL RILED UP

With his hair all dishevelled "Whipper Billie" Watson says he'll toss caution to the winds and battle with abandon when he meets Ivan (The Beard)) Rasputin, the mad Russian, in tonight's main bout at the Hume Arena. Watson fell victim to Rasputin's possum act here a couple of weeks ago when his face became such a scarlet hue he hasn't quit blushing yet. However, the pride of East York and other Toronto environs only wants one thing — revenge for his injured feelings. That gives "Ivan The Beard" a laugh, of course.

To add mirth and merryment to the show Prompter Tunney is bringing back Laverne Baxter, the Missouri Cyclone to meet Tom Collins, while Joe Maich and Joe Christie pry off the night's lid.

BUFFALO BISONS TO BREAK CAMP

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 18—(CP)—The Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey Association broke training camp here yesterday and headed for Indianapolis for their opening league game Thursday. The Bisons, managed by Eddie Shore, met misfortune in their final drill when Jack Dyte of Barrie, Ont., defence star, suffered a fracture of a small bone in his ankle when hit by a puck shot by Oscar Aubuchon. Before breaking camp, Shore traded defenceman Rusty Waldriff to Cleveland for two players to be named later by the Cleveland management.

"IRISH" SCORE 21-2 WIN OVER PICTON SCHOOL

Chalk Up Three Touchdowns in First Half and Then Coast to Victory.

LINE TOO HEAVY

Rolling up three touchdowns in the first half, Coach Jack Doran's St. Michael's Academy kids coasted in to a 21 to 2 win over Picton Collegiate in their first game of the Bay of Quinte Junior Interscholastic football group. A goodly crowd surrounded the Picton Collegiate campus to see the homesters drop their second game. The "Irish" victory moves them into a tie with the Belleville Collegiate Institute juniors in the loop standing.

The heavier St. Mikes' machine started to roll early in the game when Don Semark gained yardage on an exchange of punts with Hepburn, the Picton pigskin booter. After a fast lateral play, Barrett to Peets, Al Kelleher took the oval on Picton's eight-yard line and drove through for a touchdown, which was not converted.

Trouble Stopping Drives.

The lighter Picton line was experiencing trouble stopping the hard drives of the Irish before "Mike" Cooper faded back to cross the homesters up with a flat forward pass into Ed Barrett's arms with Eddie galloping home for a second St. Mikes unconverted touchdown. On an end run for a canter of some 17 yards Bob Moher rolled the Irish score to 15 before the halftime whistle sounded with the Picton kids still unable to penetrate the Irish front line.

However, the second half saw a stronger Picton team as the homesters' line tightened with tenacity to hold the Irish off the scoring column for the entire third quarter and actually gain ground with Hepburn booting more accurately and MacDonald and Rutter driving far into St. Mikes' territory, where the Irish held, however. Midway through the last stanza Garvin and Brian halted a Picton drive to give St. Mikes possession with Kelleher subsequently tearing through the Picton line to crash for 11 yards and a touchdown, that Don Semark converted with a beautiful placement kick through and over the bars.

Endeavoring to avoid a second whitewashing the Picton sextette were successful in getting two single points when Hepburn booted a brace to the deadline after St. Mikes halted the home squad when they threatened on a major thrust. The game was keenly, but cleanly contested.

The line-ups—St. Michael's Academy Juniors—quarter, Ed. Barrett; halves, Semark and Kelleher; centre, Cooper; ends, Peets and Brian. Subs—Moher, Joe Barrett, Garvin and Bradden.

Picton Collegiate Institute—centre McLean, ends, Wright and MacDonald; quarters, Hepburn; halves, Rutter and Foster. Subs, P. Scott, Kleinsteuber, Scott and Hogle.

Officials—Stevens, Perkin.

Place of Woman in Home

Kitchener, Oct. 18 —(CP)—Eight women war workers sampling C.W.A.C. life for three days at the basic training camp here, found that most army girls feel that the place for the post-war woman is "in the home."

London, Oct. 18—(CP)—The Derby, generally regarded as the greatest horse race in the world, is unlikely ot be run again at Epsom before 1946 at the earliest, even if the war in Europe ends this year. Since war began it has been held at Newmarket.

A vast amount of building and renovation will be required to make good the bomb damage and five years of enforced neglect before the famous switching course on the Downs and its stands will become usable.

The Epsom course today is a scene of dilapidation which embraces the main buildings and extends to the stables. Even iron railings which sectioned the enclosures are gone. They went into furnaces and came out as munitions of war.

At least five bombs from German airplanes struck the course. The first came in daylight four years ago when a direct hit destroyed the luncheon rooms, kitchens and offices at the rear of the stands. Another bomb went through the main building, smashing many private rooms from which titled followers of the turf watched the thoroughbreds. Later bomb damage included totalisators and stables and other buildings at Tattenham Corner. A flying bomb fell near the stands a few weeks ago but did no damage.

A butcher by the name of Joe Bamford was fined $165. at Manchester for selling tobacco without a licence. The item finds its way on a sports page because Bamford is much better known as Jock McAvoy, 36-year-old holder of the British middleweight boxing championship until the British Boxing Board of Control declared the title vacant a few days ago. McAvoy (or Bamford) held the title continuously for 11 years.

But about the fine. Authorities charged that Jock sold 1,500 cigars for $82,000 to the manager of a Manchester Hotel and that he had no licence to do so. Jock claimed he was asked by a London boxing acquaintance to sell some pre-war cigars and that he received $90. commission. Police said they hadn't been able to trace this boxing acquaintance.

Jock, incidentally was plenty cut up when he heard he had been deprived of his title and said he intended to go on defending it "until I meet a better man in the ring." His last fight was in February of 1942 when he retired in the first round of a non-title bout.

Nearly 90,000 tickets were sold for the international soccer match between England and Scotland at London's Wembley Stadium Oct. 14 on the opening of the box office some weeks before the game. Many thousands of the tickets went to meet postal applications which had been flowing in for weeks.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Bill Durnan, Montreal Canadiens' star goalie, injured in training at Montreal, will be on the sidelines for about a week due to a strained shoulder muscle.

Gerry McNeil, who has been helping Canadiens in their practice sessions as goalie, came in for warm praise from Coach Dick Irvin. Said Dick: "He could help any club in the N. H. L."

Johnny Quilty wrote from Vancouver where he is serving with the R. C. A. F. he hopes to play this season at the coast on a line with Johnny Adams and Wingy Johnson but is keen to return to the N. H. L.

None of the extra players in the Habitants Training Camp will be disposed of for cash. All who may be sent to the minors are going strictly on a "loan" basis.

Manager Art Ross, who has his Boston Bruins in camp at Quebec, is satisfied with the way things have been going since opening the pre-season training last Sunday. Among those fast regaining condition are Bill Cowley, Jack Shewchuck, Norm Calladine, Jack Crawford and Captain Aubrey (Dit) Clapper.

Many "green" players are whizzing under the watchful eye of Ross. He directs drills from the rail and is continually shifting players. Bep Guidolin, Harvey Jackson and Buzz Boll have yet to report. Two amateurs—Kenny Smith of Oshawa, and Frank Mario, of Cornwall, are expected at the end of the week. Bruins will play at least two exhibition games against a Quebec Navy team. During the contest Ross will look over the defects and potentialities of the freshmen.

Ott Heller, of Kitchener, will once again be on New York Rangers line-up. He was signed to a contract by Lester Patrick at Winnipeg yesterday. This will be his 15th consecutive season with Rangers. He'll also be captain again for the third year.

Manager Paul Thompson has reduced the number in Chicago Black Hawks Training Camp at Hibbing, Minn., to 26. Four candidates failed to make the grade.

Ike Hildebrand, 17-year-old Winnipeg boy who starred in Juvenile hockey at Vancouver last year, has arrived at Owen Sound to work out with Coach Hap Day's Toronto Maple Leafs. Ike, classy winger with New Westminster Salmonbellies Lacrosse team, has presented the Mike Kelly Trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable man to his team in the Mann Cup finals.

The N. H. L. presidency question has arisen again. Lester Patrick has sponsored the name of Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton for the position left vacant by the death of Frank Calder. Mervin (Red) Dutton has been carrying on as managing-director since his death, and Maj. Conn Smythe, who recently returned home from overseas to recuperate from wounds suffered in France, turned down an offer of N. H. L. governors to accept the presidency. Dutton also has refused it. Dr. Hardy is a past president of the C. A. H. A.

Toronto, Oct. 18 — (CP)—There's much fuel for argument in a controversy over the use of youthful players in the N.H.L. that gets an airing in Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning's column. The opposing debaters are Frankie Boucher and Wilf Field, one-time New York American now headed for Montreal Canadiens after two years in the army.

Field says good-looking young players are being ruined by the hot-house forcing they get when they are yanked prematurely into professional hockey to satisfy the crying demand for players. He says that Billy Taylors and Charlie Conachers are very scarce, and that most of our present-day infant professionals should be allowed to mature naturally until they are about 20 years old.

Otherwise, he contends, they will only be burnt out early, and if their health isn't ruined by trying to keep up with the older men, they will only be thrown into the ruck after the war when the old-line players return to the ice.

Boucher has an entirely different line on the thing, however, that's only to be expected, since after all it's his job to try to build a good team, and if older, experienced players aren't available, what the heck is he to use?

Frankie says he doesn't believe the young players will suffer any, but on the contrary will learn much more of the fine points of the game than they ever would playing against competition of their own age. Hockey players only exert themselves as much as is necessary to keep up with the opposition and their teammates, Boucher argues, and in the N.H.L. they will have the "highest possible target to shoot at."

Then again, they will find out in a hurry if they are good enough for the big-time game. Those that have the ability will stick, he feels, while the others who fall by the wayside will be those who just don't have the stuff.

The chance to get in the headlines with an N.H.L. team and taste some brief glory also should help to salve their wounded pride if they get the jolly heave-ho, in one way to look at it philosophically.

All of which still doesn't answer the very obstruse question that was put before the meeting.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

For the first time in Ontario, suspensions have been handed out for alleged stimulation of race-horses. The Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations at Toronto last night announced indefinite suspension of one owner, two trainers and a groom in connection with two horses that raced during the fall meeting of the Long Branch club at Dufferin Park.

Those suspended were Bill Chris, trainer of horses owned by his father Steve Chris of Kitchener; Reginald Thompson, a groom employed by the Chris stable; Henry M. Walker and his trainer Fred Fellows.

Action followed reports from the Provincial government analyst in connection with the horses Mere Frolic, owned by Chris, and Lascar, owned by Walker. Mere Frolic won a race Oct. 5 and Lascar was fourth in another race that day.

Revenue Minister Gibson announced at Ottawa last night that hunters coming from the United States or elsewhere may again import 50 rounds of rifle or shotgun ammunition free of duty. A permit is still required for imported guns.

Jockey Alex Haller of Vancouver is in a Toronto hospital with a fractured skull suffered in a spill in the first race at Dufferin yesterday. Jockey Henry Harris of Toronto suffered a broken collarbone in the same accident, which occurred when Harris on Seneca Bill went down on the first turn and Muchkin, with Haller aboard, fell over him.

Suspensions of from three to five days were given three jockeys by Laurel race track stewards yesterday as the result of Monday's racing at the Maryland track.

Jockey J. Rienzi was suspended for five days for failing to keep his mount straight in the stretch of the eighth race; Jockey A. Kirkland was given three days for cutting across his field too sharply in the sixth race and Jockey C. Erickson was suspended three days for rough riding leaving the gate in the fifth race.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

The reporter limped in.

"Well," growled the editor, "did you get the interview?"

The newsman pointed to a pair of black eyes.

"We can't print a pair of black eyes. Where's the story?"

The reporter lifted his hat and displayed a huge bump on his head. "Look," he repeated.

The editor went wild. "What good is that?" he howled. "We can't print things like that. Didn't you get the chap to say a few words?"

"Sure," was the reply, "but you can't print them, either."

The Hand-Writing.

"The time has come," the Walrus said . . .

Instead of cabbages and kings . . . let's talk about Interscholastic football. That of the conventional 12-man type, of course.

President Lester Shiels, of the Bay of Quinte group in the C.O.S.S.A., was in Toronto the other week attending an Interscholastic convention. Prexy Shiels was surprised to learn that all groups of the C.O.S.S.A. had returned to the Interscholastic gridiron wars in the 12-man game. The Niagara Peninsula, Georgian Bay district, Trent Valley loop and Lake Shore groups are all back into both senior and junior Interscholastic football.

After a lapse of several years Peterborough's Scribe, Fred Craig, tells of the Liftlock City Collegiate winning both ends of a double-header of Interscholastic football last Saturday. The Peterborough Collegiate seniors nosed out Bowmanville High 8 to 6, while the Liftlock City juniors won by the smallest of football scores, 1 to 0, over the Cobourg kids. The actual scores mean nothing, it's the fact Interscholastic football is returning to prominence in every town and city in Ontario except Belleville.

Six-man football is a splendid game for inter-form competition and perhaps has its place in the smaller secondary schools, but after all is said and done there is no comparison in the abbreviated game to the conventional game of rugby football. Six-man football has served a definite purpose at the Belleville Collegiate, but if the local secondary school hopes to keep pace in the athletic field with the other collegiates and high schools throughout the C.O.S.S.A. district they should return to the junior Interscholastic football grouping, but quick.

In training a junior squad, boys 17 years and under, there are no chances of running into military drafts, but on the other hand a junior 12-man team would definitely insure material for a post-war senior Interscholastic football team in the period when Interscholastic rugby football will definitely return to its former place in the Canadian school athletic program. Is Belleville to be left behind in the village class, or better yet, why not climb aboard the band wagon that is slowly gathering momentum for the post-war period right now.

12-Man Style.

Commenting upon the return of Interscholastic football to the Peterborough Collegiate, Sports Editor Fred Craig, of the Examiner, welcomed the school grid game back in his column on Monday. Fred had the following to say:

"C.O.S.S.A. football came back into its own in Peterborough Saturday after a lapse of several years and in spite of disagreeable weather conditions the revival was a distinct success. Threatening skies did not keep the fans away and there was a big crowd, with the student body out in full force, with plenty of ribbons flying, organized cheering and all the other color associated with collegiate rugby. To make the thing a complete success the home team won both ends of a double-header, the juniors nosing out Cobourg Collegiate 1 to 0 and the seniors triumphing over a strong Bowmanville High squad 8 to 6. Both were hard-fought battles and while both might just as easily on the play gone the other way the Peterborough teams played good football and they will improve offensively and defensively with a few more games under their belts."

Remember When . . .

For the first time in the history of Dufferin Park, one stable ran away with four victories in four starts, five years ago today, when James Cosgrove saw his colors come down first at the wire a quartette of times at the miniature Toronto oval.

Not So Slappy.

They call him Ivan Rasputin the "Mad Russian." After all "Ivan the Beard" is far from being mad or slappsie. Any grappler who can play possum with Billie Watson and Bob Wagner and get away with it is far from ready for the booby-hatch. As a matter of fact maybe it's his ring adversaries who are ready for the funny house. However, Promoter Frank Tunney is giving Watson a chance to vindicate himself at the Hume Arena tonight. If Watson falls for any of Rasputin's smart ideas tonight, well we shudder to imagine what the fans' reactions will be. Local grappling fans are showing considerable concern about tonight's return match with no time limit. It had better be good, or else.

This and That.

It is noted that Notre Dame boasts of the tallest tackles in American football circles these days . . . They are John Adams and Joe Kelly, who stand six feet, seven inches while singing in the shower baths. . . . "Heeb" Lake, Port Erie's good right hander, hurled the Border Town softballers to a double win over Saulte Ste. Marie in the all-Ontario Intermediate "A" O.A.S.A. finals . . . Lake beat the northern champs 4-0 and 8-6. . . . Looking back on the Marine - Fort Erie series that must be bitter medicine for Max Peoples and his gang to swallow, especially after having the southern title practically sewed up in the proverbial bag at Fort Erie . . . Here's how Oshawa Scribe Geo. Campbell reviewed the Soo-Port Erie game . . . "We regret the Marines couldn't bring the O.A.S.A. Intermediate title to Eastern Ontario where it belongs" . . . Maybe Br'r Campbell was regretting the fact his Motor City Colts hopped up to the Senior "B" category where they found a vast difference playing against Hamilton than Belleville or Peterborough . . . Trenton High is playing its six-man Interscholastic rugby game at Albert College this afternoon instead of tomorrow . . . St. Mike's beat Picton 21 to 2 yesterday.

New York, Oct. 18 — (AP)—From Peleliu in the Pacific, Sgt. Billy Goodrich, former Brooklyn sports writer, sends these words: . . . "The results of the world series just came in and there were more Marines rooting for the Browns than guys swearing at the plight of the Dodgers. That seems incredible, but it is the truth . . . One Marine, a terrific Brownie rooter, took things so hard that after the Cardinals won the second game he said: — 'Why, I'm going to murder every Brownie personally.' . . . That sounds like Dodger talk, but honestly this lad is the worst baseball rooter I have ever seen . . . and how could be be with the Japs at the back door?"

Those quotes give you an idea of what a half dozen major league managers and assorted players and newspapermen will face when they tour the war zones this winter... from all accounts, the G. Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 506

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When bridge players really are Jake, they play many hands with much pride. If adept at squeezes, they take unusual contracts in stride.

Stride into this deal:

NORTH
♠J 4
♥A 8 4
♦A 9 6 4
♣A 7 4 3

WEST
♠9 7 5
♥10 6
♦K Q J 10
♣K Q 6 5

EAST
♠10
♥J 9 7 5 3
♦8 7 5 2
♣10 9 8

SOUTH
♠A K Q 8 6 3 2
♥K Q 2
♦3
♣J 2

South started with an opening bid of three spades. North flung a response of four no trump right in there. That bid is the signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he has.

Using The Kibitzer's convention, a reply of five clubs shows no aces; five diamonds, one ace and no kings; five hearts, an ace and a king; five spades, an ace and two kings.

So, south says five spades to show his ace and two kings. With that information, north must decide the final bid. His decision must take into consideration that opponents have two kings.

The opening indicated that the final contract will be in spades. But north must make up his mind whether to stop at five spades, go to six spades, or gamble at seven spades.

Promising such a long spade suit, south no doubt has at least one short suit. North may assume that one of the opponent kings will not be able to take a trick.

Figuring like that, north should bid six spades and be content to have south play at such a contract. A grand slam may be too tough to handle, even with the help north can supply.

Some players, however, like to stretch their chances to extreme. Especially if their partner is very clever in the handling of coups, squeezes and such.

Anyway, when this deal was played, north decided to take a fling at a grand slam. West led the diamond king. When dummy hand went down, south studied his chances carefully and made it with a squeeze.

It just goes to show you. But I don't know what.

Famed Cary Wilson Wrote the Script for Spencer Tracy Film

The prolific pen of Carey Wilson—the man who wrote the screen adaptation for "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Ben Hur" and 150 other famous film plays—is responsible for the script of Canada's 7th Victory Loan subject, "Tomorrow, John Jones!" seen at the beginning of the week at the Belle Theatre, next at the McCarthy Theatre and then at the Capitol Theatre. Spencer Tracy is starred.

Hollywood boasts of few more versatile personalities than Wilson. In addition to his writing ability, he supervises production for the Andy Hardy and Dr. Gillespie series. He also writes and narrates the "Carey Wilson Miniatures" which include the popular Nostradamus reels and the What Do You Think? novelties.

"Jones" is a name to which Wilson seems partial. "Mr. Gardenia Jones," for example, was the title of a short subject he made for the USO two years ago. More recently he wrote and produced "You, John Jones" for the United Nations campaign.

His latest "Tomorrow, John Jones!" deals with a history professor at the University of British Columbia who enlists in the Canadian army and is killed overseas. The spirit of Jones returns to his native country and appeals for support of the Victory Loan.

In the cast with Spencer Tracy, who plays John Jones, are Phyllis Thaxter, Fay Holden and Hank Daniels. Harry Beaumont directed and Jerry Bresler produced.

COMRADES SPEAK

Kent of Ottawa and Capt. Joe Donihee, of Cornwall, Ont.

And in the flame-throwing outfit there was at least one man his comrades will never forget; Cpl. Leonard Pope of Picton, Ont., they talk of Pope and say "he was just a madman," but they say it with respect.

Approaching Hoodeveg the Germans were dug in along a road with straw roofs over their trenches to keep out the rain. Pope smoked them out by setting the straw afire and then went on into the edge of the town where he found a German gun-crew preparing to lay a 20-mm. gun. He ended their efforts too.

There were other heroes too, heroes who died.

Other flame-throwing specialists of this outfit today whose work their officers said was beyond all praise include Pte. Pat. Dolan of Chrysler, Ont. Pte. Romeo Carriere of Cornwall, Ont., Pte. Charles Veley of Cornwall, Pte. Norman Parker of Toronto, Pte. Ken Stevens of Hamilton, Pte. John Kush of Montreal, Pte. Ivan White of Orillia, Pte. Bill McIrvine of Toronto, Pte. Dave Davison of Brockville, Pte. Ace Bailey of Peterborough and Sgt. Bill Smith of Port Hope, Ont.

Without them these advances by this battalion just could not have been made.

The War Today—

Approach of Season of Fall Rains And Probability of Allied Offensives

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

One of the most urgent facts confronting both sides in the war in Europe is that this is the 18th day of October.

This means that in two or three weeks, under normal conditions, Autumn rains will begin in earnest. Mud—some of the world's worst—will turn the battlefields of the eastern and western theatres into morasses which will bog down armies. Storms will impair the efficiency of the air fleets either for fighting or as the eyes of the ground forces.

Critical Period For Hitler.

If Europe gets its usual autumn, the Allies have a fortnight or so to launch offensives to break Hitler's frontier defences and set their armies ranging through Germany. And by the same token, this is the critical period in which the Nazi dictator must use every means available to stand off his enemies until the bad weather comes to his aid.

All this fits in with the German insistence that both the western Allies and the Russians are on the verge of great new offensives. Indeed, Berlin says the Red armies already have struck. These Nazi claims aren't surprising, for this not only would seem to be the appointed hour for a general Allied assault but signs are plentiful that the United Nations are about to tighten their vast military ring about Germany.

Western Front in Ferment.

The western front is in a ferment. The Germans, acting on their own forecast, have been counter-attacking heavily along the crucial northern flank of Gen. Eisenhower's armies. These attacks are calculated to keep the Allies of balance and so hamper their launching of an all-out drive.

The Allied armies have increased their pressure, especially along the 50-mile front extending from Aachen to the Dutch town of Venray. And the Germans say that a bit further north in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area of eastern Holland, at the extreme left of the Allied flank, the British 2nd Army is "at the ready."

Supporting the idea of impending upheaval is the intense Allied bombing of the great Rhenish cities and communications.

Keep your eye on that sector from Aachen north to Arnhem. It's hot.

Allied Supplies.

The vital question of supplies may be the crux of Eisenhower's problem in engineering a great attack. The Allies need more harbor facilities near the scene of the probable break-through. The Belgian port of Antwerp(now in Allied hands would answer this description but for the fact that German guns in Dutch territory menace it. The hard-hitting 1st Canadian army now is engaged in removing this threat.

Stretcher-Bearers Of Royal 22nd Did Grand Job

By BILL BOSS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Corps on the Adriatic, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Short shots on highlights of the Royal 22nd Regiment's actions around the Marano river, San Martino and the San Fortunato Ridge in the fighting south of Rimini:

"They did a giant's job," said Maj. Gaston Poulin of Quebec City, as he described the work done by stretcher bearers who evacuated wounded as his company was whittled down to 35 at the Marano crossing. Despite everything the Germans threw at them, Ptes. L.O.J. Hacault of Stevenson, B.C.; Albert Cloutier of Montreal and J. P. Cloutier of Montreal (no relation) turned in performances about which the unit still talks . . .

Sgmn. Roger Dubois, Verdun, had his wireless set damaged by shrapnel. Realizing company communications were essential, he literally built a new set, repairing the damaged one with bits of wire, twisted bits of guns, and within 40 minutes had it functioning again. All the while the area was under constant mortar fire, but it wasn't till he was through that Dubois began digging his own slit-trench . . .

Cpl. Leopold Martel of Quebec reported from a patrol with seven Luger revolvers hanging from his belt, his person covered with watches, 45 prisoners lined up in a house waiting to be taken, and with information on the whereabouts of goodly supplies of eggs and wine for the company. He had a briefcase full of German maps and highly useful information, and had two enemy operational orders. Quite a haul for a patrol ...

A German heavy machine-gun and mortar position threatened to delay an advance. Tanks tried to take it on, couldn't. An infantry section with two Piat mortars, Brens and grenades was asked to volunteer. Sgt. Yvon Piuze, M. M., of Montreal, who had made this sort of task a specialty, pressed his commander to allow him to lead the party. In they went, Piuze with the Bren. On top of the enemy position they opened up. Piuze killed at least one German, then received a shot in the heart from another. The enemy was sufficiently disorganized for the advance to be resumed.

Applicants for New Ration Book Handled With Ease on Opening Day

Apparently aware of the uselessness of crowding and in general adopting a mob attitude, Mr. and Mrs. John Public, conducted themselves like ladies and gentlemen at the opening day of the issuance of the new ration book no. 5.

True, there was a small crowd waiting on McAnnany Street when the doors of the inside market, issuance centre, opened yesterday at two o'clock, but this was soon absorbed by the augmented staff of volunteer workers awaiting them inside under the supervision of Mrs. Stanley Upper.

From that time on there was no crowding. A consistent flow of people walked quietly in the building received their books and as quietly went out.

But there are people who, it seems, do not read the newspapers. Several residents called at the City Hall yesterday morning long before the scheduled hour of opening, and asked for the new books. Again this morning several were seen attempting to gain admission via the north door of the Butter Market, unaware of the fact that the hours of issuance are from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. every day until and including Friday.

Orderliness and lack of crowding greatly facilitates the work of the staff, and enables them to issue a greater number of books in the allotted time than they would it ration book claimants milled about the building trying to be a dozen places at once.

For those who are still unaware of the times of ration book issuance hours are from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

COULD NOT HAVE SURVIVED

Hensall, Oct. 18 —(CP)— Navy Minister Angus Macdonald, said here last night that without the aid of "Canada's Navy of little ships" Great Britain could not have survived after the fall of France. He spoke at a meeting of Huron-Perth Liberal Association.

3 VICE-ADMIRALS DEAD

London, Oct. 18 —(CP)— Berlin broadcast a Tokyo dispatch today reporting the deaths of three vice-admirals of the Japanese fleet. It listed them as vice-admirals Miura, "who died of an illness at the front," and Murata and Mitsunobe, "who died in battle."

Little Benny's Note Book

I saw pop getting off the bus and started to walk home with him, and some man waved his hand at pop and pop waved his hand back, and I said, who was that, pop?

Nobody I know, as far as I know, pop said, and I said, Well then G, pop, why did you wave hello at each other then?

He apparently thought he knew me and I was quite willing to let him think so, and I'm sure we both feel better for having waved a cheery howdy do, pop said. If the fellowship of man was an actuality rather than an idea, everybody would wave at everybody else, he said, and I said, But jimminy, pop, that would keep people awful busy, wouldn't it?

Well yes, and for that reason it's hardly a practical idea in a large congested city, but out in the country it's a common custom, which is one reason why a lonely country road is often a friendlier place than a crowded city street, pop said. Anyway, nobody has ever felt insulted at receiving a salutation from a passing stranger, he said, and I said, Sure they have, pop, I mean Glasses Magee waved and said Hello to some kid he never saw before, and instead of saying Hello back, the kid gave Glasses a quick push in the gace that knocked his glasses crooked, I said.

Boys are strange animals, but that's a little hard to believe, pop said. Did you say Glasses merely said Hello to him? he said, and I said, Well not quite. What he really said was Hello shrimp. The kid he said it to was only a little kid but he was awful tuff and he certainly could move fast, I said.

I see what you mean, pop said. Well, without taking back any of my original statements, I'll go so far as to admit that technique has an important bearing on the matter, he said.

Being the end of the subject.

RAT RACE IN THE EAST INDIES

Here is what the American crew of one of the attacking planes saw as they looked back over the tail of their ship during a raid on the Selaroe airstrip in the Netherlands East Indies. A Kawasaki type "Lily" plane is left burning and many little Nips can be seen legging it for dear life, none apparently eager to die for the Emperor.

BEARDED "PRINCESS PATS" MEET RALSTON

Three heavily bearded soldiers of the famed Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry tell Defence Minister J. L. Ralston something of the fighting in Italy and how they grew those luxuriant facial adornments. Col. Ralston met them while touring Canadian Army formations in Italy during his current overseas inspection trip. The bearded Patricias are left to right: Cpl. T. G. Sheardon, Strathclair, Man.; Pte. P. R. Ellis, Portage La Prairie, Man., and Pte. R. J. Morden of Morden, Man.

GERMANY'S TURN HAS NOW COME

You have seen sights like this on Polish roads, French roads, Dutch roads, Belgian roads and in other countries over which the once all-powerful German juggernaut rolled. Now refugees are streaming along German roads, trying to get away from the Red tide of war that is engulfing their "sacred soil" despite the promise of their leaders that it could never happen to Germany. This group was photographed near Ubach. A German soldier carries a baby. The American First Army took Ubach in its drive north of Aachen.

ATHENS REJOICES AT LIBERATION FROM AGGRESSORS

Ancient City Largely Has Escaped Damage Thru Counter-Sabotage

By STEPHEN BARBER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Athens, Oct. 18 (AP)—Athens rocked to the impact of German demolitions in the nearby port of Peiraievs (Piraeus) which caused damage estimated at $100,000,000 as the Germans fled north, but this ancient Greek capital largely escaped injury because of counter-sabotage by Patriots.

Hilarious celebrations are still in progress after 3 1-2 years of subservience, semi-starvation and disease under the German occupation.

But already civil friction is feared unless the government in Cairo of Premier George Papandeou assumes authority quickly.

Athens was free when the British forces arrived Friday and decked in Greek, British and American flags.

Workers at the power station which supplies Athens and its port fought a pitched battle with German saboteurs and won so the two largest cities of Greece have electricity. Transport workers managed to hide a number of buses before the Germans wrecked the depot. The Athens water supply was saved because the Nazis did not blow up the Marathon Dam, although 76 tons of dynamite were reported laid in the reservoir.

JEEP ON JOB AS FARM VEHICLE

This jeep load of Elmira College, N.Y., co-eds is going backwards up a steep hill, in one of the many tests which are being made of the jeep in New York State, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, with a view to its post-war use as an all-purpose farm vehicle. U. S. testers say the jeep is satisfactory for general farm work, differing from the University of Saskatchewan experts who say it is too light.

Three Toronto Youths Charged With Car Theft

Three Toronto youths were arrested on charges of stealing a motor car in Belleville despite the fact they were walking into Deseronto early today. They gave their names as Albert Hawkins, 18, Martin Green, 17, and David Quigley, 18, all of Toronto. The trio were arrested by Chief Noel Langton of Deseronto and later lodged in the Belleville jail charged with stealing an automobile, the property of Harry Moorman, Isobel Street.

Police say the reason the three men were walking into Deseronto this morning was because they had driven Mr. Moorman's motor car with such reckless abandon the motor head cracked. They were returned to Belleville by Police Inspector J. C. Hayes and Sergt. C. Arnott.

Reported Car Stolen.

Early today Mr. Moorman reported his Mercury sedan stolen from the family driveway on Isobel St. Belleville police broadcast the description of the stolen vehicle which was later found abandoned in a quarry at Marysville with the engine head cracked and unable to proceed.

Police investigations later disclosed the trio had allegedly stolen a sedan in Toronto yesterday afternoon abandoning this vehicle near Jones Creek when the gasoline supply ran out. Entering Belleville the three men unsuccessfully tried to steal a motor car belonging to Arnold Cherry, Highland Avenue. Here the ignition wires were tampered with to such an extent Mr. Cherry had difficulty in starting his car this morning after discovering the damage. Entrance to this car was effected by forcing the locked door. Unable to steal Mr. Cherry's motor car the thieves crossed Bridge St. and stole Mr. Moorman's car from the driveway off Isobel St.

Walking on Road.

Chief Langton learned of the robbery from the Belleville police and upon seeing three strangers walking into Deseronto early today apprehended them on nominal charges of vagrancy. Later Chief Langton located Mr. Moorman's car abandoned in the Marysville quarry and immediately notified Belleville police. Chief Probert added this afternoon the trio were being held on charges of car theft and later charges of attempting to steal Mr. Cherry's automobile would also be preferred.

AMERICANS INVADE PHILIPPINES SAYS TOKYO

RUSSIANS DRIVE WELL INTO EAST PRUSSIA

Part of U.S. Force Reported Landed On Suluan Island

Shore Defences Pounded By Naval Guns and Planes

San Francisco, Oct. 19 —(AP)— American expeditionary forces are invading the Philippines, Tokyo radio reported today, striking at the centre of the vulnerable eastern flank of the archipelago.

Domei agency said flatly that United States forces have begun their "reinvasion of the Philippines," supported by powerful units of the Pacific fleet and china-based aircraft.

Sea forces, Domei said, included "the naval fleet under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.".

An official Japanese communique said "the enemy fleet" accompanied transports into spacious Leyte Gulf Tuesday (Manila time) and for the last two days naval guns and carrier aircraft have been bombarding shore defences.

"Part of the enemy forces seem to have landed on Suluan Island" at the entrance to the gulf, Domei said.

No Confirmation.

Domei asserted Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's task force 58—the carrier arm of the Pacific fleet—was not participating in the invasion because of asserted losses suffered off Formosa. These have been denied in Pearl Harbor announcements.

These broadcasts were the only reports that Gen. MacArthur had taken the most crucial step to fulfill his pledge, made 2 1-2 years ago, to return to the Philippines.

While there was no confirmation that the Philippines invasion was at last underway, the combined Pacific sea forces of Admiral Nimitz and land-based air strength of Gen. MacArthur have been paving the way for reconquest of the territory in 10 days of unprecedented raids on western Pacific islands for 1,000 miles either side of the Philippines.

Attacks Costly to Japs.

These thunderous attacks which have cost the Japanese close to 1,000 planes and hundreds of ships are still continuing, Manila radio reported. It told of 270 carrier planes striking in four waves this morning at Manila and strategic Clark Field. The Japanese-controlled radio claimed 19 were shot down.

The unconfirmed Tokyo announcements indicated that a powerful task group of Admiral William F. Halsey's 3rd fleet combined with the southwest Pacific naval forces steamed into Leyte gulf in the central Philippines to screen an amphibious landing on tiny Suluan island and perhaps some of the other islands bordering the gulf.

The area, only 400 miles from Manila, is an ideal spot from which to establish aerial control of the islands, and completely nullify air bases that carrier planes haven't already knocked out.

The communique, which may herald Gen. MacArthur's return to the Philippines said:

"Firstly, the enemy fleet and accompanying transports invaded Leyte gulf of the Philippines on Oct. 17 and since the afternoon of Oct. 18 has been subjecting the coastal areas to an aerial and naval bombardment.

"Secondly, our naval and army units in close co-operation are at present intercepting this enemy force."

BRITISH FORCE BRIDGEHEAD OVER PISCIATELLO R.

Seal Off Sector North of the Rimini-Bologna Highway

Rome, Oct. 19 — (CP) — The British 8th Army has forced a bridgehead across the Pisciatello river north of the Rimini-Bologna road in the Adriatic sector while Allied 5th Army troops took several more peaks and villages along the southern approaches to Bologna, today's Allied communique said.

The bridgehead, east of the important road junction of Cesena, was raided against strong German opposition.

The communique did not specify which units of the 8th Army established it, but an earlier front dispatch from Canadian Press war correspondent Bill Boss said Canadian and New Zealand troops were deployed along the Pisciatello River, facing strongly-entrenched enemy forces.

In the foothills south of Cesena Indian troops captured Acquarola and Roversano.

Fighting bitterly against reinforced German troops American infantrymen established themselves at San Clemente on a subsidiary road to the Bologna-Rimini highway, 9 miles from Castel San Pietro.

Other 5th Army units took Vaglie to the west and entered Castel Vecchio, about 2½ miles northwest of San Clemente, while infantry carried new positions on highway 65 — the main road to Bologna north from Florence.

The communique said "very heavy fighting" continued on the southern slopes of Monte Belmonte in the highway 65 area. South African troops on the left flank of this sector captured Monte Pezza.

Allied Success At Venlo on Meuse May Be Preliminary Steps To Grand Operation

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
(A.P. War Correspondent)

London, Oct. 19 (AP) — British Tommies and American armor rocked the Germans back toward Venlo on the Mass (Meuse) from the Holland salient today in what appeared to be the preliminaries to an offensive aimed at breaking organized German resistance before Christmas.

West of Antwerp in Holland the Canadian forces were less than two miles from the German guns at Breskens commanding the sea entrance to the port from the pocket south of the Scheide, and Canadian Press War Correspondent Ross Munro said German resistance in that area was "weakening rapidly."

In Aachen U.S. 1st. Army troops, again smashing German tank and infantry counter thrusts northeast of the Siegfried line point, held about half the wrecked city and smashed on into the northwestern quarter where fighters and fighter-bombers pin-pointed strong points ahead of bazooka and grenade squads.

Berlin's Report

Coincident with Berlin's report of a savage Russian onslaught against East Prussia's defences, the German radio declared that the British offensive in East Holland, "in support of the American attack on Aachen, has increased in violence."

The timing raised the possibility of a grand strategy plan to beat the enemy by smashing simultaneously at East Prussia, heart of German militarism, while wrecking the Rhine-Ruhr Valley, centre of German industry.

An Associated Press war correspondent with the British 2nd. Army said Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's troops, striking swiftly after taking Venray, had advanced about 3½ miles south toward the railroad town of America. An American armored column was converging at a distance of fives miles upon the same objective from the east.

Germans all But Eliminated

The Germans had been eliminated from all but about seven square miles of territory west of the Maas, and the Allies were within 33 miles of Duisburg in the Ruhr.

Berlin said Dempsey had concentrated strong forces in the area to annihilate the Germans' Maas bridgehead—an objective which would straighten the line along the Dutch border in preparation for an Allied cross-river assault.

In a desperate effort to avoid being trapped on the west bank, the Germans apparently were falling back to the south toward Venlo as their comrades in the Venray-America area were pushed back.

Washington, Oct. 19 —(AP)—The possibility of victory in Europe this year will very likely be decided by the speed with which Allied armies can turn to their own use the two great strategic keys to Hitler's fortress Germany — the Belgian port city of Antwerp and Poland's devastated capital, Warsaw.

Full use of the unloading facilities of Antwerp could crush much of the western front supply problem and support a crushing thrust into Germany over the shortest, best route to Berlin.

Antwerp is in Allied hands but enemy guns in the Schelde pocket still dominate its approaches. Clearing those approaches, conceded by military men here to be one of the top-priority jobs on the western front, has been undertaken by Lt.-Gen. Crerar's battle-hard 1st Canadian Army. A dispatch from Allied Supreme headquarters said Wednesday night the battle for the pocket was moving into its last phase.

Unless the Canadians can clear the way to Antwerp promptly it appears highly improbable that the Allies can muster full strength against all the enemy's vulnerable points for multiple heavy blows this fall.

This would sharply limit what appears to be the grand strategy for a 1944 victory in Europe — final twin offensives by the Russians in the east and the Allied forces in the west before winter closes in.

The main trend of Russian front events and their significance in the broad picture of the war — often obscure — can now be reported on high authority as having developed in this manner:

The Russian summer campaign paralleled the Anglo-American invasion of Normandy and contributed much to its success. The campaign reached its most advanced point in the suburbs of Warsaw at the end of July. The Germans had determined to hold the city and counter-attack drove the Russians out.

Thus the Soviets were stalled on the central front and required much reorganization of supply and forces, which presumably still is going on.

Employment Will Not Be Met if Prices Get Out of Hand Says Gordon

Quebec, Oct. 19 —(CP)—Donald Gordon, Prices Board Chairman, said today in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Congress of Labor Convention that Canadians will not be able to meet the employment needs of the transition period if prices get out of hand now "or over the next critical year or two."

In the reconversion period already begun, prices must be prevented from rising so that the urban worker and the farmer can buy better housing and more consumer goods and services, and so that Canada can get into and hold expanded export markets.

"If we can get volume production, Canada will enjoy a high level of employment," Mr. Gordon said. "And if employment is well maintained I am sure that organized labor will look after the question of wage rates."

Labor, formerly interested in price control as the largest consumer in the community, now had a special concern in such control as fundamental to the success of all other reconstruction policies.

A reasonable and stable price level held out the best prospect for continuous and high employment at decent wages.

"This is a feature of price control that wage earners may not often think about although to my mind, it is now the most important feature of the whole program," he said.

LIBERAL LEADER BRANT MEMBER FOR 25 YEARS

Harry C. Nixon Looks Back With Pride on Quarter Century of Service

By Fraser MacDougall
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. George, Ont., Oct. 19—(CP)—When Harry Corwin Nixon was nominated as the United Farmers of Ontario candidate in Brant north in the provincial general election of 1919, his father told him: "You're crazy! Where'll you get the vote? Just tell me where you'll get one vote?"

"Well, Dad," the 28-year-old candidate replied, "I'll get my wife's vote. I'm sure you'll vote for me, I intend to vote for myself—and that makes three for a start."

Actually on election day, Oct. 20, the young candidate received 3,579 votes, somewhat less than the combined total of 4,539 polled by his Liberal and Conservative opponents but enough to win him a seat in the Ontario legislature. He has been a member of the legislature ever since, being re-elected in Brant north in 1923 and in Brant in 1926, 1929, 1934, 1937, and 1943, obtaining an aggregate total of 39,421 votes in the 7 elections he contested.

Today on the eve of the 25th anniversary of his first election victory for which he planned a quiet observance, he looked back with pride on a quarter century of service to his native province, including 12 years as provincial secretary and a brief period as premier.

NAZI GARRISON SURRENDERS TO BRITISH CRUISER

Carrier Planes Also Attack Enemy Transport in the Vicinity of Volos

Rome, Oct. 19 (AP)—The German garrison on Santorin Island, 70 miles north of Crete in the Sea of Candia, surrendered yesterday to the British cruiser Ajax, Allied headquarters announced today.

The naval command said that carrier planes sweeping in from the Aegean heavily attacked enemy transport in the vicinity of Volos, 35 miles southeast of Larisa on the Greek mainland. The same planes also took a heavy toll of enemy shipping in the Sporades Islands in the Aegean northeast of Athens.

A German armored vessel containing 300 German infantrymen was sunk in the same area Oct. 16 by H.M.S. Argonaut while the destroyer Termagant accounted for a Siebel ferry loaded with enemy equipment. Some survivors were picked up.

Six enemy vessels were destroyed and another merchant ship set afire Oct. 17 off Lemnos, southeast of Salonika, the naval command announced. Twenty smaller enemy craft were disposed of in the same region.

SEVERE HURRICANE PASSING OVER FLORIDA AREA

Residents of Low Lying Coastal Areas Warned To Seek Higher Terrain

Miami, Fla., Oct. 19 —(AP)— The centre of a "severe hurricane" now passing over the Tampa-St. Petersburg area will reach the vicinity of Jacksonville this afternoon, weather bureau officials said today.

Shifting gales of 60 to 70 miles an hour will accompany the storm as it crosses the mainland, and the weather bureau warned all interests in the path of the storm that "all precautions should be continued and rushed to completion immediately."

A bulletin issued at 6:30 a.m. E.D.T., by the bureau advised that unusually high tides will prevail from Daytona beach northward along the eastern coast of Florida.

"Residents of low lying coastal areas should depart immediately for higher terrain," the bulletin warned.

A weather bureau advisory at 6 a.m. E.D.T. said the storm then centred over St. Petersburg and Tampa as both cities felt gales of 100 miles an hour, and added the storm still was moving northward.

Without Electric Power.

The Miami weather bureau, in an advisory at 4:30 a.m. E.D.T., said the Caribbean-born disturbance "is apparently entering the Florida west coast just south of Sarasota."

It predicted the hurricane, which was moving northward at 13 to 15 miles an hour, would continue travelling in that direction, with a gradual turn to north-northeast during the day, and pass into the Atlantic near Jacksonville early tonight.

St. Petersburg reported winds of 70 miles an hour which left the city without electric power.

The hurricane gave the Florida Keys a severe lashing as it moved into the gulf from Cuba, but "the city of Key West apparently suffered no serious damage.

Seven persons were known dead, more than 300 injured and property damage was heavy in western Cuba. Government officials said it would be days before the full toll would be known.

Hurl Great Forces Against Homeland Of Junker Generals

Third of Carpatho-Ukraine Region Has Been Liberated

London, Oct. 19 —(CP)— Russian forces backed by 50 tanks have penetrated well into East Prussia where the German border town of Eydtkuhnen has been evacuated, the Berlin radio said today.

"The deepest Russian penetration" was in the Eydtkuhnen area 37 miles east of Insterburg and the Red army has passed this town, Berlin said. "The Russians have advanced further on German soil."

The German communique acknowledged loss of the town but insisted a break-through had been averted.

Tremendous infantry and tank forces were being hurled against the homeland of the Junkers generals to "achieve a grand scale break through at all costs," the enemy said.

The front has widened from 30 to 45 miles overnight with the Russians extending their attacks to the area of Suwalki, centre of a triangle which Hitler annexed from Poland to East Prussia in 1939.

Berlin tacitly acknowledged in yesterday's communique, that the great new Russian offensive had plunged across the East Prussia border and reached another frontier town of Schirwindt, nine miles northeast of Eydtkuhnen. Moscow has not yet announced the drive.

37 Miles East of Capital.

Eydtkuhnen (population 3,000) is 37 miles east of the major Prussian rail centre of Insterburg on the trunk highway and railroad from Kaunas, Lithuania. It is 87 miles east of Konigsberg, capital of East Prussia and a German submarine training station, Eydtkuhnen is the first German settlement the enemy has abandoned in the east.

"The battle is rising in intensity and taking on greater proportions," the Berlin radio said. "The Russians have brought up most of their forces from Finland and Estonia and flung them into the fray."

The enemy said the drive, under command of the 36-year-old Russian Jewish general, Ivan D. Cherniakovsky, was aimed at Insterburg. The battle was reported savage all along a 30-mile front from Schirwindt to Kalvarija in Lithuania.

Employ Old Tactics.

"The Soviets are employing their old tactics of blasting a way for their infantry through German positions with massed use of artillery and bombers," said Col. Ernst von Hammer, Nazi commentator. He asserted that the defences of East Prussia were "very elastic and deeply staggered." He said 257 Russian tanks had been destroyed in three days.

The reported break-through was north of the wild, Masurian lake country where armies of the Czar sustained a crushing defeat from Von Hindenburg in opening months of the First Great War.

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Oct. 19 —(AP)— Swift Russian advances through the Carpathian mountains have liberated one third of the Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost province of Czechoslovakia, and established virtually a solid front for the Red Army across the wedge of high ground between the Polish and Hungarian plains.

Moscow announced early today that Col.-Gen. Ovan D. Petrov's 4th Ukrainian Command, pouring through gaps left in enemy defences by Hungary's military collapse, had dealt stunning blows to German positions in the rich Danubian basin.

Capture Seven Passes.

The High Command disclosed that Russian troops had captured seven important Carpathian passes in advances ranging from 12½ to 31 miles along a 170-mile front.

It also was disclosed that Russian and Romanian forces under Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky commander of the 2nd Ukrainian army, have been fighting near Sighet for two days after a drive northward through Transylvania.

Another Petrov armored unit struck from Verezke pass to within 15 miles of Munkacs, one of the three leading towns in the Carpatho-Ukraine, or Ruthenia, which Hungary seized back from Czechoslovakia in April, 1939.

Ungvar, seat of the provincial administration, was the immediate goal of Russian tanks and infantry less than 20 miles distant in the higher hills.

Die Like Wild Animals.

Destruction of the enemy's Carpathian line after a bloody month-long struggle overshadowed other important successes on the eastern front.

Front dispatches said the mop-up of Belgrade was progressing steadily, with Germans fighting and dying like wild animals in blazing hillside buildings from which they could not escape.

Southeast of Belgrade elements of at least two German divisions were reported surrounded by Russian and Yugoslav partisan forces.

Bulgarian troops led an all-Slavic drive across the width of Serbia which has now reached Kursumlija 40 air miles west of Nis, and only 130 miles from the Adriatic Sea.

For the seventh day there was no official news of the Red Army's crucial battle at the approaches to Budapest.

The Russians remained silent on the offensive operations against East Prussia, either from Lithuania or Northern Poland, which have been reported by Berlin.

Lt. Cmdr. Carr Says Canada Close To Invasion From Northeast in 1941

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Canada was close to invasion from the northeast in 1941, Lt.-Cmdr. W. J. G. Carr, R.C.N., former senior naval officer at Goose Bay in Labrador, said yesterday in an address to a service club (Kiwanis).

"Germany invaded Norway for the purpose of invading America from the north," Lt.-Cmdr. Carr declared, "That is why we established air and naval bases on the north shore of the St. Lawrence at Goose Bay, Hudson's Bay, Southampton island, two on Baffin island, and two on Greenland."

Between December, 1941, and April, 1942, 332 ships were sunk off the east coast of America "practically within sight of American shores," he disclosed.

"We did not even have enough ships to rescue our seamen," he said but during the same four months Nova Scotia fishermen, unofficially organized by Lt.-Cmdr. Carr brought ashore 487 merchant seamen between Liverpool and Yarmouth, N.S.

He said the war found Canada so unprepared that after she had been in ship production a year the first corvettes to escort merchantmen to Great Britain left port with wooden guns on their forecastle heads.

The price paid for unpreparedness was 50 per cent of two convoys in October and November, 1940. Cost in lives of the British merchant marine—the men who manned the ships carrying materials was 33,500 casualties, of which 29,200 were dead.

Canadian goods Britain-bound were delivered cash F.O.B. Atlantic Coast. "Thus, British seamen were giving their lives sailing the ships towards Britain so that we could enjoy prosperity at home."

Crossing Highway No. 37, eight miles north of Belleville to rejoin a companion yesterday afternoon, 37-year-old Alexis Hannah, of Picton, walked into the path of a south-bound motor car and was knocked to the roadway where he sustained head and facial lacerations. ISSUE 6,000 RATION BOOKS IN TWO DAYS

Many Consumers Have Yet to Make Application for New Books

With 6,000 new ration books No. 5 issued duirn gthe first two days of four-day period of issuance, a large number of residents have yet to make application at the City Butler Market, distributing centre of the local ration board.

Work is virtually completed by members of the augmented ration board staff at industrial plants of the city, Albert College, the O. S. D. and the Belleville General Hospital. Books issued in these places are not included in the sum total of the number issued thus far in the city.

Ration Board officials anticipating the inevitable last minute rush of applicants, today urged people to obtain their books today or tomorrow. The official deadline is 6 p.m. Friday, and those who have not applied for their books by this time, must send formal application to the Regional District office at Brockville. This will entail loss of time as well as inconvenience on the part of the applicant and additional work for the Brockville staff.

Crowding at the distributing centre is still conspicuous by its absence. Applicants have been orderly and coming in at a fairly consistent rate of speed. There has been some delay because of a number of people who have forgotten to fill out the forms included in the old books and this has caused extra work on the part of Alderman H. J. Clarke, and Mrs. Stanley Upper, officials in charge of distribution.

Friday is the last day of issuance here, and Board officials urge those residents who have not yet done so, to secure their books before 6 p.m. on that day.

Jury Disagrees After Eight-Day Murder Trial

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP) — The 8-day trial of Allan Baldwin, 32, and William O'Sullivan, 22, jointly charged with murdering Robert Canning, 49-year-old guard at Toronto's Don jail last June 10, was brought to a close last night when an Ontario Assize Court jury failed to reach agreement after deliberating 11 hours.

The pair will be tried again at the next Assizes.

Mr. Justice D. J. P. Kelly said the jury had given the case every consideration and had attempted to fulfill its duties throughout. Before dismissing them, however, he said that if there was a possibility of "coming to an agreement I think you should endeavour to do so." The foreman said that was not possible.

The jury had retired following the trial judge's address in which he said they could arrive at two possible verdicts, either murder or manslaughter.

Charges were laid against the two men following investigation into Canning's death. The guard was found dead in the prison.

Police said he died following a scuffle with Baldwin and O'Sullivan.

Ministers Honor Rev. Dr. J. Semple With Presentation

It was a delightful occasion on Tuesday evening when Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple was honored guest of the Ministerial Association at a farewell dinner at the Y.M.C.A. All the ministers in town were present, as well as three laymen, who are officials at Bridge Street Church, Messrs. Harry W. Ackerman, James Galloway and Joseph E. Shortt. The Rev. J. Dilts, president of the association, presided for the affair.

Following the dinner, the Rev. E. Beauchamp Payne, in the name of the association, presented Dr. Semple with a set of book-ends. Most of those present spoke in glowing praise of Dr. Semple's services to the church and community, in regret of his leaving and with best wishes for the success and happiness of himself and his family in the church to which he is going in Peterborough. Dr. Semple replied, thanking the association and expressing his appreciation of the men individually and of their capacity as an important organization in the life of the city.

Wing Commander Taught Many To Fly; Now on Bombers

With R. C. A. F. Bomber Group Overseas—In more than six years since he joined the R.C.A.F. as a provisional pilot officer, Wing Commander F. W. Ball, St. Thomas, and Belleville, Ont., has taught many men to fly, has risen to his present rank and has held the post of deputy director of air training at Air Force headquarters, Ottawa. He has now reached his major goal since war began; he has made his first trip against the enemy as captain of a bomber. He was mentioned in press dispatches Thursday as one of the men who had been on a bombing raid over Germany the previous night.

He has been undergoing final training to handle the four-engined giants of this Canadian group.

"I've been teaching pupils for almost five years now," said the 37-year-old pilot a few days ago, "and I'm very keen to get a chance to put my teachings into practice myself."

When his overseas posting came through in February he made sure of getting here fast. At the controls of a transport plane he ferried from Canada.

During the recent investiture held there by His Majesty, W. C. Ball acted as commander of his station parade.

"All the rest of the people there were getting gongs (decorations)," he explained, "and there was no one else to do the job."

Walking along the lines with the inspection party following presentation of the decorations, he was asked by the King what his job was with the unit. "I'm afraid I must have 'shaken' His Majesty when I told him I was only a pupil," he commented.

WC. Ball entered the permanent Air Force on graduation from McMaster University, Hamilton, in 1938. He had just started a flying instructors' course at Camp Borden when war broke out. On completion of the course he taught at Central Flying School there until appointed examining officer of civilian flying clubs for Ontario in June 1940, with headquarters at No. 1 Training Command, Toronto.

He became chief supervisory officer at 12 S.F.T.S., Goderich, and also served at 5 S.F.T.S., Brantford, and 10 S.F.T.S., Dauphin, Man., before being named deputy director of air training.

Mrs. F. W. Ball is the former Athol Crosier and is at present residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Crosier, Forin Street. There is one child, Douglas, a year old.

4 Months Term Given Accused On Theft Charges

Norman Bell, 18, was sentenced to four months determinate and one month indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on two charges of breaking, entering and theft when arraigned before Magistrate A. B. Collins, K.C., in County Police Court here today. Floyd Andrews, 17, an accomplice of Bell's, was given two months in the common jail after both had elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to theft from the home of John Frederick, Sidney Township farmer, and also to entering the Chatterton schoolhouse. The jail terms on each charge will run concurrently, His Worship decreed.

Bell and Andrews were arrested on Sept. 30th last after the home of Mr. Frederick had been entered and a fur coat and jewelry, valued at $300 stolen. When apprehended by a pose of farmers the pair were also found in possession of a rifle, Provincial Constable J. E. Soubliere told the court today.

Record Introduced.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., introduced the previous record of Bell, which included one conviction of robbery with violence and a second of shop breaking, while the younger Andrews admitted to charges of bicycle and car theft at Toronto. Both lads reside in Toronto.

Bell pleaded his own case and informed the court his parents had separated when he was but six years of age following which he had been placed in a supervised home. He also added he had tried to enlist with no success. "I am taking into consideration you have not had the benefit of parental control, but the fact you possessed a weapon is a definite indication you might have done something desperate had the occasion arisen," concluded Magistrate Collins before sending Bell to the reformatory.

The telegram stated he had been killed on October 10th.

TWO WITH ONE SHOT

Pueblo, Colo., Oct. 19 —(AP)— James Pitcock aimed at a buck. The bullet passed clean through the buck's ribs, and then broke the neck of a doe standing on the other side. Both animals died instantly. That wasn't all of Pitcock's luck, either. Besides having a regular game permit, he was carrying a special licence allowing him to hunt doe.

Bullets Made By Same Company Officer Testifies

Whitby, Oct. 19 (CP)—A Royal Canadian Mounted Police expert testified yesterday that the bullet which killed Mike Sheveluk at Pickering, Ont., seven years ago and cartridges taken by police from the stock of a Toronto store were made by the same company.

The evidence was given by Inspector J. A. Churchman, testifying in the trial of Sam Michael, 45, who is charged with the murder of Sheveluk, Nov. 27, 1937.

Stephen Francis, proprietor of the store, had testified earlier in the trial that Michael purchased a .32 calibre high-powered Winchester rifle and cartridges from his store in 1937, shortly before the killing. A statement by Michael to police denied that he made the purchase.

Crown witnesses said the sample box of cartridges obtained by police seven years ago from the Francis store had been kept in a strong box by Provincial Police. Inspector Churchman said the death bullet was a .32-calibre high-velocity cartridge, fired from a high-powered Marlin or Winchester rifle. In cross-examination, the inspector told Defence Counsel A. G. Slaght that "no two bullets are exactly alike."

POLICE COURT

Four Tyendinaga township youths were given suspended sentences in County Police Court, held before Magistrate A. B. Collins, here today. Three of the young men, Elmer King, Newton Demill and George Liddle admitted stealing an automobile wheel, tire, tube and rim from the garage of Fred Dryden, Tyendinaga, while the fourth member of the quartet Ernest King, pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods, namely the car wheel and rim. The King boys are twins, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan informed the court. Upon the payment of individual costs of $15, each a three months' suspended sentence was imposed.

R. D. Arnott, K. C., appeared on behalf of the young men and pointed out all were engaged in essential farm war work and added it was the first time any of them had been in trouble of such a nature. "They come from respectable families," added Mr. Arnott. Provincial Constable James Driscoll told the court how the initial trio had entered Mr. Dryden's garage by night and stolen spare tire, tube, rim and wheel.

A Russian vagrant, who gave his name as Alex Kozak, 69 years, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. Provincial Constable Stanley Palmateer, of Bancroft, informed the court he had apprehended Kozak on the highway east of Bancroft, waving a large piece of paper about. "He told me he was endeavoring to flag an aeroplane which was to drop him one hundred dollars from the sky. The man was desperately in need of food and shelter," added the officer as he suggested a jail term during which Kozak could recuperate. He was given two months.

In the traffic court Dorland Windover, Oshawa, paid $17.50 after pleading guilty to a charge of speeding preferred under the War Measures Act. Windover also contributed $7.50 on a careless driving count.

James Rivers, Tweed, paid a similar amount on a careless driving count, as did James Gill of this city. T. D. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society, made application for two children to be made wards of the C. A. S. which was granted by the court. Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson presented the traffic cases listed for trial today.

With 30 cases listed for trial the court adjourned at noon to resume at two.

NYLON HOSIERY FIRST

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP) — Nylon hosiery was the winner in a "what I want most" poll conducted by the Chicago Herald-American over a period of six weeks. Of more than 300,000 ballots cast for favorite items which are hard to get in wartime, nylons were first choice of 24,200 voters. Girdles snapped into second place, the choice 21,800.

Ceiling Prices On Hay Set By Prices Board

Ottawa, Oct. 19 — (CP)— Ceiling prices on hay grown and sold in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces have been set by the Prices Board in an order effective Oct. 30, it was announced today.

The new order fixes a basic maximum price for growers and shippers of $18 a ton for baled hay loaded on cars at the shipping point nearest the area of production.

Board officials stated that hay prices in some sections of the central and eastern provinces, where this year's hay and other fodder crops have been below average, have been rising rapidly in recent weeks. This had caused concern to dairy farmers and other livestock producers, with a consequent threat to the price ceiling structure on beef cattle and on fluid milk and other dairy products sold to the consuming public.

The prices fixed were in line with those set last season for hay in the prairie provinces. The Board gave these examples of how the ceiling will work:—

1. If the grower or shipper delivers the baled hay to the shipping point but does not load it on the car, his maximum price is $17 per ton.

2. If he sells baled hay at his farm, his maximum price will be $17 a ton less normal hauling charges from the farm to the nearest shipping point. If this charge is 50 cents a ton, his maximum price will be $16.50 a ton.

3. If he sells the hay loose or unbaled at the farm, the maximum price will be $16.50 less the customary baling charges or $3 per ton, whichever is the lesser. Thus, if the customary baling charge is $2.50, the maximum price will be $14 per ton for loose hay at the farm.

4. If a grower-shipper sells direct to a person who buys the hay to feed his own livestock, he is permitted to add to the above maximum prices a maximum mark-up of $1.50 per ton if the hay is shipped by railway in carload lots or $3.50 a ton if the hay is shipped or sold otherwise than by railway in carload lots.

Provision is made in the order for specified maximum mark-ups which may be taken on sales of hay by wholesalers and retailers.

MAY BE OFFENSIVE

Gen. Eisenhower's communique, officially reporting the seizure of the rail and road town of Venray, seven miles from the German border, said Allied forces had advanced two miles south of the Venray-Deurne road and gains had been made from the west along the north side of the railway east of Deurne.

The German report on this sector said bitter hand-to-hand fighting was taking place east and northeast of Helmond, which the enemy has acknowledged evacuating. Helmond is five miles west of Deurne.

Aachen Near Finale.

Inside shell-ripped Aachen the end appeared in sight.

The Allied communique, however, said the garrison was resisting stubbornly, and placed the centre of the fighting in the northwest section.

Northwest of the city, Lt.-Gen. Hodges' troops clearing the way for resumption of the offensive, "destroyed a large number of pillboxes and have made gains against strong opposition," the communique said.

It was apparent his forces were engaged in a methodical sweeping up process to liquidate the old Seigfried defences before tackling the trench positions beyond. It is obvious, too, the interval was being used to bring up supplies to support a concentrated offensive.

Once again the Germans attempted to break the ring of steel about the big industrial city, but the same troops who closed the last gap beat off two tank-supported infantry counter-attacks.

Thrust Into Centre of Pocket.

In the Schelde pocket, criss-crossed by dikes and streams, German resistance was evaporating with the 5,000-man garrison reported reduced to about 1,000.

Canadians thrust into the centre of the pocket near the hamlet of Waterlandkerkje, 5 1-2 miles south of Breskens, where German batteries are concentrated.

North of Antwerp, where the other half of the Schelde battle is being waged, the Germans again were back in the western half of Woensdrecht, in the neck of the spit leading to Walcheren and Zuid Beveland islands.

In the Vosges foothills, Eisenhower reported that Allied positions had been "consolidated and improved" at several points despite stubborn enemy resistance and "vain" counter-attacks.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSS — In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, Willard M. Ross, who passed away one year ago today, October 19th., 1943.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who tho' absent is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by sister Hilda, brother-in-law Herb, nieces, Shirley and Eileen.

ROSS — In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away one year ago today, October 19th., 1943.

Time rolls on and we are reminded
Of a day our hearts were crushed.
When God took you, oh, so quickly
And we in gloom were thrust.
In the bloom of life death claimed you,
In the prime of manhood days,
But we hope some day to meet you
And to be with you always.
—Ever remembered, Mother and Dad.

HAGERMAN — In loving memory of our dear grandmother, who passed away October 19, 1943.

And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by grandchildren.

HAGERMAN — In loving memory of Mrs. Dan Hagerman, who died October 19th., 1943.

Oft and oft our thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away
Where we laid our dear mother
Just one year ago today.
—Ever remembered by Husband, Sons and Daughters.

Navy Boys Thank Kinsmen Club For Cigarettes

In the Navy, as well as the Army and the Air Force, Canadian cigarettes are always welcome by "the boys in navy blue." This fact is weekly assured Chairman Buster LaBarr, of the Kinsmen Fag Fund, when he opens the increasing number of replies received from Belleville boys serving on the high seas or overseas.

From aboard the H.M.C.S. Kitchener, S. G Blackburn of this city, wrote to say—"With cigarettes rationed over here, such as they are, smokes received from the Kinsmen are really a God send." Sandy's letter arrived from London after he had helped land troops in France.

A.B. H Martin of H.M.C.S. Orangeville wrote a similar letter to say his shipment of 300 fags from the Kinsmen had reached him the very day he had to purchase English cigarettes, which apparently aren't appreciated too much by Canadians.

From the engagement fronts came letters from Tom Colden, Ted Burling, C. Nelson, C. G. Allin and many others were received this week urging the continued shipment of Canadian cigarettes to our fighting forces.

The list of Belleville boys sent 300 cigarettes each through the Kinsmen Fag Fund this week included:

Prisoner of War Jack Adams, D. C. Alexander, Clem Allen, F. P. Archer, R. .F. Arnott, B. G. Bankey, F. G. Barlow, Joe Bey, Alan Bone, D. H.. Barnhart, Albert Budd, G. W. Buker, N. P. EMPLOYMENT

5,000,000 New at Work.

When inflation developed, wages trailed behind prices and labor lost out. Counting the armed forces, 5,000,000 Canadians were at work today, about 1,250,000 more than in 1939. The labor "potential" after the war could be roughly 1,000,000 more than the pre-war total. To take up the slack caused by the decline in war contracts, labor and management must think in terms of mass markets to provide plenty of jobs at decent wages.

"Don't let anyone fool you that a high wage is the only important thing," said Mr. Gordon. "Maintenance of employment after the war and the buying value of your dollar in terms of goods and services are just as important."

In the long run the only way to get volume employment and good wages was to keep production running to capacity. The policy of the Prices Board would be to maintain basic period prices and at the same time relax control measures on industrial production as the opportunity arose so that nothing would be permitted to stand in the way of maintaining high employment.

The Board would seek to prevent a rise in prices in the transition period and would do this by insisting on the maintenance of the basic period level which meant prices ruling during the fall of 1941. Goods which have not been produced since 1941 and which now are returning to the market will be priced at their 1941 prices.

PICTON

2 Picton Airmen, Awarded D.F.C. In Latest List

Picton, Oct. 19—Two Picton airmen have been awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses, according to an announcement made by Air Force Headquarters. They are, Flying Officer Arthur Cantrell, son of Rev. J. Cantrell, rector of the Parish of Marysburgh, and Flight Lieut. Gilbert (Benny) Goodman, son of Mrs. Ernest Goodman. Both have participated in many operational flights and helped bring home aircraft after they were riddled by bullets.

FO. Cantrell enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1942 after he had received his B.A. degree at Queen's University. He trained at Toronto, Edmonton and graduated as a navigator at Moncton. He went overseas in February 1943 and recently completed 31 operational trips. He was then chosen to take a special course for navigators in England. Three weeks ago, he made a surprise trip to Canada by air, spending a few hours, with his father before returning.

FO. Cantwell considers himself lucky. All members of his first crew, with the exception of himself, have been killed, as well as one member of another crew he served with. On one occasion he distinguished himself by navigating his aircraft back to its base though it was riddled with some fifty cannon holes in the wings and fuselage. He participated in the invasion of Normandy, being among the thousands of planes which blasted German positions and communications in the Normandy sector. He took part in raids over several heavily-defended cities in Germany.

Flt. Lieut. Goodman is one of three sons of Mrs. E. Goodman in the services. Pte. C. R. Goodman recently returned to Canada after service in Italy, where he was wounded. Gnr. Jabez Goodman is now in France. He is a member of the Bluenose Squadron, being an original member, and previously served in the Moose Squadron. He has taken part in 38 flights. The trip he remembers most was one to Duisenberg when his plane came back with 75 flak holes in the fuselage. Originally a fitter, he is now a flight engingeer and ranks as one of the most important members of the crew.

Picton, Oct. 19 — Four days before the seventh Victory Loan campaign opens, Mountain View R.C.A.F. station, near Picton, has already exceeded its quota by $5,050. Yesterday afternoon it was announced that the airmen had subscribed $165,050 and the drive continues.

In the last loan, Mountain View raised more than $200,000, doubling their quota. The station has been divided into sections and there is keen competition as to which section will obtain the largest per cent of its objective.

In Prince Edward County, the loan will be officially opened by a parade in Picton Saturday afternoon and a rally in the theatre Sunday night.

NO TRACE OF MAN

Lindsay, Oct. 19 —(CP)—Provincial Police said last night no trace had yet been found of Thomas McInroy, 83, who left his farm home north of Highland Grove in Haliburton County last Sunday. Posses are combing the woods for trace of him.

ORDERED TO ANTWERP

Kingston, Oct. 19—(CP)—Maj. G. G. Fuller, United States consul at Saint John, N. B., and former American consul here, has been ordered by Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, to go to Antwerp, Belgium, and reopen the U. S. consulate's office there, it was learned last night.

LIBERAL LEADER

Changed Three Times.

In those 25 years his political affiliation changed three times, from U.F.O. to Progressive to Liberal-Progressive to Liberal. He was House leader of the Progressive group in the legislature for years and now is Ontario Liberal leader.

He was born April 1, 1891, and the only other person he ever knew with the traditional "all Fool's Day" for a birthday was his son, Jackson.

"That was the most wonderful birthday present I ever had," said Mr. Nixon in an interview, just a little wistfully Jackson, a pilot officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, was killed Sept 3, 1941, in an attack on Frankfurt, Germany. "He was a wonderful boy."

The Liberal leader has been a farmer all his life. He was brought up on the 300-acre family farm near here which he now operates. He was educated at St. George and the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

In 1919 he was Secretary of the St. George U.F.O. club which carried on a large commercial business. When a meeting of county clubs was called to discuss possible political action he attended and before the meeting was over found himself a candidate for the provincial election.

Provincial Secretary

His total expenses in his first election were $190 but "I'd hate to try to run an election for that now." The U. F. O. officials passed the hat at campaign meetings and collections totalled $100. Mr. Nixon paid the other $90 himself. Instead of getting help from the central party organization—as candidates do now — he paid $30 to the central office for copies of a campaign issue of the old Farmer's Sun to distribute among his constituents.

He was provincial secretary in the E. C. Drury U. F. O. government 1919-1923. He took over that portfolio again when Mitchell F. Hepburn became premier in 1934 and then he resigned in 1942 in protest against the manner in which Gordon D. Conant succeeded Mr. Hepburn as premier.

He was Premier of Ontario for three months, less one day — May 18 to Aug. 17, 1943. "That must be a record for short terms among premiers," he said with a smile.

Interesting Years.

The most interesting years of his political life were from 1930 to 1934 when he "carried the torch for Mitch Hepburn" in the legislature. Although Provincial Liberal Leader, Mr. Hepburn was not a member of the House. Mr. Nixon actually was House Leader of the progressives but "Mitch didn't get along" with the Liberal House Leader.

Mr. Nixon was married in 1913 to the former Alice Jackson of Guelph and Petrolia, Ont. They had four children. Oldest was Jackson, killed overseas. Kathryne served overseas with the Women's Division of the R. C. A. F. but returned home last April and recently "presented me with a granddaughter." Her husband, Capt. Bruce Forbes now is in Belgium. Margaret is the wife of Warrant Officer Douglas Farrell, with the Canadian Army in England. Robert, 16, is at home.

Impressive Memorial Service Held For Corporal Ray at Springbrook

Springbrook — A solemn and impressive memorial service was held in the United Church, Springbrook, on Sunday afternoon for Corporal Raymond Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ray, of Rawdon Township, who was killed in action in France on September 5th., while fighting with his unit, the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. The church was not large enough to accommodate the throng of people who had gathered to show their sympathy to the family and to pay tribute to the memory of a brave young soldier. Some were forced to stand during the service, while others could not get within the doors.

A guard of honor from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from Madoc, under Lieutenant Dixon, lined the steps while the relatives entered and left the church, which had been decorated with simple dignity. In front of the pulpit, a photograph of Corporal Ray, stood upon a table which was draped with a Union Jack. Behind and below the photograph there were placed two beautiful wreaths of the type used at War Memorials on Armistice Day.

The service was conducted by the minister, Rev. J. R. Holden, assisted by Captain the Rev. C. C. Gilbert, chaplain serving Military District No. 3 at Kingston, who from the background of his experience a sa padre, brought a message of comfort and inspiration. "Before soldiers went into action, Captain Gilbert stated that all of them, the serious and the careless, those with religious convictions and those who ordinarily gave religion no thought, thumbed through their New Testaments to seek the words of life. He thought that none could die a soldier's death, giving his life for others, without in some measure coming close to the cross of Christ.

Rev. Holden briefly told how anxious Corporal Ray had been to do his part in the defence of home and freedom, along with two older brothers who had also enlisted. While assuring the parents and family of the sympathy of all the people, he said Rawdon Township cannot but be proud of Raymond Ray."

An appropriate anthem was sung by the choir under the direction of Mrs. John McKeown. "The Last Post" and "The Reveille" were sounded by a bugler from the guard of honor.

Railways' Service in War

The railways of Canada have been meeting the problems of traffic in wartime in a way which has won the highest commendation. How the lines in Canada have faced successfully the tremendous tasks falling to them was told in Windsor this week by Mr. J. F. Pringle, vice-president and general manager of the Central Region of the Canadian National Railways. He was speaking on "The Battle of Transportation." The railways had faced serious problems before the war and "fortunately the managements of the Canadian railways realized the value of their properties to the Canadian people and throughout these difficult years maintained them practically intact and in good operating condition." This was "in the face of severe criticism and continued efforts to tear up or degrade some of those lines which have turned out to be of considerable national importance." One proposal for line abandonment would have been, he said, a catastrophe had it been carried out as it has been carrying and is now carrying a tremendous volume of war traffic.

It is interesting to note as the Vice-President points out that "during this same period the railways of Germany were neglected, Hitler planning his world conquest on the basis of highway transport and it is not too much to say that some of the difficulties he finds himself in today are traceable to this error in judgment."

Fortunately Canadian railways were in good physical condition at the outbreak of the war, Mr. Pringle declared, competently and loyally staffed, capable of expanding and taking on the task imposed upon them by the development of Canadian production to meet the demands of all-out war. What the railways did was to analyze the capacity of each line with a view to avoiding bottlenecks. There were expansions, developments and splendid results have shown the wisdom of this policy.

Canada is in fourth place among the United Nations i nproduction of weapons and war materials, only United States, Britain and Russia exceeding. This would however have been of little value if adequate means of transport to the seaboard and thence to the battle fronts had not existed. No war production plant is more important to the war effort than the railways of Canada for they do double service carrying raw material to the factories and manufactured goods to the point of consumption or export, the Vice President pointed out.

The war has changed the attitude of many persons who had the thought back in 1939 that the day of the railway was passing. They have now changed their minds.

On the railways fell the added task of haulage due to restrictions on rubber and gasoline and submarine activities in the Atlantic area.

This increased traffic was handled with fewer locomotives, fewer freight cars and a small increase in passenger cars as compared with the year 1917. This increase in efficiency was due to improvements in rolling stock, power and fixed properties. There had been an increase however in the carrying capacity of freight cars from an average of 35 tons to 41 tons, locomotives were larger and more efficient and the average tractive effort increased from 31,000 to 39,000. Other improvements made possible heavier loads to be handled at increased speeds with less fuel. Other factors were more intensive shopwork, length of engine runs. Locomotive serviceability was raised from 72 per cent to 82 per cent.

While personnel was increased only 35 per cent between 1938 and 1943 on the two larger railroad systems, there was an increase in traffic of some 133 per cent, in spite of the difficulties of taking on new men and of a great many enlistments in the armed forces. Older employees were praised by Mr. Pringle for their training of the new men for the accident rate was very low during the years of expanding traffic and expanding personnel.

The permit system has prevented congestion and delay and munitions and food moved without interruption and on schedule. Another factor was that several of the properties composing the Canadian National System which were in competition during the last war had in the intervening years been welded into a co-ordinated system.

The story of railroading in the war years as revealed by Mr. Pringle is intensely interesting to everyone. Heavier loading was adopted to prevent any car shortage, the result being a betterment of 35 per cent in loading. Shippers have co-operated splendidly thoug this heavier loading meant inconvenience and increased costs to shippers.

The address was a floodlight of information upon the achievement of Canada's railways and how difficulties were triumphed over.

Mr. Pringle showed that in spite of Canada's large railway mileage per unit of population, our railways can be made to pay spot cash dividends in addition to their contribution to the national welfare. In 1943 the Canadian National Railways after paying interest on its bonded indebtedness, setting up reserves for deferred maintenance of equipment and roadway and paying over $8,000,000 in taxes, had a surplus of more than $35,000,000. Owing to the rising cost of materials and labor and frozen rates the results in 1944 will not be as favorable. The Vice-President too paid tribute to Canadian railwaymen who have "wholeheartedly put forward their best efforts to see that men and munitions were handled without delay."

Of post-war planning Mr. Pringle referred to the briefs submitted by the C.P.R. and C.N.R. The railways are being asked "to construct subways, new stations and generally to contribute to re-employment."

Efficient and cheap transportation is necessary to Canada he said and "it is only the railways that can handle at reasonable cost the heavy volume of traffic so essential to our well-being at the low rates necessary to permit us to hold our export markets. The railways expect increased competition after the war and have no quarrel with such competition, provided it is fair and subject to the same regulations and control of service as they are subject to." He struck the note of optimism. "The railways have faithfully and efficiently served the nation for over one hundred years and are prepared to do the same in the happier years we all hope will follow the termination of this war."

Among contributions, shops in part have been put at the service of the Munitions and Supply Department for its use with the very highest results. Some 40,000 Canadian railway employees are in the armed forces. The employees have supported Victory Loan campaigns and the objective of 15 per cent of the payroll has been obtained without undue difficulty and have supported the blood clinics loyally.

Belleville had the proof of the interest the Canadian National Railways take in support of the Victory Loans in the visit of Mr. Pringle and other officials to this city a few days ago to forward the plan for thorough canvass of the C.N.R. employees toward achievement of the objective of $283,000, a new high goal for the Belleville division in the forthcoming Victory Loan.

Hitler's latest appeal to the Nazi armed forces calls upon the youth of Germany to fight fanatically in the hope of victory. There could be no surer sign of admission that the jig is up. Fanaticism has no place in the rules and regulations that govern a successful military operation, says Port Arthur News Chronicle.

Else why with tender boastfulness should all their charms be told?
And why should I, for all who care to read

Relate so proudly growth and gain in

Now hear me through, recording this, not

You'd smile to hear our Ellendy recite her

She holds the Scripture words of right, if

She heard the teacher say it once, and locked within her head,
To tell her mother later on is what she

It seems to us who smile on her the angels

Must happy be to hear a child reciting:

British Troops Capture Japanese Base at Tiddim

Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 19 —(CP)— British troops advancing into Western Burma have captured the Japanese base at Tiddim, from which enemy forces launched their abortive invasion of India early this year, Allied headquarters announced today.

The British 14th Army has been closing in slowly on Tiddim for several weeks after pursuing the retreating Japanese 100 miles southward from Imphal in northeastern Burma, which the enemy attempted unsuccessfully to seize.

The fate of the Tiddim garrison was not immediately disclosed. Small British forces, however, have been reported operating along the Japanese escape route to the south after filtering through the jungles.

First troops to enter Tiddim were units of the 5th Indian division, veterans of the African campaign and the first Burma campaign.

Heavy Casualties In Robomb Raid On South England

London, Oct. 19 — (CP)—Heavy casualties were reported today in a small town in southern England which suffered one of its worst blows of the war as the Germans continued their flying-bomb attacks for the eighth successive night.

An entire row of houses in the community was destroyed by a robot which ployed into the earth after being hit by anti-aircraft fire. Rescue workers still were digging in the ruins this morning for dead and injured, but the total number of casualties remained uncertain.

Flying bombs also fell in other scattered areas.

In some districts lightning-like flashes lit up the sky — seen far beyond the range of the sound of the explosion. Speculation developed as to whether the Germans were experimenting with some new type of explosive.

Germans Destroy Entire Population Of Greek Village

Those Over 14 Machine-Gunned and Women and Children Burned

Athens, Oct. 19 — (CP-Reuters)— The Archbishop of Greece, Dr. Damscinos, said today that German destruction in the south and Bulgar ravages in the north had almost killed Greece and "if the Bulgarians are not punished for their crimes I will declare publicly that there is no justice on this earth."

The Archbishop, prematurely aged and almost broken in health, who celebrated his 54th birthday Wednesday, told the story of a massacre at the village of Kariavrita where 80 Germans had been killed, and the Germans decided to destroy the entire population of the village.

He said:

"The Germans gathered every man, woman and child (about 1,000) into the village square. There they told all males of more than 14 to kneel down.

"The women and children were removed to a school building opposite, from where they could see all that went on. The men were then machine-gunned where they knelt and the school building was set on fire.

"For about 10 minutes babies could be seen falling from windows as their mothers threw them out in an effort to spare them being burnt.

"Eventually a German officer, who himself could not stand the horrible scene any longer, rushed up and broke open the doors. It was too late. Very few women escaped."

The atrocities committed by Bulgarians in Macedonia and Terace were even worse, the Archbishop continued. There more than 50,000 Greeks were massacred. An attempt wah made so to reduce the Greek population that the Bulgarians would no longer be in the minority, he said.

ALLIES INVADE

No Confirmation.

The reference to army interception might mean either that Japanese ground forces were fighting amphibious troops or that the enemy air force was counter-attacking the invading naval task force.

There was no confirmation from any Allied source of either the enemy communique or other broadcasts, but recent American naval action in the Pacific has indicated an invasion was imminent.

A two-day delay in the Japanese announcement of a drive into the Central Philippines would indicate that defensive forces were taken completely by surprise.

Leyte is one of the larger central Philippine islands lying midway between Mindanao and Luzon.

Leyte gulf is an arm of the Pacific Ocean lying almost in the centre of the eastern side of the Philippine Archipelago. It touches the eastern shores of Leyte Island, while Leyte Bay, mentioned in reports heard in London, is on the northwestern tip of the island.

The gulf, about 380 miles from Manila, is surrounded by high coasts with good natural harbors. It is bounded on the north by Samar, on the west by Leyte Island, while a number of smaller islands form the southern side.

Suluan guards the entrance to the gulf.

Has Good Elevation

The central location of the island would make it an ideal spot for an air strip from which to strike at almost any part of the Philippines. The low-lying island has a maximum elevation of 125 feet, and is one of the closest spots to advanced Pacific fleet bases in Southern Paual, about 500 miles to the east.

It lies northeast of Mindanao, daily raided by reconnaissance planes from the Southwest Pacific, southeast of Luzon Island, target of continuing raids by carrier forces. It is 415 miles from Manila..

It also is 415 miles north of Morotai, most northerly Allied-held base yet announced.

A landing on such a small and unknown island as Suluan would be in keeping with Gen. MacArthur's conquest of New Guinea and neighboring islands formerly controlled by the Japanese.

Hit Unexpected Spots.

His troops hit at unexpected spots, where the Japanese were not based in strength. In striking island groups they normally landed on one of the lesser islands, carved out an airfield and from there went on to the larger islands.

Tokyo radio has been warning its listeners for months that a Philippine invasion was brewing, and both MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz have made no secret of the intention..

Admiral Mitscher's Task Force 58 has been relentlessly hurling carrier planes for the last ten days at Luzon Island airports and Japan's Island line of supply to the north. In those assaults 900 Japanese planes have been destroyed, nearly 200 ships sunk, and 150 smaller surface craft knocked out.

Carrier planes in combination with China-based B29s have temporarily immobilized the centre of Japan's South China sea air forces on Formosa.

COMPLETE ARRANGEMENTS

London, Oct. 19 — (CP) — The News-Chronicle said today that Britain, the United States and Russia have completed arrangements for trial of Axis war criminals after assurances from all neutral countries they will not harbor them as fugitives.

WOOD IS CARBOHYDRATE

I have recently bought a play pen for my baby (writes a reader, who thereby qualifies for a rebuke). It is unfinished wood and I want to put either a stain or varnish on it. Would orange shellac or a maple stain covered with varnish be poisonous? You see my baby bites on his crib and I want to be careful that he does not get poisoned. Perhaps you can suggest a non-poisonous finish. My husband and I read your column daily and we both think . . . (Mrs. A. M. S.)

Oh, so you have a husband too? Do you let him come into the house occasionally to look at your baby? But we'll go into this wretched situation more thoroughly in another article. For the present, Ma'am, please consider yourself rebuked.

My advice is to leave the crib as it is — unstained, unvarnished, unpainted. In fact I advise that all furniture, toys, cribs, woodwork or other surfaces the baby can touch, should be of plain wood unvarnished, unstained, unpainted.

It can do no particular harm if the baby sucks or gnaws on plain wood.

Babies have not infrequently suffered gravely if not fatally from chronic lead poisoning from sucking and gnawing on painted crib, chair, toy. Not all paints contain lead, but many do.

Shellac is likely to contain arsenic. Indeed, it is at present extremely difficult to find shellac that is arsenic-free.

Keep things within the baby's reach free from paint or other finish—plain wood can never do any harm even if the baby eats it.

Use fine sand-paper to smooth any rough surfaces, and wash surfaces frequently with plain soap and water for cleanliness.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Post-Operative Pneumonia

Referring to your theory of colds being caused by infection, how do you account for ether pneumonia? (H.G.)

Answer—Atelectasis or collapse of a portion or portions of one or both lungs, due to too shallow breathing, failure to administer carbon dioxide to stimulate breathing, failure to urge the patient to take full deep breaths a few times every hour or two in the days and nights immediately after the operation, and too prolonged lying flat on back.

No, No, Nadine

You promised to send pamphlet on How to Lose Weight if a correspondent gives her height, weight and age. I am 45, 63 1-2 inches tall and weigh 134 pounds. (Nadine)

Answer—There was another requirement, remember?—the correspondent was to inclose stamped, self addressed envelope. But never mind, Nadine. Your weight is, if anything, a little shy. Don't try to lose weight. Rather cultivate vite—send a quarter and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet "The 7 Keys to Vite."

Basal Metabolism

Please explain the basal metabolism test. Have asked our physician several times but he has explained nothing. After going to a specialist I was chagrined to find that our own physician has the apparatus in his office. (Mrs. S. M. F.)

Answer—It is a Goldbergian machine, I think. Better leave it to your own physician—if he is a good doctor you just can teach him when he should give you the works. The brass specialist is different—his aim is to cater to the Wiseacre public.

Bourbon

If you answer my four questions I'll be happy to send you a bottle of uncut bourbon. (D. A.)

Answer—I wouldn't nod my head for a barrel of it. If you have some good smoking tobacco on hand I might listen.

Whew!

Two years ago had my eyes examined. The optometrist said there was some internal trouble and suggested I have my teeth cared for. I went to dentist and he advised me to have them all out. So I did . . . I am 28 years old and very nervous. (Mrs. V. W. S.)

Answer—I suppose it will only annoy the quacks in the medical and dental fields if I harp any more on that subject—but it seems tragic that you gave up a single tooth without due consultation of your physician and dentist as to the necessity for such radical treatment.

Nicobar Islands In Indian Ocean Shelled 3 Days

San Francisco, Oct. 19 —(AP)— Tokyo radio reported today that an Allied Task Force has been bombing and shelling the Nicobar islands in the Indian Ocean for three days.

The attack began Tuesday (Tokyo Time) and fighting continued through Thursday morning, the broadcast said. The report, unconfirmed by Allied sources, was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Tokyo said one Allied carrier and one destroyer were sunk today.

The Japanese did not identify the nationality of the attacking force, but the Indian Ocean has been the province of the British far eastern fleet.

The Nicobar islands lie athwart Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's pathway back to Singapore. The attack, Tokyo said, was directed against Car Nicobar, northernmost of the island chain.

Tokyo said 24 carrierborne planes attacked Tuesday morning and five were shot down. Another wave followed Wednesday morning, at which time the naval bombardment opened. The Japanese counter-attack was reported the third day.

3 FIRE BRIGADES CONTROL BLAZE

Frankford, Oct. 19 — (Special) — Fire brigades from three centres, using both water and chemicals, were needed to bring under control a blaze which Wednesday afternoon completely destroyed the frame barn owned by William Tripp of this village. Fire equipment from both Trenton and Stirling answered the call for assistance with the local equipment fighting the blaze until their arrival.

A high wind blowing sparks and flames threatened nearby properties and before the blaze could be brought under control the Rose-Lowery hall was badly damaged. Contents were saved from damage, however, being removed from the building by volunteer workers. Shingles on the residence of Mr. Edward Prentice caught fire as sparks settled on the roof of the dwelling.

UNNECESSARY LETTER

"Q" by itself is one of the most unnecessary letters in the English language. It is seldom used except in combination with "U."

This is a holdover from ancient times. We borrowed it from the Latin along with most of the letters of our alphabet.

"Q" in English is always pronounced like "K" and in regularly formed words it is never used except when followed by "U," plus another vowel, the combination "qu" being practically a single letter.

Therefore "q" could be eliminated without any loss whatever to our language.

It corresponds to Kappa in the most ancient Greek alphabets. Apparently it was borrowed from the Phoenicians, who in turn got it from the Egyptians. We find it only in the earliest Greek inscriptions.

Being always pronounced the same as Kappa or K it disappeared from most of the dialects at an early date and was retained only in the Ionic alphabet where it degenerated into a mere numerical symbol for 90.

As a regular letter it survived longest when followed by Omicron or Upsilon, as at the beginning of the place name "Corinth."

Thus it is seen that even in the time of the earliest Greeks there was already a tendency to use "q" only when combined with "u."

In Latin "q" was regularly used in combination with "v" (originally the same letter) to represent the sound "kw."

The Normans were responsible for the introduction of "qu" into English, for "q" did not occur in Anglo-Saxon, the sound of "qu" being represented by "cw" or "cu." Most of the English words containing "qu" are of Latin or French origin, although in some cases the combination was substituted for "cw" in Saxon words. Thus, apparently, we have "q" as a superfluous letter in English simply because it existed in the Phoenician and Egyptian alphabets with a real function.

"Q" is used without "u" only in the case of a few foreign names and terms: as, Qadiriyah, a member of a Moslem ascetic order; Iraq, an Arab kingdom in Asia, and Qaisari-Hind, meaning Caesar of India, the official title of the British Sovereign as ruler of that country.

Severely Wounded In Gun Battle With Police

Owen Sound, Oct. 19 — (CP) — Fifty-year-old Stephen Gaskey of St. Catharines spent a "fair night" in hospital here where he is recovering from bullet wounds and a slashed throat following a gun battle with police in nearby Meaford yesterday. His condition was described as satisfactory.

Gaskey whom police said will face charges of attempted murder and attempted suicide, is under continuous police guard at the hospital.

The shooting duel with police in Meaford occurred after the officers were called to a grist mill owned by Mrs. Gaskey.

"When we arrived at the mill Gaskey was standing in the centre of the road," said Meaford Police Chief Clifford Ford. "I stopped the car and said 'put them up, you are under arrest.' As I started to get out of the car he drew his revolver and started to fire. I emptied my gun at him, firing low."

Constable Thomas Sims of Meaford said three bullets crashed into the car where he had been sitting. Blood was streaming from Gaskey's arm. The officers ran out of ammunition and Gaskey went to his wife's home, the Chief said. Provincial Police from Owen Sound joined the Meaford officers and when they entered the house they found Gaskey sitting on the chesterfield, bleeding profusely from a throat wound. A straight razor was lying nearby.

Military Targets Bombed by Means Of Instruments

London, Oct. 19 — (CP-Reuter)—More than 1,000 United States heavy bombers, escorted by more than 700 fighters, today attacked military targets at Mainz and in the Ludwigshafen-Mannheim area of Germany.

Clouds covered the targets and bombing was done by means of instruments.

The Rhineland cities which the heavies blasted today contain large railway marshalling yards and many industries important to the German war machine.

The daylight blows followed attacks last night on communications targets at Hanover and Mannheim by small forces of R.A.F. Mosquitos. Other unidentified targets in western Germany also were bombed by the night raiders.

Allowances Authorized For Orphaned Children

Ottawa, Oct. 19 — (CP)—Veterans Affairs Minister Mackenzie announced today that allowances have been authorized for the orphaned children of Canadian veterans even though the deaths of their parents were not attributed to war service.

Amendments have been made to the War Veterans Allowance Act, to deal with cases of hardship among veterans' children who have lost both parents. Boys up to 16 and girls up to 17 will be eligible for allowances up to $60 a year for one child, $360 for two children and $730 for more than two children.

"The order-in-council has been made effective as from Sept. 1, 1944, and application now may be submitted to the nearest district office of the Veterans' Affairs Department," he said.

Machinery also has been set up to accept applications for veterans of this war and the North-west Field Force who are not pensionable but who qualify under an amendment of the War Veterans' Allowance Act, announced recently.

Ontario Province Will Subscribe Five Millions

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 19 — (CP) — The Ontario Government is subscribing $5,000,000 to the Seventh Victory Loan, Provincial Treasurer L. M. Frost said here today. He was speaking to the Victoria-Haldimand counties Victory Loan Committee where he introduced Finance Minister Ilsley.

Mr. Frost said the province now has subscribed $30,000,000 in Victory bonds.

The government will accept Victory Bonds at par and accrued interest in payment for succession duties, Mr. Frost said, provided they were purchased by the decedent from the Dominion during his lifetime.

Previously prevented from subscribing to the Victory Loan under a statute now repealed, Hydro-Electric Power Commission and Workmen's Compensation Board will subscribe substantially to the new loan.

Goering's Luxurious Underground Village All But Destroyed

Paris, Oct. 19 —(AP)— Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering employed thousands of workmen to build a luxurious underground headquarters outside Paris, according to the French Press, but all the Allies found intact was one swimming pool.

The remainder of the establishment, situated at Courday-Surthelle, 40 miles from Paris, was destroyed by the fleeing Nazis.

Work on the headquarters, says the newspaper "front national," was begun in 1941 inside a barbed wire enclosure. Hidden from prying eyes were underground offices, luxuriously-furnished apartments, a colossal Casino for entertainment and halls for athletics.

During the construction, the paper said, a cave-in killed more than 100 workers. When work was finally completed, Goering established himself for long periods, in the underground village, where fine concrete roads led cars down ramps through air well ventilated by huge steel-lined shafts.

Special performances were said to have been staged for Goering in the Casino by Paris artists especially brought from Paris.

Only disturbing factor was the R. A. F., which bombed the district heavily in June, 1943, "front national" said. The following month, it added, one plane dropped a one-ton bomb right in the entrance tunnel.

HOLLOWAY STREET YOUNG PEOPLES' UNION

"Friendship" was the theme of the Christian Fellowship meeting held on Monday evening, with Dorothy Mitts and her group in charge. The evening began with a sing-song led by Isobel Richardson with Lois Harper at the piano.

Committees were appointed during the business period, to plan for a Hallowe'en party and the first Sunday evening Fireside hour.

An impressive worship service was then conducted by the Fellowship group. Taking part were Dorothy Mitts who gave the call to Worship and led in prayer, Maizie Foster, who read the Scripture lesson and Maude Burke who gave the Meditation. Two piano solos by Annie Clare were greatly enjoyed.

Guest speaker of the evening was Rev. C. V. Freeman of the Alliance Tabernacle who brought an interesting message on Christian Friendship.

Basing his remarks on the wonderful friendship of Elijah and Elisha, Mr. Freeman contended that truly great friendships should begin and continue in the House of God.

"The path of true friendship should lead to God", he said. He urged the Young People to make their friendships Christian ones and closed his remarks with that beautiful poem, "Friendship's Road".

Appreciation was voiced by Marion Allin.

A social hour with refreshments brought the evening to a close.

FRANKFORD

Special Services At Anniversary Of Stockdale U.C.

Frankford.— Anniversary services were held on Sunday, October 15, at Stockdale United Church, with good congregations in attendance to hear the guest minister for the day, Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of West Huntingdon. In his morning sermon, 'Disappearance of Christianity', the speaker stressed the need of regaining the zeal, passion and fervor of the early Christian Church, stating that the passion for winning souls to Christ so characteristic at the turn of the century was missing in the appeal of the church today. He gave man, illustrations showing that Jesus Christ was a stranger to many individuals, churches and institutions today, which in other years had subscribed to the principles of Christianity and had sacrificed for the evangelization of the world. He related these facts to the confusion, unrest and catastrophe so evident in the life of the world and claimed that there could be no progress and no way out of disappointment and tragedy until Jesus Christ was honored and the joy of salvation filled the hearts of believing men and women.

The text for the evening service was Isaiah 64: verse 1. The speaker referred to the charges people make against God. How, like the Israelites, they murmur and complain and suggest that God is disinterested in human life and has no concern in what is going on in the world. He gave many citations to support his statements and related them to events of history, present happenings and individual experiences to show that God is not only interested but actually superintending the movement of individual and national life and is repeatedly coming down to deliver and save man from his enemies and from destruction.

Mr. Harry Slingerland and Mr. R. Solmes, of Frankford, assisted with the special music for the day. Anthems were rendered by the choir during the two services. Miss Madeline Walt contributed a vocal solo at the evening service.

'Whipper' Watson Gets the Nod Over 'Mad Russian' as Latter Is Disqualified by Referee

Fans Storm Ring When Rasputin Puts the "Gag" on Watson

It wasn't the "Tack attack" that caused bedlam and mayhem to practically pull the roof down on top of 1,700 patrons at the Hume Arena last night, but out of the wrestling magician's bag of tricks, Ivan Rasputin, the mad Russian, pulled an oldey to attack "Whipper Billie" Watson with the "coat hanger" business. New in Belleville, but still unorthodox enough to arouse the ire of the patrons, who swarmed the ring midway through the main bout and leave the Hume Arena canvas literally covered with cinders, sand and what have you, Rasputin finally came to his end and lost to "Whipper Bill."

While all of this was going on in the wildest sort of melee ever seen in the local palace de sport, police were helpless in their efforts to save "The Bearded One" from the wrath of the irritated patrons. All of this came about after Watson, that adonis of the public, had taken Rasputin, beard and all, for a quickie in the first round, but when the "Hairy One" snatched the "coat-hanger" business from his trunks, well that was the spark that set off the fireworks, and we mean roman candles. From all sides of the ring came irritated fans, and they meant business as they ventured inside the sanctum of the inner circle to physically attack Rasputin in their ire. Actually Watson was at a loss and that's something in the muscle-bending business.

Lawson Inspects Ring

In the absence of Promoter Tunney, who was in Montreal lining up another town in his circuit, Manager Phil Lawson, the "Voice of Watson" entered the ring to examine things in general and place his stamp of approval on the scene of the principal battle, when he assured all and sundry there were no tacks to hinder his "pretty boy". Watson vindicated Lawson's findings by promptly beating off one of Rasputin's "bear hug" attacks and following a series of healthy headlocks picked the 240-pound Russian from the mat and with one of those (they hurt me) crotch holds, hurled that hulk of Communistic flesh hard and often to the mat for a fall, that rocked the Russian imperialistic background. That was one for Watson.

Hits Below Belt

Naturally Comrade Ivan didn't take any too well to such procedure and proceeded to demonstrate to all and sundry how the boxing business was practiced in his native Russia, namely hitting below the belt. This, naturally didn't do Watson any too much good. As a matter of fact it left him practically helpless on the Hume Arena canvas from where Rasputin proceeded to pick the East York champ, and smash him down again. Then came the "coat-hanger" business, but Watson had long since given up the ring ghost, but the fans hadn't. Even before Referee Maxwell declared Rasputin winner and the bout even, the fans had swarmed the ring from all four sides and bedlam reigned supreme, with Rasputin really on the receiving end of everything but the kitchen sink being tossed in his general direction.

Ring Cleared

Following a shower bath, during which the ring was cleared of debris, back came the gladiators with Watson the aggressor early. But this didn't last long as Rasputin hauled a cord from his trunks and began a strangling business all over again. This time the fans meant business, as they swarmed the ring. But Referee Maxwell beat them to the punch and raised Watson's arm in victory, despite the fact he was prostrate on the mat and practically gasping for breath. How "Ivan the Beard" got safely to his dressing room will have to be told in another story. But the fans were satisfied, Watson was the winner and the reign of "Ivan the Terrible" had ended.

Rough as Christie

In the opener Joe Maich proved he was just as rough as "Jumping Joe" Christie as these prelims battled through to a fast 30-minute draw. However, occasionally boxing promoter Bill Crawford could have signed 'em up for a main bout on his next fight card. The highlight of this bout came when both grapplers pinned Referee Cliff Fox for the only fall of the night, but who cares when the arbiter is down. That's the fun we all like.

"Irish Tom" Collins Wins

"Irish Tom" Collins gained the referee's decision over Vern Baxter in the semi-final after Collins had attempted to pull Laverne's leg off and beat knocks on his poggin. Naturally Baxter took exception to Referee Fox's decision, but it was to little avail as the fans stamped their approval on the opener as the fastest bout seen locally in some time. And the paying public really got their money's worth in beating Mister Beard's time. It was a good show and too bad Marse Tunney had to be in Montreal, where he hopes to sign bigger, rougher and more interesting wrestlers for another Hume Arena show.

FANS IMPATIENT TO KNOW LINEUP OF LES CANADIENS

No Contracts Announced and Military Status of Players is Mystery

By OWEN CHANNON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 19 — (CP)—Hockey fans here are waiting — somewhat impatiently — for somebody to come along and sweep away the mystery over the immediate future of Montreal Canadiens. About all that is known is that the Habitants are scheduled to open the National Hockey League season Oct. 28 against Boston Bruins.

The fans are discontented with the meagre reports trickling through from the training camp. No player contracts have been announced and mystery surrounds the military status of each of the players.

With the N.H.L. regulation barring players who are deferred from the army for other than physical reasons dangling over the Canucks, fans are wondering over the immediate future of the N.H.L. champions and Stanley Cup holders.

The way it shapes up at present is that the Habitants are holding on to three goalers, nine defencemen and 19 forwards, making a total of about 30 players in the training camp. Of course, this list will be whittled down to about 18 before the season opens but those who do not make the squad will not be made available to other N. H. L. clubs — instead they probably will be allotted to minor league teams where they will be readily available in case they're needed by the Habitants.

Status in Doubt

Bill Durnan's draft status is in doubt and until his contract is submitted to N.H.L. authorities for approval, it will not be known whether the Vezina Trophy holder will be able to guard the nets for the Canadiens this season.

Meanwhile, Paul Bibeault who was loaned to Toronto Maple Leafs last year after his discharge from the Canadian Army, is being groomed by the Canucks for the new season.

Leo Lamoureux, Butch Bouchard, Glen Harmon and Mike McMahon who formed the Habitants' rugged defence last season now are back in top form while a number of other defencemen are in the Canucks' camp, including Wilf Fields, formerly with New York Americans, Butch Stahan, Frankie Eddolls, Ray Leduc and Larry Reardon.

In the forward area many familiar faces are back including Toe Blake, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard who led the Habitants scoring list last year, Buddy O'Connor, Ferran Majeau, Ray Getliffe, Murph Chamberlain, Dutch Hiller, Fernand Gauthier, Tony Demers, Bob Filion and Lude Check.

EVEN-STEPHEN IN TWO GAMES

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons came out even-stephen in the first two games of the American Hockey League season with Hornets coming from behind to whip the Barons 5-2 before a 3,500-crowd at Pittsburgh last night. Tuesday night the Barons defeated Pittsburgh 6-1.

Tommy Burlington set the Barons off to an early lead last night with Bartholome adding the second goal for Cleveland mid-way through the second frame. Tony Hemmerling got one back for Pittsburgh less than a half-minute later and in the third period the Hornets piled up the rest of their five tallies with Hemmerling adding two of these.

Roubell and Robertson added the other Pittsburgh markers.

The only game tonight matches Buffalo Bisons against Indianapolis Caps in the mid-west city.

ALBERT COLLEGE DEFEATS TRENTON BY 22-0 COUNT

Major Points Scored by Aerial and Ground Attack

Scoring major points by aerial attacks and on the ground, Coach Pepper's Albert College senior gridders garnered in consistent plays to blank Trenton High School 22 to 0 on the home gridiron yesterday and move into the win bracket in the Bay of Quinte senior Interscholastic six-man football conference. Matters were rather even in the initial half as Albert lead 6-0 at the halfway whistle. However, some costly fumbles by Trenton helped Albert in their drive for three major scores in the second half.

After exchanges of hard punts Albert worked the pigskin into Trenton's area late in the first half only to have Kennie Lindsay, Albert's ace booting half, pitch a long pass into Harry Boyd's waiting arms and the fleet-footed Albert half romped home for the initial major score of the day, that was converted.

Trailing 6-0 Trenton opened the second stanza on the offensive with Taylor and Lesperance twice hauling the oval into Albert's zone, but the Pepper-coached clan held until Trenton fumbled in their over-zealous efforts. Later Albert settled away and Lindsay pitched another perfect pass to Bob McIntosh, who weaved his way over for a touchdown, giving Albert 11 to 0 start. Again Trenton moved up, but on a fumble play Doug Christie picked up the ball and ran 27 yards for another Albert major score, giving Pepper's crowd a 16-0 advantage. Late in the last quarter Harry Boyd again showed his speed by racing around right end for a 17 yard touchdown that he added prowess to by pitching to Don McCullough for a convert and the game went on record as 22 to 0 for Albert. It's St. Mikes and Belleville Collegiate at the latter's campus in a senior Interscholastic grudge battle this afternoon.

The line-ups — Trenton High School: quarter, Taylor; halves, Lesperance and Johnson; centre, Kartzmark; ends, Lamorre and Whitely; subs, Demille, Jeffery, Bayless and Matson. Albert College quarter, Lindsay; halves, Avdichuck and Boyd; centre, Christie; ends, McCullough and McDonald; subs, Healey, McIntosh, Hayman and Shields. Referee: "Red" Townsend; Umpire, Jack Doran.

May Help Some.

Professional athletes now in the armed services believe that if the war doesn't keep them away from sports competition too long they'll be able to return to play in as good condition as they ever could expect to be in at their respective ages. They differ in their opinions of what period could be considered "too long", however.

"The time away from his sport will depend on the position he played, the age of the player and the amount and type of service participation," said Lieut. Geo. R. "Birdie" Tebbets, former Detroit catcher now with the U. S. Army Air Force. "Catchers will be the least affected because they are not required to have as many superiod physical qualities that other positions demand." Byron Nelson, the great golfer, wrote:- "The main factor is how long will the war last, if the boys get out on a reasonably short time I don't think they will be hurt much. The training and regular hours and meals that most of the boys have had will tend to make them last longer. It will take hard work in the practice course and golf course for some six months before they will be tournament hardened. Of course losing a couple of very valuable years of competition won't help them any."

Ted Lyons Speaks Up.

One of the best-conditioned major league ball players, over a period of twenty years, was Capt. Ted Lyons, the great Chicago White Sox moundsman who more recently has been ground officer with a U. S. Marine air group in the Pacific. Lyons always insisted that:- "a ball player has to be in better condition than any other athlete, and he has to keep in top form six months of the year. Don't think that's easy, because if you train too hard you go stale; and if you aren't careful, you'll get soft."

Most people think that a boxer or a football player or a basketball player or a distance runner has the hardest training rap to beat, but what Captain Ted Lyons says is undoubtedly true, and the ball players' type of training is the finest of all simply because it is sustained and not too over-intense. The pro. ball player has to develop a sort of normal condition in which he is always firm both mentally and physically. This type of condition is also common to military experience. Of course when in serious training a boxer's period is more strenuous, but not so continued.

It is true, too, that a great many athletes are carrying on their sports training while in uniform, and this together with the fine food and regular hours certainly will not hasten their decline to any noticeable degree. The story seems to be that they'll be all right if they aren't kept away from their respective games, too long. Lieut. Ted Williams, the great hitter of the Boston Red Sox, is one who feels that he is losing some of the edge of not being able to play about 200 ball games a season. Then for comparison there is the case of Dick Wakefield's return to the Detroit Tigers' line-up after being in the U. S. Navy. Dick was a top-ranking hitter in the American League this past season, which seems to speak very well of armed service training.

Local Picture.

Take for instance a few of the local boys who have been serving overseas for much longer periods than the Yanks. Most of the Belleville boys who played softball and hockey in Belleville are still keeping their athletic training intact by playing such team games in England and Italy. There's "Ducky" Thomas, still managing teams, Harold Reid, Leo Goyer, Lum Carson, Walt Gerow and others playing occasionally behind the lines in Italy, while in England there are other younger Belleville athletes who are keeping abreast wtih Canadian sports in order to fit into the picture when it's over, over there.

Around the Town.

Albert College moved into the win column in their senior Bay of Quinte Interscholastic six-man football group with a 22 to 0 win over Trenton High yesterday . . . Again it was Harry Boyd and Kennie Lindsay who carried the mail for Coach Pepper's Alberts, with Doug Christie proving an opportunist to add another try . . . There was something different at last night's grunt and groan brawl, and we mean brawl in every sense of the word . . . When Referee Maxwell couldn't handle things the fans promptly went to work and demonstrated their strength by forcing the arbiter's hand until finally Referee Bert disqualified Ivan (The Ruffian) and declared Watson the winner and again the peoples' favourite . . . All of which goes to show popular demand in sport will ultimately triumph . . . However, the appearance of Mastermind Lawson didn't hinder "The Beard" from pulling the odd coat-hanger act.

Remember When—

Frank Boucher, famous Ottawa-born centre player on the Cook-Boucher-Cook New York Ranger line, was appointed assistant manager and coach of the remaining Gotham N. H. L. club five years ago today. Boucher is still holding down that position and at present rounding the youthful Rangers into shape at their Winnipeg fall training grounds prior to the 1944-45 N. H. L. campaign.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
(CP Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 19 — (CP)—Latest from the gossip bag is that N. H. L. officials and other big-time hockey interests were behind the easy capitulation of St. Louis Flyers when their men were ordered into the grain pits for a spot of honest labor at Port Arthur.

Vic (Timmins Free Press) Copps relates that on the authority of Bill Holouka, one of the young hopefuls attending the training camp. According to the underground reports, the hockey officials were afraid to have Flyers refuse and pull out of town in a huff because of the unfavorable publicity. If too many trouble spots like that developed, it's feared, the government officials might crack down harder on the player talent, and send them all to the Siberian mines.

Ripley, Note:

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson is authority for this one. Seems that after the Johnny Greco—Oscar Suggs battle (?) in Montreal the other night, promoter Eddie Quinn offered bonuses to Suggs and his manager, Lou Meyers. The boys refused any bonuses "for doing the job we're paid to do."

Grab Bag:

Maybe it was all the publicity in that recent Windsor, Ont., school "football strike," but anyway the Border City patrons are turning out nobly for the high school games now they finally are under way. The first day, some 2,000 students and 1,500 or so adults ogled the players . . . Toronto Maple Leafs are going all out to develop young hockey players, with a canny eye cocked to the future. Business manager Frank Selke has offered to conduct a junior hockey school in Timmins this winter, and Toronto is understood to be willing to contribute two or three good young players as nucleus for a Memorial Cup aspiring team. Financial aid, 'tis said, will be forthcoming . . . junior hockey backers are active in Vancouver, and have formed a four-team league — two teams from Vancouver and one each from New Westminster and Nanaimo . . . "Sailor" Grayson, husky coast heavyweight, is at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, Deep Brook, N.S., training for a spot of ring battling this winter . . .

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 500

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A squeeze play is where you force an opponent to give up a card that could have won a trick for his side. By leading a card of a suit in which he has none, you squeeze the winner out of him.

That can be done only when he is trying to protect more than one suit. And then, too, only when he has no more cards to spare. So, it is no sissy play.

To most players who pull a squeeze, it comes as a surprise. It is more or less of an accident. And, unless the victim calls attention to it, the squeezer may not realize what he has done.

To experienced players, however, the squeeze is usually a plan that they had determined in advance. Every step leading to the squeeze is premeditated.

The squeezer, in planning a squeeze, must lay the groundwork first. And one of his first operations is to reduce the number of cards in all the hands. Taking tricks does that.

Then he gets the victim in a position of trying to protect two suits at a time when vicky has no cards to waste. At that point, the lead of a squeeze card forces the sufferer to throw away a trick.

Sit up with this deal:

NORTH
♠ J 4
♥ A 8 4
♦ A 9 6 4
♣ A 7 4 3

WEST
♠ 9 7 5
♥ 10 6
♦ K Q J 10
♣ K Q 6 5

EAST
♠ 10
♥ J 9 7 5 3
♦ 8 7 5 2
♣ 10 9 8

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 8 6 3 2
♥ K Q 2
♦ 3
♣ J 2

South is declarer at a stretched contract of seven spades. The opening lead from west is the diamond king. That first trick is taken with dummy ace of diamonds.

Declarer takes three trumps, three hearts and then leads three more trumps. By this time, south has left a small trump, the jack and deuce of clubs.

Dummy is sluffed down to ace-small in clubs and diamond nine. West has left the king-queen of clubs and the diamond queen.

At this point, south leads his last trump. Before dummy plays, west must disgorge a card. West is squeezed. And how!

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Goalies are not lacking in Boston Bruins Training Camp at Quebec and four netminders may be seen during workouts. Besides Maurice Courteau of Quebec, who was rearguard for Boston Olympics last season, Jerry Foday of Regina, Harvey Bennett of Oshawa and Jimmie Pineo of Halifax, are aspirants for the job.

Detroit Red Wings appear to have the cream of left-hand forwards this year with six of them working out in the pre-schedule training season. Quite a contrast to the situation in the Toronto Maple Leaf Camp at Owen Sound, where there are reported to be but two, and to the New York Rangers lineup of four years ago, which did not include any "lefties."

Larry Thibeault, veteran minor leaguer obtained by Red Wings from the American League's Buffalo Bisons bagged 73 points last season after playing the preceding two seasons with Canadian Army teams. He and Ted Lindsay of Toronto, signed contracts Wednesday.

Frank Mario, a rookie winger from Cornwall, Ont., and one-time goal-getter in the Saskatchewan Senior loop, arrived at Quebec Wednesday and reported to Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins.

Reports have it that Fernand Gauthier, one of the players loaned to New York Rangers in the deal which brought Phil Watson to Montreal Canadiens last season, will replace the dynamic Watson on the Habitants line with Ray Getliffe and Murph Chamberlain. Watson, property of Rangers, may not be able to play this season because of Selective Service regulations.

Dick Irvin is expected to start paring down his roster after an exhibition game Saturday night at Ottawa in which the regulars will meet an all-star team.

Wilf Fields, former hard-hitter with Brooklyn Americans, is expected to land a berth with Canadiens. He's been working well so far in training.

Bryan Hextall, Ranger winger, may be nailed to his farm by Selective Service regulations. Doug Bentley, star from Delisle, Sask., can't play hockey because of the rulings.

Sweeney Schriner of Calgary who in 1943 announced his retirement from hockey, is back in the fold at Toronto Maple Leafs camp at Owen Sound. He weighed in at 188.

Frank McCool, another Calgarite in the Leaf Training Camp, continues to show well as goalie for the Toronto squad. He, Pat Boehmer of Kitchener and Leo Sargent of St. Catharines are viewing for the job.

Lloyd Marshall, ranked by the National Boxing Association as the No. 1 active light heavyweight, last night won a split 10-round decision over Joe Carter of Rome, N.Y., at the Cleveland arena. The decision, Marshall's second over Carter, was booed. Referee Joe Sedley and one judge cast their ballots for Marshall while the other judge favored Carter. There were no knockdowns.

Moose Jaw Canucks, with an eye on the Dominion Hockey Championship, have signed another of the famous Delisle, Sask., Bentleys for their Southern Saskatchewan League sextet. Latest recruit is forward Jackie Bentley, 16-year-old son of Jack Bentley, eldest of the hockey playing brothers, two of whom, Doug and Max, played for the Chicago Black Hawks in the N.H.L. Roy Bentley, former playing coach of Drumheller Miners and coach of Trail Smoke Eaters, Western Junior Champions last year, has signed to coach the Canucks. His son, Bev, will be goaltender.

A protest that "professional gambling rings have been fixing races" was presented to Rhode Island officials yesterday by 40 horsemen at the Pascoag Park track. The petition declared that, among other incidents, Jockey Henry Ramirez had been "attacked" Tuesday, and Jockey Milton Briggs "was threatened" yesterday.

Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League last night scored a 6-3 exhibition victory over the American League's Indianapolis Capitols at Detroit. Joe Carveth paced the Wings with two goals and an assist.

Jake Powell, 74, who started his baseball career with Cleveland in 1897 and was one of the American League's leading pitchers of 40 years ago, died at Chicago on Tuesday. Powell served 17 years in both the old National and the American leagues. He won 22 games for St. Louis Browns in 1902 and 23 for New York Yankees two years later, compiling a life-time major league record of 248 victories and 258 defeats.

Twenty-two athletes, among them some of Canada's leading distance runners, have entered Hamilton's annual around-the-bay race, a distance of about 19 miles, which will be staged Saturday. Among those entered are Sgt. Gerard Cote of Montreal, and Sgt. Bob (Scotty) Rankine, R.C.A.F., of Galt, Ont.

A new Quebec Senior Hockey League has been formed and will include Montreal Royals, University of Montreal, and teams from Hull, Que., and Ottawa, it was learned at Montreal last night. The league will replace the Q.S.H.L. which was disbanded this season when it was found impossible to organize enough teams. Although it has not been officially announced, the league schedule is expected to get under way about the middle of November.

The Stanley Cup championship Montreal Canadiens last night played their first exhibition game of the season, edging a team from the naval training station at Ste. Hyacinthe, Que. The sailors were bolstered by a number of Canucks' Training Camp recruits. Toe Blake scored three goals.

The War Today—

Entire Pacific War Has Been Battle For Reoccupation of Philippines

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
Substituting for DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Japanese reports that the re-occupation of the Philippines has begun are, as usual, subject to revision for accuracy, but fit perfectly into the picture of the Pacific war which has been building up for some time.

The battle for the Philippines is actually what the entire Pacific war has amounted to so far. Japanese outposts have been pushed back gradually for thousands of miles to prepare for this action.

Admiral Halsey has thrown a great arc of protection between the Philippines and Japan, destroyed 915 enemy planes and with them the threat of aerial counter-action, sunk or damaged 312 ships, and smashed many of the bases from which both operated. Now history's greatest fleet and greatest floating air force can be placed at the disposal of Gen. MacArthur.

Climax of 2 Years of Fighting

It brings the climax of two long years of fighting a cunning enemy in the jungles of the Southwest Pacific with one hand while building, slowly and bitterly under the handicap of priorities for Europe, the striking force for the return to the hallowed fortresses around Manila.

The battle will be bloody, but we can hope it will not be long. The Japanese have never been able to entrench themselves firmly in the central and southern Philippines, where native guerillas and even some Americans have continued resistance. South of Manila the action can be expected to resemble very closely that on the individual islands which have been made the stepping stones for the return.

Only on Luzon Full Scale Clash Expected

Unless the situation has changed since last reports, only on Luzon can there be expected a full-scale clash of armies. And even that may have been reduced, through constant attrition of Japanese supply lines, to a less determined point than evident in the Solomons and New Guinea.

Once recovered as a base for further operations against Japan, the Philippines will prove the key to the whole Pacific war and the resources of the Indies, Sumatra and Malaya on which the Japanese have depended will be largely cut off,—

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop came in the living room saying to ma, Those bathroom scales ought to either be adjusted correctly or else thrown away. I know exactly what my weight is and the truth will prevail, but it will prevail with less difficulty in a house where the bathroom scales dont hand out false information and unfounded innuendoes, he said.

Now William, there are 2 proverbial things that dont lie, and one's a camera and the other is scales, ma said, and pop said, Any camera that snapped a picture of those bathroom scales trying to register my weight would record a lie that would make even the German propaganda machine envious.

There's none so blind as those without eyes, ma said. I mean really, William, it's enough when you accuse me of seeing mirages and optical delusions every time I gently point out that you are starting to take on additional size just where it shows, but it's rediculous to try the same tackticks on a pair of defenceless bathroom scales. And how about that belt you're wearing? You're up to the very last hole. What are you going to do when there are no holes left at all? she said.

I'm going to chuck it away the same as I should chuck away those bathroom scales, pop said. Everybody knows wartime leather shrinks every time a damp draft hits it, and why should this belt be any exception? I think I'll go around to Peet's and do a little bowling. It may develop my abdominal mussels even at the risk of having misquided scales and people mistake them for an enlarged waistline, he said.

And he changed his slippers to his shoes and went, ma said, Such a man.

Meaning him.

TO THE STARS

By Russell McKeogh

This is the story of James Riley, of his boyhood, education, young manhood, of his life and loves, of the way Jimmy Riley was swept into sudden all-out war — and of the way he came through that ordeal to give the lie to the ones who thought in terms of the degeneracy and shallowness of the younger generation of the democracies.

For this of two hundred and fifty thousand Jimmies, who although they may have differed slightly in the beginning, all eventually had one thing in common and made that one thing possible — the Royal Canadian Airforce. The full story has not yet been enacted, let alone written, but more than enough has transpired to give the proof to their motto, Per Ardua ad Astra. . . . They have come through their trials, their errors and their difficulties. They have attained to the stars.

CHAPTER 1

"So it please th' Almighty's orders to perform, We ride the whirlwind and direct the storm." Addison 1. . . . Spring came sweet and clean over the English country that year. The hedges along the road leading to the Fighter Station were dark green and fragant and the meadows were lush and pale green with the fresh grass and in the fields the furrows were deep and black and the turned earth had a thick smell. The fields were well tended and cultivated for the crops were to feed forty-five millions who had been deprived of much of their imports. The women of the Land Army worked side by side with the depleted ranks of the farmers and the city dwellers came to the farms on their holidays and helped too.

The road was narrow and the car with the six young men in it drove on the left side of the road but after a year the Canadian didn't think it all strange. He stared impersonally at the passing country-side and realized vaguely that it reminded him of home and he stared with a slightly freshened interest then at the dark green hedges. Here close to the earth he glued his attention to the things of earth, on individual branches of trees, on single bushes, on the leaves that were close to the road and were lightly sifted with dust from the traffic on the sun-dried highway. He watched some cattle that grazed on a hill and looked closely at a yard and a farmhouse and some chickens that ran in front of the barn and a girl who stood on the porch and hung clothes on the line.

He tired of even that after a time and started to examine intently the hands of the man who drove the car, the knuckles white on the steering wheel that was on the right of the car and he ran his eyes slowly and carefully over the parts on the dash, over the gear shift, the speedometer, the oil gauge, and he timed it just right so that he finished as the car rolled up to the small hut that was Dispersal. He had not thought once since they had left.

The six young men got out of the car and stretched their long legs that were cramped from sitting in the low English car and they walked over to the hut and went inside. An aircraft soared low over the trees around the field and it was a Hurricane with the big air scoop underneath and the rounded wingtips; and the six young men came out and walked across the hard surface of the tarmac that was tamped concrete emulsion towards the six aircraft that stood at the edge of the runway with the motors turning over the cylinders coughing individually and not roaring and the mechanics standing around them. The young men climbed into the planes, adjusting the masses of equipment they had picked up at the hut—the oxygen mask hanging from the chin strap of the helmet, the Mae West high and bulky behind their necks with the canvas duck fastened down their chests, and the oxygen tube hanging down the front with the wires from the zippered earphones on their helmets coming together and running into the plug that fitted into the instrument panel, and the harness of the parachutes with the big swivel on the front and the wide canvas straps dangling loosely over the shoulders and under their thighs, and they climbed into their cockpits.

The Squadron leader who was the Canadian climbed into the cockpit and adjusted his parachute pack and plugged in his earphones and then went through his cockpit drill automatically and checked in his flight. The ground crew moved away and the motors that had been coughing slowly began to roar and black smoke puffed from the exhaust pipes along the cowling and the roar was a bank of sound, a solid physical thing that was flung back and enveloped the ground the ground crew and the Spitfires waddled forward awkwardly on their small wheels with the wings wabbling and the dark grey-green dappled fabric that stretched tightly along the lengthwise ribs vibrating slightly and they turned into the wind and picked up speed down the runway and suddenly they were not awkward any more but airborne and free and lunging and darting and graceful as they took to their wings.

The countryside dropped below and the Canadian looked at it again and saw the little winding roads and the toy houses and the fields that were little squares and rectangles and irregular triangular patches laid out in brown and black and green and dull brown and reddish brown, like a jigsaw or a patchwork quilt, all with dark black lines around them setting them off and the altimeter read ten thousand. He spoke into the mike over his mouth and the Spits leveled off and sped down over the English countryside and he noticed again that when you looked at the ground it hardly seemed to be moving at all, but if you took your eyes off it a minute and looked again it was completely different. Blue water of the channel appeared and the surf was a thin white line against the beaches and the white cliffs were shining in the sun and Spring was still green and fragrant but very far away and he tried to remember it was spring below.

The big square black planes that were Halifaxes were below them now and when he checkd in with their leader their multiple motors were a sullen foreboding heavy roar above their terse words. They flew on and the black line that was the enemy was suddenly resolved to beaches too and the countryside of Occupied France was underneath them and the fields were little squares laid out in brown and black and green and dull brown and reddish brown, all with dark black lines around them and little toy houses and winding roads. And when he twisted his head around he felt the cool smoothness of the white scarf at his throat and he thought of Margaret and he saw the little bundle of black specks coming out of the sun and for a brief crazy slice of a second he remembered the Wing Commander at SFTS saying "Beware the Hun out of the sun" and then he was speaking quickly and distinctly into the mike and the six Spits were doing a half roll and turn like peeling off in an inverted sky all together as if controlled by the one stick in his hand.

When the black fighters came nearer in their dive he saw they were Focke-Wulfs and he remembered that their own planes were as fast as the FW's and then he was speaking swiftly again and the Spits were climbing all together in a great vee to intercept. There were nine of the opposing aircraft and they aimed at the bombers below and as they flashed by the six Spits got in a brief burst and he saw a black blur go thru his sights and two of them wobbled and one burst into flames and the smoking as it kept on its course towards the earth below. The Spitfires wheeled again in a tight banking turn that ended in a screaming dive and he could sense out of the corner of his eye the wingtips of the two planes on either side of him. He could see orange flashes from the guns of the Tail End Charlies in the Halifaxes and he saw one Halifax on the outside side-slipping with dull wisps of smoke coming out of the pilot's office and then just when it seemed it would spin it righted and flew on. The Huns broke out of their dive below and the Spits were on them before they could resume their climb. He saw a black shape a little above his sights and he eased back on the stick a little and shifted a bit on the rudder to the right and pressed the fire button on the stick, lining up his deflection a couple of lengths ahead as the Hun zagged out of his dive and he could see the fabric jagging off the wing before he knew his cannon had connected with the fuselage and the whole plane disintegrated suddenly before his eyes.

The battle was joined and there was no longer any formation as he yanked the stick back hard and to the left and gave it left rudder and felt himself pressing down in the seat and his head bending his neck forward with a terrible pressure. Then he was climbing again and starting to go away from him was a Spit with an FW on his tail and as the Spit turned desperately he eased around too and the Hun banking broadside was coming into his sights and he just pressed the button and let the Hun run through the solid curtain of fire from his machine guns and cannon. And suddenly there was no more Focke-Wulfs and the Halifaxes were out of sight, their blackness camouflaged against the blackness of the country and the smoke and the buildings wherein lay their targets and he spoke into the mike again and the six Spits resumed formation and flew on to escort the Halifaxes. When the bombs hit there were white flashes and rings of smoke, of flame, that rose in jerks. Then they flew home.

There was the white line of the beach and the blue, dark and rough of the channel and then the shining white cliffs again and the English countryside and the little winding roads and the toy houses and the fields that were little squares and rectangles and triangles laid out in brown and black and green and dull brown and reddish brown, all with dark black lines around them.

Free From Pains In Limbs And Joints; Praises Syntona

Also Ended Stomach Disorders; Dizzy Feelings, Backache and Headaches Disappeared; "Feel Like Myself Again," Says This Greensville Resident.

"For the past two years my stomach was in a badly disordered condition and this seemed to make everything else go wrong," says Mr. V. L. Matthews, a well-known Steel Company of Canada employee, whose address is Greensville, Ont.

"The thing that really had me worried was a pain in my back so bad that I couldn't straighten up. My limbs felt lame and ached all over. I was seldom able to eat a meal without suffering from gas, with a full, heavy feeling in my stomach. Sour acid risings came up in my throat. There were times when I had severe dizzy feelings which ended up in a splitting headache. This affected my nerves so badly that I couldn't get restful sleep and then in the mornings hardly had enough energy to get out of bed.

"I wasn't taking Syntona long before my food began to digest better. I could enjoy my meals and have no gas, bloating or sour risings afterward. The backache gradually eased up until it had disappeared and then the other aches and pains went away. Since then I've been getting sound restful sleep and haven't had any headache or dizzy feeling since. Even my work seems easier since I am feeling like myself again. I have recommended Syntona to many of my fellow workers and urge every one suffering as I did to try this medicine."

Let this pure herbal tonic help you as it has so many other local men and women. Syntona is pleasant to take and contains no harmful drugs or depressors.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Social Obligations Must Be Impressed In Education

Toronto, Oct. 19—(CP)—Dr. J. G. Althouse, Director of Education for Ontario, said last night children will leave the schools of the province with just as high standards of social obligations and sense of responsibility as the staffs of the schools set with the approval of the public at large.

In the last decade youth had been taught too much about social rights and too little about social obligations, said Dr. Althouse, who said parents and public must cooperate in this effort.

He spoke after receiving a copy of a report prepared by principals and teachers of commercial high-schools in the Toronto area and the Toronto chapter of the National Office Managers Association.

The report said guidance given pupils in elementary schools is inadequate that there was a tendency to stress academic teaching, to look down on commercial training and to force students along lines for which they were not adapted.

AUCTION SALE

Thursday, October 26, at 1 o'clock, Emory DeMille owner; 1 mile west of Holloway. Horses; 12 Holstein cattle; geese; hens; farm machinery; dairy supplies; hardwood and pine lumber.

Cpl. Earl Stratton Tells How Dutch Family Reacts to Bombing

Singling out a Dutch family in the part of Holland in which he is fighting, Corporal Earl Stratton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Stratton, R. R. 6 Belleville, writes an interesting letter on actual conditons in the near-liberated areas of the Netherlands. In fine descriptive style, the young soldier gives a first-hand account of scenes and episodes in the lives of these families who are aiding their liberators in the fight for Dutch freedom. The letter follows:

"It seems I am writing real often now, but I must do something to put in the spare time. I can't put the feeling into it I'd like but I can make you see clearly what the people of this country have been through and how they are living up to it.

This story will be about an ordinary Dutch family that could be in any city that has been under the German rule. In the family there are the mother, father and six children between the ages of nineteen years and a baby of six weeks. The place they live in is not too dangerous, but bad enough, about half a mile from an important bridge or something, in a brick house about four stories high, they live on the second floor—more dangerous than the cellar, but some one must live there. That's not a bad place for a family and a home, but it is located near the German border where the Allies would like to go through. To take this place the Allies first drop paratroops. When they do the Jerries put up a stiff fight and quite a lot of the troops are killed or wounded. The girls eighteen and nineteen and the father do all they can to help. The father dons a helmet and rifle and joins the paratroops.

At last Jerry is driven back and the main army drives its spearhead in and beyond the town. All the people, including this family are overjoyed and can't do enough for the boys in uniform. At last they are freed of the Jerries who have brought misery to many fine people. No more will the Jerry savages parade the streets shooting innocent civilians, no longer will they take the able-bodied men to work in their factories, no longer will they make slaves of the girls and women. Some of the people did co-operate with the Nazis and they are paraded up the street at the point of a rifle. The rifle, by the way isn't in the hands of an Allied soldier, but in the hands of a member of the Dutch underground. They are the ones who fought on even though at times they thought it was a losing battle. They are the ones Jerry thought he could crush, but that can never be done to a free nation. They who thought the Allies were never going to reach them. They who made Holland. A man said to me the other day "God made the world but the Dutch made Holland," and was he ever proud of it.

Now the Allies have the town, the collaborators are rounded up but Jerry still isn't far away. Out of the blue come two or three 88-mm. shells. They land smack in the centre of a busy street. A dozen or more civilians are killed or wounded. Does that stop the civilians from their work? Not at all. Their faces stiffen and they work harder. They love freedom and want Jerry to be crushed. Let us go back to the family again. Jerry has been trying hard to get the objective that is near their home. By getting it he figures to slow the Allied advance. All his shelling had been in vain. Next he tries sending bombers over although that seems to be suicide because of Allied fighters and anti-aircraft guns. At last he does break through and with a great roar dives at the bridge. He misses it and the bomb lands close to this family's home. So close that the house next door and the one across the street fall in ruins. Their house is badly shaken and the windows are knocked out due to the blast. What is happening to the family inside the house all this time? Well, when the anti-aircraft guns open up, everyone looks up but there is no confusion. There isn't time to get to a shelter, so they do what they think best, get close under some solid part of the house. The mother has the tiny babe in her arms. She was feeding it when the guns opened up. Now let's look at their faces as the bomb comes screaming through the air. Everyone looks terribly worried, all except the baby and she looks peaceful and quiet, not realizing that German monsters are raining death and destruction all around. The young children cling close to their mother, trying to hide their faces. The two older ones are scared but try not to show it. On the face of the eldest there isn't fear as much as hatred for the Nazis. She is surprisingly calm. As Wellington once said, "With an army of such soldiers I could conquer the world." That could well be said in this case. If every man in the free countries had as much courage as she has Nazism would have been wiped from the earth before now. All this time the father, who, besides helping the paratroops, is an air-raid warden, is standing by, with overcoat and steel helmet on looking very worried for his family. When the bomb finally does explode there is a deafening roar as buildings collapse and windows and doors are blown clear. When it is over everyone breathes a sigh of relief and thanks God that their home did not collapse.

Now everything is clear again and the father goes out to see what damage has been done. Meanwhile the family pack their bedding and prepare to move to a shelter for the night. The father returns to report there were no casualties. No thanks to Jerry. Everyone is ready now to go to the shelter, so with mattresses under arms and baby in her pram they start for the shelter and must hurry because Jerry may be back to rain more destruction on them. The trip is made without mishap, in fact it is nearly an hour before these human fiends return. By this time they are crowded in the shelter with other poor people whom the Germans have driven from their homes. In the morning when you ask how they slept they answer: "Not very well we were so crowded, but we will get along." That's about all they will say, but you can see dark lines under their eyes and you know they didn't get much sleep, that's sure. They do not complain. They live on in the hopes that the other people of the world, who know nothing of war and how some people are made to suffer, will help them in their time of need.

I know a great deal is being done in Canada to help win this war and lift the burden from these courageous people, who have been carrying on by themselves during these years under the Nazis but I'd like to tell every free man in Canada and the rest of the world to join Active and help the boys finish the job that is so nearly completed. This story is true because I was in that house when the bomb struck. This man, I had better not mention his name, asked us in for a cup of tea. While we were there the trouble started. We had been expecting it. It takes something like the happenings of the last twenty-four hours to make a person realize what they are fighting for. To me and to the boys over here this is a personal war. I took this family for an example but that's the way it is in occupied countries that we have been in. I'll always remember them as I saw them last night. "A people bombed and beaten but still fighting on."

I have been away from home a long time but I do not begrudge one minute of it. I only wish there was more we could do for these people.

Mother, I don't pretend to be much of a writer but I think I have told you what I wanted you to know. I am writing in the cab of a truck so the writing may not be too good.

I really must close this letter now or I won't be able to get it in an envelope.

Bye-bye for now and write soon. With love.

Earl.

Stirling

Stirling — The ninety-first Anniversary Service of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was held on Sunday, October 15th., when large congregations filled the church at both services.

The guest speaker was the Rev. James Semple, B.A., S.T.B., ThD., of Belleville. At the morning service Dr. Semple took for his subject "The Church" and at the evening service his subject was "The Ministry." The large congregations listened with rapt attention to these masterful sermons. It was truly good preaching, full of challenge, that will be remembered for many a day by all privileged to be present.

In his discourse on "The Church" Dr. Semple said "Our forefathers dug the front line trenches but their sons have been content to stay in them. If our forefathers came back they would surely dig trenches ahead of their sons of today. What must the church of tomorrow do?, he asked. First we must gain a central place to worship. Some churches have lots of heat but little light. "The church must have a teaching ministry" and "the young people must be given a new place in the life and work of the church and the world of tomorrow." All the great and worthwhile movements in history of the church were movements promoted by men in their early years.

In speaking of the "ministry" Dr. Semple chose for his text the twenty-first verse of Paul's letter to the Corinthians, "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." The best definition of preaching comes from the pen of John Ruskin, "Make me your friend." Dr. Semple said that in choosing this subject he was going to imagine himself as sitting in the pew so all would know his ideals of the profession.

The worst sign in preaching is doubts—they should be taught in such a way that it will be impossible for there to be doubts. No minister can be truly great unless he is manly in his manhood.

Once a girl came to see me and I said "You do not belong to my church, why do you come to me and not go to your own minister"? She replied "I have an idea that he tells other people what is told to him"—Nothing is more serious.

Secondly a minister must be intellectually awake with the soul of great literature known to him, understand the content of the gospel and to be in with the times. Would you say that science, education, art and commerce are not awake? The pulpit is no longer taken for granted. My minister must be inspired in intellectual things. It must be a touching ministry in which there is comfort and inspiration. Your ministers are your instructors in the great things of God. Jesus said to Peter "Feed my sheep." Ministers should make people feel that they can call upon them at all times. Make yourself available to the people. I think of the minister as a friend of little children and young people starting out in life need his friendship.

My minister must be fearless and sacrificial. There can never be a successful church unless the minister is all that he could be, also the congregation.

In closing Dr. Semple asked the congregation to remember the minister who served them and the one who now serves.

The choir, under the leadership of Mr. G. L. Clute, gave the anthem "Calvary," with Mrs. Harold West taking the solo parts in the morning. Mr. Ted Reynolds sang "Leave It to Him," and the special offertory music was "Shepherd's Dream," with the organist Mr. G. L. Clute at the console of the organ. In the evening the choir rendered the anthems "Blest Are the Pure in Heart" and "O Giver of Mercies," with Miss Margaret Gray taking the solo part in the latter. Mrs. Arthur Duncan gave the solo, "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked," and the special offertory musical number was "La Gallondrina. Rev. David Gray, pastor of St. Paul's, conducted both services.

HUGE INVASION FORCES SEIZE CENTRAL LEYTE
AACHEN FALLS AFTER SEVEN DAYS OF SIEGE

Japanese Armies In Philippines Split in Two

Convoy From New Guinea Stretches Miles at Sea

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 20 —(AP)— Gen. MacArthur announced today that he and every able-bodied survivor of Corregidor have come back at the head of a huge invasion army to drive the Japanese from the Philippines.

Ground forces, landing under air and sea barrages along the east coast of Leyte—415 miles southeast of Manila and 600 miles north of MacArthur's previous advance base of Morotai—seized three strong beachheads.

Front line dispatches said the Leyte landings were preceded three days ago by landings on small islands guarding the entrance to Leyte Gulf and mine-sweeping operations of the gulf to make it safe for the passage of convoys.

The Japanese, expecting landings to the south at Midanao were so completely surprised that beachheads in the Tacloban area "were secured with small casualties," stated today's special communique issued from the field of operations.

Fulfilling His Promise.

Fulfilling his promise, made two years and seven months ago when he took leave of the islands that "I shall return," MacArthur went back aboard a warship. It was part of a giant convoy, sailing from New Guinea, which stretched as far as the eye could see.

The United States Navy, in unchallenged strength, ruled the invasion scene and the seas about it.

Allied air forces virtually monopolized the skies.

"In a major amphibious operation, we have seized the eastern coast of Leyte Island in the Philippines, 600 miles north of Morotai and 2,500 miles from Milne Bay (New Guinea) from where our offensive started nearly 16 months ago," the communique stated.

"This point of entry in the Visayas (group of islands of which Leyte is one) is midway between Luzon (site of Manila) and Mindanao and at one stroke splits in two the Japanese forces in the Philippines.

"The enemy's anticipation of attack in Mindanao (southern island blasted daily since September by MacArthur's Southwest Pacific Air Arm) caused him to be caught unawares in Leyte and beachheads in the Tacloban area were secured with small casualties.

"The landing was preceded by heavy naval and air bombardment which was devastating in effort."

Participating in the preparatory blows were carrier planes of the U. S. 3rd Fleet which since Oct. 9 destroyed more than 1,300 Japanese aircraft, sank 86 ships and damaged 127 more in forays extending from the Ryukyus within 200 miles of Japan south across Formosa into the Philippines.

(JAPANESE ARMIES—Page 4.)

Washington, Oct. 20. (AP)— President Roosevelt hailed the invasion of the Philippines today with the assertion that "we have the will and the power" to teach Japan "the cost of treachery and deceit".

With the other allies, he said, "we shall teach this lesson so that Japan will never forget it".

As American troops plunged into the Central Philippines, Mr. Roosevelt in a statement promised freedom to the islands as soon as Gen. MacArthur's forces clear out the Japanese, saying:

"We shall free the enslaved peoples. We shall restore stolen goods and looted wealth to their rightful owners. We shall strangle the black dragon of Japanese militarism forever".

The President declared that "we have learned our lesson about Japan. We trusted her and treated her with the decency due a civilized neighbor. We were foully betrayed. The price of the lesson was high. Now we are going to teach Japan her lesson".

Pledge Redeemed.

The Philippine invasion redeems the pledge made when American troops surrendered on Corregidor and marks another "way station on the road to Japan", he said, adding: "we promised to return, we have returned".

In a message to Gen. MacArthur, the President said "you have the nation's gratitude and the nation's prayers for success as you and your men fight your way back to Bataan. The whole American nation today exults at the news that the gallant men under your command have landed on Philippine soil".

In messages to Admirals Nimitz and Halsey, the President said "your fine co-operation with Gen. MacArthur furnishes another example of teamwork and the effective and intelligent use of all weapons".

The President in another message asked President Osmena to tell the Philippine people that "when the Japanese invaders have been driven out, the Philippines will take their place as a free and independent member of the family of nations".

Ont. Labor Board Reserves Decision

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP) — The Ontario Labor Relations Board announced today it has reserved decision on application of the Emjay Employees' Association for certification of bargaining representatives on behalf of employees of the Mead Johnson and Co., of Canada, Ltd., Belleville, Ont.

K. Bernstein, general manager of the company, said the company would take no stand in the matter.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR RETURNS TO THE PHILIPPINES

Gen. Douglas MacArthur is commanding the American combined forces attempting to recapture the Philippines as he promised at Bataan and Corregidor. Here he is aboard a warship on the way.

NAZIS EVACUATE HUNGARIAN CITY OF DEBRECEN

Russians Move Up to Another Section of E. Prussia South of Fallen Eydtkau

London, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Berlin announced today the Russians had moved up to another section of the East Prussian frontier 20 miles south of fallen Eydtkau, massing vast tank forces in the Rominter Heide, a favorite deer forest of the late Kaiser.

Enemy broadcasts also said the Germans had evacuated Hungary's sprawling third city of Debrecen — (122,517 population), 116 miles east of Budapest.

A great tank battle had been raging there for two weeks and the Germans said 418 Russian tanks were destroyed in the fray. Moscow said the Germans lost 1,518 tanks.

Possibly a decisive battle was shaping up along the north, east and south frontiers of East Prussia. Berlin frankly asserted that "the twin battle for East Prussia is nearing a climax."

Moscow said nothing of the four-day offensive but allowed Associated Press correspondents to radio that "the Russians entered Reich territory." Three enormous Russian Army groups are drawn up along the borders of the province where the Junkers generals maintain vast estates. Berlin insisted that another group was striking toward Danzig on the Baltic from the Narew river north of Warsaw in a supreme bid to cut off the entire province of 14,000 square miles.

Berlin said the new Russian offensive along 60 miles of the Narew river between Warsaw and East Prussia had resulted in enormous Red Army losses. Russian breakthrough attempts between Suwalki and Schirwindt on the eastern frontier of East Prussia were claimed as frustrated.

Dispatches telephoned from Moscow reported chaotic conditions in Belgrade and Budapest, where German positions were declared deteriorating by the hour.

Smoke Envelopes Belgrade.

The Moscow newspaper Izvestia said heavy smoke clouds enveloped the centre of Belgrade. Smoke also shrouded the northwest suburbs; shells constantly were exploding in the streets; S. S. troops fought from dug-in tanks in one section, Izvestia said.

Russian and Yugoslav forces were said to have captured the Sava river railroad bridge and driven the Germans from the port works on the Danube, but the enemy still held the Alexander highway bridge. Izvestia said a large German tank force was surrounded and wiped out three miles southeast of the capital.

Red Star, Russian army newspaper, said conditions were grave in Budapest. Many officials of various ministries have deserted their jobs and gone into hiding. The newspaper said scores of Hungarian rail workers had struck and were sabotaging German defence efforts. Russian troops were reported within 50 miles of the ancient capital.

BRITISH, INDIAN TROOPS OF 8TH ARMY IN CESENA

Former German Administration Centre on the Bologna-Rimini Highway

Rome, Oct. 20 — (AP) — British and Indian troops of the British 8th Army have entered Cesena, former German administration centre on the main Bologna-Rimini highway in the Adriatic sector, Allied headquarters announced today.

Meanwhile, other 8th Army troops made additional progress in bitter fighting in the mountainous areas southwest of Cesena, while the Allied 5th Army made local gains in the central Italian sector south of Bologna, flanking the Bologna-Florence highway.

Cesena, Forli province town on the historic Aemilian Way, is 12 miles southeast of the town of Forli and about 20 miles inland from the Adriatic.

The penetration of Cesena apparently was only in the eastern part of the town, the communique indicated, but gains by other 8th Army troops to the south made the German position in Cesena extremely difficult.

Bridgehead Enlarged

Headquarters said the bridgehead across the Pisciatello river, north of the highway and west of Macerone, has been enlarged by "Dominion troops" to a depth of two miles and has been joined with a bridgehead farther to the west established three days ago.

Presumably this action was carried out by Canadian and New Zealand units.

South of the Aemilian Way Celincordia has been captured and farther west several villages and hills have been cleared of the enemy south of Galeata, the communique said.

The heaviest fighting in the central sector in the Po Valley drive was reported in the vicinity of Monte Belmonte and on route 65, north of Poggioli. The Germans were putting in heavy counter-attacks from their positions at Monte Belmonte, using tanks, mortar and artillery fire.

American armored units have reached Marano on the Pistoia-Bologna Road west of highway 65.

First Eye-Witness Story Tells Of Unmolested Landings in Leyte

(Editor's note: This first eye-witness story of the Philippines landing was written by Dean Schedler, one of the last American War Correspondents to leave Bataan and among the first to return to the Philippines.)

By DEAN SCHEDLER
Associated Press War Correspondent

With MacArthur at Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 20 —(AP)—Under cover of devastating fire from Allied warships, American troops knifed ashore on Leyte Island today, striking simultaneously at three points along the eastern beaches.

One assault force struck the beach from San Ricardo, approximately three miles south of the main city of Tacloban, to Palo. Another strong force struck along the coastlines between San Jose and Dulag, and a combat team landed at Panaon on the southern tip of Leyte.

The beach fronts are 3½ miles in width and approximately 11 miles apart.

This drive into the heart of the southern Philippines establishes American forces only 275 statute miles from Davao and 340 air miles southeast of Manila.

At the entrance to Leyte gulf an American combat team landed three days ago on the northern tip of Dinagat Island and the southern portion of Homohon to take overpower enemy installations and establish command of the entrance to the gulf for the main assault forces.

The big landings were made along the level coastal Leyte Valley. Unopposed by Japan's navy, American battleships and American and Australian cruisers laid a thunderous fire along the beaches.

At -H-hour an enemy plane appeared. Strong ship anti-aircraft fire brought it down.

As the heavy naval fire raised a cloud of cordite and huge billowing columns of smoke, carrier-based planes from the U. S. 3rd and 7th fleets bombed and strafed the beach. Overhead pursuit planes patrolled the sky. It was only minutes before the few salvoes of 16-inch shells increased into a continuous barrage which echoed and re-echoed across San Pedro Bay.

Tons and tons of explosives ripped into the coastal area along the beach, augmented by close inshore fire from rocket-firing craft.

Great battleships worked slowly along the shore, splitting the air with belching flame as their guns cracked round after round over the heads of crouching infantrymen.

This invasion armada of hundreds of ships goes busily about the business of landing troops and equipment on the smoke-filled shore under protection of surface and air power — so far unmolested.

DOUBLE-HEADER ATTACK MADE ON CITY OF STUTTGART

Third Large-Scale Raid Carried Out At Same Time On Nurnberg

London, Oct. 20 —(CP)— Four engined bombers of the R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. made a shattering double-header attack last night on the big industrial city of Stuttgart, a centre of the German electrical engineering industries.

Two large forces of Halifaxes and Lancasters pounded the city four hours apart.

A third large-scale R. A. F. attack was carried out simultaneously on Nurnberg, another engineering center, and a lighter raid was made on Wiesbaden in the Rhineland. More than 1,000 planes participated in the four attacks.

The four-point attack cost nine bombers but all the Canadian planes returned safely. The force which made the second raid on Stuttgart reported large fires burning from the initial attack as they approached the target.

Night fighters supported the bombers and attacked airfields.

While not a common practice, it was not the first time that R. A. F. night raiders have struck twice in the same place. Several months ago they hit Cologne three times between sunset and sunrise.

The first wave was over Stuttgart last night about 8:20 p.m., and when the second force reached the city shortly before 1 a.m. crews said fires were still burning from the initial blow. The bombers battled storms and icing conditions to and from the target and both attacks were made through thick clouds.

It is a round trip of approximately 1,000 miles to both Stuttgart and Nurnberg.

Japanese Forced To Evacuate Falam

Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 20—(CP)— British pressure exerted southward from captured Tiddim in northwestern Burma has forced the Japanese to evacuate the town of Falam, it was announced today.

The withdrawal was described as important in that it weakened Japanese political influence over some 40,000 natives of the Chin hills. The town, 30 miles south of Tiddim, Geographically is the natural seat of administration for the central Chin hills.

The hillsmen have been operating in advance units of the British 14th Army throughout the present campaign beginning in India at Imphal. More than 1,000 Japanese casualties have been inflicted by them.

Mop Up Remnants Of Nazi Garrison Trapped in City

New Canadian Offensive Started North of Antwerp

London, Oct. 20 —(AP)— Ruined Aachen, a sprawling city of death and destruction, fell today to the United States 1st Army on the seventh day of its siege. Tonight the victorious Americans started mopping up the last remnants of the Nazi garrison, trapped on the outskirts.

The city has been encircled by American forces for the last seven days but the battle to capture it really began on Oct. 10, with the expiry of an ultimatum demanding surrender of Aachen. This ultimatum was rejected by the garrison commander.

The capture of the first major German city, a gateway to the Ruhr, was completed at 3:30 p.m., (10:30 a.m. E.D.T.) official announcements from the field said.

The city is 340 miles from Berlin and 40 miles from Cologne on the Rhine. It had a peacetime population of 165,000.

American infantry had been attacking since Sept. 15, and for a week they had engaged in street by street fighting with bazookas, bayonets and self-propelled guns.

Aachen was left a mass of wreckage by fanatical German resistance.

Young German officers, many of them not long back from the Russian front, threw away their lives to gain another oak leaf cluster on their Iron Crosses.

The last resistance in the centre of the city was at a large stone building in which 100 S. S. men had barricaded themselves in defiance of artillery which had pressed the defenders into an ever-narrowing space. This last major stronghold was knocked out at 3:30 p.m. with direct fire from a 155-mm. gun. The gun literally knocked down the building.

New Offensive

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 20 —(AP)— Canadian infantry and armor struck out in a new offensive through the mud and marshland north of Antwerp today to bolster the Allied powerhouse salient being built up in Holland against Adolf Hitler's northern defences.

The Canadian attack, sprung at 7:30 a.m., was launched from an area about eight miles north of Antwerp along the railroad and highway leading north to Roosendaal and Rotterdam.

Farther west, Canadian troops have made good progress south of Breskens in their drive to clean up the Schelde estuary and now are within two miles of Schoondijke and Oostburg, Allied Supreme headquarters announced.

At the same time French infantry fighting along the ridges of the Vosges at the southern end of the Allied line outflanked the village of Ventron at the entrance to the 15-mile-long Bussang pass which opens out on the Rhine Valley only seven miles from Mulhouse.

Stab at Passes.

American troops of the 7th Army on the latter front also captured Bruyeres 13 miles east of Epinal, in an additional stab at two more passes leading through the Vosges to the Rhine flatlands around Colmar and Strasbourg.

The U. S. 1st Army, holding more than half of Aachen, struggled slowly through mountains of debris in an effort to extinguish the last sparks of resistance in that Siegfried Line city.

The British 2nd Army, fighting to clear out the Germans west of the Maas (Meuse) along the German border fronting the Holland salient made slow progress, almost bogged down by mud, and stiff German resistance.

Today's communique said the Germans recaptured several pillbox positions in the Haaren, area northwest of Aachen but later were driven out.

Gains Near Aachen

"Our units made gains in the fighting inside Aachen," said the communique. The 1st Army's artillery broke up a fairly strong tank and infantry counter-attack north of Haaren, northeast of encircled Aachen, before it could reach the American lines.

Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's British 2nd Army, attempting to advance southeast of Venray toward Amerika and the border town of Venlo, on the main railway from Eindhoven to the Ruhr, met a stonewall of German resistance, sticky ground which bogged down tanks and increased artillery fire. Nevertheless some advances were made and prisoners were taken.

American troops drove the Germans out of Bruyeres, famous for its pipes, in house-to-house fighting which forced the Germans out of positions 16 miles from Bonhomme and Schlucht passes through the Vosges.

French forces took more than 250 prisoners in fighting along ridges on either side of Ventron with tank support in the valleys 20 miles north of Belfort and 14 miles southeast of Remiremont.

Six German counter-attacks were beaten back by the French yesterday just to the south in the area northeast of Le Thillot. The Germans threw in six counter-attacks in the same area the day before also.

Planes Shower Woods

The Germans sent a score of planes over Red Army lines in the Metz-Nancy sector in large-scale reconnaissance last night.

Allied planes showered bombs on a woods east of Luneville where the enemy was reported concentrating tanks. Hard fighting continued in Maizieres Les Metz, on the Moselle five miles north of Metz.

Berlin speculated that Gen. Eisenhower might not wait for the opening of the Antwerp supply port to begin a heavy new drive on the Reich from his northern wing.

Corvette Adoption Ceremonies Will Be Broadcast

From the flag-bedecked bridge of the newest addition to Canada's fighting Navy, the H.M.C.S. "Belleville", will go the broadcast of the ceremonies that will officially make the trim little fighting ship a wartime "protege" of this city.

Garbed in traditional "grey", its sombreness offset by the gay colors of flags and bunting, the corvette, which lies at the dock of the Canada Steamship Lines on Ontario Street, Kingston, will be adopted by this city through the medium of its official committee between 3 and 3.30 p.m. on Sunday, October 22nd.

Through the facilities of a public address system, what is expected to be a large representation of residents of this city, will be able to hear the adoption ceremonies from a point of vantage on the spacious jetty to which the ship is moored.

Mayer to Accept Ship.

Sharp at three o'clock an announcer of Station CKWS, Kingston, will open the ceremonies with a brief outline of the adoption program. He will be followed by Corvette Committee Chairman J. B. Boyce, who in turn, will be succeeded at the microphone by Mayor Harry Rollins who will "accept" the ship on behalf of the city.

Lieutenant Jack S. Korning, R.N.V.R., commanding officer of the corvette, will formally accept the sponsorship of his vessel and later be interviewed by the announcer.

A crack band of the Royal Canadian Navy will be in attendance and will intersperse the program with appropriate selections.

Prior to the adoption, the ship will be "open" for public inspecion from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. At this time the public must leave the vessel in order to give full scope to the official ceremonies.

Convenient Train Service.

While gasoline restrictions may prove a deterrent for some to witness the adoption railway facilities are conveniently scheduled for those wishing to travel by rail, committee officials stated today.

A train leaves this city at 12.20 p.m. on Sunday, and another leaves Kingston at 6.30 in the evening. Committee representatives urge those who intend travelling by rail to secure their tickets at the ticket office, Front Street, on or before Saturday in order to give railway officials some idea of the number going, and thus facilitate their efforts in providing coach accommodation.

In any event, Corvette committeemen anticipate a large crowd to be present at the function and urge all who can do so, to be present to wish their "naval protege" and its gallant crew Godspeed on its maiden trip to the naval wars.

Truck Load Afire, Driver Speeds To Vacant Lot

Trenton, Oct. 20 — Presence of mind of Leslie Preston, Marmora St., a truck driver for the J. J. MacNab Contracting Co., prevented serious fire and possible disaster on Wednesday night when his truck loaded with baled straw being delivered to the Hinde & Dauch Paper Co., caught fire as it was proceeding up Gilmour Hill in the heart of the town.

Noticing the fire, a passing motorist signalled Preston, and when he discovered the straw was burning rapidly he rushed his truck for a mile and a half along Marmora St. to a vacant lot on Leopold St., crossing Marmora, where he pulled up. In the meantime the local fire department had been called by eye witnesses and quickly extinguished the blaze.

The truck was badly damaged and the load a complete loss but fortunately the driver was not badly burned.

Cause of the fire was undetermined.

No Criminal Cases Listed for Trial

There are no criminal cases listed for trial at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court scheduled to open at the Court House before the Honorable Mr. Justice Greene on Monday. As a matter of fact there are no jury cases left on the docket list, as the two jury cases listed were settled between the parties concerned, Court Clerk J. D. O'Flynn revealed today.

With no criminal or civil jury actions listed for trial Sheriff O'Flynn cancelled both Grand and Petit juries leaving only several non-jury motions to be heard, as well as six divorce actions listed for potential decrees nisi.

The lone non-jury action is that of Simmons vs. Sills and is an action for a specific performance of an option to purchase land. The form of Porter, Payne and Arnott represent the plaintiffs, while the firm of Cameron, Sprague and Follwell will appear for the defendant.

The jury cases settled were those of J. W. Hamilton vs. the Canadian National Railways and a counterclaim entered by the railway. The action arose out of an accident at the Sidney Township C.N.R. railway crossing last Feb. 16th when a snow plough operated by Hamilton stalled on the tracks and was hit by a train. The matter was settled out of court with no announcement as to the terms agreed upon.

Victory Loan Parade Satur. Promises To Be Outstanding

What promises to be one of the largest and most colorful parades ever to be staged in this city will be seen on Saturday afternoon when approximately 1,800 school children from the four public schools, the collegiate, Albert College and St. Michael's, will march with military personnel prior to opening ceremonies for the Seventh Victory Loan which gets underway on Monday.

Lieut. Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, is sparing no efforts to make the parade outstanding, while the local Victory Loan committeemen in their opening ceremonies are giving Belleville residents an opportunity to pay their tribute to Lieut. J. S. Korning, recently appointed commander of the H. M. C. S. "Belleville" which is to be officially adopted in Kingston on Sunday afternoon.

A.; will give an inkling of the mechanization of modern fighting units. Sea cadets and air cadets, with members of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade will complete the parade picture.

Here J. J. Trudeau, the county loan chairman, will act as master of ceremonies for the program of speech-making and the rendition of patriotic numbers by a chorus of 1,800 school children.

Lieut. J. S. Korning, commander of the H. M. C. S. "Belleville", will express his appreciation to the citizens of Belleville and district for their contributions toward outfitting his ship with comforts, while Mr. J. B. Boyce, corvette committee chairman, will add his word of appreciation.

Giving Orders Promptly for Victory Bonds Will Help Put War Loan Over

Fully cognizant of the responsibility which rests on their collective shoulders and appreciative of what is expected of them in the forthcoming Seventh Victory Loan, sixty salesmen and saleswomen will begin knocking on householders' doors early Monday morning as they begin the campaign which in three weeks' time it is expected will see $3,730,000 subscribed in bonds in Hastings county.

Three millions of dollars is the amount of the county objective in general sales, with an additional $730,000 expected to be raised by subscriptions in the special names division and by the armed forces. General sales objective is up $200,000 over the last loan and campaign officials state that a really conscientious effort will have to be made by all workers if the objective is to be raised.

Of the city sales personnel appointed in the county, sixteen of them have been designated to work in the Belleville canvassing area, while ten will canvass in the town of Trenton. The 36 others will canvass in the six county rural areas.

With only 60 canvassers to call at every household in the county in three weeks which the campaign will run, sales personnel will be materially assisted in their job if they are courteously received. To enable sales personnel to cover their territory in the allotted time and thus give every resident the opportunity of participating in the Seventh Victory Loan, decisions to purchase will have to be made promptly and sales completed when salesmen call.

Need Over $1,000 To Reach Quota Of 4-in-1 Drive

With nearly $14,000 in the campaign coffers, members of the Committee for the Belleville Community Services drive, are exerting all efforts to achieve the objective of $15,000 before the campaign closes within the next few days.

The response has been generous during the drive for these much-needed funds, officials point out, but the objective set was the minimum for the successful, operation for the coming year of the four beneficiary services, the V. O. N.; Salvation Army; Children's Aid Society and the Y. M. C. A.

There is only a short time left, and those who have not made their donations or been contacted by canvassers are urged to get in touch with Fund headquarters. Officials have faith in the residents of this city, and it is hoped that this faith will be vindicated during the last days of the campaign.

People are again reminded that the four services are doing a vital work on the Home Front. Their efforts never cease and the demand for help on their part is always at a high level.

Officials are appreciative of the fine support already given them in their appeal and sincerely hope that within the next few days they can once again point with pride at another achievement of the residents of this city in their support of a worthy cause.

Two shining new Bicycles will be given away by Belleville Kinsmen to the children selling the most tickets for "Shell-Out" Night at Belleville Armouries on Hallowe'en Night, October 31st. These are only two of the many prizes which will be given away in this contest. There will be prizes for costumes and other contests as well.

TRENTON

New West Wing Trenton Station Hospital Opened

Trenton, Oct. 19—Through the courtesy of Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, M.C., Commanding Officer at the Trenton Air Station and Squadron Leader (Dr.) H. S. Dunham, several hundred Trenton and Belleville citizens attended the official opening of the new west wing of the station hospital on Wednesday afternoon.

The tour of inspection included the many bright and sunny private and semi-private rooms and wards, offices, dispensaries, operating theatre, staff rooms, dining halls and spotless kitchens. Great care has been exercised in the choosing of comfortable and artistic fixtures and accessories, and the most modern equipment used throughout the entire building.

The Trenton Air Station hospital provides not only for the needs and comforts of those of its own station who need hospitalisation, but many airmen and airwomen are brought to Trenton from outlying stations such as Picton, Mountain View, etc.

Many of these lads are recuperating from long and serious illness and are forced to spend weeks and months in the hospital. Special attention has been paid to the welfare of these lads and lassies. Their dining hall and lounge have been made especially attractive with maple furniture, bright blue leather trimmed, and colorful drapes and fittings. Occupational theraphy too is arranged for these patients and they are given material and equipment for the making of various kinds of handicraft such as leather work, embroidery, knitting, woodwork and various other tasks whereby their fingers and minds are kept occupied during the long lonely hours of recovery.

Following the official opening of the new hospital wing and the inspection of the entire building, tea was served the many guests in the lounge of the Officers' Mess.

Accountants Hear Talk On Ganaraska Survey

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of the "Society of Industrial Cost Accountants of Ontario" held its regular monthly dinner meeting at the Masonic Temple, Belleville, Wednesday evening, under the chairmanship of Mr. Mark J. Vanner. The meeting was well attended there being some 22 members and guests present.

The Speaker of the evening, Mr. Albert E. Robinson, B. A., chose as his subject the "Ganaraska Survey." Mr. Robinson was able to speak with authority on this topic since he is a member of the party conducting the survey. The survey brought to light some very startling facts relating to the changing conditions of the land in the Ganaraska basin, due to soil erosion and other acts of nature, and in their report to the Provincial Government some very interesting recommendations were made as to what measures could be taken to counteract the ravages of time and soil erosion, to bring about the conservation of the lands of Ontario for Agricultural purposes.

Questions and Answers About Victory Bonds

(Tear out this advertisement. Put it in your pocket or purse. Read it at your leisure.)

Q: What are Victory Bonds?

A: Victory Bonds are the best buy any Canadian can make. They show that you have loaned money to Canada to help win the war.

They are your country's promise to return your money to you—and, in addition, to pay you interest on that money every half year until you get it back. This promise—a promise which has always been fulfilled—is backed by all the wealth and resources of Canada.

When you buy Victory Bonds, you are not giving your money to Canada. You are lending it to your country at a time of national emergency.

Q: When will Victory Bonds be paid off?

A: The money you lend to Canada will be paid back to you by your country when the Bonds reach their maturity date. This date is shown on each Bond.

Q: Can Victory Bonds be turned into cash before maturity?

A: Yes. They can be sold at any time—or, if the need for cash is only temporary, they can always be used as security for a bank loan.

Q: Can Victory Bonds be sold easily?

A: Yes. You can sell your Bonds at any time, without difficulty and without delay.

Just take your Bonds to any bank, any investment dealer, stockbroker, or trust company. The current sales value of the Bonds, including interest up to the day of sale, will be paid to you while you wait.

There is always a ready market for Victory Bonds.

Q: Are Victory Bonds good security for a bank loan?

A: Yes. They are the best security for a loan you can own.

Victory Bonds are acceptable by all banks as security for a loan. When you use your Bonds as security for a bank loan, the interest income on the Bonds still belongs to you. This income will pay a large part of the interest charges on the loan.

Q: In what denominations are Victory Bonds available?

A: Longer term 3% Bonds—the kind most people buy—are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger amounts.

Q: How is the interest paid on Victory Bonds?

A: Interest is paid every half-year. The dates when interest is due are shown on each Bond.

A sheet of interest coupons is attached to each Bond. One of these coupons falls due each half-year. The date of maturity of each coupon is shown on its face. On each interest date, you cut off the coupon which falls due at that time, and take it to a bank. Any branch of any chartered bank in Canada will give you cash for Victory Bond interest coupons. There is no charge to you for this service.

Q: Is Advertising and Publicity needed to sell Victory Bonds?

A: Yes. Our experience in this war, as well as our experience in the First World War, has proved the need for advertising and publicity during Victory Loan campaigns.

Some people would buy Bonds if there were no advertising at all. But, to make each Loan a success, it is essential to sell the largest possible amount of Bonds to the largest possible number of people. Some people are reached best through newspapers, others through radio, others through speeches, and so on.

Q: How much does it cost to run a Victory Loan Campaign?

A: Costs of all kinds amount to less than 1 cent for each $1 of Bonds sold.

Q: Who will accept orders for Victory Bonds during the campaign?

A: Your order for Victory Bonds will be accepted by the Victory Loan salesman who calls at your home or place of business; by your neighbourhood bank; by any trust or loan company; by your employer; or by your local Victory Loan headquarters.

Q: What is the Payroll Savings Plan?

A: Under this Plan, you place your order for Bonds with your employer.

You pay for the Bonds by regular savings assignments from your wages over the next five or six months. After you have completed the final payment, your employer delivers the Bonds to you.

Q: What is the Monthly Savings Plan?

A: This Plan is for people who receive income regularly, who do not find it possible or convenient to use the Payroll Savings Plan.

You can arrange to buy Bonds under this Plan either through a Victory Loan salesman, or on direct application to any bank, trust or loan company.

Under this Plan, the bank, trust or loan company of your choice buys Bonds for your account. You make a down payment equal to 10% of their purchase price. Then you take care of the balance over the next five months by regular monthly payments to the bank, trust or loan company. The amount payable each month is shown both on the Official Prospectus, and on the form acknowledging your order.

Interest begins to accrue on your Bonds right from the start. Your first interest coupon returns you interest at the rate of 3% on the payments you have made, and takes care of the interest charges on the unpaid balance of the purchase price which you owe up to the time you complete payment for the Bonds.

Q: What is the Deferred Payment Letter?

A: The Deferred Payment Letter is for people who have an irregular income or who expect a lump sum of money within a few months.

You can arrange to buy Bonds under this Plan, either through a Victory Loan salesman or on direct application to any bank, trust or loan company. The regular application form and a special Letter must be completed for this type of Bond purchase.

Under this Plan, the bank, trust or loan company of your choice buys Bonds for your account. You make a down payment equal to at least 10% of the purchase price. Then you take care of the balance within six months by one or more payments to the bank, trust or loan company. There is no fixed schedule of payments.

Interest begins to accrue on your Bonds right from the start. Your first interest coupon returns you interest at the rate of 3% on the payments you have made, and takes care of the interest charges on the unpaid balance of the purchase price which you owe up to the time you complete payment for the Bonds.

Q: How much money will Canada spend this year?

A: To win Victory, our spending now is at peak levels. Cash outlays are expected to average $190 every second, or over $11,400 every minute—a total of at least $6,000,000,000 for the whole year ending March 31, 1945. This is 12 times the size of pre-war Budgets, which averaged around $500,000,000.

Cash outlays consist of around $5,200,000,000 for war purposes, and about $800,000,000 for other purposes.

Q: Why are we giving away war supplies to our Allies?

A: Canada produces a huge volume of war supplies, raw materials, and foods. Part of these we need in Canada. Part we need for our Armed Forces overseas. And, part is needed by our Allies.

We are engaged in a common enterprise with our Allies. Victory will be delayed, and lives lost needlessly, if any of our partners lacks war supplies.

It is in our own interests to maintain and increase the vital flow of arms to the fighting fronts—particularly at this stage of the war.

Britain and others of our Allies have some receipts in Canadian dollars obtained in payment for goods sold to us, and from other sources. These receipts enable them to pay for large quantities of the things they need from Canada. But, they urgently need more supplies than they can pay for in this way. With a recognition of what is at stake, we can not allow any financial problems to interfere with the sensible sharing of our war production with our Allies. They are paying for all the supplies they can. But things they need, and can't pay for, are being transferred to them free of charge under our scheme of Mutual Aid.

In short, when we make war supplies available to our Allies, we hasten Victory and save lives. Further, the production of these goods gives jobs and incomes to Canadian workers.

Q: How do we expect to pay for war and other expenses this year?

A: The Budget provides for the raising of about $2,600,000,000 from taxes—something less than $200,000,000 from trust accounts and other receipts—and, at least $3,200,000,000 from borrowing.

Each $1 of outlay will be raised about 46 cents from taxation and other receipts, and 54 cents from the sale of Victory Bonds, War Savings Certificates, and other securities.

Q: Are this year's borrowings greater than last year's?

A: Yes. Our borrowing needs last year were about $2,900,000,000. This year, they will be at least $3,200,000,000.

The Budget for this year states that this increase in borrowing needs requires larger purchases of Victory Bonds by more individuals than ever before because business firms and corporations cannot buy any more Bonds than they bought last year.

With production still increasing, the total of personal incomes is growing ever larger. And, despite high wartime taxation, the excess of money to spend over the costs of necessary wartime living standards is now greater than ever before.

Increased personal savings to meet the increase in borrowing needs is both necessary and possible.

Q: Why does our country borrow our savings?

A: There are two reasons. First, our country needs our money to pay the costs of the war. And, second, every dollar we save to lend our country cuts down our spending. Every cut in our demand for things means that more men and materials are released to war use. And, by holding down our demand for things closer to the level of available supplies, pressure on the price ceiling is reduced and the cost of living is held down.

Q: Why not collect all the money needed for war through taxation?

A: We cannot rely on taxation to pay all the costs of the war.

If the personal circumstances of everybody in Canada were identical, it might be possible to pay all our war costs by taxation. We might then devise a system of taxation which would involve equal sacrifices by all. Each of us would bear his fair share of the real costs of the war—once and for all—when we paid our taxes.

However, the personal circumstances of people in different income levels—and more important, the circumstances of different people in the same income level—vary widely. There is no system of taxation which could give special consideration to all these variations. Accordingly, any attempt to cover all our war costs by taxation would mean unbearable hardships for thousands and thousands of people.

Q: What is meant by Inflation?

A: Inflation means runaway prices—a persistently rising cost of living. Let's see how it could start and grow if we did not keep things under control.

In wartime, more people are working, farm incomes are high. Money to spend grows larger and larger. But, a large part of production is needed for war. Consumers cannot get all they want. When things are scarce, people will pay more and more for what is available. Prices and the cost of living begin to go up and, before long, workers demand higher pay.

Each increase in pay would step up costs of production. To keep in business, producers and dealers would ask higher prices. Each increase in prices would lead to new demands for higher pay as workers tried to keep up with the cost of living. Rising costs and prices would keep pushing each other up and up.

For most people, wages and salaries would never catch up with living costs. Money would buy less and less. Most of us would suffer, some more than others. Hardship, despair and confusion would sweep over factory, farm and home. Production of war and other goods would slow down.

Inflation would create tremendous problems both for the present and the future. Since the start of the war, we have recognized the dangers of inflation and have taken definite steps to control prices and the cost-of-living. The willingness of the public to save to buy Victory Bonds has been a vital factor in the success of this program.

Q: How are we fighting Inflation?

A: We are fighting inflation in many ways. A ceiling has been set on prices. Costs of production, including wages and salaries, are controlled to prevent higher costs from pushing up the ceiling. Supplies are divided fairly among producers and merchants. Certain necessities of life are being rationed to ensure a fair share to everyone.

Our spending power is being reduced by high wartime taxes and by Victory Loans. The less money we have to spend, then the closer our demand to the volume of things to buy. This keeps down both the pressure on the price ceiling and the need for rationing. Our government has made careful plans to keep the cost of living under control. But, our co-operation is essential to make these plans work.

We must economize and buy wisely; we must make old things do; we must resist the lure of luxuries; we must not ask for higher pay or for higher prices for the things we have for sale; and, we must save the largest possible amount of our incomes to buy Victory Bonds.

Q: Why are we asked to save our money?

A: Our voluntary wartime savings perform a number of vital jobs both during and after the war.

First, every dollar we spend in wartime means that someone is working for us, and that materials are being used up for our wants. When we save that dollar, that someone and those materials can work for quick and complete Victory instead of our private comfort.

Next, every dollar we spend means we compete with our fellow Canadians for the limited supplies of goods. Every dollar we save helps to spread available supplies fairly, and helps to make sure that the goods go to those who need them most.

Third, every dollar we spend increases the total demand for goods and puts upward pressure on prices. Every dollar we save reduces the demand for goods and helps to keep down the cost of living.

Individually, everyone needs a reserve of savings to meet emergencies. Personal security and happiness are not possible otherwise. Every dollar we save increases our ability to meet emergencies as well as helping our country in the ways we have just stated.

Wartime savings also have important post-war features. For one reason or another, everyone will be glad to have a reserve of savings when the war is over.

Completely apart from the value of savings as a reserve against emergencies, there will be many things we will want to buy in the post-war days when our resources can again be concentrated on the production of civilian goods. Not only will we have a lot of postponed wants and needs which will have piled up during the war years, but we will want to buy the new houses, the new cars, the new radios, and all the other things which will have improved in range and quality due to technical advances. Again, we may want to have enough money to start up our own business or to learn a new trade—to educate our children or to travel.

The spending of our wartime savings in these post-war days will have important results. The demand for goods financed by these savings will stimulate production and thus give peacetime employment to Canadians. A high level of employment is good for everybody because it means a strong demand for goods and services of all kinds, and a consequent high level of personal incomes.

Athens Celebrates

Athens which led all Europe as the apostle of freedom before many parts of what is now Europe were known has after three years and more of endurance sloughed off the curse of the presence of the Nazi oppressors. Gone from Athens and other cities of Greece are the henchmen of Adolf Hitler, fleeing in an effort to break their way through to join their fellow Germans trying to get back into Germany from the east. The way of the aggressors has been hard for the Greek underground worked relentless war upon the invaders. Now the ancient city of freedom, Athens, is free.

On Wednesday of this week the city that knew Solon and Plato and countless other leaders of the intellect and morals and poetry celebrated with church bells, singing and shouting the return of the Greek government. This ancient city whose inhabitants over twenty-five centuries ago lighted the lamp of freedom in Europe to launch an unprecedented era of progress in politics, art, literature, drama, philosophy, science, which had made the whole world debtor to Greek ideals of civilization, rejoiced in no uncertain way in the triumph of the Greek spirit over the brutal Hun. With the Greeks were the British forces who had arrived in the Greek capital.

Athens, whose normal population was about 400,000 people, was the home for the time being of two millions, many of them refugees from the enemy-held areas, a number far in excess of the population of Athens when that city was at the height of its glory in the days of Pericles. On this occasion, too, the United Nations could feel their debt to this heroic people who kept the fire of patriotism burning in the recent years of bitter aggression.

Greece, which turned back invasions of the Persians in the fifth century before Christ to save Europe to western ideals has however suffered greatly. She has lost it is estimated half a million slain or dead of privation according to Premier George Papandreou. On the seas, on land and in Allied armies and right in the presence of the Huns the Greeks have served the cause of freedom.

Athens, which of old was a city state and later the centre of an empire, Rome, itself a city state and later the head of an empire, Paris, the capital of France, Brussels, Belgium's chief city, have been liberated in the Mediterranean and in other theatres of war, while Russia's Red army is liberating territory and capitals of other lands in Eastern Europe.

The cause, which Greece espoused in the present war, is the cause of freedom and that hallowed land of free men of the noble Hellenic race is rapidly being liberated from the Hun's thrall.

For Britain's Christmas

It comes with a feeling of great joy to all free lands to know that Britain to whom the world owes in large measure what it enjoys today in freedom and will enjoy in greater volume during the coming days is to enjoy Christmas in 1944 as she has not enjoyed it since the war began. Turkeys, raisins, dates and other delicacies are provided for appearance on British tables at Yuletide. If any people should have the pleasure of enjoying Christmas it is this hale folk. Their service to humanity has been so great yet they have given of everything they possessed materially, physically and spiritually to help make the world free. In their love of freedom for themselves and for others they have done this.

So an extra ounce of tea a week for persons 70 years of age and over beginning December 10th., and possibly through 1945, an extra half pound of candy for everyone from six months to eighteen years in the ration period starting Dec. 10, an added pound of margarine and half a pound of sugar for every ration book in the same period, extra dried fruit for the Christmas cake and puddings are coming for the British people.

On the other hand the Germans, whom Hitler leads with their consent will not enjoy Christmas in this way, for the bonds are tightening upon the Reich, the girth of Germany is shrinking more and more. Germany, being the enemy of civilization, is directed by a spirit that is entirely at war with the spirit of Yule and Christmas which means to peace-loving peoples, brotherhood and humanity.

There will therefore be a festive spirit about the coming holiday season in Britain for the visit of Santa Claus and the glow of the lights which have come on in what was Merrie England will add to the spirit of the time. There will be Christmas in Britain and perhaps in France and elsewhere in Western Europe because Britain stood as bulwark and defender of the spirit of Christmastide. Had the lights of freedom and the spirit of Christmas been put out by the Hun there would have been no Christmas for the world for many generations, the free peoples realize.

So Britain will enjoy the ancient celebration as Britons at home and as their sons at the front and daughters in the services and in industry can celebrate.

When Britain can enjoy in this way it means that others are able to enjoy or that others to whom Britain has so generously given of her food and material stores for the sake of friendship and in the unity of a true brotherhood will very soon be able to enjoy.

The real significance that Christmas is to have in Britain is assurance that the world is breathing more easily and is about to enter into the era of victory and peace at an early time though the final days of the war may be marked by very hard fighting.

Leaves Defy Robots

(Leeds Yorkshire Post)

London trees, stripped of foliage by flying bomb blast, have grown new leaves. An official of the National History Museum recently explained to me why this has happened.

The premature removal of this year's foliage at a time when the weather was still mild had enabled the little waiting leaf-buds to grow up earlier than usual. Normally winter weather would have delayed their growth till next spring.

A colleague recalls seeing before the war, a second growth of leaves on chestnut trees in Paris toward the end of August. Dry weather, he says, had caused the first growth to fall off sooner than usual. With the coming of rain fresh foliage appeared.

It has been remarked to me that autumn crocuses have appeared in London this year a month earlier than usual. I am not sure that this is due to bomb blast. I saw some autumn crocuses in the depth of Sussex recently.

Human Bites Are Bad

(Time Magazine)

A human bite is sometimes sharper than a serpent's tooth. A bite that is hard enough to break the skin, even with prompt treatment, may result in an amputation. If treatment is delayed 12 hours, the chances of amputation are increased three-fold. In fact, said Dr. Otto C. Hudson, of Hempstead, L.I., in last fortnight's New York State Journal of Medicine, human bites anywhere on the body are much more dangerous than animal bites (except, of course, those of rabid dogs). Reason: Human mouths contain very destructive bacteria..

When a hand it "bitten.. (usually by an accidental blow against the teeth, rarely by actual bighting), treatment is to cut the wound wide open, remove all tissue injured by the poisonous teeth, bandage with splints or a cast so the hand cannot move.

To impress laymen and doctors with the necessity for quick treatment. Dr. Hudson gave some facts: (1) of 14 hand bites treated at Massachusetts General Hospital, five of the seven treated late lost fingers or parts of them; (2) of 14 cases seen by Dr. Hudson himself, none of the eight treated early had amputations, three of the late comers lost fingers, one lost a hand.

THE PEOPLE'S FRIEND

"The People's Friend" is here once more.
Again he goes from door to door;
Again he settles down at night
Nice letters to us all to write.
His party? Little matters that!
Republican or Democrat,
Ask what you will, to campaign end,
He'll promise as, "The People's Friend."

Would you be rid of jangled nerves,
Just vote for him or him he serves.
Would you be taxed a little less,
In life find more of happiness,
Have meat and butter every day—
Unrationed by the O.P.A.—
What's wrong with everything amend?
Then listen to "The People's Friend."

Once more at luncheon clubs he'll stand,
To take a bow and get a hand;
"The People's Friend" will rant and rave
The country, state and town to save.
Lest some for evil signs may search
He'll go to Sunday School and church.
But, when has passed election year,
"The People's Friend" will disappear.

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 20. (CP)—Chicago, metropolis of the middlewest where isolationism is strongest, will have an opportunity to brush shoulders with internationalists and its people may learn at close quarters how their destiny is bound up with neighbors all over the world.

Selection of Chicago for the big international air conference opening there Nov. 1, was not entirely due to the availability of the biggest hotel in the world—the Stevens.

It is learned on good authority that selection of Chicago was prompted, partly, by the desire to provide an opportunity for middle-westerners to see something of the way world planning is being carried out on an unprecedented scale.

There will be other international conferences, perhaps as big as the one coming to Chicago, and it is expected here that the middle-west or west coast centres will get their share of them.

This will provide an opportunity not for Americans to meet their neighbors from the other side of the world, but for the conferees of other lands to see and learn the real America instead of bogging down in Washington and adjacent eastern points.

Unfortunate Words:

If President Roosevelt made that remark to Democratic organizer Bob Hannegan—"clear everything with Sidney"—it was one of his most unfortunate utterances. But Hannegan and others involved declare the words were never spoken. Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce, author and playwright, is credited with circulating the report of the President's instructions to Hannegan to clear everything with Sidney Hillman, head of the C.I.O. Political Action Committee.

Canadians Ready And Well Trained For Battle

Montreal, Oct. 20 —(CP)— Reinforcements to the First Canadian Army in France were "well trained, fit and extremely ready for battle," Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, wounded commander of the 3rd Canadian Division, said in an interview here today.

He said that the very nature of the fighting, with the pressure continuing as advantages were followed up hard, made it difficult at times to absorb the reinforcements in the fighting lines as early as might be desirable.

This meant that in some cases they might not enter the line finally with the same fighting rhythm as a veteran of the unit "but the more important thing was they arrived on time."

He used the illustration of two editors. "One would think a reporter, trained to his style, was perfect while the next editor might want some readjustments before he considered the same man as an ace and such it is with our reinforcements."

"The prompt arrival of the fresh troops however is a factor in our success. Morning casualties are replaced in the afternoon by fresh troops. I would say our reinforcement program when I was there was highly efficient."

JAPANESE ARMY

"Our ground troops are rapidly extending their positions and supplies and heavy equipment are already flowing ashore in great volumes," the communique said.

These ground troops, comprising elements of the U. S. 6th Army and units from the Central Pacific, included every able-bodied man who escaped from Corregidor in Manila Bay prior to its surrender May 6, 1942.

U. S. 7th Fleet.

The U. S. 7th Fleet, elements of the 3rd fleet and a squadron of the Royal Australian Navy made up the naval forces in the invasion.

"Air support was given by navy carrier forces, by the Far East Air Force and by the Royal Australian Air Force," the communique said.

The invasion brought the Americans against the largest segment of the Japanese army yet encountered in the Pacific war. The estimated 225,000 defenders included Terauchi's 14th Army troops.

"The strategic result of capturing the Philippines will be decisive," Gen. MacArthur pointed out in the communique.

"The enemy's so-called greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere will be cut in two. His conquered Empire to the south, comprising the Dutch East Indies and the British possessions of Borneo, Malaya and Burma will be severed from Japan proper. The great flow of transportation and supply upon which Japan's vital war industry depends will be cut as will the counter supply of his forces to the south.

"A half-million men will be cut off without hope of support and with ultimate destruction at the leisure of the Allies, a certainty in the broad strategical conception.

"The defensive line of the Japanese which extends along the coast of Asia from Japan islands through Formosa, the Philippines, the East Indies to Singapore and Burma will be pierced in the centre, permitting an envelopment to the south and to the north.

"Either flank will be vulnerable and can be rolled up at will."

The Japanese landed on Luzon Dec. 9, 1941 after air raids the day before. Manila, bombed by the Japanese after it was declared an open city, was occupied along with the Cavite naval base Jan. 2, 1942. Thereafter began the siege of Bataan, defenders of which fought until they were without food and arms, then surrendered to be mustered into the "death march" to enemy prison camps.

Corregidor surrendered May 6, 1942. The previous March, MacArthur arrived in Australia and opened the offensive which was climaxed this week by the Philippines reinvasion.

Bomb Manila Bay.

In a communique last night at Pearl Harbor, Admiral Nimitz reported carrier plane blows Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Manila aea and the north. These were combined with land-based attacks by MacArthur's bombers to knock out every Philippines air base which might interfere with the invasion operations.

Invaded Lyte is geographically suitable for the quick establishment of airfields from which to dominate all other enemy bases in the Philippines.

The Japanese war machine in the Philippines has been deprived of rich sources of aviation gasoline and lubricating oil at Borneo by MacArthur's destructive air attacks on Balikpapan.

Last week's carrier-plane assaults on Formosa are believed to have cut it off as a source of reinforcement.

On the Philippines, guerillas long have been operating against the Japanese in preparation for the return of the Americans. Last week, a Japanese authority frankly acknowledged these guerillas were effectively cutting up communications.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this Newspaper.)

NEITHER HOT NOR COLD.

"The medical officer attached to my battery in the last world war used to tell us when on active service we would not get many chances to bathe" (writes a reader, whose name I do not remember—if he will write again I'd like to present him with a complimentary set of the complete works of Ol' Doc Brady "A Lot of Little Lessons in the Ways of Health", for his amusement at moments when one should read only light literature)—"but we could always air our bodies. He assured us that a brisk towelling from head to foot in the open air was better than too much soaking in hot water and there was no danger of overdoing it.

"In his opinion there was no better skin tonic than fresh air, sunshine, skiphine and friction.

"The late Arbuthnot Lane of colon-snatching fame was emphatic about the evils of too much heavy clothing, which prevented the skin from breathing. According to Lane excessive clothing contributed to catarrhal trouble and premature aging.

"The youngest men for their years I know are those who wear the least clothing and allow the air to circulate round their bodies three hundred and sixty-five days every year".—(Signed only with initials)

If Lane suggested that the skin "breathes" of course he was in error. The skin absorbs nothing, so far as we know.

But the suggestion that excessive clothing contributes to premature aging seems reasonable enough. Maybe that's the way we should think of it, instead of thinking that it is because they are younger (and by inference less wise) and they wear less clothing today.

It is not so long ago that you were regarded as a freak or crank if you tried to buy a pair of oxfords or low cut shoes after an arbitrary date in the autumn when only "boots" or high shoes were sold. And for that matter only this spring (1944) I encountered that quaint old spirit of 1898 when I sought to buy light-weight clothing in one of the largest clothing stores of the country.

Exposing as much of the body surface to the air as may be possible is, I believe, a good health habit. Call it air bath, sun bath, or whatever you prefer. It is healthful whether the air is warm, cold or indifferent, the like a shower perhaps more stimulating if cold.

To the best of my knowledge neither an air bath nor a shower nor a tub nor a sponge bath need be more than moderately cold to give all the benefits there are to be gained from such bathing.

So far as health and hygiene are concerned such air baths as the reader describes are, in my opinion, fully as good as the battery's medical officer said they are.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Pulmonary Tuberculosis

Doctor found my hemoglobin 84, prescribed bile salts, started to give me shots of liver extract, but first shot caused extreme pain for 24 hours, and second, four days later caused so much pain I was unable to walk or stoop for five days—I certainly don't want any more such shots. I understand the anemia makes me feel tired all the time and unable to throw off a cold that has been hanging on. (L. L.)

Answer—You should have an examination, or perhaps repeated examinations at intervals for pulmonary tuberculosis. Not that I assume you have it, but just that you owe it to yourself to make certain you haven't it.

Calcium and Vitamin D.

Following your advocacy of calcium and vitamin D we have had excellent results —it has relieved our growing children of "growing pains", put an end to the aching of my tooth sockets, and relieved me of chronic backache. (Mrs. H. T.)

Answer—Thank you. Pamphlet on Adult Tetany and Growing Pains mailed on request if you inclose stamped self-addressed envelope — do not send a clipping in lieu of your request. Many adults suffer with painful cramps in legs at night from tetany—due to deficiency of calcium and vitamin D.

PARTRIDGE SCARCE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 20 — (CP)— Two hunters can testify that there are fewer partridge to be seen now than in the 1943 season. The two, hunting at Havilah, travelled all day and saw only one bird. Even then it got away from them.

ENVY OF ANGLERS

Brockville, Oct. 20 —(CP)— Charles Fox and Philip Jackson were the envy of other fishermen east of nearby Maitland when they succeeded in landing a "muskie" 4½ feet long and weighing 31½ pounds. The catch established a district record.

THREE LEFT HOMELESS

Burnt River, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)— Fire late yesterday razed the business section of this 100-year-old village 32 miles north of Lindsay and left three families homeless. The fire broke out in a service station, swept hrtough a grocery store and apartment block and then through other buildings.

MUST RETURN EQUIPMENT

Kingston, Oct. 20 (CP)—The Ontario Civil Defence Committee has advised Kingston city council that all A.R.P. firefighting equipment loaned to the city during the war emergency must be returned immediately or the city will be responsible for payment, it was announced last night.

SANATORIUM OR SANITARIUM

How does a sanitarium differ from a sanatorium?

Many people apply "sanitarium" and "sanatorium" interchangeably to any hospital or institution in which sick and injured persons are given medical and surgical treatment. In this sense "sanitarium" is the more common in the United States.

In his "Modern English Usage" H. W. Fowler says: "Sanitarium is a possible but now undesirable equivalent of sanatorium."

Some American authorities, however, attempt to distinguish between the two terms in present-day usage.

"Sanitarium" is derived from Latin "sanitas," health, while "sanatorium" comes from "sanatorius," curing or health-giving. Accordingly, it is maintained a sanitarium is a health resort where people go to keep well and a sanatorium is a hospital where sick people go to get well. A sanitarium might be a retreat in the mountains or on the seashore where people in a rundown condition go to recuperate and to build up their health by means of natural therapeutic agents such as rest, sunlight, diet and beneficial climate. If treatment is given in such a sanitarium it is chiefly prophylactic or preventive.

A sanatorium, on the other hand, is an establishment where healing is performed by active and artificial means, such as medicine and surgery. A person with indigestion or a broken leg would go to a sanatorium for treatment. Often the term is restricted to mean a hospital in which persons with a particular disease are treated by the application of a specific remedy. For instance, institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis patients are almost invariably called sanatoriums in America.

Usage does not always bear out these distinctions and not infrequently the definitions in dictionaries are unsatisfactory.

Sometimes "sanatorium" is erroneously spelled "sanitorium," due to confusion with "sanitarium," and "sanitarium" is incorrectly spelled "sanatarium," due to a similar confusion with "sanatorium."

'Plan of Publicity' To Encourage Participation in Local Government

Toronto, Oct. 19—(CP)—A "carefully thought out and properly-executed plan of publicity" was suggested here today at the Annual Conference of Ontario mayors and reeves as a method of encouraging citizen participation in local government.

In an address to more than 50 delegates at the second session of the two-day conference, K. Grant Crawford, director of the Institute of Local Government of Queen's University, Kingston, warned against the danger of "centralization" of government and offered as a solution development of citizen interest in community affairs through organised publicity campaigns.

"If long-established business houses feel it worth while to carry on continuous and costly publicity, it seems only reasonable that local governments with an idea to sell to their people . . . should be able to produce results with such a plan," Mr. Crawford said.

Municipal Gov't and Democracy.

Noting a "continuous and definite pressure towards centralization in the government," he warned that as this situation develops, "public interest dwindles and the governing system becomes one of the people and perhaps for the people, but certainly not by the people."

"The greatest contribution which municipal government can make toward preserving our democratic form of government is to develop strong democratic institutions," Mr. Crawford continued. "The hope for future democracy lies in keeping the people as close to the government as possible."

Main business during the morning meeting was adoption of resolutions concerning taxation of government-owned public utilities, a federal government policy on civil aviation and other recommendations affecting Ontario municipalities.

Recommendations Carried.

These included:

(A) Resolutions submitted by the cities of London, Sarnia, Stratford, Sault Ste Marie, regarding disposal by Dominion authorities of surplus supplies, buildings and equipment used for war purposes;

(B)) Resolutions from the city of Niagara Falls pointing out that public utilities owned or operated by the government either directly or by commissions are not subject to municipal taxation as privately-operated utilities and requesting amending legislation be sought to allow municipalities to tax such utilities and crown companies on the same basis as private concern;

(c) Resolutions from the city of Owen Sound urging the Provincial government be requested to publicise proposed legislation concerning municipalities before such proposals are before the legislature for adoption.

Unemployment Relief

(d) Resolutions from the Hamilton Board of Control requesting further representations to central governments regarding their policy on post-war unemployment relief.

(e) Resolutions urging the provincial government be requested to remit on a percentage basis a proportion of gasoline taxes collected to municipalities to defray expenses in local maintenance and construction of roads.

Among other resolutions submittde was one by Mayor Joseph Meinsinger of Kitchener, pointing out "There is an immediate need for labor in those industries producing essential building materials and for labor in the building trades and urging that such labor be made available at once so that construction may start on much-needed housing."

Town Planning

Other resolutions passed affected municipal town planning, old age pensions and cost of unemployment relief.

It was announced the following members have been appointed to the committee on Federal-Provincial-Municipal relations to make necessary representations in connection with resolutions adopted at the conference.

Mayors Fred J. Conboy of Toronto, chairman of the conference; Joseph Meinsinger of Kitchener; Stanley Lewis of Ottawa; Charles Lamb of Lindsay; W. Garfield Case of Owen Sound.

General Keller Praises Canadian Troops at Front

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 20 (CP)—Bearing the scars and honors of battle, big and sandy Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller who led the Canadian 3rd assault division to the Normandy beaches, through Caen to the gates of Palaise disclosed here today that the tactics which held the main strength of the German army at that Canadian-British sector were vital to the success of the big Allied break through on the right flank.

His left arm in a sling and walking with the aid of a cane, the hard-bitten soldier—home for further hospitalization—gave a graphic picture of the campaign up until the time he was wounded when supporting American bombers misjudged a target.

As for the case of mistaken identity, the general gave a philosophical shrug and a smile and said: "This is a very big war and those things are bound to happen. We must run these small risks for the objects are so much greater". Then he paid a warm tribute to the softening up work the American air force carried out in front of his division's advance.

Black Day For Germany.

It was his opinion that the big push of Aug. 8 through Falaise was timed to give the Allies a psychological advantage. For it was the anniversary of the date in 1918 when the Canadians spearheaded break-through at Amiens which the German soldier Ludendorff later described as the German army's black-day—the first day of the famous "last hundred days" of the First Great War. "I believe that Aug. 8, 1944 may be given by future historians as the German army's second black day."

He said that the main strength and power of the German army was concentrated in the Canadian army and was held there by "our pressure tactics."' While this strength was held up the Allied right wing plunged through a weaker opposition. "Then when the enemy realised his mistake he sent too little reinforcements too late to the American front and that gave us the chance and we broke through."

Too Little And Too Late.

When the Canadian-British push began however the Germans made another mistake and sent too little back to the Falaise front too late.

The confusion that followed "was truly a black day for German arms and may have been the crucial point of the whole campaign."

He told of his trip back on the hospital ship Lady Nelson and his talks with men who "hope to get back on their feet like I do in time to get into action against those Jap baskets"—(he deliberately mispronounced the noun.)

Heavy Seas Encountered.

The ship was two days late arriving at Halifax and terrific storms some days slowed its speed to three knots. This was pretty tough on the efficient nursing staff and tougher on some of the patients but he heard no one talking about post-war problems and only about the work left to be done. "They were in good heart and ready to fight again," he smiled.

The general had heard of optimistic reports of the battles in Europe. "If you saw the type of men we've got to lick yet before victory I think the ardor of the general public would be more conservative," he said

He thought the most important factor in the fine combat spirit of the Canadian army was that it's long three-year wait in Britain had given it a specially healthy appetite for the enemy.

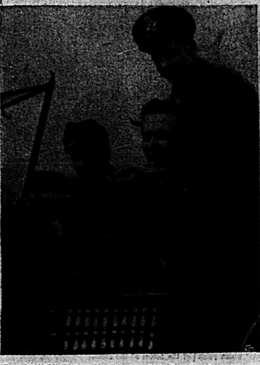
GETTING READY FOR A SPIN



In a land "kite" named after an aircraft of the Goose Squadron, three members of R.C.A.F. bomber group prepare to go for a spin. At left is Flt.-Sergt. D. P. Godefroy, Toronto, a rear-gunner who has completed a tour of operations, as has PO. W. J. Cunningham, Oyen, Alta. (with hat on), also a rear-gunner. Flt.-Sergt. G. S. Ursada, Windsor, Ont., (R.R.1), a mid-upper gunner who has 31 trips over enemy territory to his credit, is at the wheel.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Oct. 20. (CP)—Ground crews of the R.C.A.F. Lion bomber squadron have won the Handley-Page Trophy for the highest efficiency record during June and July and for the lowest accident rate in Bomber Command during that period.

When Wing Cmdr. Geoffrey Leonard Cheshire, D.S.O., and two bars, D.F.C. of R.A.F. No. 617 squadron was awarded the V.C., nobody was happier than P.O. Harry Rhude of 123 Shirley Street, Halifax. Rhude, member of the R.C.A.F., was navigator for Cheshire on the last few trips which completed Rhude's three tours of operations. Now he's headed home on leave. Rhude was the fourth man in the R.C.A.F. to complete three tours and in cleaning up, he did 12 operations in 16 days. Unlike most flying men he had no rest between tours but went from one to the other without any period in training command as an instructor.

Another Canadian who knew Cheshire well was Sqdn. Ldr. Chuck McDonald of Toronto, who has something like three tours of operations in Bomber Command himself.

Cheshire picked out "Mac" and his crew to do a special job for him on one of Cheshire's more intricate bombing operations in which he sealed up a tunnel which the Germans wanted very much to use, "Mac" figured his being chosen by Cheshire was a high compliment.

McDonald, at present on sick leave, knows all the tough German target towns himself. Right now he is getting over a splintered heel which he collected in a non-operational accident.

They have a father-and-son combination in the Canadian bomber group—FO. V. S. Webster, 46-year-old administration officer from Toronto and Flt. Lt. W. V. Webster, 25 who completed a tour of operations with a R.A.F. squadron.

That old "die for the Fuehrer" propaganda sword had been plunged to the hilt as far as the Luftwaffe is concerned if indications left behind as the Belgium airfield now in the hands of Group Capt. G. R. McGregor's Canadian Spitfire squadrons are any criterion.

In hangers and buildings throughout the premises are prominent signs to the effect that the individual, in this race for existence, is to run second to the Fuehrer at all times. Drawings and paintings, still hanging on walls, illustrate the theme of self-sacrifice almost exclusively; for instance, a single Focke Wulfe 190 taking on a full squadron of Spitfires.

Dakota troop carrier and transport planes have laid a "flying pipeline" across the Channel from Britain to airfields in France. Less than 100 Dakotas recently delivered 40,000 gallons of aviation fuel to France in a matter of a few hours. The transports also brought bombs and rockets for Canadian Typhoons operating from a station, which was a Luftwaffe base not many days before.

Hurricane Kills 26 Persons, Damage Heavy

Charleston, S.C., Oct. 20 — (AP) —A tropical hurricane which killed at least 26 persons and caused untold property damage in Florida and Cuba, apparently was diminishing in force early today as it moved northward along the Atlantic coast.

The Washington Weather Bureau, in a 3 a.m. E.D.T. advisory predicted flood tides by noon today at places in the Carolinas, but said they would subside rapidly as the centre of the disturbance passed.

Three hours later, a bulletin located the centre of the storm about 40 miles east-southeast of Columbia, S.C., moving north-northeastward at 20 miles an hour. It was expected to reach Raleigh, N.C., by mid-afternoon.

Little damage and no casualties were reported in the Carolinas, although Charleston was without power for more than six hours and low-lying sections of the city were reported flooded.

Damage was unofficially estimated at $20,000,000 to the citrus crop in Florida. The storm turned out to sea at Jacksonville and began its swirling course up the Atlantic seaboard, striking Savannah and Brunswick, Ga., before moving into the Carolines.

WEDDINGS

WARD—WRIGLEY

St. Clement's Church, North Toronto, was the setting for a wedding of interest when Elizabeth Salisbury Wrigley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Wrigley, Toronto, became the bride of Orde B. Ward, son of Mr. Frederick B. Ward, K.C., and Mrs. Ward, Picton. The church was decorated with white 'mums and Rev. Canon W. G. Nicholson, M.A., officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and she wore pale blue crepe, matching shoes and accessories, blue feather hat with veil. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of Sweetheart roses and baby blue 'mums.

Miss Mary King was bridesmaid, and her frock was mauve and pink crepe with matching feather hat. Her flowers were pink roses and mauve asters. Mr. Malcolm Oldenham, Toronto, was groomsman. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Bouck and Mrs. Anne Weir sang, "Yours is My Heart Alone". The ushers were Mr. Bill Butt and Mr. Jeff Wilkins.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents, 2002 Bathurst St., Mrs. Wrigley wore black and green crepe with black accessories. Her corsage was green 'mums and white gardenias. The bridegroom's mother wore turquoise green with gold accessories, tan hat and corsage of gold 'mums.

For travelling, the bride wore brown and chartreuse dress with matching accessories. They spent their honeymoon in U.S.A., and will reside in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Ward, Picton, Flt.-Lieut. A. H. and Mrs. Piroth, Ottawa, and Mrs. H. Burr, Picton, were guests.

BELLCHAMBER—PATTERSON

Before a background of evergreens, baskets of mums and asters, and with Fall flowers decorating the rooms, the marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents, Bowery St., Picton, of Dorothy Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Patterson, Picton, and Cpl. Albert Leonard Bellchamber, R.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bellchamber, Croyden, Surrey, England. Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of blue wool with brown accessories. Her only ornament was a diamond and pearl necklace, worn by her mother on her wedding day. Her flowers were American Beauty roses and fern.

Miss Ina James was her cousin's attendant, wearing a powder blue wool frock with black accessories and corsage of pink roses and fern.

Cpl. John Hartley, R.A.F., Picton, was groomsman.

An interesting feature of the wedding is that it was performed on the 88th birthday of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Allinson, Kingston, as well as on the 39th wedding anniversary of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Stanley Wenborne, Kingston.

Dinner was served at the Hotel Globe under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Sinton. The three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table. Rev. Swayne proposed the toasts to the bride and groom and to the bride's grandmother.

Mrs. F. Patterson was in Halifax blue crepe.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the bride and groom left for Toronto, Niagara Falls and points west. The bride travelled in a brown crepe suit with gold trimmings, brown coat and accessories. On their return, a reception will be held Tuesday night at the home of the bride's parents. For the present they will reside in Picton, and later in England.

The groom's gift to his bride was a sterling silver case; to the bridesmaid, gold locket; to the best man, a leather billfold. Among the wedding gifts was a cabinet of silver from the R.A.F. Corporal's Club. Cables were received from the groom's parents and sister in England, as well as from others. Four corporals from the R.A.F. were among the guests.

Trinity Women's Club Holds Monthly Meeting

Madoc — The Trinity Women's Club met in the church parlors on Tuesday evening.

During the business period, conducted by the president, Mrs. Beatty, various reports were read. The club members decided to serve a supper at the military banquet held in the armouries this month.

The program was prepared by Mrs. Earl Burnside and Mrs. F. Nickle. Mrs. Burnside, choosing as a theme, "Thanksgiving," read the Scripture. There was a poem "Meditation" and prayer by Miss Olive Ashe.

Mrs. Nickle took charge of the remainder of the program which was chiefly literary.

Mr. Johnston and his orchestra delighted all with their music. Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Jack and Miss MacDermid in turn gave very interesting information about various Book clubs and commented on some of the books displayed. Miss Loreen Connor gave a very fine paper on "Canadian Poetry." Miss Jean McIntosh having chosen "Madoc's Public Library" as her topic, indicated that it was an educational institution to provide mental recreation and that everybody should interest their friends to go in. Miss McIntosh, too, very ably commented upon books from the library which had been brought for the evening.

A motion of thanks on behalf of the club was extended by Mrs. McGowan to Miss Connor, Miss McIntosh, and all others who had contributed in any way towards making the evening interesting and educational.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. Refreshments and a social time followed.

St. Peter's Mission Band.

October

October wears a lovely gown,
A gown of every hue,
A pretty dress of gold and brown
Of red and orange too.

October is a dainty Miss,
Without a word of warning
She trips down the avenue,
I saw her just this morning.

October in her crimson dress
Is passing quickly by,
She visits all the countryside,
And yet she is so shy.

October, in her splendor,
Her pretty frills unfurl.
She makes a curtsy, Oh, so sweet,
And gives her skirts a whirl.

October takes her fancy shawl
To blanket all the earth,
And when the fringe comes falling down
It fills each child with mirth.

October's loved by everyone,
Each child, both boy and girl
She's loved by every little pet
The chipmunk and the squirrel.

"October, can't you stay awhile?
We love your pretty clothes".
But her eyelids now are drooping
And pretty soon will close.

Short addresses were made by several present, all bidding Mrs. Heasman welcome to the neighborhood and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Heasman the best of success. Mrs. Jack Donohoe read an address signed on behalf of the River Valley community by Harry Morrow, Ralph Utman, Percy Scea and J. L. Donohoe.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello, Homemakers! The chill winds of autumn inspire a revival of the heart-warming concoctions we call soup. Especially welcome enough to raise the standard of ing enough to raise the standard of our daily food necessities which keep us fit—meat, vegetables and milk.

Hearty soups include chowders, cream soups, and thick vegetable soups. Some of these soups, especially chowders, are meals in themselves, with only a light entree or salad and a dessert needed for balance.

The art of soup-making as portrayed in the old cook books takes time, many ingredients and much patience. But in these days when minutes are precious, short-cuts are allowed. For example, canned consomme or beef extracts may double for homemade stock. But when you buy a boned roast be sure to ask for the bones. To the bones, add some chopped onions, a few celery leaves and a sliced carrot. Cover these ingredients with plenty of water, then bring to a boil and simmer for two hours. Add salt, pepper and some herbs. Strain this broth and use it as a basis for special soups.

Foundation for Cream Soups.

1 quart milk, 1 tbsp. butter, 1 tsp. chopped onion, 1 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. salt, 1-3 tsp. white pepper, 1 speck of cayenne.

Scald milk with the onion. Melt butter, add flour and cook until frothy, but be careful not to let the butter brown; add 1 cup of hot milk slowly and cook together until thickened. Return to the double boiler. Add seasonings. It is now ready to finish in any way.

Onion Soup.

Cook six peeled medium-sized onions, sliced, in 3 tablespoons butter, or fat, over low heat about ten minutes until very light browned. Then add 2 cans consomme and 2 cans water. Bring to a boil then allow to simmer for 20 minutes. Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Pour into bowls, and on top of each put a slice of sauted rye bread and sprinkle with grated, nippy cheese. Serve very hot.

Hamburg Vegetable Chowder.

3-4 lb. ground beef, 3 tbsp. fat, 2 cups tomatoes, 2 medium carrots, diced, 1-2 cup celery, diced, 1 medium onion, chopped, 2 tsp. salt, 1-4 cup barley, 1-8 tsp. pepper, 1 1-2 qts. water, 2 cups potatoes, cubed.

Brown meat in fat. Put all ingredients except potatoes in a large kettle and simmer slowly one hour. Add potatoes and continue simmering an hour longer. Serve with toast or crackers as a main dish. Serves 6-8.

Chicken Gumbo.

1 small onion, finely chopped, 2 tbsp. chicken fat, 3 tbsp. flour, 4 cups chicken stock, 1 cup cooked chicken, finely chopped, 1-2 cup corn, 2 cups tomatoes or tomato juice, salt, pepper and paprika to taste.

Cook onion slowly in chicken fat for about five minutes. Blend in the flour. Add stock and other ingredients, seasoning to taste. Bring to boiling point and simmer for half an hour. Serves eight.

TAKE A TIP.

Sandwiches for "lunchers" should not be monotonous. For the small "luncher", tuck in a surprise—sensible or funny—every day or so. Here are a few:

1.—A cookie man, a tiny popcorn ball, strips of candied orange peel, a colored, hard-cooked, pullet's egg.

2.—A wiener made into a houseplant with a few branches of carrot slivers and parsley stuck in.

3.—Write a riddle in a note, but give no answer till the "luncher" gets home.

4.—Cut an unpeeled orange lengthwise into quarters.

THE QUESTION BOX.

Mrs. B. A. suggests: Parsley Coleslaw.

1 cup vinegar, 2 tbsp. granulated sugar, 2 tsp. salt, speck pepper, 3-4 cup salad oil, 1 medium onion, sliced, 6 cups finely shredded cabbage, 1 tsp. celery seed, 1-4 cup minced parsley.

Simmer together the vinegar and sugar, uncovered, 5 min. Add 1 tsp. salt and the pepper. Remove from heat, and cool. Add salad oil and sliced onion. Chill in electric refrigerator at least four hours; then strain. In a salad bowl combine with this dressing the cabbage, remaining 1 tsp. salt, celery seed and parsley. Toss well, and serve. Serves four.

Mrs. J. C. asks: How may we prevent sweet potatoes from turning dark?

Answer: Put into salted water as each potato is peeled. Cook in enamel or flameware saucepan until tender. Overcooking tends to discolour foods, too.

MacArthur Speaks To Filipino People In Broadcast

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—"I have returned," Gen MacArthur told the Filipino people in a broadcast today calling upon them to "rise and strike" the Japanese.

Here is the text of his broadcast over the "Voice of Freedom" radio, as reported by the United States Office of War Information:

"This is the Voice of Freedom, General MacArthur speaking:

"People of the Philippines: I have returned. By the grace of Almighty God our forces stand again on Philippine soil—soil consecrated in the blood of our two peoples. We have come, dedicated and committed, to the task of destroying every vestige of enemy control over your daily lives, and of restoring, upon a foundation of indestructible strength, the liberties of your people.

"At my side is your President, Sergio Osmena, worthy successor of that great patriot, Manuel Quezon, with members of his cabinet. The seat of your government is now therefore firmly re-established on Philippine soil.

Hour of Redemption Here.

"The hour of your redemption is here. Your patriots have demonstrated an unswerving and resolute devotion to the principles of freedom that challenges the best that is written on the pages of human history. I now call upon your supreme effort that the enemy may know from the temper of an aroused and outraged people within that he has a force there to contend with no less violent than is the force committed from without.

"Rally to me. Let the indomitable spirit of Bataan and Corregidor lead on. As the lines of battle roll forward to bring you within the zone of operations, rise and strike! Strike at every favorable opportunity. For your homes, and hearths, strike! For future generations of your sons and daughters, strike! In the name of your sacred dead, strike! Let no heart be faint. Let every arm be steeled. The guidance of divine God points the way. Follow in His name to the Holy Grail of righteous victory!"

General MacArthur's call for guerilla warfare was a summons to thousands of Filipinos who have been operating in roving bands throughout the islands, sometimes under American leadership, since the fall of Bataan. And it was a plea for others to join their numbers.

The extent of guerilla activities was recognized by the puppet government a year ago when it voted to grant amnesty to any guerilla who would swear "to become a good citizen."

New Facilities Planned For Rail Passengers

Toronto, Oct. 20 — Declaring that "the railways will move to meet opposition and to regain, retain and create passenger traffic," A. A. Gardiner, General Passenger Traffic Manager, Canadian National Railways, outlined his views to the Canadian Industrial Traffic League here last night on some of the new, modified, or expanded physical facilities planned for rail passengers in the post-war period.

Here are some of the features mentioned by Mr. Gardiner as being under study for rail passengers when normal conditions return: Well timed low fare excursions; simplified conditions time limitations and rates of return tickets; reduced rates for quantity purchases; an extension of checked baggage privileges; reserved seats in coaches; increased speed of trains and frequency of service; "popular priced" meals, and garage facilities at stations.

Physical changes under consideration include post-war sleeping cars with enclosed space rather than the present standard 24-berth 1 drawing room car; improved air-conditioned coaches with individual reclining seats; indirect lighting; comodious wash rooms and pastel colored interiors; a more convenient arrangement of tables in dining cars; improved smoking and non-smoking sections in cars, and improved facilities in station waiting rooms, ticket offices and public facilities.

Roosevelt Sends Congratulation To Gen. MacArthur

Washington, Oct. 20 — (AP) — Text of President Roosevelt's message to Gen. MacArthur:

The whole American nation today exults at the news that the gallant men under your command have landed on Philippine soil. I know well what this means to you. I know what it cost you to obey my order that you leave Corregidor in February, 1942 and proceed to Australia. Since then you have planned and worked and fought with whole-souled devotion for the day when you would return with powerful forces to the Philippine islands. That day has come. You have the nation's gratitude and the nation's prayers for success as you and your men fight your way back to Bataan.

Will Allow Italy To Hold Tripolitania

London, Oct. 20 (CP)—Italy will be allowed to retain Tripolitania in North Africa after the war, the Daily Sketch said, yesterday.

This is regarded here as the only overseas territory that Italy would be permitted to keep, however. Great Britain and the United States are understood to hold the view that Tripolitania is part of Metropolitan Italy, much the same as Algeria is of France, and not a colony or protectorate.

The sovereignty of Italy in Tripoli was recognized by the great powers under the 1912 treaty of Ouchy.

Japanese Fear U.S. Landing

Chungking, Oct. 20 — (AP) — Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-Chuen, Chinese Army spokesman, said today that Japanese preparing for a feared American landing in China had fortified the coastal area between Shanghai and Hangchow Bay and were building submarine bases at Wenchow, Foochow and Amoy.

The high command spokesman said inland fighting continued in Kwangsi province both east and west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, with Chinese troops holding the Japanese at bay around Tajungkiang, 23 miles above Kweilin.

Northward, west of Hengyang Chinese troops recaptured two Japanese strongpoints near Paoching. They are also attacking in the direction of Changning, south of Hengyang and towards Anjen and Chaling, east of Hengyang, the spokesman said.

Women's Canadian Club Hears Address by Corolyn Cox on 'Quebec'

Mrs. Corolyn Cox, well known writer for the Saturday Night, was heard by the members of the Women's Canadian Club at a meeting in St. Anderw's Church Hall on Thursday afternoon. Coming from Ottawa, Mrs. Cox is keenly interested in the Province of Quebec and from her close study of the province and its people, she addressed the women of the Canadian Club on the subject of "Truths About Quebec."

"The Quebec situation is quite a serious one on our horizon", said Mrs. Cox. Now, there is a political point of view towards Quebec and a social and personal one. Quebec was brought into confederation on certain arrangements. One of those arrangements was that the province should have control of its own education and have an established church. he early colonists of Quebec were dyed-in-the-wool Roman Catholics who did not want to change their religious attitude. The French Kings would not allow the Huguenots to settle in Quebec, because as they said, "Quebec was to be solid Roman Catholic and the Huguenots were not to mar it".

"We are all interested in International relations," continued Mrs. Cox. The young Quebec does not know about what we are thinking. We are not able to pour another story into their ears and they do not learn our language, so they are not able to think along any different lines then the ones they now know. The speaker quoted Senator Bouchard as saying "Free speech is not permitted in the Province of Quebec".

"At the present time there is a boiling up there," said Mrs. Cox. "Essentially, in the Quebec Province, you have a small farm and a large family. The idea of the Quebe leaders was to swell the population and thus gulp up the rest of Canada.

STUDY OF LANGUAGE

Some of the family study to be priests, some for nuns and some go to the United States to seek employment. There, they learn to speak English and when they return home to Quebec, they start ideas. American capital came to Canada and started pulp and paper mills, and they employed the French Canadians. The men who directed the machinery and held the important positions were Americans, whereas the French only had the ordinary jobs. The French then began to think that the Americans were prejudiced against them. The French workers became wise." Mrs. Cox stated that there are now feelings in Quebec to the effect that the people learn to speak English and have a proper education.

"The main question arising in their souls," she said, was "Why should we be handicapped? We must let them know that the English have not been doing that to them. An intelligent Frenchman was heard to say that the Roman Catholic Church is politick. Quebec", she said "is natural for communism". Some French people say, 'We are run around now, so communism could not be any worse'". Mrs. Cox said that when she asked a Frenchman what he thought the solution to the Quebec question was, he answered, "Oh, revolution is the only solution to the question."

"There is always in the political mix-up an anti-British sentiment. The clerical domination is the only difficulty with our agreeing to doing anything for them. If they would accept our terms in regards to that difficulty, we would certainly agree with establishing a common educational system for all of us and be quite ready to allow our children to learn to speak the French language. It will be we who will lose if we force the French to learn English — they must do it for themselves," stated the speaker.

"How can we help them do it,?" asked Mrs. Cox. "The whole of Canada outside of Quebec is perfectly able to make changes by ballot. Learning to speak their language is the primary thing for us to do. There is no use blaming one government or another. We women should remember that we are voters. We had better take note of what has happened in the past and see how we can put it right."

In conclusion she said, "Every time we condemn the people of the province for something they do not know that they are doing, the further away the solution to the Quebec problem becomes."

Mrs. Cox was introduced to the assemblage by Mrs. W. H. Finkle, President of the Canadian Club, and club appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Cox by Mrs. R. A. Pringle.

Jungle Fighting Out on Leyte

By C. YATES McDANIEL
(AP War Correspondent)

Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 20 —(AP)— Thrusting into the heart of the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur's invaders today were making their first attack of the South Pacific come-back in which they would not be engaged in jungle fighting.

Orderly rows of coconut palms fringe the sandy beaches of the eastern coastline of Leyte for 40 miles south of Tacloban, the provincial capital.

Skirting this coast is an all-weather highway, joined at several points by lateral roads leading through the broad Leyte valley northward to Carigara Bay and the inland sea of the Philippines.

For the first time since Bataan, MacArthur's army and artillery will have room to manoeuvre.

Leyte is the eighth largest of the Philippine islands and has nearly 1,000,000 citizens.

MacArthur's artillery will have wide fields of fire in the battle for valley roads and the island's half dozen airfields of which Tacloban three miles from the town, is the most important.

Nature may take a hand in the battle. This is the beginning of the rainy season and near the end of the typhoons. Some score of rivers and streams course down from flanking mountains to crisscross Leyte valley.

Decisive Battles Are Shaping Up

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—"Decisive battles" are shaping up in the Philippines, Tokyo newspapers warned their readers today.

"With the enemy shifting his position for another frontal clash after the disastrous defeat off Taiwan (Formosa), the Pacific war is entering the decisive stage," Domei News Agency said in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

"The Philippines," said the newspaper Yomiuri Hochi Shimbun, "has become a battleground for decisive battles between the United States and Japan."

Domei's report on what leading Tokyo newspapers had to say about the American invasion of the Philippines indicated that the Japanese press was still receiving a limited picture of the action.

Says Hitler Demanded "Suicide Units" be Formed

Stockholm, Oct. 20 —(AP)— The Budapest correspondent of Stockholm's Tidningen said today that Ferenc Szalasi, Premier of Hungary's new puppet government, had visited Hitler at Berchtesgaden to appeal for German reinforcements to bolster his regime.

The correspondent said that instead of granting the request Hitler had demanded that Scalasi organise "suicide units" to cover German forces withdrawing from Hungary.

3 GOVERNMENTS MUST CO-OPERATE IN POST-WAR PLAN

Conference Sees Need of Getting Together of Municipal, Provincial and Federal Governments

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP) — The Annual Conference of Ontario mayors and reeves ended a two-day session here last night on a note of three-way co-operation in post-war planning by federal, provincial and municipal governments.

At the closing banquet of a meeting marked throughout by an emphasis on peace-time community improvements and plans for provincial - municipal co - operation, Premier George Drew of Ontario told more than 80 delegates of the necessity for the three levels of government in Canada to "get together" on post-war planning.

The need for a three-way conference was "never so urgent and necessary as it is today," the Premier said.

"We want that conference. It is the only way we can plan for full employment after the war. There are great opportunities which will be held back unless the administrative functions of government are defined."

He urged a thorough study of the British North America Act in connection with an improved constitution in post-war days, for "despite what has been done under the War Measures Act, we will return to that form of constitution the moment peace comes."

Last day of the conference saw lection of George Inglis of Niagara Falls as president of the Association.

Other executive officers were Past President, Mayor W. Garfield Case of Owen Sound; 1st Vice-President, Mayor J. E. Brunette of Timmins; 2nd Vice-President, Mayor Meinzinger of Kitchener; 3rd Vice-President, Reeve John Warren of East York; Treasurer, Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa.

Guest speakers at the final session were Dr. J. T. Phair, Chief Medical Officer for the Province, and Hon. George H. Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Favors Jail Farm Basis.

Mr. Dunbar said he had recommended to the province the abolition of "half-full" county jails and the substitution of efficiently-operated institutions of a "jail-farm" basis, upkeep of which would be entirely at the expense of the provincial government.

"The horse and buggy days of the county jail are over," he said.

Dr. Phair said municipalities were unwilling to bear their share in maintenance of efficient, public health agencies in the community and deplored the lack of municipal facilities for prevention of tuberculosis and venereal disease. He said 80 per cent of the 910 municipal health agencies in Ontario spend less than $200 a year on public health.

Members of a special committee on housing were appointed at the closing session.

The members are: Mayors Hamilton, Peterborough; A. G. Davis, Oshawa; T. W. Scrannage, Collingwood; F. J. Conboy, Toronto; J. P. Ryan, Brantford; J. Meinzinger, Kitchener, and Reeve F. J. MacRae, York Township.

The War Today— Significance of Invasion Of Philippines by MacArthur

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Substituting for Dewitt Mackenzie
Associated Press War Analyst

Gen. MacArthur returns to the Philippines with his usual flair for both confounding the enemy and staging a good show.

Striking with what Mr. Churchill calls "triphibious" force MacArthur has by-passed strong enemy bases on Southern Mindanao to obtain immediate objectives at minimum cost.

Even this force, however, is only a part of that available. The next few days should provide a clearer view of what impends. It seems likely, however, that the Leyte action is designed primarily to obtain airfields from which to dominate the entire Archipelago. One field, near Tacloban, is almost in sight, and flatlands in the area offer plenty of room for more.

New Technique of Warfare.

MacArthur developed a unique system of warfare in New Guinea with his specially-trained army "amphibs." These units operate their own landing craft to strike quickly in relatively small strength at key coastal points. They drive the enemy back from the coast, cut off his supply routes and leave him to the jungle. Beachheads thus established immediately become bases for more of the same.

By this system the U. S. 6th Army and others which will follow may establish quickly a series of bases which will resemble, offhand, an aimlessly-laid string of pearls, but which will choke all Japanese strength south of Luzon, where the principal battles between real armies can be expected.

Larger forces with formal naval support will be required at some points, principally Davao, Cebu, Negros and Mindora, which could contain air bases. Samar is so rough the coastal "pearls" probably will contain it, like numerous smaller islands.

Native Guerillas and American Survivors.

The alternative would seem to be a direct massed assault on Luzon as soon as overwhelming air support from ground bases has been provided, as the Japanese did in 1941-42. This would leave most of the central and southern Archipelago to dry up on the vine, but then American forces were far fewer than the 225,000 men the enemy is estimated to have now, and more caution may be necessary.

One thing the Allies have that the Japanese did not, however, may prove of great importance. That is a pre-arranged organization of native Guerillas and American survivors. It may be a principal factor in MacArthur's reported optimism regarding a comparatively rapid conquest reducing the time ratio from that required on other bitterly defended islands already taken.

HALSEY ENJOYS JOKE

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 20 — (AP) — Admiral Halsey enjoyed radio Tokyo's little joke about the Imperial fleet having sunk between 40 and 52 ships under his command and assured Admiral Nimitz that he now is retiring toward the enemy, following the savage of all the U.S. 3rd Fleet's ships recently reported sunk by the Japanese. Nimitz disclosed the message in a special press release.

St. Mikes Undisputed Leaders Of Senior Gridiron Loop Beating Ancient Rivals B.C.I. by 24 to 7

Take Commanding Lead in Early Part of Game and Coast to Victory

Romping home to a 24 to 7 win over their ancient Belleville Collegiate gridiron enemies, Coach Jack Doran's St. Michael's Academy senior interscholastic gridders took undisputed leadership of their Bay of Quinte COSSA group with two wins in as many starts. Now the "Irishers" have met and downed both B.C.I. and Albert College, the latter placing second in the group standing.

On the Collegiate campus yesterday the hustling St. Mikes sextette moved into a commanding lead early in the game to score two touchdowns before Skipper Red Townsend's "Collegians" got their bearings. The driving Irish never quit forging ahead and finished out in front 24 to 7 and going away.

The pastime was still in its infancy, when Dick Fitzpatrick pitched a long pass to Doug Green, the elongated red-head gathering in the oval and finishing the play for a touchdown that Fitzpatrick promptly converted with a placement kick to put the Irish 6-0 out in front. The Collegians tried in vain to even matters and were driving strongly with aerial attacks, when Bob Wilson leaped high to spear a pass, intended for Gord Bankier. The fleet-footed Wilson ran the broken field for 27 yards and a second St. Mikes' major score that Fitzpatrick again converted via the drop kick route, score St. Mikes 12, B.C.I. 0.

B.C.I. Score Rouge

Dodson and Philip made yards for the Collegians and Spafford moved the oval to St. Mikes 19, where Stew Woods took over with a smart end run to go over the Irish goal line standing up for the only B. C. I. major score. Dodson booted over the uprights to convert and St. Mikes were only leading 12 to 6. Again B.C.I. moved into the Irish territory, where Dodson punted into the end zone with Fitzpatrick being rouged, when a trio of Collegians trapped him bringing the score 12 to 7 at the halfway mark.

Early in the second half B. C. I. fumbled badly on attempted forwards giving St. Mikes possession. Fitzpatrick again pitched far and true to Doug Green, who placed the ball on the Collegians' 13 before Bob Wilson took it to the three where Al Kelleher walked over for an unconverted touchdown, 17 to 7. Kelleher reeled off 22 yards and then took a pass to put the ball on B.C.I. nine, where Bob Wilson went around right end for a major score bringing the count to 22-7. Gord Donovan intercepted an attempted B.C.I. pass and Fitzpatrick booted a single point and after B.C.I. later fumbled Fitzpatrick kicked another to the deadline to end the scoring at 24 to 7. Dodson carried the sting for B.C.I. followed by Woods.

The line-ups — Belleville Collegiate: centre, Bankier; ends, Edwards and Miles; quarter, Spafford; halves, Dodson and Woods; subs, Philip, L. Spafford, Legate and Freeman. St. Michael's Academy: centre, Green; ends, G. Wilson and McAuley; quarter, Fitzpatrick; halves, Bob Wilson and Donovan; subs, Lucy, Kelleher, Moher and Duffy.

Referee, Schreider; umpire, Stevens.

DOUBLE ELIMINATION

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP)—London, Ont., will be the site of the 1945 Canadian sandlot baseball championships, it was announced here Thursday by Lloyd Douglas, president of the National Baseball Congress of Canada. The series will be held in August.

If conditions permit, Douglas said a double elimination series will be played with the winners meeting the champions of the United States tournament at Wichita, Kansas.

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP)— In line with Toronto Maple Leafs' avowed new policy of adding blood and iron to the players' diets, coach Hap Day has been giving his charges a taste of Commando action. Mob hockey is the rule at the Owen Sound camp, with all the young and old hopefuls on the ice battering away at one time.

Probably he's getting them ready to live up to Frank Selke's "be tough" decree and give them the taste for blood and bodily contact. Maybe we won't need pucks at all this winter around the N.H.L. circuit!

Will History Repeat?

Chortling merrily, Harry Eisen of the London Free Press predicts that the N.H.L. likely will forget all about its "no players with war workers' deferments" clause before the season ends. He predicts there will be quite an outcry about the affair, led by Montreal Canadiens, and that the governors will have to draw in their horns. Of course, as precedent there is the famous "gag rule" of last season.

It's Business, But—

There was a rather pathetic story behind the claiming of Head Sea at Dufferin Park, Toronto, the other day, Jim Coleman relates in the Globe and Mail. The horse comprised the entire stable of little Jimmy Darou, jockey who was crippled several years ago in a spill at Connaught Park, Ottawa. Some Montreal sportsmen, headed by Wilf Trenholme, bought him a service station and gave him a mare, Cavanna, for Darou to race and keep him in the game his heart was in. Then, after Cavanna got past her peak, Trenholme gave the little fellow Head Sea. All's fair in horse racing, but it's tough for a fellow like Darou to suffer.

Incidentally:

It was touch and go for a while whether the sailors in Halifax would be dancing or playing hockey this winter, but the Navy League directors of the Forum finally decided to put down a sheet of ice in the service centre and the day was saved . . . Joey, idol of the western race fans, is still in the news although he has been dead and buried these many moons. His last set of racing shoes, silver plated and engraved, were auctioned off for Victory Bonds to start off the 7th Victory Loan drive at No. 4 R.C.A.F. Training Command in Calgary. Joey was there in the flesh when the first loan was held back in 1941, when he helped raise a sizeable sum . . .

HAMILTON-BEACH CLASH FEATURES WEEKEND GAMES

Undefeated Teams Will Meet in What May be Deciding Game of Year

By The Canadian Press

With the Ontario football campaign going into its fifth week, the time seems to have come to trot out all the well-worn adjectives to herald the first clash of the season between two unbeaten Ontario Rugby Football Union teams — Hamilton Wildcats and Toronto Balmy Beach.

They meet in Toronto in the feature clash of a four-game program. In the other O.R.F.U. game, the winless Toronto Indians play Ottawa Trojans in Ottawa while in the Ontario Armed Services League, Toronto Navy plays St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets in London and Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers entertain Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in Hamilton.

While coach Alex Ponton whose Beaches have won three games has expressed belief he has a stronger club than coach Eddie McLean of Hamilton, he summed up the feelings of the majority of fans when he said that stopping halfback Joe Krol "is our main worry" and "that's a big order."

Krol, scoring leader in the two leagues with 36 points, has been a mighty factor in the four Wildcat victories so far this season.

Beaches may be without the services of their two quarterbacks — Frank Stukus and Bert Hamm — injured last Saturday although there is a chance Stukus may be able to get into action. Ross (Red) McKelvey, fleet young Billy Myers and veteran Sam Sward are the chief Beach threats.

The Ottawa game is the last of the season for the Indians who have lost all five of their games so far. The Trojans have three losses and one victory, but the victory was a 33-11 conquest of the Indians in Toronto.

Feature game in the services league is at Hamilton. Hurricanes need a win to keep in the play-off contention. They are in third place behind Navy and Bombers, tied for first, with two wins and two losses. A victory would give them at least a second-place tie with Hagersville and would provide a three-way tie for first place should the winless Hornets spring a surprise and take Navy into camp. Navy and Bombers each have three wins and one loss. St. Thomas has lost all four of its games.

D. CASTILLOUX BEATS PERALTA IN RETURN BOUT

Pounds Out Clean Cut Decision Before 7,000 Patrons

Montreal, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Dave Castilloux, Montreal, holder of the Canadian lightweight and welterweight titles, last night evened his score with Joey Peralta of Mexico, when he pounded out a clean cut decision before an estimated crowd of 7,000. Castilloux weighed 136 lbs., two less than the Mexican lightweight champion.

Avenging a decision loss suffered earlier in the month at Toronto, Castilloux got the unanimous nod of the referees and The Canadian Press score card showed 7 rounds for Castilloux, four to Peralta and one even.

It was one of the most riotous battles seen in a Montreal ring in a long time, with both fighters swinging freely after the bell and finally engaging in a kicking duel, shortly before the end of the tenth round.

Repeatedly the Canadian champ caught Peralta with hard right crosses that slowed him down temporarily and brought out cuts over both of the Mexican's eye brows. However, at no time in the fight did Castilloux have too much of his own way as his opponent shook him with several short right and left uppercuts.

In the tenth, Peralta, thinking the bell had gone ending the round, headed for a neutral corner. But Castilloux came from behind and caught him with a looping right. Peralta replied with a kick to Castilloux's legs. The two started kicking at each other freely and then began swinging from all angles.

Managers and seconds had to jump into the ring to help the referee get the two to the corners and succeeded just as the bell sounded ending the round.

In the semi-final, "Whistling" Willie Roach of Wilmington, Del., earned an easy eight-round decision over Horace Leftwich of Buffalo. Roach, who is signed to meet Sal Bartolo of Boston for the featherweight title, had little chance to show his class against the failing Buffalo boy.

Good Chance

A man on holiday had been told he would find splendid sport on the lower reaches of the creek and along the lagoons bordering the river.

Gun in hand, he wandered for miles without getting a shot, and was crossing a bridge on the way back to the hotel in the late afternoon when he met a small freckled boy.

"Is there anything to shoot about here?" he asked.

The boy scowled thoughtfully and shook his head. Then his face brightened up.

"Here's the schoolmaster coming across the bridge!" he exclaimed.

Irish Lead.

Jack Doran's St. Michael's Academy "Irish" senior six-man gridders moved into the top slot in their Senior Interscholastic grid loop yesterday taking Belleville Collegiate 24 to 7 in their stride. The Irish held well, Dick Fitzpatrick's punting and unerring passing accounted for at least three Irish tries and the winners capitalized to the fullest measure on the Collegians' fumbles and misplays.

In two games played the Irish have scored 52 points while a total of 29 have been scored against them, the B. C. I. kids getting seven yesterday. St. Mikes beat Albert 28 to 22. Today St. Mikes have two wins against no losses, Albert has a win and a loss, while Trenton and B. C. I. have dropped one each.

This and That.

He caught up with Lynn at Nashville and the redhead was clowning around in the outfield tossing the ball with his left hand . . . Terry was still impressed but was Bill's face red when Japhet turned up at the Polo Grounds as a righthander . . . The Chicago Black Hawks had the last laugh on their rivals when they drafted Pete Horeck, 21-year-old right-winger of the Cleveland Barons and leading scorer in the American Hockey League last winter . . . At least two other National League teams by-passed the young man because they knew he was to be called for military service in Canada . . . "Well, we took a flyer," laughed President Bill Tobin of the Hawks in telling the story. "Sure enough Horeck got his call but was rejected and so will be wearing a Hawk uniform next winter . . . In 1941 Horeck played second base with the Reliance softball team here during which time Kennie Soden and company had hoped to induce the speedy Pete to remain here and display his puck wares with the local Senior club the following winter . . . However, Horeck had other ideas and moved to Cleveland to join Tom Burlington, another player who didn't play here . . . With Horeck and Burlington in the camp the Reliance could have copped the Intermediate crown that year, instead of the Petes.

Rasslin' Racket.

Last evening Whipper Watson and Baxter went at it for the entertainment of the personnel at the Trenton Main Station . . . The boys appear at these armed service camps at their own expense . . . Remember the popular Scotty McDougall, who wrestled here a decade ago or less? . . . The popular Goderich harness horse racing lover is back home after four years service overseas . . . "Irish Jerry" Monahan, who was better known locally as the Masked Marvel, has taken over the wrestling matchmaking at Buffalo, N. When Referee Bert Maxwell disqualified Ivan Rasputin here Wednesday night the Toronto ring arbiter saw the writing on the wall and was taking no chances with the irritated fans. After all discretion is the better part of valor.

Cobb First Honored.

Ty Cobb was the first most valuable selection made in the American League in 1911, when the Chalmers Award was intiated. He was followed by Tris Speaker, Boston, 1912; Walter Johnson, Washington, 1913, and Eddie Collins, Philadelphia, 1914.

After an interval, the league resumed the selections in 1922, when George Sisler of St. Louis was given the honor. Then came Babe Ruth, 1923; Johnson again, in 1924; Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington, 1925; George Burns, Cleveland, 1926; Lou Gehrig, New York, 1927, and Mickey Cochrane, Philadelphia, 1928.

The St. Louis Sporting News then filled the breach, following the discontinuance of the awards by the league, in 1929, when Al Simmons, Philadelphia, was designated, followed by Joe Cronin, Washington, 1930; Gehrig again in 1931; Jimmie Foxx, Philadelphia, in 1932 and 1933; Gehrig, again, in 1934; Hank Greenberg, Detroit, 1935; Gehrig again, in 1936; Charley Gehringer, Detroit, 1937; Foxx again in 1938; Joe DiMaggio, New York, 1939; Greenberg again, in 1940; DiMaggio, again, in 1941; Joe Gordon, New York, 1942, and Spurgeon Chandler, New York, 1943.

Remember When.

The Bluenose, with Captain Angus Walters at the helm, retained her title as queen of the North Atlantic fishing fleet off Halifax harbor 13 years ago today. The Lunenberg schooner won its best-of-three series over the United States challenge, Gertrude L. Thebaud to keep its ten-year International racing record perfect.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 518

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

It takes more than a green hand to make a squeeze play. But it is easy to see how it works when the final three cards in each hand are exposed to view. Like the cards you see here:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ None
♦ 9
♣ A 7

WEST
♠ None
♥ None
♦ Q
♣ K Q

EAST
♠ None
♥ None
♦ None
♣ 10 9 8

♠ 2
♥ None
♦ None
♣ J 2

South is declarer at a grand slam contract of seven spades. He has taken the first ten tricks and is still in the lead. What you see are the remaining three cards in each hand.

If south now leads a club, west will play the queen of clubs. To win that trick, dummy will play the ace. After that, there is no way of keeping west from taking a club trick.

However, if south leads his last trump instead of a club, you can see how the squeeze works. From there on, there is no chance for west to get a trick in anything.

When south leads his last spade, what can west do? He must let go of some card before dummy. And whatever suit west plays, dummy will give up a card in a different suit.

Should west play the diamond queen on the south last spade? If he does, dummy will throw away the small club. Thereafter, the last two tricks are taken with dummy club ace and diamond nine.

Instead of the diamond queen, should west play the club queen on the last south spade? If he does, dummy will throw away the nine of diamonds. You can see what happens after that.

Dummy will then take a trick with the club ace and the south jack of clubs will take the last trick. And nothing that west can do about it will change that result.

A squeeze is relentless when the victim must protect two suits. With threatening cards on either side of him, in trying to protect one suit, he is forced to lose control of the other.

You can't have everything.

A man with no arms—Lloyd Edwards, veteran of this war from St. Catharines—last night bowled a socre of 207 in a five-pin game at Hamilton. He accomplished the feat by manipulating with his artifical hands a special bowling ball invented and developed by John Weatherston of Hamilton, Edwards, who lost his hands in an accident at the Mountain View, Ont., Bombing and Gunnery School of the R. C. A. F., was testing the attachment for the first time. t consists on a pin and spring attachment in the ball which can be grasped in the artificial hand and springs back inside the ball on being released.

After shooting for a knockout from the opening bell, Irish Bobby Ruffin, 139½, of Astoria, N. Y., finally managed to floor the rugged Vince Del' Otto, 133, of Philadelphia, for the full count in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-pound bout at Boston last night.

EAGER ROOKIES HOPE TO MAKE BOSTON BRUINS

Frank Mario, Formerly of Cornwall, Best Looking Prospect Says Ross

Quebec, Oct. 20—(CP)— A group of eager rookies are going through their paces with Boston Bruins in Training Camp here and Art Ross, silent manager of the Hub City Club, is sparing no efforts to quicken their talents.

Guy Labrie of Quebec, and with Boston Olympics last year, is one of the more promising freshmen and may get the nod for a contract. Frank Mario came in from Cornwall, Ont., a couple of days ago and in that time has shown promise of Major League talent. Ross has seen Mario perform in former years when the Bruins had their Training Camp at Cornwall.

Mario formerly was with the Cornwall Flyers in the Quebec Senior Hockey League. Pete Leswick may also end up with a berth with the Bruins for it is reported that his efforts have caught the eye of Ross.

Rinkside observers still seem to favor Maurice Courteau for the goal tending job but perhaps definite word might be forthcoming after an exhibition game Sunday in which the Bruins will meet a Royal Canadian Navy team from Quebec. Ross is expected to use this encounter for "polishing" and testing the rookie players.

Those who have returned from last year's team are proving satisfactory to Ross who has hard-hitting defencemen in Johnny Crawford and Johnny Shewchuck. Aubrey (Dit) Clapper adds a touch of finesse to the rearguard while Pat Egan can usually be counted on to stir up the rough house business when the game is going too slow.

Bill Cowley, Herb Cain and Buzz Boll have been working on one forward line again and they may be able to take up where they left off last year when injuries forced Cowley to the side lines for almost a month. Norm Calladine, Busher and Art Jackson and Bep Guidolin seem to be on a par with the form displayed last year and are all set for a successful season.

CAPITALS BEAT BUFFALO BISONS

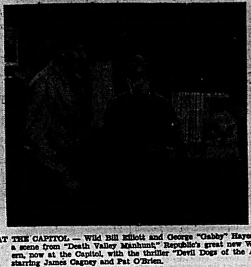
By The Canadian Press

The return of Bill Jennings and Byron (Butch) McDonald to the Indianapolis Capitals was signalled last night with a 2-1 victory over Buffalo Bisons as the two teams opened their American Hockey League season at Indianapolis. George Pargeter saved the Bisons from a shutout when he beat Harry Lumley with a neat shot in the second period.

Jennings came back from Detroit Red Wings where he played last season and McDonald recently was discharged from the Canadian Army. McDonald and Jennings also posted assists with Bill Thomson also earning an assist.

Don Webster served the pass to Pargeter which resulted in the Bisons' tally but later efforts to score on Harry Lumley were fruitless.

In week-end games, Indianapolis will visit Cleveland on Saturday, with Providence at Hershey and Buffalo at Pittsburgh in other Saturday games. Sunday Hershey will be at Buffalo, St. Louis at Indianapolis and Pittsburgh at Providence.



AT THE CAPITOL — Wild Bill Elliott and George "Gabby" Hayes, in a scene from "Death Valley Manhunt," Republic's great new Western, now at the Capitol, with the thriller "Devil Dogs of the Air," starring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Word from Boston Bruins training camp at Quebec says Pat Egan, the hard-checking defenceman, will be back as a regular with Art Ross' squad this season. Others expected to return include: Dit Clapper, Johnny Crawford, Bill Cowley, Busher and Art Jackson, Herb Cain and Buzz Boll.

Note: Bruins meet Canadiens in one of the league openers, Oct. 28.

The Canadiens have requested that they be permitted to delay the filing of the numbers of players with the N.H.L. office — an indication that club officials are having a tough time in lining up their squad.

Manager Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks has added Bill Mosienko, classy winger, to this season's lineup. The team has had the best practising conditions in six years, the manager says.

When president E. W. Bickle, vice-president W. A. H. MacBrien and Frank Selke of the Maple Leaf Gardens official family, dropped in to watch the Leafs in action at their Owen Sound training quarters they saw the "poorest workout" since the start of training, says coach Hap Day.

Today (Friday) promises to be a big day at the Leaf camp. Nick Metz of Wilcox, Sask., is expected to arrive for training. Gus Bodner, rookie of the year last season, also is scheduled to return to practice after a week's layoff because of an injury.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and ma said, Do you remember that stunning blouse that Maud Hews was wearing last night, William?

I dont recall being stunned by it, so I suppose I dont remember it, pop said, and ma said. That just proves it's a fortunate thing that women dress to please other women, because as far as men are concerned, a woman's clothes go right in one eye and out the other. Anyway, Maud has a wonderful little woman who made that blouse for her from a pattern, but I'm sure my little woman could do just as perfect a job if she only had the pattern, so Maud promised faithfully to stop by today and leave it, ma said.

And you mean she unfaithfully did nothing of the kind? pop said, and ma said. To make a long story short, exactly. I'm suppose to be her best bosom friend and she made a great point of assuring me that I'm the only existing woman she would lend that pattern to, but when it comes to allowing you to copy their clothes I suppose even your best friends have feet of clay. Oh dear, we live and learn, I suppose, but I must say I'm disappointed to learn about Maud Hews of all people, she said.

Which just then I thought Heck, on account of just remembering something, and I said, Well jimminy, ma, maybe she did try to leave it for you.

That's the sort of thing you dont have to try for land sakes, it's the sort of thing you just keep your word and do, ma said, and I said, That's what I mean, ma, I mean maybe she met somebody on the street and handed them an envelope and maybe that was the very envelope that might of had the pattern inside. If the mailman didn't make a mistake and think it was something somebody was trying to mail, maybe, it's still on top of the letter box, ma, I said.

It better had be, for your sake, I assure you from the bottom of my heart, ma said.

And I quick ran out to see, and it was still there, making me feel lucky.

CHAPTER 2

The airfield was dull and grey and the buildings were very well camouflaged he noticed and then they were setting them down—undercarriage down and the landing speed to keep them from stalling was quite high he noted again with these new Spits; he felt the wheels touch, felt the planes lose speed and start to bump over the ground again as he pressed back on the stick and then turned his back to the wind and taxied down to the hangars. The six young men climbed out and the ground crew around asking for news and then grinning and the little Scotsman who was his rigger was fingering some holes he hadn't noticed before on his starboard wing and smiling at him.

"Good show."

The young men walked across the field and he took a cigarette from the youngster who had almost got pinked by the Hun, what was his name now, Smith or Brown or something, and they went into Ops and talked with the man behind the desk who had thin iron grey hair and three broad stripes on his sleeve, who said when it was all over, "Good show." And then added, not looking at the Canadian "I'll wager you'll get gonged for this, Riley. That's five for you." And the young man smiled. But you noticed it was forced. And you wondered who he was, where he was from, what he had done, where he went to school, and where he learned to fly. You wondered if he had a girl, if he was engaged, married. The six young men went out to the car and drove back the little road that had led them to the Fighter Station.

There was a room and the room was warm and smelt nice and his mother smelt nice too. His father smelt of tobacco a little and his cheeks when he pressed them against his were hard and lean and smelt of the shaving stuff up in the bathroom. He liked it. The street he played on was sunny in the morning and shady in the afternoon and there was a white fence around his yard. When he first went outside the white fence his mother spanked him but after a while it was all right—and after a while it was all right to go outside too. The boy across the street was Hughie and his hair was almost white it was so fair and curly, and the girl next door was Margaret and her hair was curly and blond too and he liked Margaret too. But no better than Hughie. Hughie could play better than Margaret. Hughie said girls were no good anyway. But Margaret was nice.

His bike was red that his father gave him when he went to school because he didn't like school. He liked the bike though and he took the wheels off, and his father laughed and his mother sighed and said, "Well, I suppose he'll be a garage mechanic. I'd rather that than a fireman." It was nineteen hundred and twenty nine and he was eight and he was in second year. He came home and started to to tell his father about what had happened at school but his father didn't look at him. And his mother called him over and helped him with his lessons. He wrote long lines of a's all the same and then she put him to bed. He could hear his mother talking to his father for a long time and then it was morning and the sun was streaming in. His father called him "big fellow" at breakfast and everything was all right. He had a big sister and a young brother, then one day another little sister. She was small and red and ugly. He didn't like her very much.

When he was in sixth year the teacher got mad so he got mad too and mother had to come over and fix things. He didn't like school, except some parts. In 1588 the Spanish Armada set sail and was defeated. But he liked poetry. Hail to thee, blithe spirit. He lay in the park and watched the squirrels after school. The squirrels granary is full and the harvest's done. In sixth year too he had a fight with Punchy Kidd, who was Hughie. They both got bleeding noses and then they shook hands. His mother gave him a scolding for fighting with his friends.

"Well Punchy said I loved Margaret Kelley," he told her, and he wondered why she turned away and why her shoulders were shaking. Girls were no good anyway. He and Punchy shook on it.

That was why he couldn't understand why he kissed Margaret one day when they were walking through the woods behind her house. Her family had moved a few blocks away into one of the new houses and they were in First High. The suburb was getting bigger and only fields and woods were behind the new block. When he kissed Margaret she didn't do anything. She just looked at him, sort of frightened. They didn't say anything. He liked the way she had felt, soft and nice.

He liked to read. He read Huckleberry Finn, the Legend of Sleepy Hollow and Tom Swift. He liked Tom Swift and his Electric Runabout best. But he liked King Arthur most of all.

"My good blade carves the casques of men
My tough lance thrusteth sure
My strength is as the strength of ten
Because my heart is pure. . ."

It was a hot Saturday afternoon and he played tennis with Gladys. He was in Third High and the court was hard and he had a new racket. Gladys was good, too good. He felt no inclination to kiss Gladys. She was a tomboy. But she sure played a good game of tennis. Afterwards they had chocolate sodas at Cape's, big tall cold sodas. He liked watching Johnny, the soda jerk, put the syrup in by pressing the plunger marked Choc, then throw in two scoops of ice cream—he liked chocalate but Gladys liked vanilla—then soda water from the faucet, first the thick stream, then the thin, then the thick again to finish off. By that time the big glasses were always cold and frosted and Johnny stirred it up and slid it onto the dark green marble of the fountain top. He didn't talk to Gladys at all after he had dug the two straws into it. She kept on chattering but he just sucked on the straws and felt cool chocolate stealing over his tongue and under the roof of his mouth, cold and sweet and he could close his eyes and remember how hot he had been on the tennis court and then compare it to this. It was swell.

It was summer warm and green and blue and he liked it best of all. They played baseball in the park. He felt good. He had two and a half dollars in his pocket, the first he had eevr earned. He had a paper route, sixty-three customers, and he even liked doing it, riding along the sidewalks in the early morning, no hands, folding the papers and throwing them onto the galleries fast as he could fold them. The first weeks were over and he could do it with his eyes shut; and had two and a half dollars in his pocket. He wondered what he'd do with it. It was his licks and the bat was solid and chunky in his hands. Chet pitched one fast but not fast enough and it was just where he liked it. The smack of the hardball against the bat was clear and sweet and it shook slightly right up his arms and into his shoulders, cleanly, not jarring like when you didn't hit it square. It was long and low and he could see the fellows in the cow watching it over their heads and then turning and running for it away off to the edge of the park when he rounded first. It was a homer easy without even sliding. The gang clapped him on the back . . he sure felt good. Gladys was there too. She played ball as well as some of the boys. He suddenly knew what he was going to do with the money. He took Gladys to the show that night, the first time he did anything with his own money, the first real date he ever had, because up till then it had been all parties at the girls' houses. When they had one of Johnny's sodas he walked home with Gladys, holding her hand. He still had a dollar eighty in his pocket and when they got to the big tree that shut out the street light half way down her street he swung her around and kissed her quickly and impulsively Only it wasn't like Margaet. Gladys grabbed him and kissed him right back so he did too, but it was different somehow. He didn't like it as much.

He called on Margaret the next day and all the rest of the summer. He liked her better, much better.

That was the pattern of the next two years too, because he always found himself coming back to Margaret all the time, no matter how many other girls he took out. He liked them, he found more and more. Girls sweet and clean and nice-smelling. Parties were a lot of fun too, though he hadn't liked them at first. Then he did. Especially Postoffice. But after a while that was kid stuff too. He stood with Punchy and watched the rest of them giggling and screaming one Saturday night and found he didn't like it much anymore.

"Kid stuff," Punchy said.

"Yeah," Jimmy replied. "Kid stuff." But just the same he kissed Margaret and took her home. There was a moon and it was cool and quiet on her street. He was suddenly very aware of Margaet beside him, her soft hand in his. They walked slower and slower up the street towards her house and he suddenly wished he didn't have to walk at all but could just stay here and look at her, her blonde hair, her soft smooth face, and hold her, forever. They went slowly up the stairs of her porch and then they stood on the verandah and the moon slanted a silver beam right past one of the white columns onto her face, and his breath caught. He watched her eyes looking at him, moving a little as they went over his hair, black and sleek and shining and his chin, that he had just started shaving and then they moved closer slightly, and he was kissing, softly at first, then hard, then soft and lingering again, her lips, and he had never tasted anything so sweet. Then her cheek was against his and he could feel her breath warm in his ear and her body, soft and warm and trembling in a thin blue party dress that he had loved the moment he saw it, was in his arms, and she shivered deliciously.

He rubbed his cheek against hers again and sighed. He had never felt like this before, and he realized it was Margaret, Peggy, little Peg and no one else. The little girl who had lived next door and was now all grown up and full and fully aware He thought, "Am I in love or what?" and he knew he was. So he told her. She murmured, "I love you too, Jimmy." Pretty soon she had to go in because the porch light was on and he scuffed his toe on the sidewalk all the way home. Funny thing. He crawled into bed at twelve-thirty which was the very latest he had been out till then and thought, what a funny thing love was if it was like this. But it was nice too.

In Fourth High he and Punchy bought the '29 Ford that Roger had over at the corner garage by working all summer at the cheese factory and delivering morning papers besides. It cost sixty dollars but was worth it. They took it apart the first Saturday they had it and put in new rings and ground the valves. It was easy and sort of natural and they worked on it every Saturday after that. They rebabbited the pistons—then you could hardly hear the motor—so they took off the muffler and the mudguards, painted it pale green and wrote 'Capacity 9 gals' and 'Step gently, brother' and 'Rocket Ship' all over it. They took the girls out in it and despite their screams and wails every-time they went around a corner—there were no doors—they loved it. That Fall they drove up North in it and made seventy-six on the new Highway. On the way home it stalled and then they had a blowout but they got it going and rolled home at four in the morning on the rim. Jimmy caught hell off his dad and the next day had to start back to school to get his senior Matric. That took a year and he was eighteen.

It was after supper and his father called him into his study one night in the fall. His father tamped tobacco into his pipe and eyed Jimmy.

"Well son, got any idea of what you'd like to do?"

Jimmy didn't have any idea. His father puffed slowly on the pipe and ruffled some papers on his desk. Then he cleared his throat. "You could go to work, or you could go to University." He looked at Jimmy quizzically again. "Well any ideas, any choice?"

It was the first time Jimmy had had a decision regarding his own future, his own life, to make. He found it hard to decide. Finally he said, "Think maybe I'd better go to the U." He didn't know exactly why he chose, maybe in the back of his mind he didn't feel like starting into work right away. Maybe he was thinking of having a good time for another year anyway. Hell he was only eighteen. Whatever it was he went to the U and register-in Law with Punchy and most of the crowd. . . though not all in Law. Some started working. Margaret was in Arts. And he found he liked Law. Especially when some of the fellows who were working started telling him of being chained to a desk for sixty a month. He didn't like that at all. He would rather make a stab at law. He had a good time too and got 71 per cent the first year. Which wasn't bad, wasn't good.

He turned out for football but wasn't much good the first year. The second year was better. They had summer training and he sweated off about ten pounds working under Coach Domecko's watchful eye. With the sweat sticky and clinging inside a grey sweatshirt under shoulder pads, in old cleats, he slugged into scrimmages and wondered why he did it. He kept wondering till the Fall of thirty nine when they went into their first game. Then he was glad he had done it beccause he had his first taste of laurel and it was very sweet.

In the Fall of 1939, a month and a half after war was declared, James Riley made a touchdown. It wasn't an ordinary touchdown because Alma Mater needed the points very badly. Alma Mater was three points in arrears to OAC. Also James Riley had to take evasive action, a term he was to know in much greater detail and seriousness later on, and then press the attack to five members of the visiting Aggies' College and with a lovely series of push-faces and swivel-hipped spins, with knees high in that well known run of his the one that the Star's photographer caught so well that memorable Fall afternoon, after one of the most beautiful exhibitions of broken-field running seen on Alma Mater's Campus in a long time, he crossed the line standing up. Coach Domecko, bent nose, raglan camel-hair, battered brown felt hat, pounded him on the back and called him 'his great boy'. Domecko had reason to be proud. It had been a thrilling run, it had saved Alma Mater's hide and secured the Dominion Championship, and after the game Jimmy was shouldered and carried triumphantly to the dressing rooms.

Jimmy and the whole Campus were very proud and very excited and it would be no lie to say that the War, two months old and beginning to be called a 'phony War' was relegated somewhat to the background. Feelings ran high because the Aggies, the Farmers, were traditional enemies and they had just been handed their first defeat in six years. The Championship was in the bag now and festivities ensued. A Snake Dance wove its way through town to the dismay, justified, of the local Tram officials, trolleys were pulled, gates were hung on top of telegraph poles, innocent bystanders were deprived of their headgear and all in all the most important subject in James Riley's mind, and in the mind of the whole student body was the football victory. The war was quite secondary.

With Gus McDermott, the chief cheerleader, a weird lanky figure with his shock of yellow hair and a wild gleam in his eye called forth by the recent victory, in the front of the line of some six hundred of the braver students, the fellows in their Fall tweeds, the co-eds in more colorful plaids and porkpies, wove through the streets about the Campus, at first. But enthusiasm still ran high because it was rumored there would be no football, no intercollegiate sports at all the next year if the war kept on, so Gus wove his way downtown, along Main Street with the good folk gathered on the sidewalks to watch. They charged through the very residential district on the Hill and more than one taxpayer had good cause to write to the Editor. That was in 1939 though and very few of them did because football, especially where the Dominion Championship was involved, was important, very important, to practically everyone.

They raided the Circle Lunch and wrecked the Joint, as Gus admitted to Dean Cyril later when Circle Lunch sent a bill to Alma Mater for two hundred and seventy-five dollars. It was worth it. Jake Bradley had started the ball rolling by tossing a chair to Chet Lavol. Chet had retaliated goodnaturedly by overturning a table and calling him, "You ragamuffin, Bradley," there being no co-eds present.

Jake had retaliated, from his position of vantage atop the lunch counter, by calling Chet a boor and a cad, and sides had quickly formed. The co-eds sought the shelter of the walls and while chairs flew and tables crashed and glassware was ground under heavy brogues, they alternately gasped and cheered. In 1939 a scrap was pretty heavy excitement and something not to be taken lightly. Such heavies as Eddy McDonald and Ronnie Hyland and Ray Sheehan and Cus Thompson, all plenty tough boys, did their best to give the girls a thrill and they succeeded very well. About suppertime the Snake Dance broke up and in jaloppies, '29 Fords, battered roadsters, and one or two new cars that some of the students owned, with no worries about tires or gas rationing, the boys and girls went home to prepare for the Football Dance.

Fifty Aircraftmen Taken Over by Army

Toronto, Oct. 20 —(CP)— Fifty aircraftmen will be taken over by army at Manning Depot here today in the first transfer of an estimated 4,200 R. C. A. F. personnel throughout Canada. The former airmen will begin their army training at Newmarket Basic Training Centre Monday.

Army officials said R. C. A. F. personnel affected by the transfer might enlist in a Military District other than the one in which they received their discharge. A Vancouver airman stationed in Toronto has the option of receiving his discharge and clothing allowance, have his fare paid to Vancouver and there enlist in the army or wait for his army call.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct 20 (CP)—Industrial stocks posted a gain of .27 in the index by noon today on Toronto exchange and the other groups were down moderately. Trading was dull and the turnover for the first three hours was 273,000 shares.

In the base metal group, International Nickel was a feature, advancing to 34 on the news that substantial compensation would be received by the company for the loss of the Finland nickel properties. Steep Rock slipped off to a low of 2.95, showing a drop of 35 cents.

The golds weakened .28 in the index by noon. Changes in the gold shares prices were narrow.

Most of the industrial list held steady. Abitibi Pfd had a decline of a point and other papers were firm.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 20 — (AP)—Investment demand continued to prop selected stocks in today's market although many leaders remained under the chill of light selling. Invasion of the Philippines brought the suggestion both the European and Far Eastern conflicts might end about the same time which would intensify industrial changes in war problems.

Dealings tapered from the start and prices were fractionally irregular near the fourth hour.

Better performers included North American Aviation and Great Northern, both at highs for 1944. The former again reflected a boosted dividend. Ahead at intervals were J. I. Case, International Harvester, National Distillers, Eastman Kodak, Boeing, Woolworth and Kennecott.

C.P.R. was the only Canadian issue to appear in early trading, easing 1-4.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight, Grade A, delivered, Hamilton and London $17.50, Hull $17.40, Stratford, to farmers $17.50, to truckers $17.65.

Chancellor Of Britain Asks $5,625,000,000

London, Oct. 20 —(CP)— The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Anderson, asked the House of Commons today for a supplementary vote of credit of £1,250,000,000 ($5,625,000,000) an amount which he said should carry Britain until about the end of January, 1945.

The present credit, which was voted, will be exhausted the first week in November.

Sir John said that during the first three months of the financial year ended June 30, Britain's daily expenditures averaged slightly more than £13,250,000, then increased to nearly £14,000,000 during the succeeding three months ending Sept. 30.

Members cheered when Ellis Smith, Labor, said: "We appreciate that some of this credit will be used to increase the pay of our men who have still got to carry out the battle in the Far East, and we expect that other countries will recognize the fact that the British people are prepared to accept their responsibilities in that direction."

Consider Second 'Khaki College' Overseas

Ottawa, Oct. 20 (CP)—Defence Minister Ralston, back from overseas with demobilization draft plans, will consider at an early date the possibility of establishing a second "Khaki College" overseas similar to the one which operated immediately after Armistice in 1918, it was reliably learned today.

Announcement of the plan will probably be held up until the return from Britain early in November of Col. G. G. D. Kilpatrick, director of Army Education.

The plan is aimed, like its predecessor in the First Great War, at usefully occupying the men as they wait repatriation after the end of the war. As one officer said today "it will keep the men out of trouble, like it did me, and also give them a useful background for fitting them into civilian life."

As the plan is only in the suggestion stage officials do not yet know what form it will eventually take.

British Troops Occupy Thebes

Rome, Oct. 20 —(AP)— British troops have occupied Thebes, 32 miles northwest of Athens, while German troops harassed by Greek guerillas have speeded up their withdrawal from northern Greece toward Yugoslavia, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The Germans yesterday acknowledged withdrawals from Thebes. Its occupation put British units roughly 75 airline miles from the area in which German columns were last reported fleeing.

There was no indication in the Allied communique whether advance British elements had made any contact with the retreating enemy.

Germans Evacuate Lemnos in Aegean

Cairo, Oct. 20 —(AP)— The Germans are evacuating the island of Lemnos in the northern Aegean only 50 miles from the mouth of the Dardanelles, it was reported reliably today, and complete liberation of the island was believed only a matter of hours.

As far as known this would leave Germans, totalling the equivalent of about two divisions, only on western Crete, Rhodes, Coo and Lero in the Dodecanese and Melos in the Cyclades southeast of Greece.

Train Allied Troops In Street Fighting In Blitzed Area

London, Oct. 20 —(AP)— Allied troops are going to be trained in street fighting apparently as preparation for battling Hitler's new guerilla army.

The training program will be carried out in the Battersea district of Southwest London—a congested district of workers' houses and factories.

The whole area has been badly blitzed and looks like a German city or town might look after an Allied shelling and bombing.

JAP VICE ADMIRAL KILLED

London, Oct. 20 —(CP)— Vice Admiral Nashaharu Arima of the Japanese Navy was killed Oct. 15 when his torpedo plane "attacked and hit a big U. S. aircraft carrier" off the Philippines, Berlin radio said today, reporting a Tokyo dispatch.

Just why an Admiral was riding a torpedo plane, one of the most hazardous of naval weapons, was not disclosed.

Before he crashed, he was said to have torpedoed the carrier, but no such damage has been reported by Allied Naval authorities.

Russians Capture Belgrade

London, Oct. 20. (AP)—Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, has been liberated, Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

DEBRECEN TAKEN

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.— (CP-Reuter)— Premier Stalin in an order of the day announced tonight the capture of the Hungarian town of Debrecen.

Says Gen. MacArthur Came Wading Ashore Nearly Up to Knees

New York, Oct. 20 — An American network pool broadcast recorded by NBC direct from Leyte Island at noon today (EDT) said that "our troops are having a tough time and are being subjected to heavy mortar and artillery fire."

"But then no one expected this to be an easy operation," the broadcaster added.

The reporter described the first landing and said that the first party had driven 500 yards inland before the Japanese fired a single shot.

He added that American battleships and cruisers were standing off shore, lending whatever assistance was necessary, and that dive-bombers "are still plastering the hills near all the beaches."

The broadcaster said General MacArthur came ashore with one of the landing parties "wading in near knee-deep water." He quoted the general as saying "I will stay for the duration now."

Churchill and Stalin Smoke One Another's Strong and Potent Cigars

Moscow, Oct. 20 — (AP)—Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin have become such fast friends that the British Prime Minister now smokes the Marshal's strong Georgian cigars and the Russian Premier takes a couple of whiffs on Mr. Churchill's most potent stogies.

The men who know tobacco best say that is real friendship.
